LUCKY

AGES

BAG 2017

Since the early days of the naval services men have roamed the globe on great voyages in search of gold, glory, and adventure. In todays service we travel further, faster, and with more power than ever before. Naval officers have stood on the moon, been to the poles of the earth, and dived into depths unknown. Our life is a voyage magnified by our time in the Navy and Marine Corps.

Message from the Editor

The theme for this year's Lucky Bag is "voyages". During my time at the Naval Academy, I've always heard the same thing from older graduates. It was always something along the lines of "your time at the Naval Academy will be some of the best years that you experience with an incredible group of people." I heard it so much that it almost became this cliché saying that didn't mean much to me. But as I recount my last few days as a midshipmen, I have become nostalgic of the numerous experiences I've had. It's helped me a realize that everyone's experience as a midshipmen, whether that be as a company mate, teammate, sibling, or friend, is unique. It's also helped me understand that it's sharing of these unique experiences with each other that creates the idea of a voyage. It's the idea that although we are all on our own paths, that there is a common bond that connects us no matter where the service takes us.

I'd like to thank the Lucky Bag staff for their unwavering commitment to this club for the numerous hours of work they put into finishing this book. I'd also like to thank Steve Sweet, Dee Skelton and all of Jostens of their awesome support. This book would not have been possible without the help of photographers Debbie Latta and Phil Hoffman. Lastly, I'd like to dedicate this book to my younger sister, Tysonia Gorrick.

SEAMANSHIP & NAVIGATION

THE DEPARTMENT OF SEAMANSHIP AND NAVIGATION EDUCATES, TRAINS, AND MENTORS FUTURE OFFICERS READY TO LEAD, WORK, AND FIGHT IN A MARITIME ENVIRONMENT. BY SETTING THE HIGHEST PROFESSIONAL STANDARDS THROUGH ACADEMIC AND PRACTICAL TRAINING, EXPERIENCED FLEET INSTRUCTORS DEVELOP MARINERS AND LEADERS ANCHORED IN THE TRADITIONS OF THE NAVAL SERVICE.

MIDSHIPMEN LIFE

1/C SUMMER

THE TIME TO DECIDE WHAT TO DO FOR THE NEXT 5+ YEARS.

RISING FIRSTIES USE THEIR FINAL SUMMER AT THE NAVAL ACADEMY TO FIGURE OUT WHICH COMMUNITY THEY'D LIKE TO BE SELECTED INTO. THOSE WHO ARE INTERESTED IN THE MARINE CORPS DO LEATHERNECK, AN INTENSE PHYSICALLY AND MENTALLY DEMANDING TRAINING. A SURFACE WARFARE CRUISE IS PERFECT FOR THOSE WHO WANT TO BE SWOS BECAUSE THEY CAN DECIDE WHAT KIND OF SHIP/PORT THEY WANT TO BE STATIONED AT. THOSE INTERESTED IN AVIATION CAN DO AN AVIATION CRUISE OR POWERED FLIGHT, A QUICK-PACED COURSE IN WHICH THE CULMINATING EVENT IS A SOLO FLIGHT. THESE ARE JUST A FEW OF THE TRAINING THAT IS OFFERED TO FIRSTIES.

(RIGHT) OVER SUMMER THERE IS AN APPROPRIATE AMOUNT OF WORK AND PLAY. DON'T WORRY ABOUT THE FIRE TRUCK IN THE BACK IT WAS JUST THERE FOR SHOW.

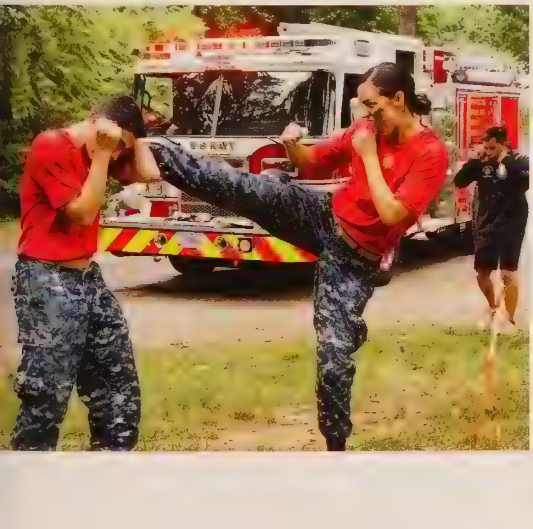
WHAT BETTER WAY TO TEMPT SOMEONE TO GO PILOT THEN SHOW THEM TOP GUN BUT IN REAL LIFE.

"HIGH SPEED, LOW DRAG! #FLYNAVY"

(LEFT) PLEBE SUMMER IS AN EXCELLENT LEADERSHIP OPPORTUNITY. IT GIVES 1/C THE OPPORTUNITY TO PRACTICE SMALL GROUP LEADERSHIP AND PEER LEADERSHIP. BOTH ARE NECESSARY DURING THE SCHOOL YEAR AND AS A JO.

(RIGHT) BOXING CAPTAIN, 1/C JORDAN DAVIS, CORRECTS A PLEBE ON I-DAY. IT'S ALWAYS INCREDIBLE TO GO FULL CIRCLE AT THE ACADEMY. FROM BEING YELLED AT AS A PLEBE TO DOING THE YELLING.

DON'T GIVE UP THE SHIP



(ABOVE) ANOTHER AWESOME TRAINING IS NAVAL ACADEMY SUMMER SEMINAR (NASS). DURING THESE 3+ WEEKS 1/C GET TO INTERACT WITH PROSPECTIVE CANDIDATES AND HELP SHOW THEM WHAT ITS LIKE AT THIS INSTITUTION.

FOR FIRSTIES CONSIDERING NAVAL AVIATION, AN AVIATION CRUISE IS AN INCREDIBLE EXPERIENCE. GETTING TO HANG OUT WITH PILOTS AND GO ON FLIGHTS IS NOT A BAD WAY TO SPEND A MONTH OF SUMMER.

Marine Week One of the weeks during Protramid is dedicated to learning about the United States Marines. The picture to the right displays mids trying out some of the weapons systems used in the Marine Corps.

Protra-Party After a long day of learning about SWOs/Marines/subs/aviation, mids take a break by going to the beach in sunny San Diego or to picnics like in the picture to the far right.

LREC Some midshipmen get an opportunity to go on an LREC, a language and culture program, all over the world. In the picture above, a group of midshipmen pose in front of a Torii gate on Miyajima in Japan.

Plebe Summer Some 2/C are chosen to fill the role of squad leader and admin officer during Plebe Summer. This intensive training prepares 2/C for greater leadership roles during the academic year.

AVIATION WEEK One of the highlights of Protramid for midshipmen is getting to take a test flight in a T-34 aircraft. Some midshipmen had the opportunity to do various maneuvers including rolls.

SWO WEEK During the Surface Warfare week of Protramid, midshipmen get an opportunity to board a DDG and learn more about the pipeline as a Surface Warfare Officer.

2/C SUMMER

PROTRAMID, LRECS, PLEBE SUMMER, WEAPONS DETAIL AND MORE!

From long days out rucking with Marines in the desolate sands of Camp Pendleton, to standing helm on a ballistic missile submarine in the middle of the Pacific, most Midshipmen will fondly reflect on Protramid as one of the best summer trainings the Naval Academy has to offer. The summer training is four weeks long. Each week is spent with one of the four largest communities that most Midshipmen will commission into--Submarines, Marine Corps, Surface, and Aviation. Aside from Protramid, 2/C midshipmen travel all over the world on language trainings, plebe summer detail, cruises, and more.

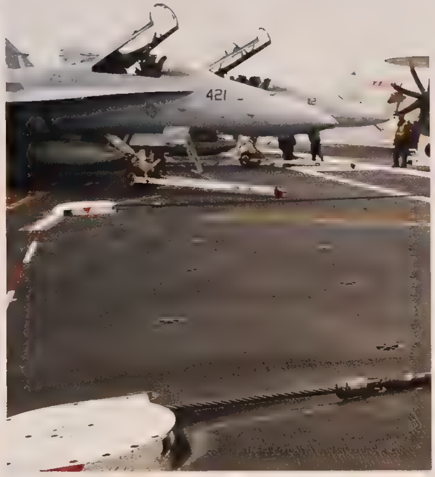
Above is a group of 3/C Midshipmen enjoying the view on their summer cruise.

The first taste of the Fleet

This summer is a Midshipman's first taste of the fleet, and all of a sudden it makes sense why the upper classmen say "the Summers are the best part of the year". From Summer Seminar, to National Outdoor Leadership Course, Jump School, and Youngster Cruise, this summer won't be forgotten!

To the right, 3/C participate in ship drills with their running mates. The 3/C Cruise is often fun filled and very busy.



To the far left, 3/C Midshipmen help the boatswains mates with line handlings. To the near left, planes aboard a 3/C Cruise were a highlight for the youngsters.

DONT GIVE UP THE SHIP

Above, a youngster demonstrates the proper pushup technique to Midshipment candidates over Summer Seminar. To the left, 3/C Kingland, Macdonald, and Lemek gather before the O-Course.

To the right, 3/C Cullen Harper flashes a smile while helping Midshipmen Candidates during the Endurance Course at the Naval Academy Summer Seminar

Right: "Boy if you don't come off this bus right now!" -Jordan Davis, probably Bottom First class Midshipment (Class of 2017) prepare to lead Plebes in a wide range of leadership positions, from squad leader all the way to regimental commander.

Right Class of 2018 and 2017 joined together as detailers for Plebe Summer. They work hand-in-hand to ensure proper training of the 4th Class Midshipmen..

ABOVE CLASS OF 2020 TAKES THE OATH OF OFFICE BEFORE ENTERING THROUGH THE DOORS LEADING TO MEMORIAL HALL.

I-DAY

"HAVING BEEN APPOINTED A MIDSHIPMAN IN THE UNITED STATES NAVY..."

I-DAY MARKS THE FIRST DAY AS A MIDSHIPMEN. THE CLASS OF 2020 ENTERED THE NAVAL ACADEMY ON JUNE 30TH, 2016 AND WAS GREETED BY THE CLASSES OF '18 AND '17. ON THAT FIRST DAY, THEY LEARNED HOW TO MARCH, SALUTE, AND BEHAVE ACCORDINGLY NOW THAT THEY WERE MEMBERS OF THE MILITARY.

PLEBE SUMMER

MAKE PLEBES GREAT AGAIN!

PLEBE SUMMER 2016 WAS HOT AND HUMID TO SAY THE LEAST. MULTIPLE BLACK FLAG DAYS MEANT MORE GRAY SPACE FOR THE UNLUCKY FEW WHOSE SPORTS WERE CANCELLED. IT'S SAFE TO SAY 2020 WAS THE SICKEST CLASS BY FAR--NOT IN A GOOD WAY. PINK EYE AND THE COMMON-COLD PLAGUED THE PLEBES, AND DETAILERS TOO. DESPITE THE HEAT AND DISEASES, '20 FINISHED STRONG AFTER A LONG SIX-WEEKS.

REG STAFF, ABOVE: MIDN 1/C GRANT VERMEER AND THE REST OF HIS STAFF POSE FOR A MORE SILLY PICTURE TO BREAK FROM THE RIGID STRUCTURE OF PLEBE SUMMER. WE KNEW THEY WEREN'T ROBOTS!

PERFECTION, RIGHT: MIDN 1/C CHRISTIAN BLANCHARD, 26 PLATOON COMMANDER, WAS ONE OF THE FEW PLATOON COMMANDERS TO EXECUTE A FLAWLESS DRILL SEQUENCE. THIS IS SAYING SOMETHING, CONSIDERING IT WAS UNDER THE WATCHFUL EYE OF BRIGADE DRILL MASTER, GUNNERY SERGEANT ABBOTT!

BALLIN LIKE I'M KOBE

MAKE PLEBES GREAT AGAIN? (FAR LEFT): WE WERE NEVER ABLE TO FOLLOW UP IF MIDN 4/C VON FECHT AND HERE FELLOW PLEBES BECAME GREAT AGAIN. STAY TUNED FOR NEXT YEAR'S PLEBE SUMMER LUCKY BAG PAGE.

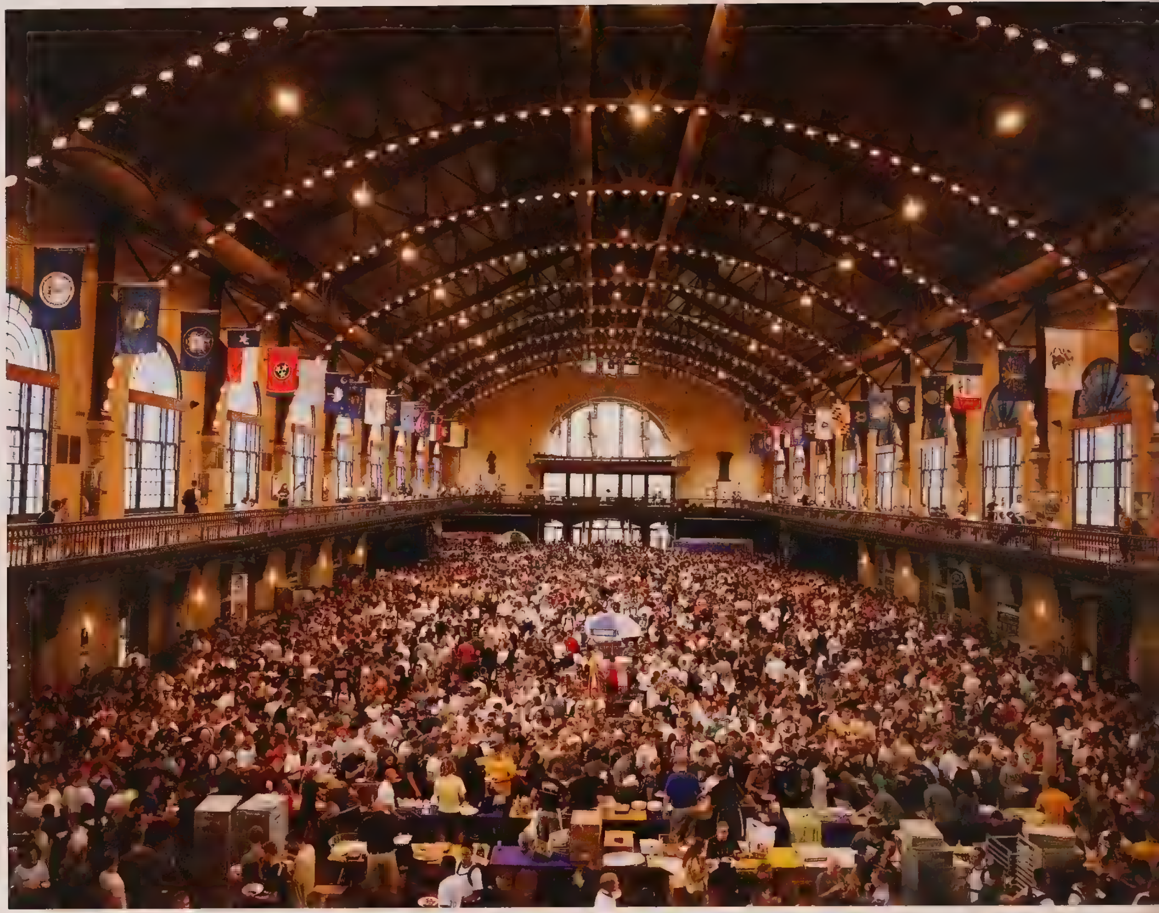
WATCHED LIKE A HAWK, ABOVE: GUNNERY SERGEANT ABBOTT INSPECTS 26TH PLATOON DURING MIDN 1/C CHRISTIAN BLANCHARD'S DRILL SEQUENCE.

FRIENDS, LEFT: MIDN 4/C ZACH ELVIN AND TYLER HAYES GIVE A THUMBS UP DURING THE TRACK SMOKER. WITH THESE SMILES ITS PRETTY SAFE TO SAY THAT THEIR PLEBE SUMMER WAS EASY.



FIRST NIGHT

WELCOME BACK!

FIRST NIGHT IS A SPECIAL EVENING FOR THE BRIGADE. EVERYONE IS BACK FROM SUMMER ADVENTURES AND IS READY TO GET BACK INTO THE ACADEMIC YEAR. FIRST NIGHT IS THE PERFECT TIME FOR MIDSHIPMEN TO RECONNECT WITH FRIENDS AND ENJOY FOOD FROM A VARIETY OF VENDORS. EVEN THE 'INCLEMENT WEATHER COULDN'T STOP THE FUN AND GOOD EATS. EVEN THE SUPERINTENDENT AND COMMANDANT MADE APPEARANCES TO TALK AND EAT PIZZA WITH THE BRIGADE. LONG LINES AND AND A PACKED DAHLGREN ASIDE, FIRST NIGHT WAS A GREAT TIME FOR EVERYONE BEFORE HEADING INTO THE FALL SEMESTER.

CHANGE OF PLANS, ABOVE: NOT LONG BEFORE FIRST NIGHT WAS SUPPOSED TO START, A HUGE STORM HIT ANNAPOLIS. DUE TO THE NAVAL ACADEMY'S EXCELLENT PUBLIC WORKS AND SUPPLY DEPARTMENT, THE ENTIRE EVENT WAS MOVED INSIDE IN NO TIME. LESSONS LEARNED? THE SHOW WILL ALWAYS GO ON!

DANCE TEAM: WE ARE JUST TRYING TO FIGURE OUT WHY THEY WEREN'T DANCING...

NAVY SPIRIT

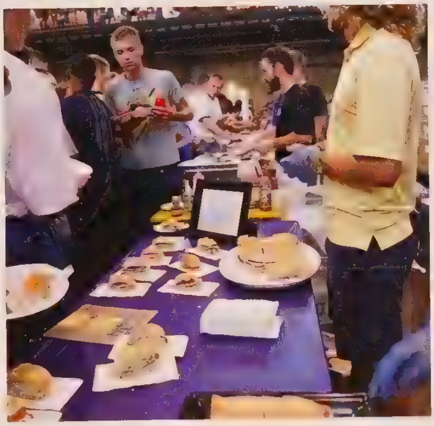
He's got the moves, Far Left: If you ever wanna see someone hit a flawless, on the spot dance routine, just ask MIDN 2/C Tai Dozer. It's always awesome. Also, peep his visor. We heard they are making a comeback.

So. Much. Food.: 'Yeah I'll take one of these. And one of these. Oh, and I can't NOT take one of these too!" These were the words going through every mid's head during First Night.



A Chance to Relax: With the reform of the Brigade officially over, First Night affords the Plebes the chance to wind down for the first time in a relaxed setting.

Vendors, Left: First Night is the perfect opportinity for local vendors an opportunity for midshipmen to try their food. If it's a hit, the Supply Deparment might bring in more of that food during the school year for various events!

COMMITTED MIDN 2/C BROPHY SIGNS HER PAPERS.

"WE MADE IT," FAR RIGHT: MEMBERS OF THE 10TH COMPANY ARE ALL SMILES AFTER MAKING IT THIS FAR. NOW IT'S TIME FOR EVERYONE TO FINISH STRONG!

CHEERS! ABOVE: MEMBERS OF THE CLASS OF 2018 TAKE A TOAST TO THEIR ACHIEVEMENT THUSFAR, AND THE YEARS TO COME!

HEAVY, RIGHT: IT'S AMAZING HOW SIGNING THAT ONE PIECE OF PAPER OFFICIALLY COMMITS YOU TO A CAREER OF SERVICE. NO TURNING BACK (HOPEFULLY) AFTER THAT!

Dinner, Far Left: Members of the Class of 2018 pose before their commitment dinner. The dinner is always pretty amazing.

Revamp, Left: This was the first year that the 2 for 7 signing was formalized. A ceremony led by the Battalion Officers. In previous years, the signing was left up to each company's desire and their culture.

2 for 7 Signing

Two Years by the Bay, for Seven years leading Sailors and Marines.

The beginning of Second Class Year marks a great transition time for midshipmen. Signing their 2 for 7 is a commitment to the Navy or Marine Corps on the remaning seven years they will owe. Each midshipmen takess on their comittment with great honor along with all of their classmates.

FIRST FOOTBALL GAME

"DO YOU THINK THE DANT WILL GIVE US A WEEKEND IF WE WIN THIS FOOTBALL GAME?"
-EVERY PLEBE EVER

THE FIRST FOOTBALL GAME IS ONE OF THE MOST UNIQUE EXPERIENCES TO BEING A MIDSHIPMEN AT THE NAVAL ACADEMY. WHILE THIS MIGHT NOT BE A SEC FOOTBALL GAME, THE ENERGY THAT IS PRESENT AT HOME GAMES IN NAVY-MARINE CORPS MEMORIAL STADIUM IS SECOND TO NONE. THE SPIRIT TEAM AND D&B HAVE A DAUNTING, BUT FUN JOB AHEAD OF THEM, KEEPING THE PLEBES HYPED UP ON THE SIDELINE AND TEACHING THEM THE DIFFERENT CHEERS THAT OCCUR THROUGHOUT THE GAME. OUT OF ALL OF THE GAME DAY TRADITIONS THAT NAVY HAS, PLEBES HAVE THE PUSHUPS ON THE SIDELINES TO LOOK FORWARD TOO THE MOST! ON DAYS WHERE THE TEAM SCORES A LOT OF POINTS, THE PLEBES GET A SERIOUS WORKOUT IN!

GONE, ABOVE: QUARTERBACK, TAGO SMITH WEAVES THROUGH A POCKEY OF FORDHAM'S DEFENSE TO PICK UP SOME SERIOUS YARDS.

BILL IS HEAVY, RIGHT: BILL THE GOAT IS PRETTY JACKED SO IT TAKES TWO MALE CHEERLEADERS TO LIFT HIM.

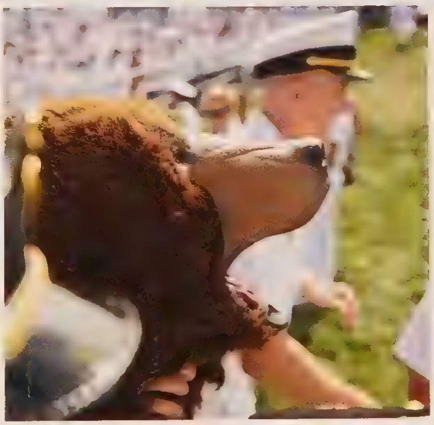
Shenanigans, Left: before every home game, the midshipmen will find some sort of item waiting for them in their seats. It could be a foam finger, or in this case a cone sporting the N*. It looks like 17th Company's Plebes stacked as many cones as possible on their guide-on flag.

DONT TREAD ON ME

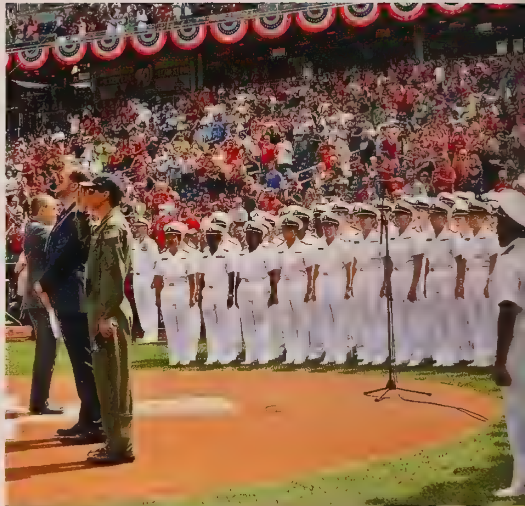


Above Senior Wide receiver, Jamir Tillman stays serious on the sidelines. Tillman was one of the most decorated recievers in recent Navy history.

25th Company's mascot is the Bearshark. You can can always catch a mid dressed up in a bear costume while holding a shark at home footbal games, while being protected by the majority of the plebe class. It's pretty normal to see other plebes mounting suprise attacks on the 25th company to steal the shark. No one knows why though- its not like they get anything for it.

Far right: The Class of 2020 was invited to see the Nationals baseball team play in Washington DC in an effort to honor past and current members of the military service.

Right: It's easy to get caught up in the daily grind of the Naval Academy. However, days like 9/11 is what puts the meaning of service into perspective for everyone.



Stair Climb, above: Companies participate in the 9/11 stair climb at various locations across the Yard every year. Midshipmen who participate in this carry rucks of varying weights and climb the same amount of steps that our first responders did to save lives.

The Midshipmen Action Group hands out small American flags to midshipmen to place along Stribling Walk as they walk to class.

FLAGS, ABOVE: 2,996 FLAGS WERE PLACED ALONG STRIBLING WALK FOR THE LIVES LOST ON 9/11.

A NICE ADDITION, LEFT: THE FLAGS ADDED FOR A NICE ADDITION FOR THE MARCHOVER PRIOR TO THE FOOTBALL GAME.

9/11

A SOLEMN TIME TO REMEMBER THE REASON WHY WE CHOOSE TO SERVE.

SEPTEMBER 11TH, MARKS A TIME WHERE ALL MIDSHIIPMEN ARE CALLED TO REMEMBER THE EXACT REASON WHY THE SERVE. MIDSHIPMEN TAKE PART OF NUMEROUS MEMORALIZING ACTIVTIES WHICH HONORS THOSE THAT LOST THEIR LIVES.

OCTOBERFEST

"EIN PROSIT DER GEMÜTLICHKEIT" – "A TOAST TO CHEER AND GOOD TIMES".

FOLLOWING THE GREAT TRADITIONS OF MUNICH, GERMANY, USNA LOVES TO CELEBERATE OKTOBERFEST. WHILE WE DO ENJOY THE DAILY GRIND, WE ALSO KNOW HOW TO HAVE OUR FUN. MUSIC, COSTUMES, PRETZELS, BRATWURSTS, AND BEER? WHAT MORE COULD A MID ASK FOR?

BAND, ABOVE: THE USNA BAND ALWAYS DOES AN INCREDIBLE JOB AT SUPPORTING THE EVENTS THAT GO ON AT THE NAVAL ACADEMY.

PLEBES, RIGHT: MIDN 4/C BLYSFORD AND BLEGGAT DECIDED TO GO TO OCTOBERFEST BECAUSE THERE ISN'T MUCH ELSE A PLEBE CAN DO ON A FRIDAY NIGHT BESIDES TAKING A PRO-QUIZ.

CULTURED, FAR LEFT: THIS EVENT IS GREAT OPPORTUNITY FOR EVERYONE TO SHOW OFF SOME TRADITIONAL GERMAN ATTIRE!

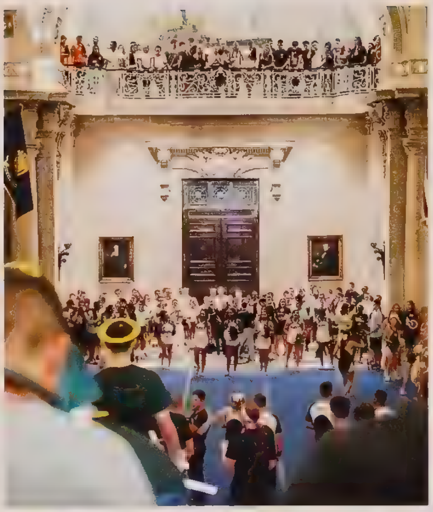
WHO DOESN'T LOVE BEER? LEFT: "BRO, THIS BEER IS AWESOME!" -MIDN 3/C ZACH RICHARDS, PROBABLY.

RUGBY FRIENDS, ABOVE: MIDN 1/C TAYLOR HOLDS 1/C SCROGGS WHILE HE GAZES INTO HIS EYES. THE TEAMMATES DECIDED THAT OCTOBERFEST SOUNDED LIKE A GOOD WAY START THEIR FRIDAY NIGHT AFTER A LONG WEEK AND A TOUGH PRACTICE!

BEER, LEFT: "CHEERS."

right:Mids line the Rotunda balconies to cheer on the Navy Cheerleading team as they perform pep rally cheers to get the Brigade excited for the weekend game agaist the Air Force Academy.

D&B, far right:The Durm and Bugle Corps makes an apperance and plays Navy Blue and Gold before the pep rally kicks off .



Cheer, above: MIDN 1/C Jarred Reid-Dixon gives us one of his signature looks during the middle of the cheer performance. Beyonce probably doesn't ahve a bigger fan.

SUPE: Vice Admiral Ted E. Carter speaks to the Navy Football team, cheerleaders and Brigade about the importance of a win over Air Force.

above: The pep rally and spectators waits as Vice Admiral Carter outlines the goals and expctations for Air Force Week.

far left: The Navy Football team reacts to the croud as they get the team "hype" for their game. A member of the football team grabs a pair of pom poms and celebrates with the cheerleaders.

Air Force Week

Brigade puts on spirited pranks and events for Air Force preparation

Army Week and Air Force week are two of the mist exciting and frightening weeks during the school year. Both weeks consist of clever pranks and spirited events that conclude with an electrifying pep rally and spirited football game. This year, the Air Force Pep Rally took place in the Rotunda which allowedfor a closer and more intense environment. The Football Team, Navy Spirit Team and Drum and Bugle Corps, along with hundreds of mishipmen showed up to energize the Brigade and support the football team as preparationfor the big game. The Commandant and Superintendent also made an apperance sharing words of wisodm and motivation for the Brigade.

Navy at Memphis

"Whatever Rivalry Exists is all in Good Fun"- David Rector

Navy took Memphis on the field of Navy-Marine Corps stadium on October 22nd of 2016. Navy displayed a stunning win that ended with a final score of 42 to 28. With Midhsipman Will Worth accounting for 3 of navy's touchdowns and reaching a career high of rushing 201 yards, Navy was able to achieve its 14th consecutive victory at Home. Ultimately Navy's win over Memphis added to a final record of 9 and 5 in the American Conference.

HALLOWEEN

TRICK OR TREAT

Above, Fourth Company Plebes gather after a festive night filled with passing out candy to the upperclassmen.

In the midst of tests, homework assignments, practices, and other military obligations, the Brigade still knows how to enjoy all of the Halloween festivities that go on in Bancroft Hall. On this special night, the creativity of the Brigade reveals itself in all sorts of forms. Pikachus, Flight Attendants, Navy Dads, and much more walk throughout the halls in search of candy. Every year, Halloween Night begins with a delicious meal in King Hall followed by trick-or-treating. It is tradition for all of the Plebes to sit outside their rooms and pass out candy to the upper-class.

The Lion King 3/C Colin Gallacher lifts a baby dressed as a lion cub in this reenactment of the popular scene from the Lion King.

Acting Ushers Aside from playing roles in the show, midshipmen could dress up and entertain guests as they wait in line before the show starts.

THE ANNUAL HALLOWEEN/ALL SAINTS CONCERT IS HELD ON A BRISK AUTUMN EVENING IN OCTOBER. THE CHAPEL IS TRANSFORMED WITH SPECTACULAR LIGHTS AND THE AIR IS FILLED WITH A THICK FOG. ZACH LONSDALE WAS THE PRODUCER AND MATT SWITZER WAS THE DIRECTOR. AT THE CENTER OF IT ALL IS MONTE MAXWELL, THE NAVAL ACADEMY'S RESIDENT CHAPEL ORGANIST, DIRECTOR OF CHAPEL MUSIC AND THE MIDSHIPMEN SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA. A CAST OF MIDSHIPMEN COMPLEMENT THE POWERFUL ORGAN AS THEY SING AND ACT OUT SOME OF HALLOWEEN'S MOST REVERED STORIES. THE LEGENDARY SHOW ALWAYS DRAWS A LARGE CROWD, EAGER TO BE ENCHANTED BY THE SIGHTS AND SOUNDS OF HALLOWEEN.

SERVICE ASSIGNMENT

"SERVICE SELECTION?! YOU AREN'T SELECTING ANYTHING! THIS IS SERVICE ASSIGNMENT!" -CDR CRUZ

SERVICE ASSIGNMENT WAS CELEBRATED IN A WAY NEVER BEFORE SEEN AT THE NAVAL ACADEMY. THANKS TO THE WORK OF CLASS PRESIDENT CHOSNEL RAYMOND AND THE PARTY PLANNING PROWESS OF JARED REID-DIXON, THE LEADERSHIP OF THE ACADEMY WAS ABLE TO CREATE AN AVATAR-THEMED PARTY IN DAHLGREN HALL. EVEN THOUGH NOT EVERYONE GOT THEIR FIRST CHOICE, THE NIGHT WAS ONE TO BE ENJOYED WITH CLASSMATES AND LONG LIFE FRIENDS. THE BAR WAS SET INCREDIBLY HIGH FOR THIS EVENT, SO WE ARE WONDERING IF THE CLASS OF 2018 CAN TOP THIS!

DAHLGREN HALL, ABOVE: DAHLGREN HALL WAS A SIGHT TO BE SEEN. SOME OF THE THINGS INCLUDED AT THE PARTY WAS A MOBILE ROCK WALL, A PHOTO BOOTH, BEERS ON TAP (IT RAN OUT HALFWAY THOUGH) A LIGHT UP DANCE FLOOR!

EACH ANGEL HAS THE NAME OF A CHILD FROM ANNAPOLIS AND THEIR WISHLIST FOR CHRISTMAS. MIDS THEN GO OUT TO SHOP FOR THEIR ANGEL AND RETURN THEIR GIFTS TO THE GIVING TREE.

Army - Navy

A tough Game

The result of the Army-Navy Game did not turn out the way Navy fans wanted this year.

IT IS A PRETTY INCREDIBLE SIGHT TO SEE 4000 PEOPLE WORKING OUT IN UNISON

THIS SESSION OF BRIGADE PEP WAS DONE IN REMEMBERANCE OF THE PEARL HARBOR ATTACKS ON 7DEC1941. AT 0530, THE MEMBERS OF THE BRIGADE FILLED THE PEP FIELD IN THEIR SIGNATURE GREY SWEATS. THE WORKOUT BEGINS WITH WARM-UPS CONSISTING OF ARM CIRCLES, LIGHT JOGGING, AND MORE. AFTER THE WARM-UP, THE BRIGADE IS SPLIT IN TWO. FIRST REGIMENT BEGINS WITH THE STRENGTH PORTION AND SECOND REGIMENT BEGINS WITH THE RUN PORTION. THE RUN CONSISTS OF A 2.5 MILE RUN AROUND THE FIELD. BRIGADE PEP ENDS WITH A MOTIVATIONAL SPEECH AND STRETCHING!

SUBMARINE BALL

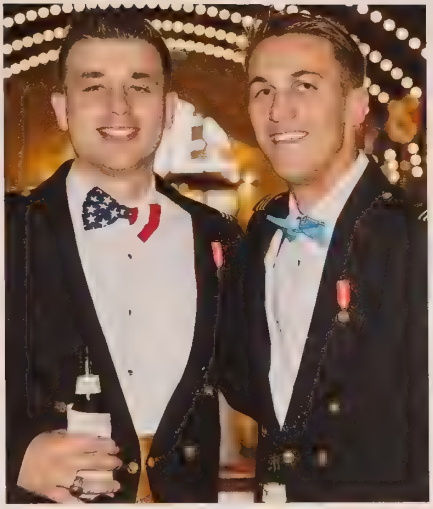
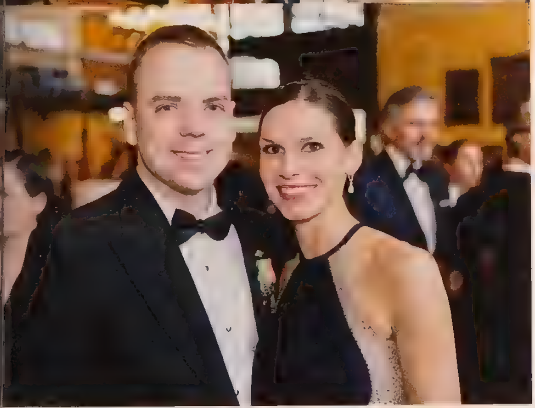
JOINING THE UNDERWATER SERVICE FOR A NIGHT OF EATING, DANCING AND FUN.

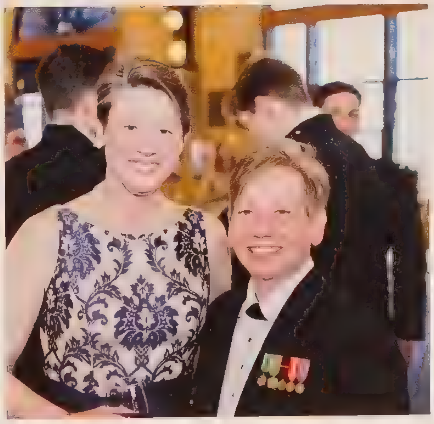
THE SUBMARINE BALL IS HOSTED IN THE SPRING OF EVERY YEAR AND IS A GREAT OPPORTUNITY FOR MIDSHIPMEN TO MINGLE WITH OFFICERS IN A MORE RELAXED SETTING. ADMIRAL FRANK CALDWELL, THE DIRECTOR OF NAVAL REACTORS WAS THE KEYNOTE SPEAKER WHO LED OFF THE NIGHT OF COCKTAILS, DINNER, AND DANCING. DHALGREN HALL WAS DECORATED TO THE NINES AS MIDSHIPMEN IN MESS DRESS LET LOOSE AND LET OFF SOME STEAM.



A Tie in Every Color Midshipmen show off their distinct and unique personalities with ties of every color and pattern under the sun.

Top Mentors Company officers and sub mentors pose for a group shot, taking a break from mingling with the future submariner midshipmen.





Classy and Elegant The Submarine Ball is an opportunity for everyone to have fun and get all dressed up before celebrating together.

Smiles All Around While midshipmen loiter in the background, they smile for the camera during cocktail hour before the party really gets started.

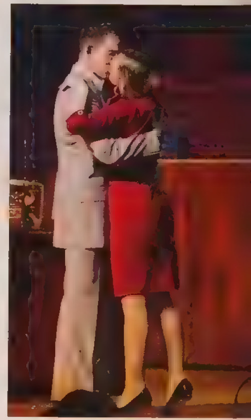
WINTER MUSICAL

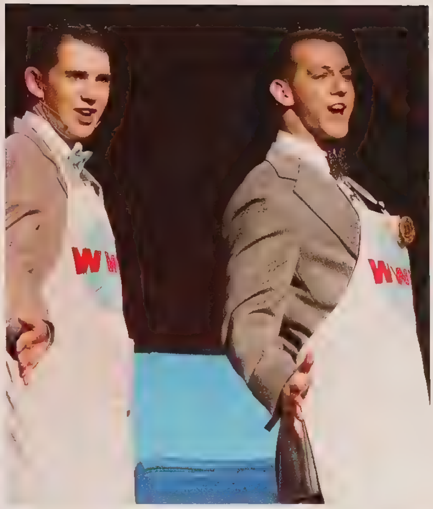
A WARM AND BRIGHT PRODUCTION DURING THE HOLIDAY SEASON.

A HIGHLIGHT OF EACH YEAR AT THE NAVAL ACADEMY IS THE USNA WINTER MUSICAL. PRODUCED IN TRUE BROADWAY STYLE, THE WINTER MUSICAL IS A FULLY-STAGED, COSTUMED, AND CHOREOGRAPHED PRODUCTION WITH A LIVE PIT ORCHESTRA. THIS YEAR IS NO DIFFERENT WITH A PRODUCTION OF "HOW TO SUCCEED IN BUSINESS WITHOUT REALLY TRYING". A YOUNG WINDOW WASHER CLIMBS THE LADDER OF SUCCESS WITH THE HELP OF A SMALL BOOK, "HOW TO SUCCEED IN BUSINESS WITHOUT REALLY TRYING." THE CAST SINGS AND DANCES ITS WAY THROUGH MANY COMEDIC AND PERFECTLY TIMED INTERACTIONS IN THIS PLAY ACT MUSICAL.

A RUSE J. PIERREPONT FINCH, PLAYED BY COLIN GALLACHER, ATTEMPTS TO IMPRESS THE PRESIDENT OF THE COMPANY, J.B. BIGGLEY PLAYED BY ZACH LONSDSALE, BY TELLING HIM THAT HE IS AN ALUMNUS OF OLD IVY. ABOVE, THEY SING THE OLD IVY FIGHT SONG.

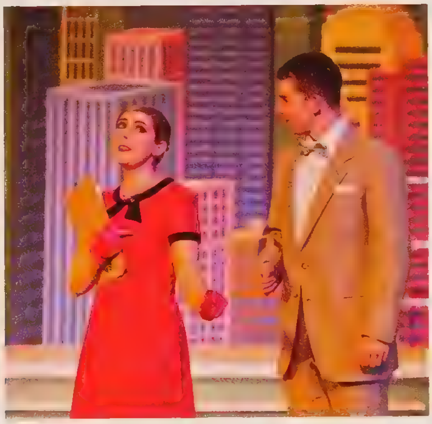
LOVE FINCH REALIZES HE IS IN LOVE WITH ROSEMARY PLAYED BY ALY HANDS, A YOUNG AMBITIOUS SECRETARY, AND THEY EMBRACE.





Company Way To the left, Twimble played by Evan Wray tells Finch that in order to succeed at the company, he must follow the company line and keep his nose down.

Dedication The amount of work put into this production is unmatched. The midshipmen involved rehearsed and spent many hours perfecting the show. Their hard work paid off!



Secrets Above, Mr. Biggley, enjoys knitting at the office. Aside from knitting, he has another secret. Mr. Biggley hires Hedy LaRue, played by Elizabeth Loyal, to be his secretary. She is attractive but extremely air-headed and takes the role of his secret mistress.

Climbing the Ladder Rosemary Pilkington takes a liking to J. Finch early on in the musical. She helped Finch meet Mr. Bratt, the personnel manager, and kickstarted his climb up the company ladder.

Is this photo to the right and almost every other photo on this page pretty much the same thing? Yes. They are.

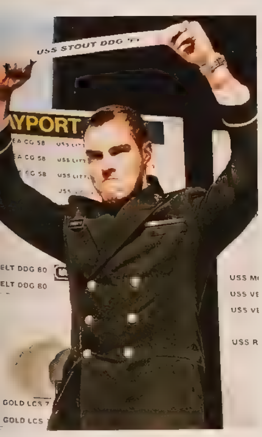
SWO Ship Selection



USS STOUT DDG
YPORT

Pictured above, Bridget Kennedy receives a sword an admiral.

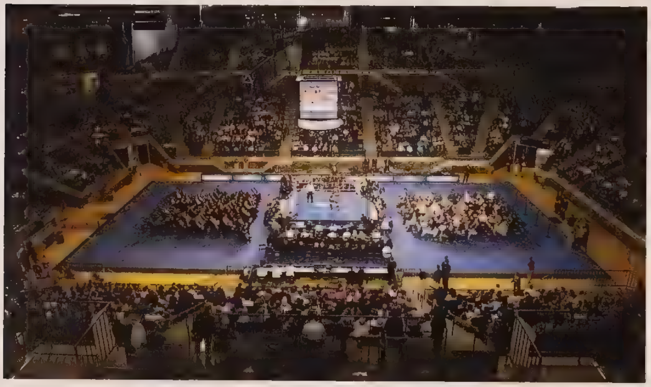
1/C midshipmen who service selected SWO have many things to consider such as: port location, type of ship, family, friends, deployments, BAH, length of deployments, etc.

For most SWO selects, more thought and planning was put into this than any homework assignment

If there was an Olympics for the SWO community, it's this night. Whether you're dead last like 1/C Reid-Dixon, or a power couple like 1/C Wirz and 1/C Claudy who are both going to Rota, it's definitely a memorable time. This year, Ship Selection was moved from the traditional Mahan Hall to Alumni Hall. However, it was still super crowded and #LIT. Even though it is a professional event, it's also a fun, loud and great night of celebration. Fellow mids who haven't chosen the wonderful life of being a SWO Daddy or SWO Momma cheer on their classmates as the SWOs choose the boats they'll be stuck on for a few years of their life.

Jordan Davis, right: MIDN 1/C Jordan Davis gets his hand raised at the conclusion of the fight, signifying that he is this year's Brigade Boxing Champ!

Company Mates, far right: Company Mates, 1/C Even Stargel and 2/C Josh Looney embrace each other after a long and harrowing fight. Stargel came away with the vicotry!



Steph Simon, far right: Ask you ask Steph Simon if she has played any sport, there is a very high chance that she's at least dabbled in it. Boxing is one of the many sports she picked up quickly. She won the National Title this year!

Winner, right: That guy is huge. It doesn't even look like he got hit.

BRIGADE BOXING

LEFT, 2/C JOSH LOONEY CATCHES HIS BREATH IN BETWEEN ONE OF THE ROUNDS AGAINST HIS COMPANY MATE, 1/C EVEN STARGEL.

COACH MCNALLY KNOWS THAT BOXING IS ONE OF AMERICA'S PASTIMES. THAT IS WHY ANYONE CAN COMPETE IN THE ANNUAL BRIGADE BOXING CHAMPIONSHIP. APART FROM THE HARDWORKING MEMBERS OF THE TEAM, MEMBERS OF THE BRIGADE CAN COME AND SHOW THEIR WORTH IN THE RING ACROSS SEVERAL WEIGHT CLASSES. WHILE A FIGHT BETWEEN A MEMBER OF THE BOXING TEAM AND A RANDOM MEMBER IN THE BRIGADE MIGHT SEEM LIKE A SUREFIRE DEATH SENTANCE, THIS IS NOT ALWAYS THE CASE AS UNDERDOG FIGHTING HAVE SURPRISED EVERYONE IN THE PAST!

CROQUET

AN EXCUSE TO PLAY DRESS UP AND DAY DRINK.

THIS YEAR MARKED THE 35TH ANNUAL ST. JOHN'S VS USNA CROQUET MATCH. THE MATCH TAKES PLACE ON THE LAWN OF THE ST. JOHN'S CAMPUS AND HAS GROWN INCREASINGLY POPULAR OVER TIME. "JOHNNIES" AND "MIDS" ROAM THE LAWN IN OUTFITS STRAIGHT OUT OF THE EARLY 1900S. THIS YEAR, THE MIDSHIPMEN SUFFERED A DEFEAT WITH A SCORE OF 3-2.

OUTFITS MALES OFTEN SPORT BOWTIES, CIGARS, AND SUSPENDERS WHILE FEMALES WEAR SUNDRESSES AND FLOPPY HATS. THIS YEAR, THE WEATHER WAS A BIT COLDER THAN USUAL BUT THAT DIDN'T STOP PEOPLE FROM SHOWING UP AND HAVING A GOOD TIME.

FORRESTALS

CNO, ABOVE: THE FORRESTAL LECTURE WHEN CHIEF OF NAVAL OPERATIONS, ADMIRAL RICHARDSON CAME TO SPEAK AT THE NAVAL ACADEMY WAD DEFINTELY ONE OF THE BETTER LECTURES. WE DON'T REMEMBER WHAT HE SAID IN PARTICULAR, BUT BE DO INDEED REMEMBER HIM ROASTING A KID FOR ASKING A QUESTION ABOUT HOW WE CAN LEARN TO READ BETTER THAN WE ALREADY DO. WELL JONNY, YOU CAN START OUT BY READING. LIKE MORE OFTEN.

GET OUT YOUR FORRESTAL BINGO CARDS!

IF 1/C CHOSNEL RAYMOND DIDN'T ASK A QUESTION THEN DID A FORRESTAL LECTURE REALLY HAPPEN? PROBABLY NOT. WILL THE SPEAKER PUT THE GIFT ON? HOPEFULLY. WILL HE GET A BLUE AND GOLD JACKET? PROBABLY. WILL THE OFFICIAL PARTY TAKE FOREVER TO ARRIVE? MOST LIKELY. WILL THE BRIGADE BE AWARDED A BEAT ARMY WEEKEND? DOUBTFUL. THESE ARE QUESTIONS THAT RUN THROUGH A MIDSHIPMAN'S HEAD AT THE MANDATORY FORRESTAL LECTURES HELD THROUGHOUT THE YEAR.

Bingo time! The LOG can be credited with bringing Forrestal Bingo to the Brigade. It's truly a genius invention and is definitely and gives midshipmen double the reason to pay attention during the lecture. Common squares include the speaker referring to the Brigade as the "best and brightest," and SEL on the prowl for sleeping midshipmen, and Pierce McNamara or Chosnel Raymond asking question. You don't win anything but maybe chuckle of satisfaction from getting bingo.

Raymond. Above: We may be poking a little fun at Chosnel Raymond, but in all seriousness, he is probably one of the few people who earned the respected right to ask a question every lecture. They were actually always thought provoking. We can't say the same for everyone else (ahem, Pierce McNamara).

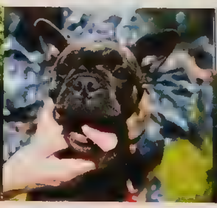
A robe?! Left: Up until this moment, the Brigade had only seen Blue and Gold jackets being gifted to our speakers. A robe was a step above that all. Defintely an epic moment in Forrestal Lecture history.

SEA TRAILS IS DIVIDED INTO SEVERAL PHASES THAT OCCUR THROUGHOUT THE DAY. THE FIRST PHASE IS DARK PHASE, WHICH BEGINS IN THE EARLY HOURS OF THE MORNING. THIS TAKES PLACE ON FARRAGUT FIELD.

DARK PHASE ENDS AS THE SUN BEGINS TO RISE OVER ANNAPOLIS. AFTER THIS, FIRST AND SECOND REGIMENT SPLITS UP. ONE REGIMENT RUNS TO HOSPITAL POINT TO SPEND HALF OF THEIR DAY. THE OTHER REGIMENT IS DRIVEN OVER TO NAVAL STATION ANNAPOLIS TO SPEND THEIR HALF OF THE DAY.

EACH REGIMENT SWITCHES PLACES AT LUNCH WITH THE INFAMOUS NAVAL ACADEMY BRIDGE RUN. WHILE THE DISTANCE MAY NOT SEEM LIKE MUCH TO SOME, IT IS QUITE THE CHALLENGE CONSIDERING THE PLEBES HAVE BEEN DOING TOUGH PHICYICAL ACTIVITY FOR THE LAST SEVERAL HOURS AT THAT POINT.

AFTER SEA TRAILS IS OVER THERE IS A CLOSING CERMEMONY THAT IS DONE RO RECOGNIZE THE TOP-PERFORMING COMPANY. FOR THE 3RD YEAR IN A ROW, 29TH COMPANY CLAIMED THAT TITLE.



Sea Trials

Bonding through the Struggle

It starts are 0300. It ends around 1700. It is a day filled with immense physical activity that serves as the culminating event to plebe year. Since misery enjoys company, if this experience doesn't bond you to your classmates in some way, we aren't sure what will. Bravo zulu, 2020! You guys crushed it!

SEA TRIALS
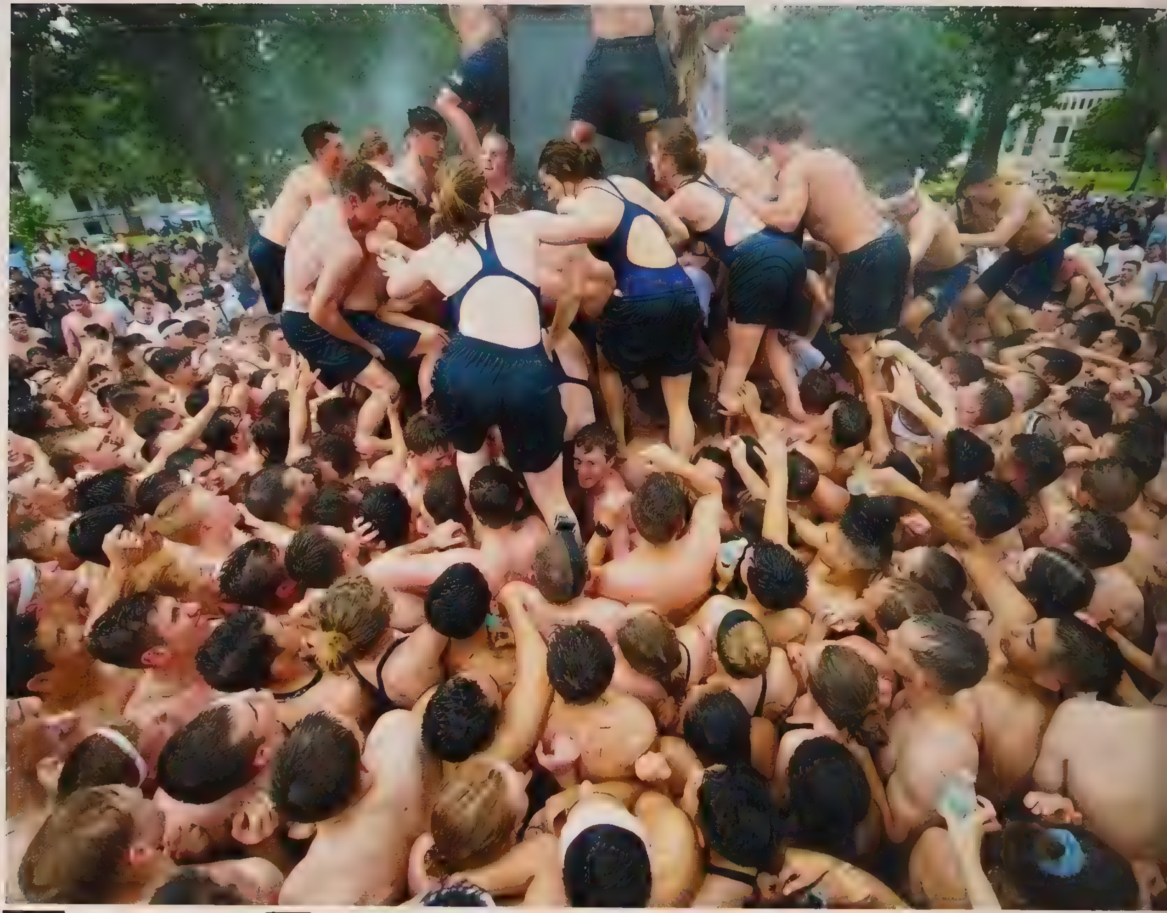
2017

Since sea trails is such a long event, there are bound to be evolutions that the plebes will both excel and struggle in.

Sea trails is rooted in the idea of team work and that you're only as strong as your weakest link. Those that embody those ideals rise to the challenge.



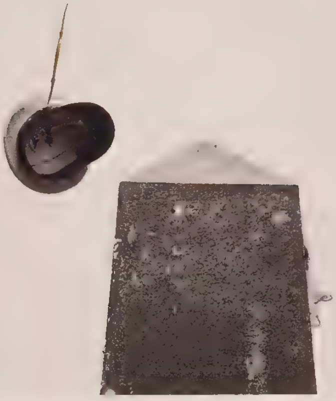
THE CLIMB HERNDON

PLEBES NO MORE!

HERNDON IS USUALLY REGARDED AS ONE OF THE BEST MOMENTS YOU NEVER WANT TO EXPERIENCE EVER AGAIN. THERE IS NO OTHER EVENT WHERE PEOPLE WILL THROW THEMSELVES INTO A PIT OF SWEATY, FEET COVERED BODIES ALL IN AN EFFORT TO REMOVE A DIXE CUP COVER FROM THE TOP OF A MONUMENT IN ORDER TO REPLACE IT WITH A MIDSHIPMEN COMBINATION COVER. WHILE TEAMWORK MIGHT SEEM LIKE THE BEST IDEA, EVERY PLEBE CLASS, INCLUDING THE GREAT CLASS OF 2020 QUICKLY LEARNS THAT YOUR CLASS CAN BE YOUR OWN WORST ENEMY WHEN THE HUMAN BASE OF THE STRUCTURE HAS WAY MORE BODIES THAT THEY CAN POSSIBLY HOLD CLIMBING ON TOP OF THEM. SARCASM AND JOKES ASIDE, THIS EVENT WAS A SIGHT TO BE SEEN. CONGRATS, CLASS OF 2020! YOU'VE EARNED IT! PLEBES NO MORE!

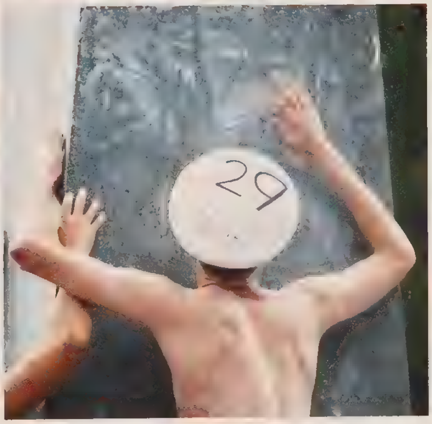
STEAMY, ABOVE: IT GETS SO HOT IN THE MIDDLE OF THE BASE THAT STEAMY SWEAT BILLOWS OUT FROM THE BASE. 1ST COMPANY WHO IS TASKED WITH RUNNING THE EVENT HAS HOSES ON HAND TO SPRAY DOWN THE PLEBES TO COOL THEM OFF... AND MAKE THEIR JOBS HARDER!

ADMIRAL? RIGHT: WE AREN'T SURE WHAT THIS FORMER PLEBE'S NAME IS, BUT THE FACT THAT HE IS WEARING THE SUPE'S COVER MEANS THAT HE WAS THE ONE TO PLACE THE MIDSHIPMAN COVER ON TOP OF THE MONUMENT. LEGEND HAS IT, THAT THE PERSON WHO COMPLTES THIS FEAT WILL BE THE FIRST PERSON IN THE CLASS TO MAKE IT TO THE RANK OF ADMIRAL!



FINALLY, FAR LEFT: AFTER AN EFFORT OF OVER TWO HOURS, THE CLASS OF 2020 ERUPTS IN ECSTASY FROM OFFICAILLY NO LONGER BEING REGARDED AS PLEBES... AKA THE LOWEST OF THE LOW!

BUZZFEED: EVERY YEAR BUZZFEED SOMEHOW AMASSES A TREASURE TROVE OF PHOTOS FROM THIS EVENT. THEIR ARTICLES ARE EXACTLY WHAT YOU'D EXPECT THEM TO BE. IF YOU'RE CURIOUS OR BORED, GOOGLE "BUZZFEED" AND "NAVY FRESHMEN." YOU WON'T BE DISAPPOINED. OR MAYBE YOUW WILL BE. EITHER WAY, IT'S SLIGHT STRANGE, BUT WE CAN'T EVEN SAY WE ARE THE LEAST BIT SURPRISED.



SMILES, FAR LEFT: THESE PLEBES ARE ALL SMILES BEFORE GETTING TO PARTICIPATE IN THE CLIMB.

IRON COMPANY, LEFT: FOR THE THIRD YEAR IN A ROW, 29TH COMPANY RECEIVED THE AWARD OF "IRON COMPANY." THIS MEANS THAT THEY WERE THE TOP PERFORMERS DURING THE ANNUAL SEA TRIALS EVENT! BEING IRON COMPANY ALSO MEANS THAT 29TH COMPANY GOT TO LINE UP FIRST PRIOR TO THE HERNDON CLIMB. BEING FIRST TO GET CRUSHED IS AWESOME RIGHT?

Uniform Regulations Since female midshipmen are only allowed to wear the proper formal military uniform at the Ring Dance, many wear formal dresses just to take pictures beforehand.

COLOR PARADE

ONE LAST HOORAH!

THE COLOR PARADE IS THE FINAL PARADE DURING THE SPRING SEMESTER THAT HAPPENS DURING COMISSIONING WEEK. THIS PARADE IS THE ONLY PARADE IN WHICH MIDSHIPMEN WEAR THE WHITE PARADE PANTS. THIS PARADE RECOGNIZES ONE COMPANY THAT IS NAMED THE NEXT COLOR COMPANY FOR THE FOLLOWING SEMESTER. COLOR COMPANY IS CHOSEN BASED ON HOW WELL MEMBERS OF THE COMPANY ADHERE TO THE MORAL, MENTAL, AND PHYSICAL MISSION OF THE NAVAL ACADEMY. GRADUATION BALL IS A TIME FOR 1/C MIDSHIPMEN TO HAVE A NIGHT WITH THEIR FAMILIES BEFORE GRADUATION. JUST ANOTHER WAY TO SHOW OFF THE INSTITUTION THAT WE'VE GONE TO FOR FOUR YEARS. IT PROVIDES ANOTHER OPPORTUNITY TO SAY THANK YOU FOR EVERYTHING THAT MOM AND DAD HAVE DONE FOR US. MIDSHIPMEN AND THEIR FAMILIES HAD A GREAT TIME TOGETHER, EATING GREAT FOOD AND MEETING NEW EXCITING PEOPLE.

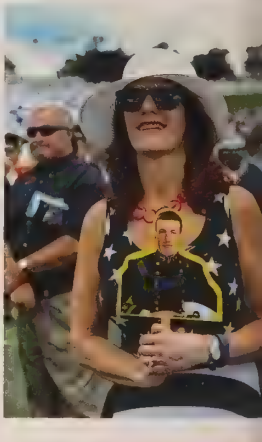
GRADUATION

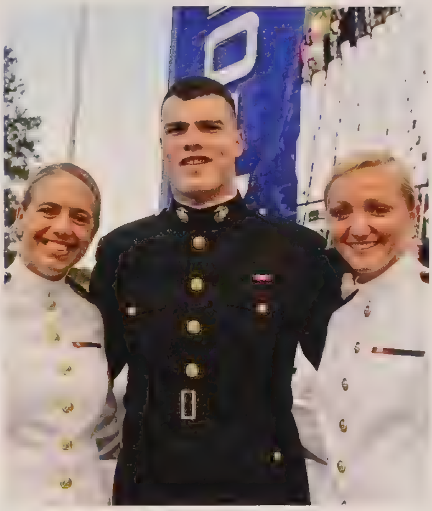
Class of 2017 has completed 4 years at the Naval Academy!

On May 26, 2017, 1053 midshipmen graduated from the U.S. Naval Academy at the navy-marine corps Memorial Stadium. The class of 2017 has 768 new navy ensigns and 259 marine corps second lieutenants. Two graduates have cross-commissioned to the u.s. Air Force. Seventeen foreign exchange students from malaysia, cambodia, bangladesh, bulgaria, costa rica, georgia, jamaica, jordan, kazakhstan, montenegro, nigeria, pakistan, peru, singapore, taiwan, and thailand also graduated!

The vice president of the united states, michael pence and U.S. Naval Academy superintendent vice admiral ted carter addressed the class of 2017.

The class of 2017 is ready to join the navy and marine corps to lead and defend the united states of america. They will continue to bear the burden of honor, courage, and commitment.





SIX MIDSHIPMEN RECEIVED GRADUATE SCHOLARSHIPS: 1 RHODES SCHOLARSHIP, 1 TRUMAN SCHOLARSHIP, 1 GATES CAMBRIDGE SCHOLARSHIP, 1 FULBRIGHT SCHOLARSHIP, AND 2 SCHWARZMAN SCHOLARSHIPS.

THE CLASS OF 2017 SHAKES HANDS WITH CHIEF OF NAVAL OPERATIONS, ADMIRAL JOHN RICHARDSON, AS WELL AS COMMANDANT OF MIDSHIPMEN, COLONEL S.E. LISZEWSKI, USMC.

THE CLASS OF 2017 COMMISSIONING WEEK INCLUDED SILENT DRILL PERFORMANCE, HERNDON MONUMENT CLIMB, BLUE ANGELS PERFORMANCE, COLOR PARADE, AND COMMUNITY SERVICE AWARDS.

THE FIRST CLASS MIDSHIPMEN HAVE FINALLY COMPLETED FOUR YEARS AT THE U.S. NAVAL ACADEMY AND ARE WELL PREPARED TO JOIN THE NAVY AND MARINE CORPS.

VARSITY SPORTS

MEN'S CROSS COUNTRY

THE 2016-2017 NAVY MEN'S CROSS COUNTRY WAS ONE FOR THE AGES. NAVY STARTED THE SEASON OFF STRONG AT THE GRIAK INVITATIONAL IN MINNESOTA AND THE PAUL SHORT INVITATIONAL AT LEHIGH (A FELLOW MEMBER OF THE PATRIOT LEAGUE). THIS SORT OF MOMUMENTUM HELPED ROUND THE TEAM INTO FORM FOR THE ALL-IMPORTANT ARMY-NAVY MEET. THERE THE MIDSHIPMEN TOOK THE FIRST FIVE PLACES TO GET A PERFECT SCORE AGAINST THE BLACK KNIGHTS AND GIVE LEGENDARY HEAD COACH, AL CANTELLO, ANOTHER WIN IN THE STAR-SERIES. NAVY FOLLOWED THEIR VICTORY OVER THE CADETS BY WINNING THE PATRIOT LEAGUE ONCE AGAIN. THE NEXT MEET OF THE CHAMPIONSHIP SEASON WAS THE NCAA REGIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP AT PENN STATE, WHERE THE MIDSHIPMEN WON RUNNER-UP AND QUALIFIED FOR NCAA NATIONALS AT INDIANA. MAKING NATIONALS WAS A GOALTHROUGHOUT THE ENTIRE SEASON. THE ACCOMPLISHMENT WAS A RESULT OF HARD WORK FROM ALL THE GUYS ON THE TEAM.

CAPTAIN, MIDN 1/C KATIE JAN POSES WITH HER LONGTIME ROOMMATE AND FRIEND HANNAH VINCENT AFTER THEIR HARD FOUGHT VICTORY OVER ARMY AND A HANDFUL OF OTHER SCHOOLS. "I WOULDN'T HAVE MISSED IT FOR THE WORLD," HANNAH EXCLAIMED AFTER EMBRACING KATIE IN A WELL-DESERVED HUG.

These workouts absolutely paid off when it came time for our Star Meet against Army. Although it seemed like about halfway through the race we were going to lose, many hundreds of miles of training and working for each other was able to make the difference in the last mile of the course. Ultimately, we came out on top with a 20-42 victory. It was bad ass. This marked the Katz' sixth Army win in a row.

This season, the Katz worked harder than ever before. They also had a crazy amount of fun. From breakfasts at Grumps and Bodeymongers, to Monday yoga, to become cupcake connoisseurs in Georgetown the season brought about great memories. The Katz also took to four wheels and brought Mario Kart to Brigade Halloween. They even brought their own banana peels, courtesy of the Plebes. Overall, the season brought about the achievement of goals both team-wide and personal. Perhaps the most successful part of the season, however, was the way by which the team achieved success while growing closer than ever. The Class of 2017 would especially like to thank the underclass Katz for the most enjoyable and fulfilling season of running each of them have ever experienced. Love you, Katz.

Women's Cross Country

The 2017 Cross Country season was, by all accounts, an overwhelming success for the NWXC program. The previous spring brought about the graduation of some high performers, and with that came speculation that the season to come would be a "rebuilding year." However, the returning women were very confident in the idea that pure hard work and positive attitude could be translated into an even more successful season that the previous. Over the course of the season, we did just that.

The season began with a week of team camp in Wintergreen, VA. While there, the team ran up a lot of hills, ate lots of avocado toast, and ran out of a Costco-sized bag of Dunkin Donuts coffee...bummer.

After completing try-outs and adding ten cool new baby Katz to the roster the season got into full swing. The annual Salty Dog home invitational was a great success and we had the opportunity to join in some large meets like the Griak Invitational in Minneapolis, Minnesota. The opportunities did not come without hard work, however. Grueling practices of 1000m repeats on the golf course and B&A Trail tempo runs were among some of Karen's favorite workouts this season. She could be spotted on a weekly basis rollerblading down the trail, telling civilians to "move, and get out tha way" while telling her Katz they've gotta get up the hill somehow so they might as well run.

navy men's soccer dominated the field. The men made it to Patriot League playoffs. The last 15 games of the season ended in a tie or with a one-goal differential. in regards to the season finale, Navy head coach, Tim O'Donohue, said "We couldn't generate as many attacks as we needed. But the guys fought hard, just like they have all season, and they gave everything they had."

Sadly the guys lost to Army in the Army - Navy Cup V. Despite the loss, the Mids drew an impressive crowd and kept fans entertained. There was three saves by goal keeper 2/C Mac Burke. The Men never lost their fighting spirit and that drive continued on the rest of the season.

Midn 3/C Ash Fairow and 1/C Cat Macklin earned Patriot League All-Tournament honors, but their hard work was prevalent from the start. The season started off with a game against #5 Stanford and ended in a 2-1, however it demonstrated Navy's potential. last game of both, the regular and championship season, was against the reigning champs, Boston University. Overall, it was a great season for Navy. The team came out on top over Army and contributed a Win for the Army-Navy Star Series. The Mids have a lead versus the Black Knights.

Sprint Football

Navy sprint football team finished their season 6-1. The boys scored a total of 263 points compared to opponents who only scored a total of 61 points throughout the entire season. They averaged 37.6 points per game and only gave up 8.7 points.

The team followed a mantra of let loose and be great during the season. This embodied the teams spirit of always giving 110 percent on every game, every play and every down. The team is motivated by an 8-year-old boy named Sully who suffers from stage four neuroblastoma. The team focuses on the positive advantages of speed and strength that they have over other teams in order to remain 6-1. The only lost that they suffered was a 29-23 game to Penn. Another close game this season was against Army West Point where Navy came out on top with a 10-3 victory. Let loose and be great boys! Go Navy beat everyone!

MEN'S WATER POLO

THE NAVY MEN'S WATER POLO TEAM HAD A ROUGH SEASON THIS YEAR WITH A RECORD OF 8 WINS AND 15 LOSSES. THE TEAM WAS LED BY THIRD-YEAR NAVY WATER POLO HEAD COACH MLADEN STANICIC AND BEGAN THEIR SEASON WITH AN OPTIMISTIC OUTLOOK DESPITE THE FACT THAT THE TEAM HAD GRADUATED 12 SENIORS THE PRIOR YEAR. IN SHORT, THE NAVY MEN'S WATER POLO TEAM HAD A SEASON MEANT FOR DEVELOPMENT AND THROUGH ITS NEWER ROSTER THEY PLAN TO CLIMB UP THE RANKS TO A STRONGER SEED IN THEIR DIVISION.

THIS YEAR THE NAVY MEN'S WATER POLO TEAM PICKED UP A STRONG GROUP OF 8 PLEBES WHO WERE RICH WITH POTENTIAL. GOALIES SUCH AS RONAN WILLIAMS AND BRANDON SHIELDS WERE BOTH IN LINE FOR STARTING POSITIONS TO GAIN SOME VALUABLE INTERCOLLEGIATE EXPERIENCE AND PLAYED AN IMPORTANT ROLE IN SUPPORTING THE RETURNERS TO THE TEAM. ADDITIONALLY SENIOR CENTER DAVD HIBER RETURNED AS NAVY'S LEADING SCORER AND WAS DESCRIBED AS "ONE OF OUR MOST CREATIVE PLAYERS IN THE OFFENSIVE ZONE" BY HEAD COACH STANICIC. WITH THE COUPLING OF HARDENED EXPERIENCE FROM ITS RETURNING ROSTER AND SOME FRESH TALENT COMING IN, THE TEAM HAS HIGH HOPES FOR ITS FUTURE.

Women's Volleyball

Women's volleyball finished an impressive 20 - 9 season in the Semifinal round of the Patriot League Tournament in Washington D. C. against Top-seeded American. Their almost 30 game season was played all over the Northeast, hitting games and tournaments in Pennsylvania, New York, Maryland, Massachusetts and North Carolina.

The team split N-star victories over Army, with a sweeping victory at home and a contested loss away.

"Defeating Army [was] an absolutely amazing feeling. The team has been preparing for this game all season and [we] were confident in our preparation before the game began. We knew what we had control of and emphasized on it. I couldn't be more proud of the girls on the team and all of the hard work they have put in. On top of all of that, the support from the Brigade and all Navy fans was incredible and made Friday an unforgettable night."

Captain, Allison Latham, after sweeping Army 3-0 in a stunning contest.

Football

Though the team is the largest on campus, they are a close-knit group. They spend most of the fall semester in their championship season, and a portion of the spring semester is dedicated to training for the fall season as well. The team works hard on the field and have created bonds with each other that will last a lifetime!

The 2016 Navy football season was one to remember! Navy's nine wins in 2016 ties them for the fifth most in school history. The Mids scored a school-record 73 touchdowns, including a program-record 61 rushing touchdowns! A truly incredible season! The Mids played nine teams, with eight wins tying them for the most in the country. In just its second season in a conference, Navy won the AAC West Division title after sharing the division crown with Houston in its first year. The tremendous win over Houston was spectacular, along with many other victories! Many injuries throughout the year led to a difficult post season, but the Mids will only come back stronger than ever next season!

MEN'S GOLF

Navy Golf put out another fantastic season, beating Army at West Point in the N-star match 6-5 for all of the players' first time. This year the Gentlemen of Annapolis could be heard chirping all the way from the Wall to Monterey as they lit up courses around the country. Look for bomb squad off the tee and watch out when the boys are inside Jimmer range, because dang these guys are good. If you aren't gonna bark then get out of the doghouse, Family to the end!

FIVE MEMBERS OF THE NAVY WOMEN'S GOLF TEAM WERE ON THE PATRIOT LEAGUE HONOR ROLL. EACH MEMBER HAD TO HAVE A GPA OF AT LEAST 3.2 IN ORDER TO BE ON THE PATRIOT LEAGUE HONOR ROLL.

Women's Golf

Navy's women's golf is a team that focuses on precision and calculation in order to excel on and off the golf course. Navy women's golf took fourth at Patriot League. With their hardwork Navy women's golf was able to take on Citadel in a dual match and came out victorious for their first time against Citadel.

Men's Basketball

The Navy Men's Basketball Team carried a 16-16 record this year and finished fourth in the Patriot League. Although the team was able to defeat Holy Cross in the quarterfinals, they unfortunately lost to the top-seeded Bucknell University in the semifinals. Despite this year's season dealing out some bad cards, the Navy Men's basketball team has the goal of a stronger season for next year.

Led by sixth-year head coach Ed DeChellis, the Navy Men's Basketball team began their season with a shaky start against Ohio State in the first round of the Veteran's classic. Even though the team lost its first game, they soon made up for it in a near blowout game against Washington College. The next few weeks would be peppered with an equal scatter of wins and losses, but a notabale win came against Army as the team pulled off a 96-80 victory at West Point. All in all, the Navy Men's Basketball Team broke even with their season this year, but with promises to do even better next season.

Men's Gymnastics

The Navy gymnastics team had a stellar showing at the NCAA Championships as the Mids went toe-to-toe with nation's best programs and recorded 400.65 points to place fifth overall in the second session of the qualifying meet. Competing as one of six teams at the Army West Point's Holleder Center, Navy registered its highest-ever finish at the national meet as it outscored California by 0.4 points. With the combination of both the afternoon and night sessions, the Mids finished 11th overall of 12 teams.

"Tonight was one of those magic-filled evenings," remarked head coach Kip Simons. "I couldn't be more proud of this team. The guys did such a great job tonight on such a big stage. The leadership and perseverance from our two seniors was incredible. It's been a marathon of a season and I tell the team every year that it's going to be a marathon and we literally sprinted over the finish line tonight. To upset California and finish fifth was big deal for the program. We just weren't content with being at the NCAA Championships, we went out there and had a presence.

"Over half of our routines were done by plebes; they've grown up a lot this year. A lot of that growth comes from the leadership of our team captain Wyatt LaPointe. The future looks bright for Navy Men's Gymnastics!"

Oklahoma, the top-overall seed and defending NCAA Champion cruised to the session victory with a score of 430.6. Illinois and Minnesota finished second and third respectively with scores of 421.3 and 420.1 to advance to Saturday's championship finals. The rest of the session standings saw Iowa in fourth at 412.5, Navy in fifth at 400.65 and Cal-Berkeley in sixth at 400.25.

SQUASH

The squash team had a whirlwind season beginning in late September that took them to California, Maryland, Pennsylvania, New York, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, and even Canada. Though their travel record was impressive, the Mids clearly felt most dominant in Annapolis, where their home record was an impressive 12-1.

The season started off strong with a seven-match winning streak and kept up a lot of positive momentum throughout the rest of their season. Under head coach Craig Dawson, Navy squash went 20-6, only the eleventh time in its 69-year history that Navy has won 20 or more matches in a season. The mids places 13th at the annual College Squash Association Team Championship, and landed 13th in the overall rankings published by the CSA.

Men's Swimming & Diving

The expectations for the 2016-2017 season for NMSD were to keep the streaks alive of beating Army and winning the Patriot League Championship as well as sending swimmers and divers to the NCAA Championships. The graduation of the Class of 2016 opened up a lot of spots that the team quickly needed to fill. Because of this, there was some doubt in how the team would perform this season.

The season opened with a tri-meet against UMBC and George Mason. The team was in a tight spot most of the meet against UMBC; however, NMSD prevailed against both teams. Following that came wins against ECU, American, Bucknell, and Lafayette. The men then traveled to Virginia Tech to compete in the Hokie Invite for the first time in program history. The team battled it out against Purdue for second throughout the meet, but ended up finishing third behind Virginia Tech and Purdue. Service Assignment night was during the meet, and the Firsties were honored after one of the sessions by Virginia Tech and all the other teams competing.

The N-star meet against Army was moved up much earlier this year. Though the meet was the closest it has been in recent memory, NMSD came out on top for its 26th consecutive win and part of the bulkhead from Army's pool.

After a difficult training camp in Annapolis during Christmas break, the team faced the University of North Carolina. The team swam up to the competition and kept the meet close; however, the team faced its first loss of the season. Following that was another loss to Penn State. The team turned it around and beat Towson and Johns Hopkins in a tri-meet. The final regular season meet of the season was a loss to Columbia.

The team then entered its championship season, where it traveled to Bucknell for the Patriot League Championship meet and hosted the ECAC Championship meet two weeks after. At the Patriot League meet, the team was disqualified in the first relay, which put them in second to last place after the first day. However, the team fought back and held off Army to win the team's 14th consecutive Patriot League Championship. The whole team stepped up in order to come out on top. At the ECAC Championships, the team had solid performances across the team in order to capture the ECAC Championship title.

The team was not done there, though. Three divers made it to the NCAA Zone Championships: 2/C Nate Belch, 4/C Bradley Buchter, and 4/C Nash Nickerson. Bradley then moved on to compete at the NCAA Championships in Indianapolis. 1/C Marlin Brutkiewicz joined Bradley at the meet as he qualified in the 200 yard breaststroke, where he finished 18th, just two spots away from earning Honorable All-American honors. Marlin also competed in the 200 yard individual medley and 100 yard breaststroke.

The team had its ups and downs this year as in all seasons. However, this team set itself apart from teams in the past as one of the most unified in recent memory. In doing so, the team exemplified Brotherhood, Tradition, and Excellence.

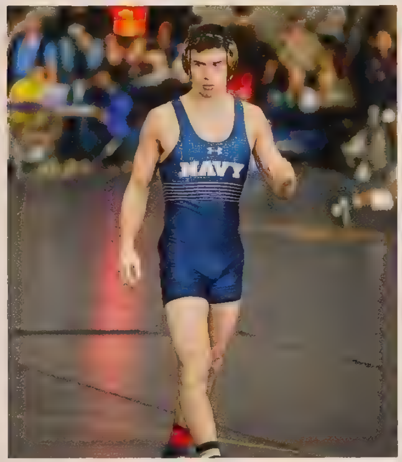
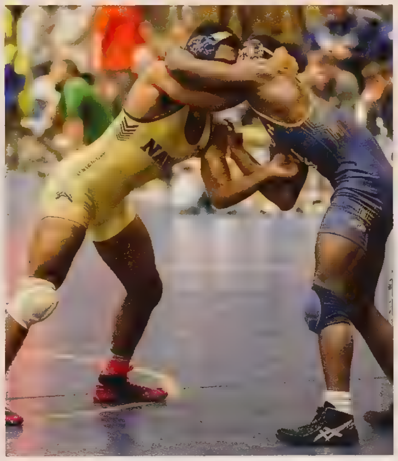
WOMEN'S SWIMMING & DIVING

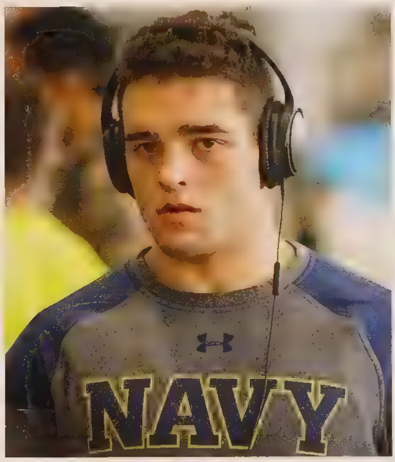
Navy Women's Swimming and Diving ended the 2016-2017 season with an impressive record of 9 wins and 2 loses. Their defeat of Army ensured that the record of Longest-Running consecutive defeat over Army (28 years in a row) would continue to be held by Navy Swimming. The women's team dominated the competition early and ultimately ended with an over 80 point lead for the eleventh consecutive year.
They continued to excel during the rest of their season by winning the Patriot League championship for the fifth consecutive year and sweeping the ECAC team titles for the third time in six years. Lauren Barber ('19) represented Navy Women's Swimming at division 1 NCAA championship. Their hard work and countless hours devoted to the pool and diving board, proved that this team was a dominating force on every pool deck.

WRESTLING

With a season spanning from early October to late March, it is one of the longest and most demanding sports there is at any institution. Wrestling at the Naval Academy is a different entity of its own. Navy wrestling possesses a culture like nothing anyone has ever heard of. The traditions of navy wrestling run deep into history with notable graduates like Major Doug Zembiec and 1st. Lieutenant Travis Manion paving the way for wrestlers to come. Navy wrestlers endure countless hours of practicing, on and off the mat, weight cutting, while also balancing challenging academics and life in Bancroft Hall. There's no wondering why these midshipmen are some of the toughest on the yard. The Midshipmen under 3rd year head coach Joel Sharratt had a record of 8-3 against high caliber teams such as Lehigh, Duke, and Old Dominion in their schedule.







The Mids were led by national qualifiers 4/C Jared Prince, 2/C Jadaen Bernstein, 2/C Michael Coleman, and 2/C Stevie Cervantes. With all four returning next year and many in the bunch to make a huge impact, there is no doubt these Mids will have a great year next year! Win the battle!

The Collegiate Rifle Coaches Association announced its 2016-17 postseason awards recognizing navy rifle student-athletes who achieved at least a 3.20 GPA during the fall semester. Four Navy Rifle members received this award: Brandon Pippin, Thomas Sarant, Joshua Watson and Kestrel Kuhne.

Rifle

Under the direction of 18th-year head coach Bill Kelley, the Mids of navy rifle went 9-6 in the regular season with victories over GARC rivals Akron and Ole Miss. the team had an amazing season considering they had a five-person liineup with three or more underclassmen in every one of its 12 competitions. At the two-day Great American Rifle Conference Championship, the team had a 2326-point effort in air rifle combined with the 2295 points scored the day before during smallbore, it placed ninth overall with 4621 points. The GARC lineup consisted of Thomas Sarant, Nash Richardson in the second relay of the day and Daniel Jonas, Kestrel Kuhne and Josh Watson in the third relay.

Head Coach Bill Kelley finished up his final season with Navy Rifle this year and announced his retirement after 18 years of coaching. With his guidance and instruction, the team competed on the national stage 12 different times during his time in charge of the Midshipmen. Michael Anti, a decorated four-time Olympic competitor, was announced as the new head rifle coach at the United States Naval Academy for the upcoming season.
The team captain during the 2016-17 school year was 1/C Brandon Pippin from Nashville, Tennessee. He was a chemistry major, who posted a 4.0 GPA in the fall semester.

MEN'S TRACK & FIELD

THE MEN'S TRACK AND FIELD TEAM TOOK HOME GOLD AS THEY DEFEATED THE ENTIRE FIELD AT THE PATRIOT LEAGUE CHAMPIONSHIPS. THEY SCORED A TEAM RECORD OF 264 POINTS TO SECOND, ARMY WITH 174 POINTS TO CLAIM THE LEAGUE TITLE. NAVY EARNED MANY PLACES AMONG THE 1ST AND 2ND ALL PATRIOT LEAGUE TEAMS, AS WELL AS COACH OF THE YEAR TO STEPHEN COOKSEY AND ROOKIE OF THE YEAR TO CAMERON HURD.

LATER ON IN THEIR SEASON THE MEN'S TEAM PLACED 3RD OUT OF 50 TEAMS IN THE IC4A CHAMPIONSHIPS. THE MEN CONCLUDED THEIR SEASON AT NCAA EAST PRELIMS. FIVE ATHLETES REPRESENTED THE MEN'S TRACK AND FIELD TEAM AND ONE WILL GO ON TO COMPETE AT NCAA NATIONALS IN OREGON. 2/C STALNAKER FINISHED THIRD IN THE 10000M RUN TO QUALIFY TO THE NCAA NATIONAL MEET. STALNAKER FINISHED FIFTH AT NCAA NATIONALS TO EARN ALL-AMERICA HONORS. HE IS ONE OF TWO MIDS TO EARN ALL-AMERICA HONORS IN THE 10000M. Baseball

The baseball team can be seen trekking out to gate eight to practice every day, in addition to many hours lifting and conditioning. The team is fun loving and are often the joksters of their classes. It is always a good time when a baseball player is around! For all the hours hard work they put in to perfect their talents and dominate on the field, the team likes to have fun and relax just as much! You can always find the baseball team together with smiles on their faces!

This season gave the Mids a chance to perform at a high-level, as post season title defenders! And they did deliver! The team turned out quality results, as they went 19-3 over their last 22 games, dating back to April 5th. Team captain starting pitcher, Kyle Condry leads a seven-man senior class, that has won 140 games over its four seasons. The greatest four-year win total in Navy's 122 years. The Mids had ten regular season games, doing well enough to play at the Patriot League Semi-finals and finals. Overall the season was a huge success!

MEN'S HEAVYWEIGHT CREW

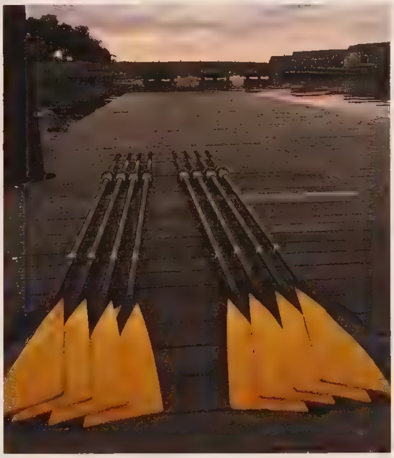
"THE BROTHERHOOD"

THE MEN'S HEAVYWEIGHT CREW TEAM CALLS THEMSELVES A BROTHERHOOD WITH GOOD REASON. WITH TWO COMPETITIVE SEASONS, LINKED BY A HARD WINTER OF WORKING OUT, THE TEAM SPENDS THE BETTER PART OF THEIR FOUR YEARS TOGETHER. THE NAVAL ACADEMY CREW TEAM IS UNIQUE TO THEIR COMPETITORS IN THEIR ABUNDANCE OF WALK ON ATHLETES, LACK OF FOREIGN ATHLETES, AND LARGE ROSTER, KNOWN AS THE "DEEP FLEET". THE TEAM HAD AN OUTSTANDING YEAR, ESPECIALLY IN THE 3RD, 4TH, AND 5TH VARSITY, ALL OF WHICH SHOCKED THE ROWING COMMUNITY WITH THEIR PLACINGS AT THE EASTERN SPRINTS AND INTERCOLLEGIATE ROWING ASSOCIATION NATIONAL COMPETITION. A VARSITY VICTORY OVER SYRACUSE AND CORNELL AS WELL AS A SWEEP TO EARN THE POINTS TROPHY HIGHLIGHTED THE SEASON FOR THE HEAVYWEIGHT TEAM. THE TEAM CONTINUES TO PUSH EACH OTHER THROUGH FRIENDLY COMPETITION, AND IMPROVE EACH DAY.

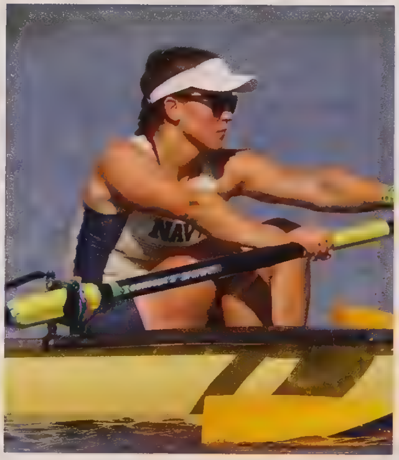
MEN'S LIGHTWEIGHT CREW

"LIGHTS"

THE LIGHTWEIGHT CREW TEAM ARE THE LEANEST, FITTEST GROUP OF ATHLETES ON THE YARD. OFTEN PRODUCING SEVERAL SPECIAL WARFARE SELECTS EVERY YEAR, THE TEAM HAS MADE A NAME FOR THEMSELVES ON THE YARD AND IN THE ROWING COMMUNITY. THE LIGHTWEIGHT TEAM HAD AN OUTSTANDING YEAR, WINNING THE MURTAUGH CUP AGAINST PRINCETON, THE POINTS TROPHY AGAINST PENN AND A NATIONAL TITLE FOR THE FOURTH VARSITY. THE LIGHTWEIGHT TEAM PUTS IN LONG HOURS OF HARD WORK TOGETHER, ROWING, RUNNING AND LIFTING WEIGHTS, AND HAVE BECOME A TIGHT KNIT GROUP.



On good days, I row. On bad days, I row harder.



NAVY WOMEN'S CREW HAD AN EXTREMELY SUCCESSFUL 2016-2017 SEASON. THEY ACCOMPLISHED THEIR MAIN GOAL OF WINNING THE PATRIOT LEAGUE CHAMPIONSHIP (FOR THE THIRD YEAR IN A ROW) AND BY DOING SO, THEY EARNED AN AUTOMATIC BID TO THE NCAA CHAMPIONSHIPS. WITH THE INTRODUCTION OF A NEW STROKE SEAT, THE ADDITION OF ANOTHER BEAUTIFUL ROWING SHELL, AND THE FASTEST TEAM AVERAGE ERG TIMES IN NWC'S HISTORY, THE TEAM WAS ABLE TO COMPETE AND SUCCEED AT HIGH PROFILE REGATTAS AND BIG STAKES RACES THROUGHOUT BOTH THE FALL AND SPRING SEASONS.

Women's Crew

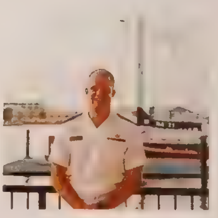
Excelling in the Hall, whether it be Hubbard or Bancroft, is of the utmost importance to the members of Navy Women's Crew. They succeed not only on the water and on the ergs, but also in the classroom. In their companies and in their ECAs, members of Women's Crew lead the way. Under the leadership of the Firsties, the team participated in numerous MAG projects and attended various sporting events, concerts and performances. NWC prides themselves on being not only excellent rowers but also excellent midshipmen. The members of Navy Women's Crew are almost always together, and consider themselves to be "aggressively best friends". Pictured below are the Navy Women's Crew Team with their team covenant. This is a document which contains the team goals and expectations for the season.

INTERCOLLEGIATE SAILING

The Intercollegiate Sailing Team had quite a year ending with competing in three National Championships in Charleston, South Carolina. The team had Patrick Snow be named as an All-American Coed Skipper, Gary Prieto be named as an All-American Honorable Mention Coed Skipper, and Ana Mier and Mary Morocco be named as All-American Crews. Gary Prieto also represented the team at Singlehanded Nationals this fall. Pat Snow and Molly Robertson represented the team at the Admiral's Cup in India this winter. Our team won multiple regattas including our conference team race qualifier. While our success showed during the weekends competing up and down the East Coast, the memories that were made during the long hours we spent together will be the success that lasts for years to come. Whether it be from the hundreds of hours spent in the duty vans traveling, the hundreds of hours spent on the Severn, or the hundreds of hours spent explaining what we actually do, the Naval Academy Dinghy Sailors will be friends for life.

The Class of 2017 left their mark on this team. Spencer's mad volleyball skills (and his ab workouts) will be missed dearly. Women's regattas will never be as safe without Manny's life guarding skills. The team's lifts will never sound the same without Pat's killer playlists. The team's barbecues will never be as great without grill master Mike. And finally the sheNADS' van rides will never be the same without MoRob's amazing road trip playlists and MoHan and Hannah's singing/ screaming of the lyrics. With the Class of 2017 gone, the competition for the Headless Horseman Trophy should be fierce as we said goodbye to our three (arguably four) time winners. The underclass are ready for next year's season to continue to raise the bar, fill the role of team DJ, keep the locker rooms clean, and remind the plebes that they are in fact still plebes. 2017 knows they are up to the task and can't wait to see this year's successes built upon. Sail Fast, Turn Left!

MIDN 1/C Matt Robbins was the Offshore Sailing team captain for the 2016-17 season. 1/C Robbins was selected to be in the United States Marine Corps!



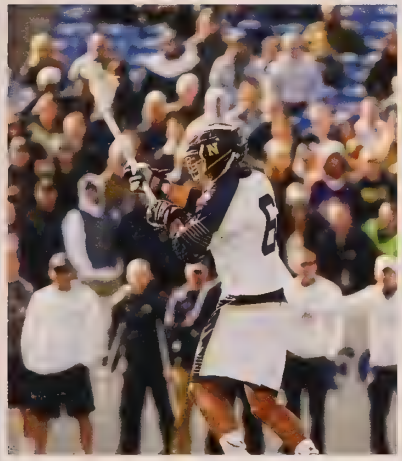
OFFSHORE SAILING

The Varsity Offshore Sailing Team is a team formed up of talented Midshipmen. They work together to get things done. In September the team took first place at Hammond Memorial and at the Shields Trophy Regatta. In October they won the McMillan Cup. They ended the year with a strong finish placing second at the Kennedy Cup. This team accomplished a lot over the course of their season, but their success extends in the classroom as well with Ethan Doherty, Michael Sagan, Matthew Robbins, and Kyle Pate earning graduate with distinct honors.

MEN'S LACROSSE

LED BY HEAD COACH RICK SOWELL, NOW IN HIS SIXTH YEAR IN HIS TENURE AT NAVY, THE MEN'S LACROSSE TEAM COMPLETED A SUCCESSFUL SEASON. THE SEASON CULMINATED IN THE MIDS 11TH PATRIOT LEAGUE TOURNAMENT APPEARANCE, MAKING IT ALL THE WAY TO THEIR GAME AGAINST HOLY CROSS IN THE QUARTERFINALS.

IN ADDITION TO THEIR PATRIOT LEAGUE TOURNAMENT APPEARANCE, THE TEAM WAS ABLE TO BOAST YET ANOTHER STAR VICTORY OVER ARMY, THEIR NINETEENTH VICTORY OVER ARMY IN THE LAST TWENTY-ONE YEARS.



NAVY
AIR FORCE

In addition to a successful season on the field, the Men's Lacrosse team had a successful semester in the classroom. The Men's Team boasted six members on the Patriot League Men's Lacrosse Academic Honor Roll.

AT THE END OF THEIR SEASON, THE TEAM SET ANOTHER SCHOOL RECORD BY SETTING THE HIGHEST NATIONAL RANKING FOR ANY WOMEN'S TEAM IN SCHOOL HISTORY WITH A FOURTH-PLACE RANKING IN THE INSIDE LACROSSE MEDIA POLL AND A SIXTH-PLACE FINISH IN THE IWLCA POLL.

"BEHIND MOUNTAINS ARE MORE MOUNTAINS." - CINDY TIMCHAL (HEAD COACH)

Women's Lacrosse

Navy Women's Lacrosse is perhaps known to be one of the loudest teams both on and off the field. These ladies also know a thing or two about what it means to work hard and represent Navy at the highest level of collegiate athletics. They embrace their motto "WE ALL WE GOT" in everything they do. They are the best of friends in the worst of times.

The team launched themselves into a record-breaking season, culminating in their performance at the NCAA Championships. They not only made it to the NCAA Quarterfinals for the first time in the progam's history, they did it against a ranked team, another first for navy women's lacrosse. Finally, they memorialized themselves by being the first ever women's team from a service academy to make it to the Final Four.

HEAD COACH, CHRIS GARNER, HAD THIS TO SAY ABOUT THE SEASON: "IT WAS AN INCREDIBLE YEAR, KRISHNA AND THOMAS, I CAN'T THANK THEM ENOUGH FOR WHAT THEY GAVE TO THE PROGRAM. I'VE ONLY BEEN HERE THREE SEASONS, BUT IT IS SO INTERESTING TO SEE WHAT EACH FIRST CLASS BRINGS TO THE CULTURE OF THE TEAM BECAUSE IT IS NEW EVERY YEAR. THEY (KRISHNA AND THOMAS) REALLY CREATED A GREAT SOCIAL DYNAMIC OF THE TEAM AND THEY WANTED TO GIVE TO THE PROGRAM. BY GIVING TO THE PROGRAM THE REST OF THE TEAM REALLY GOT BEHIND THEM. I CAN'T SAY ENOUGH GREAT THINGS ABOUT ALL 15 GUYS ON THE TEAM. I FEEL VERY FORTUNATE TO BE THE COACH HERE; WE JUST HAVE SOME EXCEPTIONAL YOUNG MEN."

Women's Tennis

The Navy Women's Tennis Team is impressive on and off the court. The ladies were 18-12 overall this season and 4-2 in the Patriot League. This season, Freshman Ansofi Wreder was named the team's Most Valuable Player, sophomore Sabrina Jiang was presented the Team Spirit Award, freshman Emily Louie-Meadors earned the Most Improved Award, while junior Isabel Balsavage and freshman Simona Babb were the co-winners of the Unsung Hero Award.

Head coach, Keith Puryear, said this about the season: "I felt like we left it all out on the courts. Our ladies give everything they have for one another, for the team and for the Academy. They have a lot of grit, perseverance and poise. I am really proud of them. We will use this and we will keep pushing forward."

CLUB SPORTS

Men's Ice Hockey

As an immensely competitive and hardworking club sport at USNA, the Navy Ice Hockey's schedule and weekly practice routine is on the same level as varsity sports at the Naval Academy. Ice Hockey conducts their practices and home games at the McMullen Ice Arena, which is located in the Brigade Sports Complex near the Naval Academy. Navy Hockey competes in Division 1 of the American Collegiate Hockey Association (ACHA) as a member of the Eastern Collegiate Hockey Association (ECHA), and the United States Naval Academy D2 team competes in Division 2 of the American Collegiate Hockey Association (ACHA) as part of the Atlantic Coast Collegiate Hockey League (ACCHL). The 2016-17 season consisted of games against Salisbury University, Air Force (first ever USNA vs. Air Force game), and Virginia Tech to name a few for the D2 team. For the D1 team, West Virginia, St. Thomas, Minnesota, and Delaware were some of the teams they faced off against.

WOMEN'S ICE HOCKEY

13 WINS AND 5 LOSSES CHARACTERIZED THE GREAT FORTITUDE AND TEAMWORK OF THE NAVY ICE HOCKEY WOMEN. UNDER THE INSTRUCTION OF HEAD COACH JOE VONAKIS, THE TEAM ACHIEVED A SEASON OF FIRSTS. TO CAP OFF A SUCCESSFUL YEAR, THE WOMEN WON THEIR VERY FIRST GAME IN THE ACHA (AMERCIAN COLLEGIATE HOCKEY ASSOCIATION) NATIONAL TOURNAMENT WITH A SCORE OF 4-3.

The United States Naval Academy Men's Volleyball team is comprised of a close-knit group of men with a track record of success. Club Volleyball midshipmen compete against other club teams up and down the East Coast during the season, as well as playing on the national level in the post-season. Very few are offered spots on the team, as tryouts are highly competitive. For the 2016-17 Season, the team competed at West Point, Binghamton, Wilson College, Penn State, and Georgetown. The team ended the season with 3 wins, 3 losses for the Navy A team and 1 Win, 1 loss for the B team.

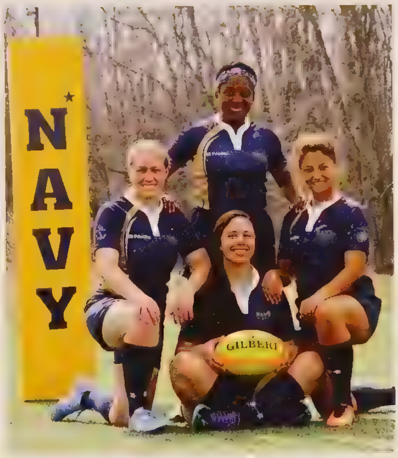
SOFTBALL

Club Softball competes in both the fall and spring of the North Atlantic North Conference, with the ultimate goal of competing at the National Club Softball Association World Series each year. The team is comprised of 15 motivated female Midshipmen. Navy Club Softball strives to be as competitive as possible while still having lots of fun! Navy Softball plays in the Mid Atlantic North Conference of the National Club Softball Association. Last season, Navy Softball finished as the 2016 North Atlantic North Conference Champions, with a final record of 19-2. The Softball team is comprised of female Midshipmen with the desire to play softball at a competitive level. Navy Softball has captured the Conference title 7 times and has been to the NCSA national tournament multiple times!

MEN'S RUGBY

2016 was a landmark year for the Navy Rugby Program. The team was led by Captain Kevin Kirchmer and President Jake Martin, with a roster full of returning seniors such as Dan Tillman, Garrett Smith, and Don Ross. The Junior class produced two Collegiate All-Americans: Connor McNerney and Gardy LeBon. The team had a strong showing into the fall, with big wins over Dartmouth, Notre Dame, and Clemson. Carrying this momentum into the spring, the team had an excellent run in the last ever Varsity Cup, rolling over Boston College and upsetting Central Washington University in overtime, before falling to Arkansas State after a hard fought game on the road in the semi-final.

WOMEN'S RUGBY



THE NAVY WOMEN'S RUGBY TEAM PLAYS HARD AND TACKLES HARDER. DON'T MAKE THE MISTAKE OF TELLING A RUGBY PLAYER THAT THE GAME IS SIMILAR TO FOOTBALL. YOU MAY JUST GET TACKLED AND REGRET IT INSTANTLY! THE TEAM IS ALWAYS CHEERFUL, QUIRKY, AND PROUDLY REPRESENTING THEIR TEAM. WOMEN'S RUGBY ALWAYS REMEMBERS TO "LOVE THE LEGACY!"

DUNKIN' DONUTS

THE US NAVAL ACADEMY CYCLING TEAM HAD A GREAT SEASON THIS YEAR. THEY WON CONFERENCE CHAMPIONSHIPS AND SENT A NUMBER OF COMPETITIVE CYCLISTS TO NATIONALS. THE TEAM WAS LEAD BY CAPTAIN: 1/C BRIAN HARDY, ROAD CAPTAIN: 1/C ERIN THAMM, & ASST CAPTAIN: 2/C ADAM OSTER.

THE NAVY CYCLING TEAM IS KNOWN FOR ALWAYS CRASHING AT LEAST ONCE AT A RACE. DESPITE THE TENDENCY TO END UP ON THE GROUND, THE TEAM CRUSHES ALL THE COMPETITION. A LOT OF OTHER SCHOOLS LIKE TO HATE NAVY CYCLING, BUT ITS LIKE THE OLD SAYING "THEY HATE US BECAUSE THEY AIN'T US"!

ALLIES

ALLIES or the Civil Military Relations Club is a unique club that allows midshipmen to draw a bridge for shared understanding between current and future military, civilian, and business leaders. This club provides a platform that allows midshipmen to explore numerous complex problems in depth. ALLIES aims to create a generation of informed civilian, military and business leaders who are able to tackle the challenges presented in the 21st century. Top Left: Midshipmen engage in conversations with cadets from Westpoint on the various military topics. DONT TREAD ON ME

The Alpine Ski and Snowboard Team had some adversity to overcome this year, between injury, lack of snow, and push back to from the Dean's office, they still were able to qualify 10 out of the 16 members for the USCSA National Championship. Three race members, Jake Prickett, Andrew Emerson, and Anna Faux were members of the Allegheny All Conference Teams, as well as Freestylers Foster Gross and Dan Robinson. On the men's side, Dan Robinson and Foster Gross led the freestyle snowboard team with top 5 finishes at every competition, while Jake Prickett finished every race he started for the men's ski racing side with several Top 5 finishes. On the women's side the team posted the strongest women's team results in team history led by newcomer Anna Faux who was able to crack the Top 15 on several weekends. The team will miss the leadership they had this year but look forward to next season and the leadership of Mac Lavis, Sascha Stipe and Lauren Larar.

BAPTIST COLLEGIATE MINISTRIES

Baptist Collegiate Ministries caters to the spiritual and mentoring needs of all Midshipmen. BCM's mission is to make disciples that make disciples. BCM consists of a large group midshipmen who come together to share their faith and glorify God. Some of the events they participated in were a ski retreat, fall retreat and winter retreat. The large group photo is the Class of 2017 at the Annual Fall Retreat. There was a BCM summer training in San Diego. BCM hosted pancake nights for the brigade, and underclass bible studies. BCM had toga parties like the picture on that right that was taken in front of the BCM house in Annapolis, and hawaiian parties at the BCM house. Overall, BCM is a big community of believers all striving to walk closer with God and they accomplish that through fellowship.

The Jewish Midshipmen Club provides a Jewish Community at the Naval Academy where midshipmen can come together for cultural, social and religious enrichment. The JMC has meetings every Tuesday, as well as participating in many additional events during this year. Highlights of these events include Salsa in the Sukkah, Rosh Hashana, the Hanukkah Party, Passover, the Great Challah Bake, Jewish Warrior Weekend at West Point, luncheon with Nobel Prizewinner Shirin Ebadi, and Holocaust Remembrance Day. In addition, members of the Jewish Midshipmen club traveled to Israel during Winter Break! The picture to the left is Midshipmen on the JMC food, faith and culture MO to New York City! ENDURANCE TEAM

The inception of the Endurance Team occurred during a conversation between two strangers, 4/C Erin McShane and 2/C Hannah Jane Meadows on an early morning in March 2016. What began as a short walk on Stribling turned into a team that has challenged and changed many Midshipmen's perspectives on purpose and leadership at the Naval Academy. Since then, the team of 35 has participated in a number of different events to include a 12-hour Go-Ruck Tough event in Washington, DC (top left) and a 70.3 triathlon in White Lake, NC. The team is also committed to cultivating its members to live a life of service by investing in several community service projects. The Endurance Team would not be in existence today without the help of O-Reps CDR Treeman, Captain King, and Major Gardner, and Midshipmen 1/C Joel Davis, Casey Stanko, and Lauren Webb. Top right picture shows members planking in front-leaning rest in D.C. around midnight.

Navy Rock Climbing Club, more commonly known as Navy Rock, began the transition to indoor competitions this year. This didn't stop members from crushing plenty of routes outdoors, but in true hippie fashion they captured those moments in memory rather than pictures. The club absolutely crushed local competitions and enjoyed every route they sent. Back "home" on the Halsey wall, they spent the year setting some of the best routes in recent memory and helping instill a love of climbing in the newer members of the Brigade. The Equestrian Team allows animal lovers of all different backgrounds to get out on the weekends and spend some time getting fur therapy from the horses and barn cats of Baywood Farms. The team has weekly riding lessons at Baywood and even goes to local hunter jumper shows with their majestic steeds. The team also competes against Army in barrel racing at the Washington International Horse Show in Washington, D.C., and this rivalry always ends up being the "mane" attraction. The Navy Equestrian Team is currently on a two-year winning streak against Army. The top left photo shows MIDN 2/C Jade Miller and team captain Rachel Boushon competing at a hunter jumper show. Navy Field Hockey is a co-ed ECA on the yard. As a member of the National Field Hockey League, the Navy Field Hockey team competes in a championship league during the fall and plays in exhibition games during the spring against college club teams from around the country. In recent years, the team has increased tempo and commitment, with the hopes to someday be recognized as a club team on the yard.

NSBE, or the National Society of Black Engineers is a nationally renowned organization with the mission of increasing the number of culturally responsible Black Engineers who excel academically, succeed professionally and positively impact the community." In fostering this mission USNA's NSBE chapter has organized professional lectures, professional development talks, and community service events in the 2016-2017 academic year. NSBE's membership was able to travel to Kansas City, Missouri this year and take part in one of the largest engineering conventions in the nation this year. In addition, NSBE held a lecture series and was able to host a former CIO of NASA to the Academy and an engineer from Johns Hopkins Applied Physics Laboratory to come and speak to members.

FILIPINO-AMERICAN CLUB

The Filipino-American Club welcomes anyone who has any interest in Filipino culture, tradition, food, history, language and more. This club gives Midshipmen opportunities to learn traditional facts and activities about the Filipino culture such as the traditional dancing called Tinikling. Members have the opportunity to taste delicious Filipino food during meetings. Also, the national language of the Philippines, Tagalog, is taught by midshipmen in the club to anyone who is interested in learning. The history of Filipino-Americans is deeply set within our nations Navy. The top left picture is of members of the Filipino-American Club in MacD as they prepare to perform at the annual International Ball. The top right picture shows members of the club at the ECA Fair in Dahlgren Hall. This is when midshipmen walk around and sign up for ECAs in which they are interested.

The Native American Heritage Club aims to educate the public about the traditions and cultural significance that American Indians have within the country and the military. Anyone who is interested in American Indian history and culture is welcome to join. The Club hosted the annual Native American Heritage Month Banquet with speakers including Ms. Rebecca Johnson Stone, Howard County Commissioner for the Governor's Commission on Indian Affairs and Mr. Peter MacDonald, Navajo Code Talker and former Leader of the Navajo Nation. The picture below to the right features midshipmen, Air Force cadets, and USMA cadets overlooking the National Mall at the National Museum of the American Indian.

NATIVE AMERICAN CLUB

Vietnamese American Club

The mission of the Vietnamese American Midshipmen Club is to further enhance the cultural understanding and development of midshipmen who are interested in the Vietnamese culture through language, food gatherings, and traditions. The Vietnamese American Midshipmen Club aims to foster an environment that supports the understanding of Vietnam's history, heritage, and policies. The Korean-American Midshipmen Association, also known as KAMA (pronunciation: kah-mah), is the Korean cultural group at the Academy. KAMA celebrates Korean heritage, language and culture. KAMA members usually get to travel to Korea for one of their summer trips/LREC's, as well as study abroads at Korean universities. However, on the more basic level, KAMA members get to participate in events, such as the coveted Korean Barbeque MOs on Fridays, to Christmas and Post-PRT parties with homemade Korean food from parents of Korean-American mids. Led by president Teresa Anderson, the club is helped by wonderful adults such as Soon Emo, Mr. Carter, and all the parents who support us! And no, you do not have to be Korean to be a part of the KAMA fam!

GOSPEL CHOIR

Gospel Choir is truly a family, and under the phenomenal leadership of Dr. Scott, Gospel choir never fails to put on an amazing show. This year was an extraordinarily eventful year for the Gospel Choir. They sung at many high profile events, from professional baseball games to Army Navy Game, in addition, the choir also traveled all across the east coast touring high schools and churches spreading the good news through song and worship. The picture to the left is the Gospel Choir family performing at the Commissioning Week Concert. To the right, is 1/C Jarred Reed-Dixon singing from the heart during a solo.

JBHO impacts the Brigade by opening up topics on the naval service by and of women past, present, and future. As more opportunities and roles are given to women such as in combat, JBHO stresses the importance of understanding women in the military as both genders will work together to efficiently and successfully carry out the mission. JBHO took part in numerous activities throughout the year to have a positive growth in knowledge, sensitivity, and understanding of the roles and opportunities for women in the military. Flight Team

In the 2016-2017 Season, the Naval Academy Flight Team, led by CO Ian Arbuckle, started the year off with weekly studying for competition ground events for the NIFA Regional Competition, which unfortunately they were not able to attend. Team XO, Danny Bush, organized a trip for several team members to the National Aviation Hall of Fame in Dayton, Ohio where they got a weekend full of exposure to some incredible aviation legends. In the spring, the team rallied to prepare for the annual Service Academy Fly Off against West Point and Coast Guard. The team began checkouts and flying practices early and put a lot of work into preparing for the ground events. Consequently, Navy took first place in the ground events, but ended up in second place overall. The top right picture features the team at Army, and the top left features Midshipmen 2/C Danny Bush (right) and 1/C Ian Arbuckle.

The Naval Academy's Latin American Studies Club (LASC), is an organization that is dedicated to the celebration of Latin American and Hispanic culture.With the belief that a diverse fleet is a successful fleet. LASC events are never without good food, good company, and great learning and leadership opportunities. The club seeks to better understand current US foreign relations with our Latin American partners, and succeed in this by drawing from the community of foreign exchange midshipmen that hail from Latin American countries. LASC represents the members of the Brigade who identify as Latin American or Hispanic and accepts all midshipmen who seek to know more.

Service Rifle and Pistol Team

The Service Rifle and Pistol Team ECA is the Naval Academy's military marksmanship team, comprised of the best shooters in the Brigade. Led by 1/C Brian Kennedy and 2/C Greg McKnight, the team utilizes the M16 service rifle and the M1911 service pistol in competition again both civilian and military marksmen. On rifle, shooters compete standing, seated, and prone at 200, 300, and 600 yards. Pistol competitions allow the use of only one hand, and the shooter fires at a target 50 and 25 yards away. All competitions require the shooter to utilize iron sights. The season consists of bi-weekly practice, matches in Delaware & Maryland, and culminates in Atlantic Fleet and All-Navy (East) Rifle and Pistol Championships at Marine Corps Base Quantico, where the team competes for the individual and command awards.

The Libertas Forum is an ECA devoted to a deeper understanding of the principles that advance the idea of ordered liberty and civic virtue. We seek the wisdom of the past: ideas that have been tested and proven over the course of two millennia.We examine a wide range of topics: religion, philosophy, culture, politics, and economics. The Roman Forum, one of the most important places in all of history, was the center of ancient Roman public life: the venue for public speeches, ground for elections, and the heart of commercial activities. The Libertas Forum aims to provide this similar atmosphere for the Naval Academy. We believe continuing the noble tradition of civil discourse and debate, which is essential to the classical liberal arts education, will properly serve the intellectual and moral mission of the United States Naval Academy.

Libertas Forum Club

Japanese American Club

The Japanese-American Club is a club that is open to anyone who is interested in the many parts of the Japanese culture. To teach members and visitors about Japanese culture, we hold various events throughout the year. These events include Nihongo Zone, trips to the Japanese embassy, volunteer events with the Japanese-American community, and trips to Japanese restaurants. This year's Nihongo Zones included ikebana (flower arrangement), sushi day, ghosts and spirits of Japanese culture, and experiences of being stationed in Japan. This year's staff included Haruka Earney as president, Daniel Given as vice president, Matthew Switzer as operations officer, Michael Buonocore as treasurer, and Fumiya DuFresne as public affairs officer.

Navy Women's Gymnastics is a club where ladies learn to persistently overcome their fears. There might be a couple of bumps and bruises throughout practice, hand rips from conditioning and skin burns from beam, but the graceful product of perfection at the end is worth it all. This season, the girls competed at James Madison University, where 4/C Roper placed 10th and 2/C Bruns placed 20th overall out of 156 competitors. In the future, the girls will compete at Nationals against hundreds of other collegiate gymnasts from across America. TRIDENT BRASS

Trident Brass is a group of musically talented midshipmen who LOVE jazz. They perform at various venues through the Academic Year, such as Swing Dance Nights, basketball games, I-Ball, the Herndon Climb, and most famously the annual croquet match against St. Johns. Trident Brass also takes an annual trip to a Jazz Festival to show off their skills on a national level. The band is composed of several sections. The shiny brass section contains trumpet, and trombone. The wind section, saxophones, often play the catchy melodies. The percussion section includes the upright bass, drums, guitar, and piano. They carry the beat that holds the band together. Lastly the people you love to sing along with are the vocalists. Trident Brass also has a smaller jazz combo that performs at USNA-related banquets and receptions. Additionally, both groups perform at various community outreach functions, such as schools and assisted living facilities.

Masqueraders is the oldest extracurricular activity at USNA, founded in 1847. They perform two shows a year: a major production in the fall, and a series of student-directed One Act Plays in the spring. This year's fall production of "Much Ado," reset in 1920's New Mexico, was filled with laughter, tears, confusion, awkwardness, love, sarcasm, and smiles galore. Yet, as brilliant as we all know Shakespeare to be, even the might of his words cannot possibly describe how much this production meant to every one of us. The friendships both strengthened and newly forged during this production will, without a doubt, last a lifetime. As stated by the beloved director of Masqueraders Dr. Geigner, Mahan Hall with the Masqueraders is "a place like nowhere else in the world."

These pictures are from the show "Much Ado," which was directed by Dr. Megan Geigner and officer representative LT Joy Solmonson, both of the English Department. Dr. Geigner, LT Solmonson, the actors, and tech crew worked tirelessly for over two months to put together this show.

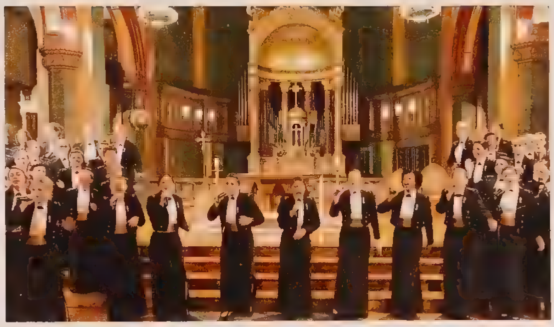
MEN'S GLEE CLUB

THE EUGENE McDERMOTT CONCERT HALL

THE MEN'S GLEE CLUB IS CONSIDERED TO BE ONE OF THE NATION'S BEST CHORAL ENSEMBLES. IN ADDITION TO APPEARANCES ON MAJOR NEWS NETWORKS, THE CLUB TRAVELS ALL OVER THE COUNTRY AND INTERNATIONALLY TO PERFORM. THEY PERFORM AS SOLOS OR IN CONCERTS WITH ACCLAIMED SYMPHONIES FROM AROUND THE COUNTRY INCLUDING THE PORTLAND, JACKSON, AND NASHVILLE SYMPHONIES AND THE BOSTON POP ORCHESTRA. THE CLUB ALSO PERFORMS THE NATIONAL ANTHEM AT EVERY HOME FOOTBALL GAME AT THE NAVY-MARINE CORPS MEMORIAL STADIUM.

THE MEN'S GLEE CLUB EMBARKED ON TWO TOURS THIS PAST YEAR, THE FIRST TO TEXAS IN NOVEMBER IN HONOR OF VETERAN'S DAY, AND THE SECOND TO CALIFORNIA OVER SPRING BREAK. DR. AARON SMITH, ONE OF THE NATION'S MOST SUCCESSFUL CHOIR DIRECTORS, LEADS THE CLUB AS THE DIRECTOR OF MUSICAL ACTIVITIES. THE CLUB ALSO BOASTS AN ELITE GROUP CALLED "THE ANCHORMAN," WHICH CONSISTS OF NINE ELITE MEMBERS OF GLEE WHO PERFORM A VARIETY OF SONGS FROM 1970'S ROCK TO MODERN-DAY POP IN ADDITION TO THE SCHOOL, MILITARY, AND NAUTICAL SONGS PERFORMED MORE WIDELY FROM THE GROUP.

Women's Glee Club



Women's Glee Club is one of the most established musical extracurricular at the Academy. Led by Director Doctor Cindy Bauchspies, the United States Women's Glee Club participates in many musical events such as the Oratorio, a Distinguished Artist Series, singing at Preakness, singing the national anthems at football games, multiple concerts and so much more! The Women's Glee Club also hails the only all-female Active Duty a capella group, the Riveters. The Riveters are very talented, performing personal arrangements and containing the talents of beat-boxer Stephanie Simon, Glee Club President Aly Hands, the soothing voice of Michelle McCollum, and many other vocal angels of the Brigade. This exclusive group is a force to be reckoned with -- basically watch Pitch Perfect and you get the real life Riveters! This year, Women's Glee Club traveled to New York City for the annual Veteran's Day Tour. In lieu of the coveted college Spring Break, Glee Clubbers gave up their spring break to travel with to Phoenix and Tucson, Arizona to sing to schools and also do admissions outreach. Although it is a lot of hard work over tour, at the end of the day, the Women's Glee Club is very proud of what they do. Along with the countless hours of rehearsal and singing comes great memories with great people, and also great glee hashtags!! #NYGlee #Glarizona

VTNA

The Naval Academy Flying Squadron (VT-NA) is the Naval Aviation ECA on the yard. VT-NA hosts Aviation Socials that introduce midshipmen to Navy Pilots and NFOs with fleet experience. The squadron conducts Ground School training that gives Midshipmen the ability to get an FAA endorsement for their Private Pilot's license completely free. Lastly, movement orders to air shows, museums, fleet squadrons, and ships provide the perfect venue for VT-NA's mission: To educate and inspire.

The Midshipmen Fishing and Conservation Club is an organization of midshipmen which promotes the importance of natural resource conservation and protection. The club allows midshipmen to participate in and lead fishing excursions throughout the mid-Atlantic region. In addition, the club offers meetings about conservation, environmental awareness, fishing laws and regulations, and angling techniques. Participating midshipmen will gain new appreciation for the world around them, and develop skills to better use and sustain the natural environments that they live near.

DRUM AND BUGLE CORPS

U.S. NAVAL ACADEMY
DRUM & BUGLE CORPS

Every midshipmen is familiar with the lines about the D&B during the classic parade spiel as the midshipmen sweat and toil in the sun. USNA's Drum and Bugle Corps has a large presence on the yard, as one of the largest musical extracurricular activities. D&B performs at football and basketball games, home and away, as well as formations. They amaze mids on the football field during halftime shows as they show their musical prowess and technical skill, forming elaborate formations of anchors. The drumline has an especially close connection, as the "Franchise" forms the heartbeat of the corps. Overall, Drum and Bugle Corps is very involved in midshipmen lives and requires great dedication. It is truly awesome to see the Drum and Bugle Corps capitalize on their opportunity to travel and perform live music in front of thousands of people, and represent the United States Naval Academy around the world.

THE MEMBERS SPEND A GREAT DEAL OF TIME WORKING ON THEIR OWN SKILLS BUT PERHAPS EVEN MORE ON WORKING TOGETHER. THIS YEAR'S TRIPS INCLUDE AN ANCHORAGE OVERNIGHT MOVEMENT ORDER, TRIPS TO BALTIMORE FOR BOTH FLEET WEEK AND ARMY-NAVY, NORFOLK, PHILADELPHIA, AND LITTLE CREEK. A FIRST FOR THIS YEAR WAS TAKING 4 PENNANTS TO ARMY-NAVY!

THE LOG

The LOG Magazine is an organization of Midshipmen whose goal is to regularly publish humorous periodicals for the enjoyment of the Brigade of Midshipmen. The staff aims to boost morale, maintain a sense of humor, and give the Brigade a periodical that is truly theirs. The LOG is a tight-knit ECA that provides a niche for anyone looking to exercise their creativity through satire. The magazine is deeply appreciative of all the support from the Brigade, alumni, and various subscribers, and hopes to continue its 104-year history of keeping humor in the heart of every Midshipman.

The lucky Bag ECA goes back into the late 1800's. Time and time again the Lucky Bag wins prestigious yearbook awards. The Lucky Bag staff consists of editors and photographers. The photographers go out and shoot all of the events to include sports and midlife events. The editors coordinate with the photographers to get pictures and information for the captions and text. The two photos below are taken by two of the Lucky Bag photographers.

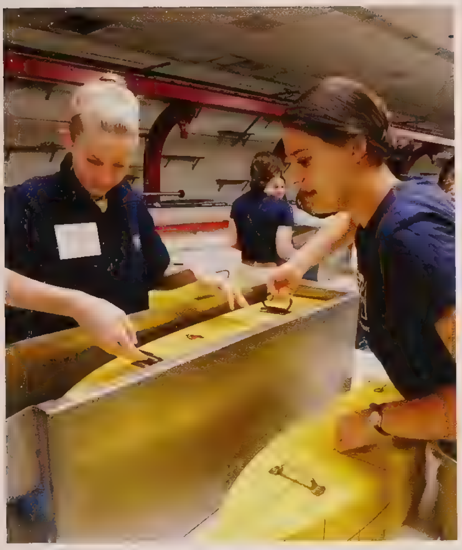
OSTS

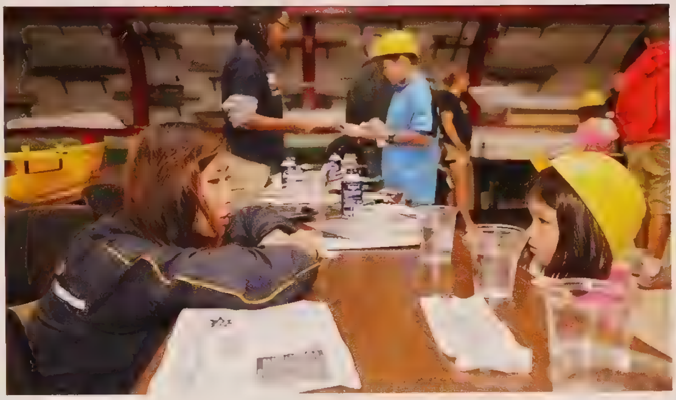
The OSTS ECA is a fairly new ECA that was created to provide all midshipmen with the opportunity to sail on the Navy 26s (Colgates) and Navy 44 Sail Training Crafts during the academic year. The OSTS ECA is perfect for midshipmen who are looking to have fun sailing the waters of the Chesapeake Bay, increase their knowledge of sailing, seamanship, and navigation, take part in one of the best small-unit leadership experiences on the yard, and work towards a "D" qualification, which allows midshipmen to have command of a Navy 44 during summer training.

The Naval Academy Symphony Orchestra is comprised of midshipmen who are interested in performing and honing their musical skills in a group environment. Auditions for this ECA take place at the beginning of the semester. This orchestra is comprised of all sorts of instruments including stringed instruments, brass, woodwind, and percussion. The orchestra usually performs about three times a year. One of these performances is the Midshipmen Classical Concert, which is featured below and happens in the Main Chapel. For their winter concert this year, the orchestra performed works by Bach, Handel, Pachelbel, Meyerbeer, and more.

ORCHESTRA

MSTEM





USNA STEM involves Midshipmen in STEM majors from all class years to help present hands-on STEM activities, lead teacher groups, and facilitate engineering design at multiple STEM events on and off the Yard throughout the year. The purpose of MSTEM is to inspire young minds, facilitate educators, and further develop local and national communities through STEM education. USNA STEM hosts activities focused on topics such as: robotics, chemistry, hull design, fluids, materials properties, as well as mini engineering design competitions. A popular event is Maryland Mathematics Engineering Science Achievement (MESA) Day where Midshipmen stage a full day of hands-on activities for ~300 elementary students from local counties at Johns Hopkins University.

Navy Club Waterpolo had a challenging season, finishing sixth place in the Collegiate Water Polo Association (CWPA) Atlantic Conference. After losing close games against Duke, Virginia Tech, and Maryland, Navy was victorious against Johns Hopkins. The club also played its first international match against the United Kingdom's Royal Air Force team, winning 10-8 in front of a large crowd of proud Americans.

Semper Fi Society is an organization dedicated to introducing Midshipmen to what the Marine Corps is all about. Throughout the course of the year we execute exciting Marine relevant training. This includes rigorous field exercises both in Annapolis and in Quantico, talks from combat speakers, and more. Semper Fi Society exists on the yard in order to prepare Midshipmen for future USNA training such as Leatherneck and prepares them to be a Marine Officer upon commissioning.

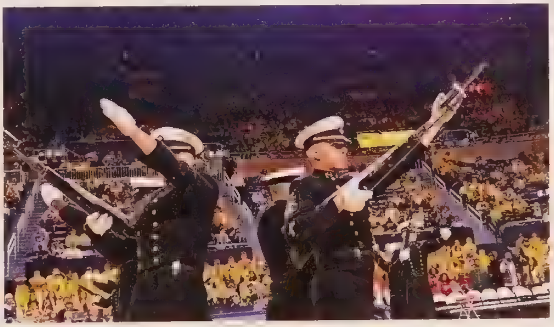
EACH YEAR, THE MEMBERS OF THE TEAM TRAVEL ACROSS AMERICA PERFORMING FOR THOUSANDS AT BOTH MILITARY AND CIVILIAN VENUES ALIKE. AMONGST THE ROGERS, THE HIGHEST SENSE OF DISCIPLINE AND EXCELLENCE MAY BE FOUND



Color Guard

In the past year, the Color Guard has presented colors for over 45 high-visibility events in support of both the Brigade of Midshipmen and community functions. These events have included Naval Academy football games, formal parades, and a high-profile banquet for the Surface Navy Association. The USNA Color Guard team also showcased its drill prowess at the annual Villanova drill competition, sending two teams to compete and sweeping 1st and 2nd place. The team looks forward to its continual service to the Brigade of Midshipmen and the community at large.

Crossfit Blue and Gold is a team of motivated individuals interested in promoting a high level of fitness among themselves and the brigade. Classes are offered to all members of the brigade twice a day and coached by Crossfit Level One certified team members. Throughout the year, the Crossfit Blue and Gold team participates in various competitions and the annual Crossfit Open. Workouts consist of various functional exercises completed for time or number of repetitions. There is no greater display of camaraderie and dedication than walking into court #9 to see members and students of Crossfit Blue and Gold at work. Pictured below to the left is MIDN 1/C Gus Uecker hitting an easy front squat at 275. To the right, the club takes a quick break to smile for the camera.

Pipes and Drums

The Pipes and Drums Band is "The Naval Academy's best kept cultural and historical secret". Created in 1996, the United States Naval Academy Pipes and Drums Band is the only active duty pipe band in the Department of the Navy. Keeping the Scottish heritage alive, the band supports the Brigade of Midshipmen with performances at formal parades, noon meal formations, and football tailgate parties. This year, the band also traveled to the Royal Military College (RMC) in Kingston, Ontario, to taking part in an annual band exchange. They also traveled to New York City to march in the annual Tartan Day Parade. The USNA Pipes and Drums band is led by 1/C Samuel Giddings (President), 1/C Raj Patel (Vice President), 2/C Cord Roehrbein (Operations Officer), and 1/C Nick Morris (Treasurer).

Timothy Addison

USMC Ground

Tim "Old Man" Addison hails from somewhere in Maryland... Tim is a math major here at the Academy and loves to enthrall those around him with stories of how black holes are thought to work. Tim can often be found playing his PlayStation in 1st Company's wardroom or out in town getting Moe's. He has been on an avid search for the Temple of the Gods, aka Mac D, over the past four years but has yet to find it. Beyond being an old man stuck in an adolescent's body, Tim is one of the most dependable people at the Academy. Truly caring and a servant-leader.
Tim was born to be a Marine and the Corps will be better for it.

Kelsey Ashbrook

Naval Flight Officer

Kelsey Ashbrook, the self-styled "MATLAB Queen" hails from Auburndale, FL, the home of everything wrong with that state. But don't get too excited, boys, as Kelsey has high standards and prefers Brigade stripers and fighter pilots. Her fiance is constantly struggling for her love, as it is constantly tested whenever she meets any dog no matter how cute or ugly it is. She is also one of the many weather gods on the Yard. When she isn't trying to get us out of outside formation by conjuring rain, Kelsey will turn simple small talk about how nice it is out into a half hour long TED Talk on everything you never knew or wanted to know about weather. Kelsey's resourcefulness, determination, and leadership will take her far in Naval Aviation.

Harry Bullen

Surface Warfare Nuke

Since the beginning, there hasn't been a Situation Prince Harry "The Schemer of Annapolis" Stafford Bullen IV hasn't finagled, schemed, or swooped himself out of. His motto: "Why go to formation when you can just go to sleep?" Despite this, you can always find him supporting the many blood drives, sporting events, and company mates here at USNA. When the Prince of Darkness isn't busy helping his classmates, you can find him sleeping, listening to his favorite band, "Aer", sleeping, losing at Rummy 500, sleeping, drawing a new tattoo on himself, sleeping, chewing gum, sleeping, in an unwinnable argument, or sleeping, he will most likely be in his rack which was put on the floor, sleeping. Each conversation with @hsizzle16 is upbeat-if you haven't heard the words "Word", "Dope", or "Chill"at least 7 times, have you really talked to the Prince? While at the Academy, Prince Harry has schemed his way onto the God's List, gathered 8 stars for beating army, Midshipmen of the Semester, and Superintendent shout out.. Hale's choice in ship, the Blue Ridge, came as no great surprise to his friends, who have all greatly benefited from his scheming over the years. His only regret is that he missed Fat Leonard. You can bet if there's a party, Prince Harry has his name, along with all of his closest friends' names, on the list. All of us back here will severely miss this party animal, but we wish him luck. Japan ain't ready for this man.

Brian Burlingame

Navy Pilot

Brian H.R. Burlingame, or that redneck from New York, is best known throughout the Brigade as being the man who had more fun at a single football game than everyone else combined. An avid bicyclist, hockey player, and sometimes boxer, this former tank operator managed 12 points on PROTRAMID. It was this point in his life that he determined he'd rather be a Navy Pilot than a rifleman. When his stardom as "e-cig youngster" fizzled out, he determined he needed a new claim to fame, and worked his way to being voted the most popular head restrictee this school's ever seen. He's danced his way through Cancun, marched his way through Bancroft, and cycled his way through Colorado to make it where he is today. Like him or not, you can't deny that his mere presence brings entertainment, no matter how boring the brief or long the Forrestal.

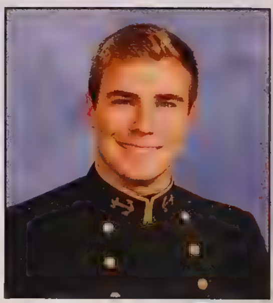
Daniel Camuti

Surface Warfare

Daniel Camuti, the man born to run. Over the past four years, this beautiful orange specimen could be found running on just about any occasion, whether it be on the soccer field, or during his SEAL/EOD cruises, or in the direction of ACME, or to scent of another man's gas, or for the taste of some Red Bean ice-cream. Only a few men have dared to keep up, yet, just about all have fallen behind, some have even been left with scars to tell of the tale. Dan has been more than just a runner; many consider him a mentor. He has shown others how to be a teammate, a leader, a boyfriend and a broke. He may also be the only man to take the phase "play it by ear" literally when handling his service selection. If there is one thing certain about Dan's future, Its that he shall one day have a big pantry full of sugary snacks and goodies all to himself, without any restrictions or locks to get in his way! If Dan learns to stop hating showers and onions, there truly is no doubt that this yes-man will be wildly successful. That said, if he says "yes" to attending the class reunion, don't get too excited; there's only a 50% chance hell make it.

Joel Davis

Navy Pilot



Joel Davis descended upon the Academy from a gray cloud base with gale force, rotating winds that leveled even the strongest of trees. He whirled through classrooms and gyms alike, tossing books and weights aside, almost angry at their failure to present a challenge. His messy room and wind-burned roommates were a small price to pay for the sheer awesomeness of having a destructive vortex attend the Naval Academy. There's a lot more to be said about Joel, but I'll stop now before I get carried away.

Victoria Friday

USMC Pilot

Victoria Friday aka the Naval Academy's "MPM" (most prepared midshipman) never makes the same mistakes twice.. She makes them 5 or 6 times just to make sure. Whether that be getting fried for dorky reasons including but not limited to ethernet cables and innocent sleepovers, or drinking 1 too many quarter glasses of tequila, this girl needs to graduate to wipe her record clean. This punch-packing lightweight is fueled by a love for country, hockey, dogs, and explosions... nobody can smash pumpkins like she can. On the weekends, Vickie can typically be found at church or bible study, with her friend, Bronwyn Harper, who helps her calm down after long and stressful weeks. Her latina fury is rare to come by, though, since she reserves most of it for America-hating hockey teams and her girlfriend. This normally level headed individual changes into a savage on the ice, and a ball of giggles and nerdiness after a few drinks... she is truly in touch with the 9.8 meters per second squared.... Overall, friends and lovers agree that Vickie has a heart of gold, and is one of the greatest friends they could ever ask for. She will make an outstanding Marine.

Zachary Hall

Surface Warfare

On first glimpse, Zachary Hall might not look like much but his diminutive stature masks this gunslinger's true form. A bit of a meathead, Zach Hall gets his mail delivered to MacD and only leaves that temple to let the weights rest. He is well on his way to that 150lb mark that he has been seeking for years. Zach is as swotivated now as he was motivated during Leatherneck and that kind of enthusiasm will only lead to one thing... rhabdo. If he survives, however, Zach Hall will be an invaluable asset to whatever ship in the surface navy is blessed by his presence. Bye Felicia.

Bronwyn Harper

Surface Warfare

Once nicknamed "Spellcheck" for her excellent spelling skills, Bronwyn Harper will tell you she's from Chicago, but really she's from Crystal Lake, Illinois. She is teased by her roommate for making literally everything a philosophical thought point, but B is proud of her old soul and the way she thinks. Her friends think she's pretty cool too, despite the spontaneous swing dancing (note: she may be the only person to ever get a concussion while dancing in the shower). The military certainly needs more of her kind - thoughtful, honest, and absolutely dedicated to those around her. She was probably the best Squad Leader and roommate in USNA history, constantly thinking of ways to just make life better for her people. She procrastinates doing her Ops Research homework by studying politics, languages and dreaming of joining the Foreign Service (maybe you should have been a poli sci major, B?) The USS Monterey is lucky as hell to have her considering she'll be the best SWO out there and she may or may not have picked her ship right before stepping up to the board. She's already got the heart, the knowledge, and the skills (just ask about that time she snuck onto a Japanese ship during youngster cruise). Supported by the most loving and dedicated parents and by a strong faith, B made it through the long, sleep-deprived days here. And if she could say "thank you" to one person it would be to the Captain who asked her "Who guards the guardians" because that question truly put service into focus. You've touched a lot of lives here, B! Much love to our favorite new SWO!

Courtney Hook

Surface Warfare

Kara Hornsby

Naval Flight Officer

Kara Hornsby is the definition of a partner in crime. She is comprised of easily amused laughter, a strange obsession with Hello Kitty, and all the elements for a potential disaster that make a hilarious drinking story. When Kara isn't pulling her hair out over her cyber projects, she can be found watching obscure tv shows (which are mainly Korean), reading copious amounts of books, or flooding the inboxes of her many friends with an overwhelming amount of memes. Kara is going to be an NFO which suits her well, because she'd much rather be in charge of directing others and playing with weapons systems than be a flying chauffeur. In conclusion, you can't spell "fun" without "Kara."

Manuel Inserni Pagan

Navy Pilot

Manuel Inserni Pagan, though not quite as sassy or as small as the other Puerto Rican on the sailing team, is really one of a kind. Whether it's studying, eating or endurance sports, Manny will humbly but blatantly show you how much you suck at all three, and then some. The best advantage of being one of Manny's friends is that you will learn a fair amount of the Spanish Language, and by fair amount I mean primarily the curse words. Oh what a romantic language. Manny's presence in the hall was one of extremes due to his ability to appear to not be living there, and his ability to start full-contact soccer matches in the P-ways during study hour to the dismay of the company's second class. Manuel will always have a smile and a joke for you even on the worst of days. Some say it's a Puerto Rican thing, it's definitely a Manuel thing. Most would agree with me when I say that I fully expect Manuel to be in charge of Puerto Rico after his naval career on account of his hard work and civility, but until that day comes, Salud.

Eric Jimenez

USMC Ground

Eric "Jiminy" Jimenez's egg was deposited in damp substrate by a heavily taxed ovipositor almost 22 years ago. A mere fortnight later, the egg hatched and Eric began his climb through the dirt to the surface world. up different was a challenge; it's hard to shed your exoskeleton on a regular basis and remain popular in high school. Our dear orthopteran applied for the Academy thinking that it would be a great chance to prove what an arthropod can really do. Taking his inspiration from Kevin Spacey's character in "A Bug's Life", he selected Marine Ground. Some say you can still hear him now in the silence after bad jokes.

William Jordan

Surface Warfare

If you're with Will while you're reading this, ask him to read it aloud to you. The past four years at the Academy was full of ups and downs for ole Willy Jay. As an English major, he would spend hours every night debating whether it was a FIFA night or a movie night - no easy task. Anybody that knows Will understands that he is a mainstream man with many hobbies, two of them being fantasy football and kayaking. He spends all of his time and money on fantasy football only to finish in last place every year with an empty wallet. Additionally, if you're trying to get into kayaking, Will is the man to talk to. He is an avid kayaker, and he has all of the gear to prove it. With the little money he has left over after his fantasy football and kayaking expenses, Will does everything he can to have Paulie and the boys over at Pips consider him a regular. One of the most loyal and selfless friends you can have, Will is even gracious enough to offer you a sniff of his fingers after a long, sweaty day out in the sun. Once it's taken Will the thirty minutes to read this to you, have him pronounce the word "sequestration" three times in a row while he bends down to touch his toes

Morgan Jung

Navy Pilot

Morgan got her start in a small town in Northern Minnesota (a.k.a Canada). If you don't believe this just ask her to pronounce "bag" or "CAC." Her small town origins haven't stopped her from being successful at the competitive environment at the Naval Academy. Don't let her moans about failing a fluids test fool you. She almost definitely got a 91. She's one of those people. This would be unforgivable if she weren't also the kind of friend everyone dreams of having. Her love of adventure will always keep you on your toes and take you out of your comfort zone in the best possible way. Her willingness to not only work hard for herself but for others is vastly underappreciated. Finally, she manages to find the perfect balance between nerd and cool, and is always willing to share a couple beers and have a good time. Along with studying, running occasionally, and staying out of trouble, having a friend like Morgan is essential to making it through the Academy (and four years of Drum and Bugle Corps).

Justin Keck

Navy Pilot

Descending from the Bushbabies of Northern Minnesota, Justin lived off the land in his early years. Raised primarily by squirrels and small rodents, he developed an insatiable taste for berries and the occasional acorn. One day, while foraging off the land, he discovered an old, WWII-era aircraft. After fixing it up with spare branches, sap, and blades of grass, he taught himself the ways of aviation and decided to pursue a career in the Navy. He is excited to use his Bushbaby skills to one day ascend in the ranks of Naval Aviation.

Andrew Kelly

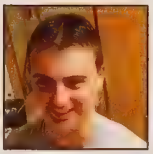
Navy Pilot

Though you might think that this "Masshole" hails from the Boston area, he's really Florida born and Nevada/Virginia raised. However, it's not fair to call him a front-runner because he once had a distant relative who lived in New England. A gentleman, a United Airlines First Class Priority regular, and a prominent member of the Black "N" Society, Drew Kelly embodies what it means to be a model Midshipman. Here at the Naval Academy, Drew excelled morally, mentally, and "physically." If Drew's head wasn't in the books studying Systems Engineering, you could often find him at MacD or running through town. This specimen has memorized one of his favorite running routes, down Main Street, to the point where it is firmly ingrained in his head. He could even run it while practically unconscious. Drew also gives his body ample time to recover. His preferred place to sleep is on his couch in Tecumseh Court, a couch which this germ-freak personally sterilized himself. While Drew places a great emphasis on self-improvement, he also makes sure to sacrifice his time for the benefit of others. As Company Commander in the fall of his senior year, Drew often gave motivational speeches to his Plebes, even if his head wasn't in the right place. Regardless of Drew's future career, Drew's legacy will continue here at the Naval Academy through the people he has led and inspired.

Chandler King

Explosive Ordance Disposal

Chandler weighs in at 175 pounds of stubbornness, Danimals, and ACME wings—truly a physical specimen. Despite spending the majority of the day in bed, he still finds the time to read weird comic books, listen to songs nobody else likes, and pretend like he is doing workouts in the pool. When he isn't training the plebes (his guilty pleasure), cash him "tutoring" in the writing center and consuming copious amounts of cold brew coffee. His favorite ways to bother his friends include outlandish name calling, being overly touchy (then complaining that he hates being touched), and starting arguments with no intention on reaching a final verdict. Chandler's friends can always count on him to not want to do ANYTHING in Annapolis on the weekends, especially if it's fun. Unless of course, it's a full moon, or just after happy hour, in which case Chandler transforms from stubborn hipster to beast whose insatiable thirst for the dark-side can keep him going all night. Not many would prefer to get kicked out of a concert rather than leaving, but that's Chandler. A great inchworm, an even better friend, and someone who's always asking if you "wanna hangout?"



Jacob Kocsis

Navy Pilot

Trigger Warning To really understand this complex, passionate, sensitive young man that is Jake "Knockout" Kocsis, we should start at the beginning. A swim star in high school, Jake has often been found saying, "I peaked in high school." High school is, after all, where he met the love of his life, Gabby. Gabby is the true hero of the relationship because "she will make more money than any of (our) wives." USNA was good to Jake. He had little to complain about in his four years as a midshipman and he made the most of every opportunity. Jake rode his high horse to class and could often be found wherever Carter was currently located. When Jake wasn't pushing his fake news into everyone's ears, he could be found polishing his espresso machine or weighing his Illy coffee grinds to the nearest hundredth of a gram for his french press. But in all seriousness, Jake will be remembered by all with love and respect and we have no doubts he will find success in all aspects of his life.

Jessilyn Laney

Medical Corps

Hailing from the most annoying state in the union, Jess is an incredibly proud Texan, though she is perhaps the least obnoxious and most likable Texan in the entire military. Transferring to the academy after a year at Texas A&M, navy was lucky as hell to get this future doctor as a member of the class of 2017... a class which Jess may or may not have professed her love for on several occasions. Throughout her plebe year Jess lived on a steady diet of chemistry books and late-light chits, and when youngster year rolled around she miraculously cut sleep out of her schedule entirely. If she did sleep it would have to have been on the floor because her entire side of the room was always overflowing with books. One of her favorite things are long calls home to a mom, dad, and brother so supportive and loving that they may be angels in disguise. Speaking of angels, you would be hard pressed to ever find a time when Jess was not carrying around her bible. On a serious note, her words of scriptural wisdom were often a great source of comfort for those around her. After four years of chemistry, and being discovered as the only midshipman in history who enjoys spending time at Bethesda, Jess was selected to return to the dark side (Texas) and begin her career as a doc. She should probably specialize in psychology because the couch in her room was ever full of those seeking advice from "Dr. Laney on the meaning of life

Ryan Le

Navy Pilot

Hailing from the rice paddies of the sunshine state, this sunshine was born to soar the skies. From his youngling days impressing chicks as the Air Force JROTC Wing Commander, he soon graduated to find himself as the President of the Vietnamese-American Midshipmen Club, but still trying to impress chicks. Ryan served as the 1st Battalion tool, a.k.a. "Batt drill officer". On holidays, days that end in Y, and everything in between, he sits upon his throne in 1024 and talks to his Tinderella-turned fiance. The man goes hard in the paint and watch out cause he is "Mr Steal-yo girl and get that extra BAH." Watch out ladies, cause this man's got a ring in his pocket and he's comin' for you with a promise you can't refuse. Hopefully Ry finds out that he can't talk to his lady in the cockpit... but knowing Ry, he'll find a way. He will make his family, fiancé, and friends proud soaring the skies...above the rice paddies of the Florida.

Andrew Long

Navy Pilot

Andrew Long is a true Randy of all trades. This easy, breezy, beautiful, covergirl is the product of intelligent parents and a hick town. Normally an above average tennis player from Wichita Falls, Texas would go to A&M and study petroleum engineering, but not this liberal. He saw a bunch of flying machines over his county dropping chem-trails and came to the idea of attending the Naval Academy and majoring in YouTube with a minor in Will Ferrell quotes. Despite his two-burger a day diet he weirdly crushes all action sports and will post every angle of himself wiping out on his social media but hey, that's what gets him the girls. Cheers to you man, the eggs will always be on the house.

Zachary Lonsdale

Navy Pilot

Zach Lonsdale was assembled from spare parts in a small-town machinery shop in Alberta, Canada. Since then, he's been taken apart and put back together countless times in what has become a confusing, interminable cycle of self-reacquaintance. Now nearing his final form, he can be found peering at humans from afar, examining geometric patterns in architectural stock photos, and disassembling preschool crafts he finds in the dumpster, all in a fruitless effort to understand the species to which he will never belong. Zach has enjoyed acting at the Academy, saying, "I've been pretending all my life; it is only on stage that I feel truly alive." Despite the questionable ethics, we hope the public has enjoyed seeing Zach live out this fantasy of sentience.

Michael Madigan

Navy Pilot

Mike "Big Mike" Madigan is someone you cant miss. Sporting either vans or flip flops, Mike is aways ready for a good time, after all, he is from Southern California. Big Mike is a model midshipmen, you can find him mentoring the brigade by playing R. Kellys "Bump n Grind" from his room at all hours of the day, much to the dismay to his roommates. When he is not gracing bancroft with his sweet music taste, one can find him out on the water either with the dinghy team or working on his boat, in tradition with the saying, the only thing that works on a boat is its owner. Deep down we all know that Mike is waiting for the day he can drive the shore boat at a nice yacht club. Despite all this tomfoolery, Mike has committed to learning to fly and will be an incredible pilot, we are all lucky to have had him on our team. GoNADS.

Michael Maxwell

Navy Pilot

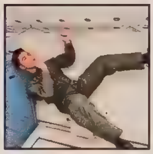
From the backwoods of Tennessee comes the super senior Mike Maxwell. College proved a little too tough the first time around so he decided to take a year off only to then find himself a few weeks out from entering the sub force, on the brink of the cold war. When he found out you couldn't fish from the port holes on the boat he realized a little more than a GED wasn't a bad idea. At the academy, Mike did the only logical thing he knew how to do... study the bottom of the Ocean so that he could become a pilot. Amidst all of the hecticness that ensued given his situation, Mike pulled off an incredible feat. If Mike wasn't smiling, it was probably because he was too busy laughing, and if he wasn't laughing, it was because he is senile and needed a nap. His easy going and relaxed demeanor always served the people around him well. Given the blessing he was to have as a roommate at the Academy, there is no doubt that Mike will make an incredible pilot for the Navy. He has become my brother and in confidence, I can say that someday, some truly lucky lady is going to have this incredible man as a husband and an even luckier kid is going to have him as a dad (if he isn't already). If you get the chance to have this man in your life at some point, then you have had the chance to be a part of something special

VITHYEA PHANN

Vithyea Phann, or Nick as he tells his teachers to call him, hails from the "great nations Cambodia." Notorious for his enthusiastic use of plurals and ability to slide his way through PRT's, Phann can always be relied on to buy a round of Rumpleminze, then call home to get enough money to pay for the next round. With his four years by the Severn, he managed to equip the RCAF and spend more time sleeping on Oovoo then he did in his rack. Maybe he'll invite himself on a date with your (ex) girlfriend, or maybe he'll take extra leave for "official military training," but one thing that can be sure is that this panda will always be dressed better than you.

LELAND SAILE

NAVY PILOT



AUSTIN SCIGLIANO

CIVIL ENGINEER CORPS

JAMES SMITH

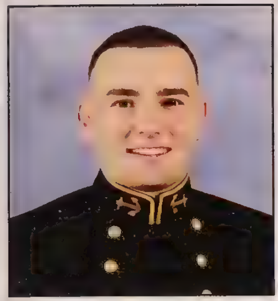
SEALs

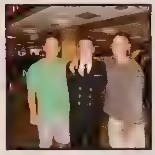
Ozamataz lives by the mantra, burn bright and die young. This leads to unparalleled behavior. He is notorious for pulling from two bottles at once, but don't be fooled...the bottles are most often filled with apple juice, water, or nothing at all. Nevertheless, James goes hard. He always eats out and orders double...for himself. He takes intense snapchats while yelling "I'm dumpin" as he pounds porcelain. He's half animal. From Jordan to Ohio, James has enlightened the ears of taxi drivers around the world with his ape noises. This man will never cease to surprise; he once threw his phone off the second story balcony of a bar just so he had a reason to go after it. He also tends to have an overly aggressive walk that most likely stems from back problems. Despite being a wild man, James has perfected the ability to connect with anyone he meets. If you only had one word to describe him, it would be genuine. He's inspired all of us to become better men. He lives a contagious life. He's one to never back down from a challenge or turn away from a friend or brother. Splash, AST

CASEY STANKO

EXPLOSIVE ORDANCE DISPOSAL

At first glance you might think Casey is a Texan, with his thigh high cowboy boots he wears on EVERY occasion or his singing of country music at five times the normal speaking volume, but with all that lettuce on his head and his constant need to show off his rippling six pack, it's easy to see that Casey is actually a Californian man through and through. When he isn't scaring helpless dogs with stuffed animals he can usually be found.....well he's actually never around. Though he's been spotted in company area fewer times than bigfoot, he is always there for those who need him. If he's not helping those around him, he can sometimes be found napping on his chair for roughly 3 ½ minutes. His cheerful spirit and dry sense of humor can always make someone smile on a rainy day. Having Casey as a roommate has been one of the best experiences here and I know he will be a great addition to the EOD community, as soon as he learns how to swim. He has become my brother and has had my back more times than I can count. He is a truly a caring and outgoing person and if you ever get the chance to cross his path, I can guarantee there will be a smile on your face.





Dylan Walsh

USMC Ground

Dylan always put the community first, providing shelter for the homeless population throughout his 1/C year. When he isn't at Dillos talking about how sick his next brunch will be, sleeping in your bed, or drinking Trash-Cans like cups of water, reach for your keys. He has most likely already borrowed your car, blasting "The Girl Next Door" and his participation on the Sprint football team leads many to believe he's playing the long game. As the poster-boy for Tsunami's weeknight happy hour, he relentlessly sells the welcoming environment to all his "boys" -- be wary. Do not let his unusual form of speech fool you. It may be scary and be along the lines of "DA-DUH-DOH-DER," but he truly does have good intentions. As the newest member of 1st Company, the self-proclaimed "pledge" has successfully made it through his initiation phase. Go get 'em Devil Dog.

Carter West

Navy Pilot

Carter "wiki" West hails from the great state of Texas. YEE HAW! Carter has fully taken on the identity of a Texan, from the texas flag bumper sticker on his F-150, to his cowboy boots and tobacco spittin days on the trap and skeet range. Carter is a one stop shop for all information. In fact, Carter wrote Wikipedia. Carter recently took up climbing rocks and has since become an avid outdoorsman who is soooo rugged: he dries off with t-shirts, eats goldfish off of couch cushions, and doesn't even need a spoon for yogurt! You ever been campin'? Carter is chasing the dirtbag lifestyle, and is really hoping that his career takes him out West so he can be closer to his Texas roots, and farther from this wretched place he calls the East coast. Carter cares about climbing and drinking; he'll travel hundreds of miles every weekend just to do them at a new location. He may be the worst dancer in 1st Company, but he's always managed to find the cool areas in a new city.

Brian Wikoff

USMC Ground

Brian Wikoff, otherwise known as "trikoff," by those near him in the baseball locker room, struggled throughout his four years on debating whether or not to quit baseball and join "the boys" on the lacrosse team. During study period, you sure as hell won't find him studying in the library, but probably hitting Mac D's curl rack in anything other than blue rims and USNAs. It is no mystery that his GPA is lower than the 2.6 carbs in the only beer that this devil dog will even think about drinking "Michelob Ultra". I guess his rigorous economic degree really paid off as shown by his entire paycheck being spent on workout supplements, and his obsession with his favorite female athletic apparel; Lululemon. Good luck in the Corps and try not to lose it when you are stuck in the field when the NY Giants are on or can't listen to 50 cent.

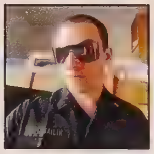
Parker Abell

Surface Warfare EDO

"I'll take a Bulleit Bourbon, neat." This order, a '50s pinup girl tee shirt, Lucky Brand jeans and James Dean hair consistently sum up Parker Abell's aesthetic. Quickest to catch the proverbial babe at the bar's attention, and also swift with a heartbreak (sorry ladies, he's taken), Parker is ever-quick to laugh, quicker to buy a round for the lads, and the damn fastest gun in the West when it comes to his wit.

Benjamin Bailin



Submarines

Ben "Savonius" Bailin. Catch him buried in his work or researching hair regrowth products, too busy to have fun with his REAL FRIENDS or at his sponsor's house crushing his 5th Strawberita and playing his 100th game of Rocket League. He's probably the best dude you know and you feel worse about yourself when in his presence, but you love him for it.

Cooper Blas

Navy Pilot

The artist formerly known as "Cooper Blas" hails from the distant hinterlands of the great state of Idaho. If you're ever on campus looking for He Who Must not be Named and happen to walk past MacDonough Hall, turn around. You've gone too far. He's in there. The Coopster's gonna be up there, hitting his flippies, his tri-swings, going oppo like taco, and absolutely crushing chest day. Aside from proving everyone wrong, this future aviator spends his time blowing off papers and changing the game

Reed Carter

USMC Ground

'He kicked his own girlfriend out of the band. Went from subs to Marine killer. "Get off my Lawn!" Lover of cheese.'

Victor Castro

Naval Flight Officer

Due to a physique that is relatively slim but not lean or toned at all, he earned the nickname "the Dad-Bod God". Because of this physique, he is a wall on the soccer field and is known as "Coach" to generations of 2nd Company intramural warriors. If you ever ask him for advice, his go to lesson is that "It's all about who you know," despite the fact that he has no professional contacts or references himself. In his free time, he can be found enjoying the nightlife that DTA has to offer. Although he may have the weirdest allergic reaction to alcohol, (ask to see his hands), he doesn't let that stop him. That's just the kind of guy he is. Taking the lessons he learned here, he will do just fine as an NFO as long as he can stay awake in the backseat!

Sarah Chama

Surface Warfare

Ms. Sarah Chama. Ms. Mama Chama. Ms. Chama Llama. Her sustenance is maintained through chicken fried rice, coffee, and 18 hour naps. If she's not performing some quality rack PT, you can find her at Starbucks or channeling her inner Picasso. However, none of those luxuries can compare to puppy time and chilling with her besties. She swears on her life that she's not a good dancer, but everyone can attest to the falsehood of that statement. Her krumping, sprinkler, and chicken leg dance moves give her the foundation to be Navy's Dance Team Captain. On a more serious note, Sarah could not have earned the name Mama Chama if it weren't for her empathy, compassion, and positive energy. She cares so deeply for those lucky enough to call her a friend and will go out of her way to make sure you make it home safely. Her humility prevents her from truly seeing how amazing she is, but luckily for her, she will be reminded every day by those who love her.

Alyssa Dilldine

Surface Warfare

When this diva babe isn't making boomerangs or artsy pictures of her drinking Starblcks for Instagram, procrastinating on her English papers, changing her hair color from blonde to red to brunette to gray to blonde, or working out somewhere on the yard, she's at Red Red Wine or Chevy's with Kelsey and McKenzie. She started out wanting to be a yut yut and then decided not to "leave Barbie at home" and picked the Surface Warfare community. After obtaining her MRS. degree to a fellow English major after graduation, SWO mama Alyssa will make a great contribution to the Surface community. She's no stranger to consuming mass amounts of coffee, sleeping very little, working hard, and getting things done because like her motto "if you only got a minute, it only takes a minute". After two years on the swim team and deciding she wanted more time to herself, she left the team. After only two months of being a NARP she then decided why not join the equally hardest working team on the yard and add being a part of two D1 varsity teams to your resume? So she joined the crew team, where she became one of the fiercest girls on the team. The team silently surrounded her every time she completed a 2k on the erg, amazed at her ability to hit some of the top times on the team. The Surface Warfare community has gaining an amazing officer and there will never be a dull moment on any ship she is a part of. Fair winds and following seas, Lyss.

Elizabeth Field

Navy Pilot

"Have you ever met a girl who can down an entire pizza and then eat a tub of ice cream right after? If you have, her name was most likely Libby Field. Lib is a lover of all things chocolate, anything you can buy from Wawa or Five Below, and a huge fan of '90's music. You're likely to find her catching up on How I Met Your Mother, in the Oceanography lab, or laughing with her roommates of 3148. She's always the first one to bust out the Christmas decorations and the awesome Advent calendar that never fails to deliver (Hooyah Mrs. Field #BasicBitches3148). Libby is a great friend who is always willing to help you out and offer her support. She is known for bringing back surprises from her weekend to include personality-themed t-shirts or Mrs. Field's famous baked goods. If you're going down to breakfast, she will most likely put in an order for milk, Frosted Flakes, and/or a chocolate muffin. Libby's positivity is enough to lift anyone's mood and she is always down for an adventure. An irreplaceable friend and teammate, Libby will certainly be missed in the halls of Mother B. "

Zachary Fong

Naval Flight Officer

Zach is someone who you would mainly find on the basketball court draining threes on someone. He would probably whisper 'Kobe' before shooting a three pointer. Off the court, he was either watching fishing videos or playing FIFA. Study period? Not a big part of his schedule. But he found a way to get solid grades and make it through. He kept a positive attitude and put 100% effort into anything asked of him.

Lucas Foppe

Cryptologic Warfare

Lucas "ECOIS" "Fork" Foppe. When he's not breaking his neck on pool bottoms he's hacking until he hates himself, so it's a good thing he loves the Naval Academy and wishes he could do another 4 years. He also loves long walks to the War Room and 1337 hax on the beach. He's a man of the true Miller Lite high life and will drop everything for a friend in need.

BERNARD FORNEY

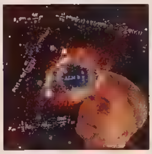
USMC PILOT

Favorite sport? Ultimate Frisbee. Favorite book? The Bible. Favorite food? Catfish. When Ben isn't spending his time ripping racks or retelling stories from his homeschool years, he can be found pacing the PRT over and over....and over. Ben is a true connoisseur of writing and semantics, and he could probably nitpick and find something wrong with this very bio. Ever the respectful gentleman, Ben astounded everyone with his manners during plebe summer by calling attention on deck for a trash can. Having said this, there's a reason his plebe summer roommate came crawling back after two years without him. He is one of the best friends anyone could ask for, and is going to kick ass in the United States Marine Corps.

TREVOR GRAHAM

SUBMARINES

Trevor "The Prince of Sting" Graham, known best for his boisterous laugh, can usually be found in his room in tighty-whities or roaming DTA, also in tighty-whities. If he's not complaining and incessantly swearing, something is probably wrong. He went from bottom feeding minimalist to Company Commander in just 4 years- quite a feat. His life goals are for senpai to notice him, and to become the next Hokage. If he's not finding another Tinder girlfriend, he's drinking himself comatose in a basement.



ALEXANDER JAQUA

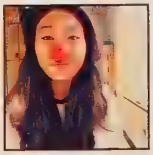
USMC PILOT

Jay Quellin, the Dane, is a master of Physics, lover of Pow Wow music, and an infrequent patron of Buddy's. You probably won't win any argument against him because the laws of Physics are always right. However, despite his academic prowess, he is still a man of the people. He understands the struggle of being UNSAT because of the one B he received that one time. His commitment to academics is matched by his commitment to his physical development, which comes in handy when it comes to defending his friends or protecting his own honor from ladies of the night. Few have actually laid eyes on this legend, but if you ever wondered what he looks like, his identical twin is the Russian musician Vitas, known for the song "7th Element". Most likely to hit puberty at age 37, he is always complaining about how he doesn't have to shave everyday, but the time he doesn't spend on shaving has given him the ability to focus on his battle meditation.

ANDREW KIEHNAU

SUBMARINES

God of Narcolepsea, King Naptune is more likely to be found sleeping on his desk than in his bed. Want to grab some drinks in DTA? Andrew probably doesn't. He is much more interested in working on "homework" (a combination of browsing reddit and falling asleep at his desk) and having a cool, refreshing glass of water. As Admiral Caldwell can attest, his grades aren't anything to write home about but his seemingly endless supply of airplane facts and obscure Star Wars references have yet to meet their equal. After recovering from the severe mental trauma that was his SAR8, Andrew can now be heard spewing terms such as "Semper Deep," "Airplanes aren't actually that great," and "The only real corps is the reactor core." While Captain Ahab has received his share of scrapes, his friends know he will go on to do great things.



NICOLE KIM

SURFACE WARFARE

Nicole Kim. Although her career as a USNA dancer might lead you to believe otherwise, she has lived most of her career being an incomparable nerd in the basements of Chauvenet, playing with particles or something (none of us ever stayed awake long enough to understand). Despite her incredibly heavy workload, she maintains a workout schedule that is exhausting to even look at. On top of all that, Nicole is an incredible caring and passionate friend who is always there to provide a shoulder to cry on, an incredibly sarcastic remark, or a name for an inanimate object. Nicole has been in 2 fully committed relationships since Plebe Year, and yet still manages to have every boy fall in love with her, earning her title as "The Bachelorette". Her infectious personality and amazing smile will never cease to brighten your day. No matter who you are, Nicole will always make you feel like you're important. Even with her head in the stars, she will always produce the best logical solution to all your problems. This incredible women has been given so much pain, and yet she always seems to make gold out of it. Everyone who meets her will be lucky to have her in their lives.

Austin Kurke

SEALs

If you're looking for a guy who was raised in a small cave in El Segundo, you've found the right man. Whether it is his fascination with open flames or his primitive grunts, he is the biggest animal around. He is often found trying to tame the great ocean with just a piece of wood beneath his feet. This passion for the sea has led to many of his nomadic adventures around the world seeking out wilder waves and even wilder women. While technology has been difficult for him to adjust to, he has mastered the art of driving stick shift and even "teaching" it in foreign lands. Austin Kurke has never quite figured out what can hurt him, even jumping out of airplanes hasn't done it yet, but he won't stop raising hell until he finds the answer. His "too dumb to quit" mentality and his insane work ethic will take him far and he won't ever let his team down. He is the most primal genius we know and the best of friends. Good luck taming that next wave and continuing to spark the fire.

Clayton Larsen

Navy Pilot

Clayton Larsen is a refined, self-proclaimed, porcelain god. He's the man most likely to be found flexing naked in front of the mirror. His semper sarcastic personality, along with making sick natty gains, pushed Clayton through his 4 years. Despite this, Clayton possesses a work hard, play hard mentality that is admired by all. His hobbies are limited to drinking, lifting, and listening to 90's tunes along with other great music that nobody's ever heard of. Utilizing the gym and the bars as his go-to afternoon activities, Clayton puts up double take numbers at both. As a true renaissance man, Clayton speaks fluent French, plays the piano, and dabbles in guitar hero, among many other worthless skills. The Naval Aviation community better be ready for this straight shooter, because he's not going to let anything get in his way to the top.

Joshua Lim

Long thought to be a secret spy, it turns out he was just hiding a nigh perfect QPR and an impeccably organized closet. Josh has earned a place in our hearts and minds with his adorable yet intimidating aura. He's a 'bro' with a 'joe' mentality and was never found out of Alpha condition. He will go down in history for his mantra of "Sir, seventy-eight plebes cocked, locked, and ready to rock, sir!"

Nathan Marshall

Navy Pilot

Nathan "Doesn't Even Go Here" Marshall spent most of his time at the Academy wishing he was elsewhere, but also spending most of his weekends in the Hall. Famous for being the saltiest thing east of the Mississippi and the worst wingman ever, of all time, he never missed a chance to let someone know he went to VMI. Oh, and did you know he's going to UMD, too? Don't worry, he'll let you know. While he would like to be remembered as a climber, bookworm, or intramural champion, we will always remember him as our favorite cynic.

Ryan McClellan

Medical Corps

Ryan Frank McClellan is one of a kind. No one can ever tell what he is thinking, he is a silent killer. He is most likely thinking about 20 different ways to kill you. He is a mental and physical specimen. Not only did he finish first in the EOD screener and is an All-Star toothless hockey player, he also aced the MCAT, a test that is generally not too difficult, but acing it is still pretty impressive. When he does speak however, he enlightens his listeners; what he speaks is truth and wisdom. Some call him a prophet. A whole room will quiet down to hear what he has to say. He has a unique way with words. Frank Ryan McClellan is a hell of a guy and teammate with a great toothy smile and he brings happiness and paradise wherever he goes.

Carter O'Leary

Naval Flight Officer

This young man's personal hygiene is impeccable; the toast of every spring break. Known by some as King Bandwidth, if you ever had slow internet plebe year, you can thank this man here. He fuels himself exclusively on Ramen noodles, coffee, and Irish rage. (His accent may come out of the woodworks if you try to separate him from his League of Legends or Minecraft to go do "real" work.) The baby of the class, Carter spent most of his Academy career complaining about being younger than everyone else and begrudgingly serving as their designated driver. As much as he may complain, however, his friends know he would give the world for them, as they would for him. His sense of humor, his easy-going nature, and his thrifty food budget will serve him well in the aviation community.

Dalton Pierce

Submarines

Tommy Pierce, a son of a West Point grad, came to USNA to spite his father. He surpassed his father's expectations of joining the long grey line and represented greatness at Annapolis instead. Also known as "Toothless" throughout nearly half his time at the Academy, he was the type of guy who could be relied on to defend his buddies, sacrifice his time to help others, or make you smile at zero dark thirty. Prince Charming possessed a unique vibe for chicks to latch onto him. He is an excellent embodiment of someone who has the capability to lift spirits of other people even though they may not have a good day. As a Barista, Jiu-Jitsu Coach, Intramural Soccer Champion, and Wood Crafter, what more can you ask? He will be a great addition to the "SEMPER DEEP" Fleet. They are very lucky to have him as a future Submarine Officer.

Danielle Poblarp

Surface Warfare

Dani Pops is the girl most likely to be asleep at 4pm and awake at 3am! This nocturnal Kansas native is relentlessly competitive and isn't afraid to tell you how she feels about you, food, drinks, movies, anyone else, or herself! With the height of a 5 foot 4 inch rebel, she has the wingspan of a 6 foot 4 inch baller and certainly knows how to get down and dirty with the best of them. Though it took her three years, she eventually realized that NARP Naps are irreplaceable. She is loyal as heck and ain't afraid of nobody or nothing - Dani P is the one you want in your court when you're up against a wall. You're most likely to find Dani at Fed House with a beer in one hand and crab dip in the other. In fact, she's on a first-name basis with the bartender. Dani was 1st Batt ADEO this past semester and rocked it as "Beer Mama," taking suggestions and making sure everyone's favorite drinks were at every event. Rarely seen without order in food, this future SWO Mama's favorites are Dominos Pizza and Bread Sticks, Sushi from Sakura in DTA, or the classic BWW Boneless medium wings with extra ranch. It is fitting that she is in 2nd Company because she is the epitome of a Honey Badger...doing her own thing and rolling with the punches. With grit, confidence and always looking to have a good time, Dani Poblarp is a friend anyone would want on their team. Uncle Sam is lucky to have Dani P as the Navy's newest SWO Mama

Luis Rocha

USMC Pilot

Hailing from the beautiful shores of Long Beach, Luis definitely brought all the Southern California stereotypes to the East Coast. His addiction to always wearing Vans and Hawaiian shirts, and have the California state flag on multiple items are just some of the things that define him. As the self-appointed vice president of the Playa Playa club, he definitely lost all credibility after all of his plebe year dates went wrong. He went from being a penny-pinching cheapo to "big pimping" baller after the purchase of his new Mustang. On the weekends, you can find him either washing his car, spitting game at the Annapolis mall, praising the Lord, or talking to people about his Mustang. During the academic year, he was always seen at the library studying and preparing for final exams...at the beginning of the year. On a serious note, he is always willing to help out in any situation. His laid back personality will definitely help him out in the Marine Corps. YUT! RAH! KILL!

Ralph Sathre

Navy Pilot

Ralph was a midshipman who firmly believed the sky was the limit and everyday he and his liver reached for that limit. Whether it was self-awarded extended liberty by way of Dillos, his maxed out credit cards, jumping out of perfectly good airplanes at 15000 feet every weekend, or his surprisingly stellar academic career at the Academy, Ralph always looked to push the boundaries. Unbeknownst to most he is also the most loyal friend and mentor a band of degenerates could have. Good luck in flight school you filthy animal and remember, don't jump out of the plane that you are trying to fly.

Arjun Sharma

Submarines

Got 2nd place in the brigade for his mustache. Known to catch feelings way too fast. This man is blowing through his Sub-bonus like Scarface and cocaine. He really hopes he and his best friend, Tommy Pierce, are on the same boat! We wish him well when he 5 and dives and starts growing that amazing Indian facial hair.

Gregory Shrum

Surface Warfare

Wasn't around much. Bay House chillin. Best room in the company. Not too mch studying done in the room, mostly FIFA and movies. Known for freakin out when someone stole the Chick Fil A. Thought most people were too sensitive and sucked up too much. Couldn't wait to graduate. Known to black out and buy the bar drinks. Once came to eating lucky charms in a random apartment in DTA at 3 AM and tried to use debit card to scan onto the yard. Got put in for a major for making someone cry, weeks before graduation.

David Sicher

USMC Pilot

What's that, a call of distress? No that's just David yelling at those poor Plebes in Chemistry...they probably think he's nuts. Did that firstie just press his face against the window while class was in session? Hope Melwood cleans the outside of the windows too. If these aren't prime examples of a firstie losing their mind, I'm not sure what would qualify. I guess this place will commission anybody...even the insane. While he might strike the passing midshipman as someone with a few screws loose, they're missing out on getting to know the guy with the biggest heart at USNA. David offers wisdom and strength beyond his years. His perspective restores hope and lights new paths for those around him. I suspect that's why he boasts such a charismatic attitude...God gave him more energy than most would know what to do with.

Gary Singleton II

Surface Warfare

If you are ever fortunate enough to know Gary Lamar Singleton II, you are definitely in for a treat. Some would say he's a handful and others would probably say the exact same thing. He's charismatic, loyal, trustworthy, and looks out for everyone in need. If you're lucky though, you'd probably see him in downtown Annapolis soberly dancing and having a good time while wearing his trademark collection of snapbacks, baggy jeans, and Polo shirts. All in all, Gary is someone you would want by your side to make you smile if your day isn't going your way. He has been an excellent asset to 2nd Company and will do great things as a Surface Warfare Officer in the United States Navy.

Paul Stadick

USMC Pilot

Paul "The Hammer" Stadick hails from the snowy landlocked state of Wyoming. This pun loving English major enjoys getting a healthy 12 hours of sleep, heading to Rams Head with his boys and listening to (not reading) books. He may also be found in the gym. If you ever need help with your kipping form or hurting yourself during an eccentric CrossFit WOD just give him a shout. Shout loudly though, you'll need to be able to wake him up. After a few easy breezy months at TBS this motivator is going to lead Marines through some tough times, and the US is better off because of it. Paul you are loved, go forth and do great things, but make sure you get plenty of rest. SEMPER FIDELIS!

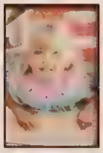
Haley Wahrhaftig

Navy Pilot

W-A-H-R-H-A-F-T-I-G. The first "H" is silent and then it's phonetic. It has been four years and that's still too much for most Mids to handle. Regardless of how you pronounce her last name (though she'll let you know if you do it wrong) Haley is one of the best and most loyal friends you could ask for; you can always count on Haley to keep it real. She's not afraid to give you her honest opinion or be the one to request that the table be opened for "delicious desserts." Haley is also a professional at "looking on the bright side" and helping others to do so too. Her positivity is contagious. You can most likely find her lifting weights in Wesley Brown, grabbing a Raspberry Mocha from the coffee mess, or binge-watching Friends on Netflix. She doesn't shy away from late night shots of Espresso or dance parties to any song by Celine Dion. Haley holds a special place in her heart for her Jeep, Lola, and the Marine Corps. With a smile that can light up a room, Haley is a real-live pocketful of sunshine whose light will certainly be missed in the halls of Bancroft. #HeidiRocks #RickIsOkayToo



Lauren Webb

Navy Pilot

If you were to look up "Southern Belle" on urbandictionary.com, Lauren's face you would find. Though you'll rarely find her awake, it'll totally be WORTH it if you do! Who would win the senior superlative of "best to bring home to mom and dad?"" Lauren Webb. She's the perfect combination of sweet and sassy and her smile could light up a whole room. With a faith that exudes from within, she is a friend to all and is one of the most thoughtful people you will ever meet. Whether it be as a Squad Leader or Battalion Commander, she will devote more time than she actually has to any job she is tasked with. She is the roommate who is always willing to clean the room and will let you know when you haven't cleaned the sink or swept the floor recently Our little hoarder also has at least 12 neck tabs (shes a borrower...not a returner). There are very few days that you will not find her with a coffee in hand and at least 50 unread texts on her phone. Despite her busy schedule, she is one of the most incredible friends you will find; one you can pull multiple all-nighters with (something she is very used to as a Chemistry major) or jam out to a good country concert or Celine Dion song with. She is a great friend and is always willing to help you out. Though she is kind, she is definitely fierce as this girl runs marathons for fun. All in all, the Aviation community won big time as any Goose would be lucky to have Lauren as their Maverick "

Bradley Wible

USMC Pilot

Meet the man who doesn't know Hollandaise sauce from cheesy potatoes and literally has spent more time and money on his Jeep than his girlfriend. He can be found either in Ram's Head with a Nitro Milk Stout in hand or traversing the Severn in YP 801 and getting all the lattes out of here. If you see this man floating down the street, please help him find his ankles. They are not attached to him, so don't even try to tell him that. Although an expert marksman, he is unprofessional and will only save you if you're Chesty Puller.

Rex Willis

Surface Warfare

Rex "Juice God' Willis was truly a special member of the brigade during his four years by the bay. As a member of the Sprint Football team and Track team, Rex was heavily invested in team sports that allowed him to display his competitive spirit and leadership abilities. As well as being an impactful athlete at The Academy, he strived harder to be an even better academic scholar. Though he always put his full effort in everything he did, Rex tackled his academics with a vicious determination to better himself. Not only could you count on him for help with a subject, but he also made himself readily available for help with lifes many problems. Selfless is one of many words that could describe Rex and his character. His support, guidance, and ability to simply listen to others made him an invaluable asset to 2nd Company and his athletic teams. Rex made an impact on several people at The Academy and will continue to do so in the fleet as a Surface Warfare Officer. We were all truly blessed to have Rex apart of 2nd Company and other organizations on the yard, and though he parts paths with us we know he will always be there for us whenever we need him to. Thank you Rex for everything and Godspeed throughout the rest of your bright future.

James Yang

Submarines

Yames Jang came to the Naval Academy a bright young chubby glasses-wearing boy intent on reaching for the stars. Despite attending the finest prep school the country has to offer, NAPS, he was not ready for the path that lay ahead. Not only can this big-ass Asian take three armed hobos at once in a fight, he can also keep a secret or ten thousand. Jang made his fortune buying medical stocks in Colorado in early 2015. He may not be the best shot, but at least he's honest about it. His body was not made for running long distances, but it does just fine propelling inflatable kayaks. In order to maintain his body at peak hobo-fighting condition, he engages in killer workouts which include drinking copious amounts of beer, gaming, and Yang-ing. Sharp as a slightly-used tack, he attracted the attention of Nuclear Poseidon and now leaves this institution with clear eyes and a full bank account, a wiser man who has learned the true meaning of the N.A.V.Y., headed for the uncharted depths of the ocean. He always claims he will not miss this place, but we all know that he will.

Kaylyn Young

Navy Pilot

Proclaimed "Mom" of second company, Kaylyn Young can typically be found at the Mate's Desk, in the wardroom, napping, or lecturing Cooper Blas in the hallway. With an intelligence network that rivals that of the KGB, Kaylyn knows the news of the Brigade typically before it even happens. On the weekend she is either at the Wine Bar, getting a massage, or at some other restaurant where the average age is 42.5 and has a $$$ expense rating on Yelp.

Steven Zakravsky

Navy Pilot

Steven Zakravsky's, is a native of San Diego Californian roots. His Naval Academy inspiration started with his father "Chief Z." He made a notable first impression on the company with the stern look he carried on his face while at attention on a bulkhead during plebe summer. Gunny Z, the nickname that spawned from this, by no means defines the compassionate, curious and adventurous member of second company that Steve is. While in the class room, in the hall, on the intramural pitch, or on New Year's Eve in San Diego, there wasn't a moment Steve didn't fully put his heart and spirit into. He will be forever remembered as the only intramural athlete to both earn infinite glory by winning a brigade championship and be the sole player on the soccer pitch to be ejected from a game. Steve was selected to serve as a Navy pilot, and whether or not he will fly helos, big birds or fast runners, any aviation squadron will be bettered by his ingenuity, hard work and compassion.

Grace Albertson

Surface Warfare EDO

The guilt trip is a subtle, nuanced art that few have mastered. Grace Albertson is one of the few people who has perfected it. Much to the chagrin of her two current boyfriends, Bo and Patch, she knows exactly what NOT to say to make them feel liable in any situation. Considering that she has to deal with those two idiots and the rest of the Lightweight Crew Team on a daily basis, she should receive her sainthood sometime in the next year. Although she has excelled as a coxswain on the team, her efforts in the classroom have been subpar at best. Not only did she major in Ocean Engineering, the basket weaving of all Engineering courses, she also picked up a minor in Chinese. To add insult to injury, she also happens to be the quickest distance runner not named Forrest Gump. Her speedy times are all the more incredible when you factor in her "rabbit food" diet of cheese cubes, granola, and goldfish. Grace will be taking her talents to the Engineering Duty Officer community, where she hopes to design the next Disney Cruise Ship. God knows the Navy needs a woman like her and it's hard to not see success for her in the coming years.

Samuel Bates

Navy Pilot

David Campbell hails from Manhattan Beach, California, but spent most of his life in Toronto, Canada. A proud alumnus of Urbana High School in Maryland, David sought to pursue a degree in Economics from the United States Naval Academy. After being placed on restriction for the majority of his time at the Academy, however, this crazy canuck realized a tad too late that his talents were better suited elsewhere and resigned from his position as Head Restrictee. Devastated by the thought of never seeing his Company Officer again, David decided to pursue a career as an enlisted submariner. He is survived by his best friend, Samuel "Master" Bates, as well as his beloved Company Officer Patrick Christopher "Pat" Cashin, LCDR, USN.

Raena Borcuk

Navy Pilot

Raena Borcuk, a native of the great state of California, enjoys the finer things in life. She shops for cats online, spends countless hours playing video games, and never misses a chance to be with her company at formations. Raena has breezed through her academic career as a Systems Engineer, making others jealous with how effortless it is for her. Almost as if she wasn't trying. Raena was picked up to be a Navy Pilot and will be off to flight school in Pensacola soon, her studious mindset and dedication to achievement will certainly carry her through.

Corinne Caggiano

USMC Ground

Don't let that blonde hair, blue eyed stallion fool you, Cori Caggiano is way smarter than you think, and she's not afraid to let you know. Let's look a little deeper into the life of Cori. First of all, she's never afraid to tell you what she thinks of you, but don't worry IT IS personal. You can find her running around 1st wing trying to catch her breath because its only 7 AM and everything has already gone wrong; her day is doomed. Although it's early in the day, she has probably already lost her CAC card and Yeti mug, but don't worry she has expertise problem solving instincts. Example, no neck tab? Easy solution, let's just use black socks. It is now almost time for NMF, and she is getting ready to lead Third Herd as Company Commander. But wait, where is my sword? Where is my jacket? I can't find my eagles either! Oh yeah, my left shoe is also missing. 1206 and you'll see her flying down the stairs. But she made it! Wonder woman to the rescue. We've made it to sports period, where she decides to go on a 10 mile run, and in the middle realizes she has an adjudication to be at, which started 30 minutes ago. Solution: runs faster. Those long legs and perfect genes, you better believe she could beat you on the athletic field any day. From the start, she will make it clear she is going to win. Dinner time arrives, you'd think this is a time to catch your breath, NOPE. She has 10 meetings, and about 20 more adjudications tonight. On top of the 7 page paper she hasn't started due at midnight. Rest assured she will complete each of these missions and will always make time for her friends. Cori has been there for all the ups and downs and always knows how to make a crying goat happy again Weekend nights will never have a plan but will be full of fun adventures. Buckle up and put your horns up if you want to live a day in the life of Cori. It's always a great day to be a goat- I mean devil pup

Cristhian Castellares

If you like to party and get crazy at bars, you need to call Cristhian. Getting a new girlfriend every year is not a big deal for him. He spends many hours at night watching Spanish soccer TV shows. It is hard to understand why he is so obsessed about soccer (Maybe because he is from Peru???). Cristhian would not hesitate to help others. He was the kind of person who always listens to others problems and tries to give some advice. He is going to excel at the Peruvian Navy. We wish him the best of luck! See you soon Pincheee!

David Cedillo

USMC Ground

Dave, otherwise known as, Key Lime Dave is a person with a surprisingly huge personality. He comes off shy in the hall and classroom but is loud and lively out in town. Known for his consistent craving for Sushi and Pizza after a good day of drinking, he usually finds himself safe and sound in his room.....on the floor. Despite his American upbringing, he still finds it hard to pronounce words that have the letter S in them. His four years here have been an emotional roller coaster. He's broken his hand, almost gone bald, and struggles with his diet on a daily basis. It's a wonder that they are letting him graduate from this place. Despite all of that, Dave has been my roommate and bestie since day one. Spicy Boiz.

Joshua Chambers

USMC Ground

Born and raised in the small town of Norfolk, VA, Joshua "Jeremiah" "Denim Dan" Chambers has made an impact since he first came to the Academy. Being from Virginia, he originally had trouble speaking intelligible English, but he has learned the basics of the dialect after listening to Toby Keith and watching hours of YouTube videos at absurd hours of the night. Josh is typically found wearing either denim, camouflage, or something that you'd expect your middle-aged dad to wear. Josh's favorite places to visit include West Point, Taylor Kipilii's room, church, the Tilted Kilt (for their delicious buns), and the bathroom. Josh was not known for his physical prowess as seen by letting gravity get him out of his rack at times, but in his free time, he can usually be found playing with IST (the Intramural Soccer Team), or throwing a cold one back with his most trusted friend, Aidan Ricard. Despite being turned down by the Surface Warfare community, which truly broke his heart, as long as he can learn to tell his right foot from his left, he should have no trouble passing TBS.

Kim Do

Information Professional

Kim Dooooo a.k.a. "Kim Possible" a.k.a. "The Girl Who Always Set Up the King Hall Anchor System Everyday" had feet that were too famously small for any of the issled shoes, so she trudged through the rest of Plebe Summer in too-big boots, go-fasters, leathers, which might have explained why she sprained both her ankles on the Endurance Course (not simultaneously) and was on chit for the rest of the summer. But don't let this one ominous anecdote determine who Kim was as a midshipman. Kim was a stellar midshipman in all areas (one of those mids). She holds the record for holding the most billets per semester, averaging at 4.15 billets per semester. Her senior year, she earned the coveted year-long billet of Brigade MISLO (basically she got out of everything). Some of her achievements include competing on the Cybersecurity team where she won some famous national cyber competition and got to meet POTUS, lettering for the women's ice hockey team and competing in Nationals (yes she is an Asian Texan Ice Hockey player), and managing to commission as a direct Information Professional Officer despite being fully medically qualified to go unrestricted line. Although she never stood restriction or earned any demerits, she was still a woman capable of engaging in questionable relationships, particularly one which started her 2/C year with a certain 1/C. (Refer to Lucky Bag 2016, V. 123, Third Co, page 265, third biography)

James D'Onofrio

Submarines

James had a knack for making great first impressions on teachers, just ask his Intro to Econ professor. After he saw how well his personality meshed with professors, he moved to bribing them with Indian candy or snacks instead of actually talking with them. He excelled in certain areas of the academy's mission, but the standard is the standard for a reason. James will go on to keep that standard in his yellow submarine and further into a cushy six figure civilian job. May Davy Jones have mercy on your soul...

Daniel Flack

Submarines

Hailing from the wilds of Pennsylvania, came this feral, cyber warrior that has come to hack, steal, or borrow the identification of many Third Company members. To describe Danny would take only a few words. SoIfanyonecanactuallyreadthisthenyou'llknowthatthisisbasicallywhathavingaconversationwithDannyFlackislikeIt'sbasicallyjustfastgibberishandyoujustkindofnodyourheadinagreementuntilheawkwardlyleavestheroommidsentenceAlsohelikesFamilyGuy,LastManStandingandfindingrandomYouTubevideosnooneknowsabout.

Kerry Haller

USMC Ground

Kerry Haller hails from Long Island, New York and has spent her 4 years at the academy learning Arabic, welcoming exchange students to the company, and lifting. You will always be able to find Kerry either in the Gym or in the room cooking up some combination of protein pancakes, rice or tuna steaks. Kerry loves working out so much that she left for an entire semester to go to Morocco to see how the gyms were over there. After a short and successful stint as a bikini body building competitor, Kerry has been training to be a Marine Corps Ground Officer where she will find great success climbing the ropes in Quantico. Kerry's motivation and dedication to the rules will make her an excellent Marine, as long as she can go to bed by 10pm and then scroll through Instagram until 12pm.

Everett Hamilton

USMC Ground

Everett "Hambone" Hamilton first became notorious on I-Day when he showed up in overalls and work boots because he thought he was coming to farm school. When they told him, "come to the Naval Academy and you will plow," he thought they meant something really different. He was hoping to get his hands dirty in the fields of Annapolis, but plebe summer matured Everett at an alarming rate. He quickly became one of the most studious midshipmen, often found on the third deck of Nimitz with study buddies. Everett's study habits landed him a spot as Company Commander, until you-know-what happened and Everett found himself back in ranks. Everett's impeccable performance in the classroom also landed him a spot in the nuclear community. However, that too was short lived because when the Marine Corps found out about Everett's power output on his bicycle they took him from the submarine community in traditional Marine Corps fashion. Everett will be remembered by his peers as a slayer and we're all excited to see what amazing feats he accomplishes in his career.

Edward Hanlon

Submarines

Alexander Harbeson

Surface Warfare

The man that single-handedly got his whole class and his training staff in trouble because of a coffee maker. He also likes to drive a car that is half his size that he thinks "makes him look cool". Voted most likely to come back with a Japanese wife once he returns from Japan. The only Filipino that looks like a Mexican and tries to make up for his non-Asian looks by watching Anime and eating Chinese food nonstop.

Judson Holcombe

Submarines

Hailing from the great state of South Carolina, Jud "Josiah" Holcombe has become known for many things while serving at the United States Naval Academy. These include his commitment to the physical mission (shown by his decision to take 4 PRTs in the Spring 2017 semester), his unending discussions of Notre Dame's fighting Irish or Alabama's victory over the Clemson Tigers, his lack of vocal talent (despite his admiration for country music and his deep baritone voice) and, of course, being the only member of the sailbot team who actually wants to build a sailbot. Despite having his truck catch fire and burn to the ground, his commitment to the well being of others can be seen as he tries to raise morale by gift wrapping literally every item in his friends' rooms for the holidays. Jud is also a passionate critic of the late Dale Earnhardt, saying "watching clips of Dale disgusts me so much that I have to turn on Formula 1 to make me feel better." Finally, nothing screams "MERICA!!!" or "Don't Tread On Me" than a guy who wears an American baseball jersey with aviators, a cowboy hat, and a 22 rifle. He will return to South Carolina before gracing the ocean depths with his patriotism and voice, although no one will be there to see or hear it. Jud would like to dedicate this bio to the late Ulysses S. Grant.

Benjamin Keegan

Submarines

Despite coming from the worst state in the Union, New Jersey, Ben Keegan is a prime example of academic prowess and OCD at the United States Naval Academy (thanks Awad). If Ben actually did anything on his weekends, it would be listed here, but he usually enjoys his free time playing League of Legends, staying in his room, watching only "the best" TV shows, cleaning up his roommate's vomit, and complaining about everything. In high school Ben participated in robotics, a passion that drew him to systems engineering. Excuse me... honors systems engineering. He also takes part in the AMODS satellite program, in which he works as a subordinate for Ned Hanlon. This is most likely why he developed his hidden sense of inadequacy and takes his frustrations out on his company as the XO. Ben's greatest accomplishment while at the Academy was maintaining the same corkboard throughout all four years.

Taylor Kipilii

Surface Warfare

Our resident Hawaiian princess warrior, Taylor Hanamaikai Mekealohalani Ka'ui Kapuanani Pumehana A Makamae Wilhelmina Kipilii, is one of Third Company's infamous firsties that is often mistaken for being one of the guys. After two years as one of Navy's most fearsome soccer players, Taylor traded in the life of a Varsity athlete for the fun and challenging lifestyle of an intramural soccer player, where she dominated and crushed the dreams of many. When she's not lifting or detailing her car, Taylor can be found reminiscing her favorite memories from her two summers of offshore sailing or her craving for yogurt, ice cream, or cheesecake. In addition, with the release of her life story in Disney's Lilo and Stitch along with Moana, Taylor proceeds to live out Hollywood's Battleship as she returns to Hawaii to assume her responsibilities on a amphib.

Morgan Lange

Surface Warfare Nuke

Morgan Lange is a proud Long Islander who spends her time divided between reading every article snapchat has to offer and doing a ton of different jobs from behind the scenes. She'll be the first to admit she is a pizza, pasta, and leather snob, boasting more than a few leather jackets, making her the thuggest person around. School is a stress free environment for Morgan, she sailed through her classes as an Aerospace Engineer without even crying once. Aside from thriving in her academic setting, Morgan lives to be underweigh, in fact, she enjoyed her surface cruise as a youngster so much that she pulled some strings and got herself another cruise as a Firstie. While in San Diego, her first duty station after graduating, Morgan's love of the gentle rock of the waves and excitement for her new job will certainly make her stand out as a prodigy of an Ensign.

Daniel Lowry

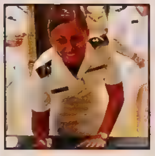
USMC Pilot

As a prior (napster), Lowry is always there to help out his classmates whether it be about binge watching shows, gaming, napping or dipping. His classmates know they can come to him with anything and he will drop almost everything to give them half of his attention (the other half is playing video games). Although he often talks of waking up early to run or go to a parade, due to his overwhelming color guard schedule it is unclear whether it actually happens. You will never catch Lowry at lunch, as one of his lesser-known talents is cooking. His best dish is ramen and chips. Another talent is missing as much school as possible while still being able to graduate and commission as a USMC pilot, one of his actual lifelong dreams.

Brant McGuigan

USMC Pilot

Everyone loves Brant McGuigan...well except his Lightweight Crew coach. Despite that, Brant enjoyed his time at the Academy eating a lot and then trying to see how much weight he could lose before the Friday weigh-ins. The real reason Brant rowed Lightweight Crew though was to make himself look like the girls he pursued and to give him an excuse for the recreationally strombloding. When he wasn't rowing or cutting weight, Brant could be found not doing homework for his History major or driving to Royal Farms or Wawa in his small red pick-up truck. One of the first grown-up decisions Brant made at the Academy was to get braces that made him look like he was fifteen again. He tries to throw people off on his age by dressing in entirely L.L. Bean outfits that he stole from his dad's closet. Brant will no doubt be the most smiley pilot in the Marine Corps and we know that after he's over-stayed his welcome in the Corps we'll be able to find him running his scuba "dive bar" on an island somewhere in the Caribbean



AMBER MENDEZ

SURFACE WARFARE

Spacey Spice is part of a unique being hailing from a magical land far, far away (which explains why she's ALWAYS LATE). Here, unicorns roam free and people rarely speak to each other because they're always on their phone. You may need to repeat yourself multiple times because headphones are always in her ears. In analyzing this new, special being, it has been interesting to see how she communicates with a series of snorts and high pitch squeals when excited, sad, or trying to tell a story/joke. It is unlike any other normal being and, quite frankly, is too high maintenance to deal with.The new being often finds herself lost and unaware of her surroundings,sometimes getting on the wrong plane, train or gets left in the wrong state. While she may never be on time, may never finish a story, and may never be able to put down her phone, we know she would go to the ends of the earth for us and we would do the same for her.

RAMON MONTEHERMOSO

SEALs

One things is for certain: Monte is not a quitter. Forever toeing the line between jacked and chubby, he lives life like he's in the Fast and Furious movie series. His 4-117 record in FIFA never stops him from asking anyone and everyone to "catch these hands," and constantly losing never stops him from spontaneously dancing and shouting "Ayy" everywhere he goes. Ramon's the proud owner of a 5 bedroom house in the spirit realm and won't be moving out anytime soon. If you see him on a Saturday night, let one of us know; we're probably looking for him too. Known to frequent the streets of San Diego enhancing the romance of passing couples or with a ball at his feet trying to catch a nutmeg, this Canadian whale fisherman has a promising career in matchmaking when he leaves the Navy. Despite being a perpetual social terrorist, Monte is both the life of the party and the guy you know has your back through anything. Some of the highest highs of our lives have been with you brother, and we all can't wait to be a part of more. Semper smolder. AST.

FELIPPE MORIERA

SURFACE WARFARE

Felippe "Filipay Morieria" Moreira was a prior enlisted Marine before attending NAPS and the Naval Academy. He double majored in Sleeping Marching Tours with a minor in Computer Science. He was reckless and had a lot of close calls and conduct offenses, but USNA saw something in him and he will be moving on to pilot the navy's best Surface Ships. It took Felippe a very long time to get his commission, but in the end he put in more work (and sleep) than most Midshipmen to achieve success and ultimately follow his dreams.

Talents include: slipping on black ice, being late to adjudications for being late, and climbing the fence behind Echostage.

JENNIFER NGUYEN

SURFACE WARFARE

AARON NOWLIN

INFORMATION PROFESSIONAL

"In north Philadelphia born and raised On the casino floor is where he spent most of his days Chillin out max, and relaxin all cool And all shootin' some 8-ball with all of his girls When a couple of docs said his eyes were no good He Started makin' programs as an IT major should He mixed up one little color and the navy got scared And said you're movin' to Hawaii and fixing our computers instead" When not listening to his idol Meek Mill you can find Nowlin somewhere discussing why Meek is the greatest rapper alive. His love for Allen Iverson drove him to become one of the hardest working student coaches/practice player for the Women's Basketball Team. There's never a dull moment if he's in your presence. Nowlin has often been described as far beyond his years. Throughout his time at the Academy, he has been known for his humor, his drive, and his compassion that anyone who crosses his path can immediately see in him. He has excelled in all aspect of life here and outside of USNA. He has touched so many people's lives around him whether by making them laugh or smile or giving advice on the ups and downs life tends to throw at us. If he's not turning up in DTA or driving somewhere listening to Meek, you can always catch him helping someone out in some way. He has remained true to himself and true to his faith and has never allowed his circumstances to limit him, always walking into the man God has called him to be.As a basketball practice player and friend he was great. And nothing but success is his fate.

Pierce Parlier

Submarines

Coming from the United States' most boring state, Illinois, Pierce represents his state's qualities very well. In order to learn about Pierce Parlier, all you need to do is talk to these people: Jess Laney, Elizabeth Fenelon, Taylor Hart, Summer Ralston, Michaela Scrudato, Taylor Dunn, Savannah Wisoo, Kelly McQuiston, and Nicole Thatcher. You could also ask any other female midshipman he came into contact with during his time at the Academy, because he has most likely tried to hit on them at some point. If you've had a conversation with Pierce, you'll know that anything he brags about is heavily exaggerated and should be either multiplied or divided by 2.73 (whichever makes the number less impressive).

Samuele Polsinelli

Submarines

Sam is a man whose exceptional taste in cigars and alcohol is only matched by his exceptionally poor taste in women and ability to keep the aforementioned alcohol in his stomach. Sam came to the academy after an illustrious career at an all-boys military catholic high school. His formative high school experiences included a prom date in Montana (Sam lives in New York). Once at the Academy, Sam's desire for academic success occasionally placed him at odds with professors, other midshipmen, and officers (hi Lori). He joined the fencing team, which he would later Captain, and somehow managed to not make the roster Plebe year despite being previously nationally ranked. (Just kidding... it was Y10's). After peaking at the ripe age of 10, his crowning accomplishment at the academy was probably finishing in the bottom quarter of the top quarter at nationals and having a (losing) rivalry with a guy named James Cameron... yes that really was his name. He managed to hold the team together and minimized the number of existential personality crises to one... a week... and only about a dozen of them were his fault. ("It's not my fault I'm so good looking", he says). He service selected submarines and should fit right in considering the fact that his primary forms of communication are disparaging disses from a show about a methed out town in Canada and lectures about nuclear strategy and engineering things. He really is a lot of fun at parties. He justifies his service selection by saying that Submariners end up with the fastest cars and the most attractive wives. Sam is also graduating single and drives a mom mobile so he must have missed the memo somewhere along the way. All jokes aside, Sam is exceptionally qualified to enter the fleet and will be an exemplary officer as long as he is able to avoid crippling regret about his decision to not fly planes. Despite his numerous and glaring faults, Sam is a loyal friend, a fierce competitor, and a great drinking buddy. Fair winds and following seas - Glenn.

Walter Pope

USMC Ground

"Today is Saturday, and Saturday is a rugby day." Walter Haystacks Pope. A man of few thoughts, few manners, but a high tolerance. He embodies everything that is wrong with Navy Rugby team. Cadesman can always be found in a basement or at the bar, but can never be found when it is time to clean up. He has never personally had to purchase his own pack of cowboy killers as he always seems to steal them from other people. His sense of personal boundaries are nonexistent. At first glance, you may see Prince Charming, but all it takes is a closer look to reveal a snake that will steal your girl and convince you that it was her fault. Yet, if there is any man you would want to start a fight with for no reason, look no further. Cadesman's most critical contribution to the team, aside from all the alcohol chits he put up, was his perfect knowledge of all third half songs. We're going to miss the sound of your voice. Enjoy a Fine Day, Cadesman.

Jeanette Powell

USMC Ground

The Legend Jeanette Powell, from Cape Girardeau Missouri, will kill you with her savagery. This devil pup is an amazing friend, athlete, mentor, and person overall. Don't let her curly locks fool you for she is not one to mess with. She can be found being OTB and sipping tea on the daily. She'll out lift any guy in the room then knock em' dead with her dimples. A frequent resident of the Sheraton Hotel, she is known to enjoy visiting cities and getting lost in them. She rocks those grey Timberland's too. One of the most loyal and trustworthy friends, she is honestly and truly the realest of the real.

Aidan Ricard

Surface Warfare

Hailing from the (not so) great state of New York...or was it Massachusetts? Either way, they're basically the same place. Aidan Thomas Ricard proved throughout his time here that he was a model midshipman, in the sense that he was the perfect model for what not to do. He starts the day by gracing his roommates with a colorful vocabulary of expletives spurred on by the minor injury of stubbing his toe. After this he goes to class where he is infuriated by his teachers use of vocabulary and inevitably becomes more angry. All this anger is quelled with a quick change of topic to his favorite things: beer, the Irish, Buffalo Wild Wings, Tom Brady, or his fiance (in that order). Once every two months, he will also go to the cardio room in MacD and engage in a brisk 3 minute ride on the exercise bike. However, at the end of the day, Aidan has shown that he can be an extremely loving and compassionate friend...as long as you're a Michigan fan. Or maybe a Clemson fan.. Go Tigers!

Chadwick Riggins

Cryptologic Warfare

Commonly known as, "Hawt Chad", Chadwick Riggins is a native of Pinson, Alabama. He studied Cyber Operations as his Major with a Minor in Mandarin and thinks himself akin to Randy Savage, The Macho Man. Chad is a hard hitting, smack talking, super nerd who uses his security clearance to avoid parades and play Xbox at the NSA. You can find him in Dillo's on Friday nights, sporting a multi-color hoodie he stole from the 1970's. Chad's terrible dancing is no secret, since that paired with shouts of "OOOH BABY," is what scares off many of the girls he attracts with his dashing looks. Awful dancing aside, he is a loyal friend who never fails to take care of his own. Chad is the definition of work-hard-play-hard and always ensures his responsibilities are met. After graduation the CW community will be lucky to have him!

Jacob Rowell

USMC Pilot

One of the worst German speakers on the team, Jake and his tiny knees have been terrorizing friend and foe alike during every game of touch played at the BSC for the past 3 years. Originally a heavyweight rower, Jake decided to transition to rugby after deciding the whole 'working out' thing wasn't for him. Towering over opponents at 6'7" and weighing in at 360 lbs relying solely on his amateur basketball skills alongside his Ninja-turtle frame, Jake quickly rose through the ranks of Navy rugby to become one of the hardest hitters on the pitch. Once shotgunning an entire monster in the middle of a match. He definitely plays by his own rules, but unfortunately those don't always apply to the game of rugby. A native Arkansan, Jake's strict code of southern chivalry and redneck street smarts have made him the heart and soul of the team. A fiercely loyal friend always ready for a fight, Jake is someone everyone wants in their corner when shit hits the fan. Use your light-skin powers and Enjoy A Fine Day, Jake.

John Sheehy

USMC Ground

Jake Sheehy is forever overachieving in an attempt to make up for all the disadvantages that come with having red hair. A man that can hold a conversation by only using movie quotes, he spends his afternoons working on mechanical engineering problems, only taking a breaks to chisel his surprisingly jacked white freckly body. Since birth he was trained to be a part time special agent and part time accountant, but in college he managed to only befriend lightweight alcoholics who found his only weakness to be tequila shots which he buys in bulk for himself. Jake's "timeless" outstanding character makes him somebody everybody looks to as a natural leader. His quiet and unassuming personality is a humble cover for a man who is destined to be successful.

Mark Shiiba

Surface Warfare Nuke

Mark "Date Mark" Shiiba is from Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. He majored in Guitar and minored in Economics and Japanese. If he wasn't on the soccer field, you could find him playing guitar at Reynolds Tavern or smoking a cigar with his friends. In the heat of any situation, Mark is always the one to remain calm and collected. He was so calm and collected that even when he would miss quiz or exam deadlines, he would still relax and get to it later.

Alexander Shook

Navy Pilot

Alex "Shook-a-daddy" Shook is from somewhere in Oklahoma. Known for his hour long stories and inspiring quotes, Alex is the friend you go to when you're looking for an adventure. When he's not climbing a mountain or trying to put on weight, you can find him in DTA drinking to the foam and possibly spraining someone else's ankle. A man with a fanny pack for every occasion. Fastest runner on earth, slowest at literally everything else. Extremely enthusiastic about things that may or may not be all that exciting. Reached his final form (read: peaked) in China once. Repeats facts he has heard to the people that told them to him. Will stretch a 15 minute story out from now until the death of the universe (ask him about the lonely tree). Always down for an adventure, Always drinking milk. Things to ask Alex about include: the similarities between Oklahoma and a box of crayons, his Hispanic heritage, his European pen-pal Cecilia, his one and only ghost story, and the snake in his boot. Known for his rational thinking in precarious situations, Shook is known for leading even the most unwilling into his shenanigans with his catch-phrase, "Ahh f--- it! Just go for it!" His unique dancing style and charisma make it possible for him to strike a conversation with literally anyone, and somehow relate them directly back to Oklahoma. Whether into the closed gates of Made in America or the less traveled trails in Iceland, Alex Shook is a man we all would follow without hesitation.

Coleman Wright

Surface Warfare

J.) Cole "Slaw; Shmole" Wright is from Ft. Myers Florida, and attended NAPS because his academics were.... iffy. He majored in Economics, but spent most of his time working out in MacD, watching Netflix, drinking Irish Trashcans or dark liquors in DTA. Don't be fooled into using him as a wing-man: he will steal your girl and forget she was even there by morning. Two words: "72 Beers". Between long hours of hating alex, being kept awake by alex, cleaning up after Alex, and getting thrown on restriction for parking, he can be found watching Vikings nonstop. Legend says he's still working on his capstone to this very day. Good man. Great friend. Trash wing-man.

Zachary Cammer

USMC Ground

Zach"McLovin" Cammer is the definition of a white-collar mid criminal. Zach has tried to join the Black-N society countless times; whether it was behind St Johns, at Shay's (invited or not), or on "the boat", this goal has proved elusive. Instead, he has had the pleasure of serving time for whistling, usna-wap, and missing CDO musters. You can always count on Zach for three things: 1) Having the longest snap streak with your girlfriend, 2) Having the longest snap streak with your ex-girlfriend, and 3) Having the longest snap streak with His ex-girlfriend. Beware of Raul, the infamous alter-ego embraced by Zach on only his greatest nights. The Marines, and Tinderellas, aren't ready for this open mug coffee-wielding, protein stuffing, dancing, tobacco chewing, cigarette spewing, BDSing, one-helluva-midshipmen. Semper Deep and Rah Yut Slay.

Kyle Casmey

Supply corps

"Kyle Casmey was not "born on the crest of the wave," nor was he "rocked in the cradle of the deep." Kyle Casmey, whose name is a lie and should more accurately be Brian Casmey, was born in the 1861 Capital-of-the-SOUTH—Richmond, Virginia. Brian's folks moved him back to the Great White North when he was but a young lad, already rearing his ears on the distorted riffs of Pearl Jam and wearing Browns jerseys in support of the one thing that hasn't changed since Brian was born. They're still as depressing to behold now as they were then, sorry bud. Brian has known many iterations, though 90s music has always been near-and-dear to him. While pookah shell necklaces and old-school Oakleys may have gone out of style, and while we may have ripped him away from cargo shorts and muscle tees, Ohio will always live strong in Brian and his bulging quadriceps—even if they are those of a slim marathron runner now instead of his former iron-jacking, creatine-fueled self. From his cross tattoos to biweekly cuts at Caps to our near-fatal efforts to get the man to drink anything but a Bud Light, Brian may be the most consistent, true-to-his-own-self man I have ever known. His soft-spoken manner endears him to all he meets. Brian has sailed fierce seas literally and figuratively. While his beloved Kelly and a couple lads have gotten him to trade in his cargo shorts for a significantly preppier, more pastel-laden wardrobe, he holds true to his Ocarina of Time, Charizard-loving roots. Don't think your gunmetal grey truck can conceal the goodhearted softie buried under all the layers of flannel (in the colder months)... we still all remember you used to drive a mom Jeep. Here's to all the underwater beers, these golden years, and the Peaky  Blinders. May your future be filled with joy and adventure so long as your girlfriend still makes us cupcakes

Joshua Cohen

Submarines

"Joshua grew up in Montana, the last best place. Well suited to be an outdoor guide, he loves skiing powder, mountain biking, and rock climbing with his family. A lover of good beer, often of the darker varieties, Joshua also enjoys a good port. It is assumed he lives at his sponsors on the weekends, but no one really knows for sure.

Also, Leatherneck + Powered Flight = Submarines"

Thomas Doughty

USMC Ground

"Thomas Edward Doughty, Jr. is best described as an inter-galactic man of mystery. He lives his life much in the style of Sun Tzu's The Art of War, which teaches "Let your plans be dark and impenetrable as night, and when you move, fall like a thunderbolt." Even when covered in a week's worth of grime and camo face paint, there is no mistaking Tom and his goofy grin. Tom is an ex-frat star from Northern Virginia who left the pretentious life in pursuit of simpler things, like PBR and dumbbells. Among his many attributes are a keen memory, an impressive intellect, and a loyalty that would make him the ideal champion in any trial by combat. When Tom is not being a PEAKY F BLINDER, he usually enjoys throwing Keystone Lights at pledges, appeasing Keebler elves, and wearing his serial killer hat whilst shredding on his tight penny board. A future Marin who was unfortunate enough to be born before the time of space travel but just in time to explore the dankest of memes. Tom also enjoys throwin' a cold one back wit' the FREAKIN LADS! Never have brews flowed so freely as from his high seat in the kingdom of Domoor! An author, a purveyor of Jager Bombs, and the best damn barbecue chef this side of the Mississippi, 2ndLt Tom Doughty will go down in history as the first Untied Status Marin to select Space Marine as MOS. His future Marines are fortunate to have such an honorable and capable officer leading their first assaults on Mars. All those who know and love Tom are confident that his compassion, grit, and uprightness will make him a tremendous Devil Doggo ."

Alexander Evans

Submarines

"Alex Evans hails from the town of Lansdale, Pennsylvania where he claims things were ""rough"". Despite his humble beginnings, Alex has gained a reputation as a person of honor, courage, and commitment. At the Naval Academy, he excelled both in the classroom and on the soccer field. He developed great relationships, especially with his soccer coach whom he often shared hugs and the occasional kiss with. Even though Alex maintains an exemplary level of character, he has also stood over six days of restriction for various conduct offenses which makes him both "cool and tough." If Alex isn't at the library studying concepts such as macroeconomic forecasting or deadweight loss, you can often find him driving around in his sports car with his incredibly attractive girlfriend. The difference Alex has made in the lives of others at the Naval Academy is immeasurable. Needless to say, Alex will surely have the same positive influence on those he leads as a Naval officer serving under "wooder" aboard nuclear-powered submarines."

Kelsey Hastings

USMC Ground

When this motivated devil pup isn't screaming rah, yut, kill she can be heard screaming at anyone who disagrees with the Seattle Seahawks being the greatest football team on earth. If she is not sitting at the bar watching a football game eating the spiciest wings possible, then look no further than the dance floor. Look for the timberlands, the hoops bigger than her head, and bandana. Don't forget the twerking abilities she's been blessed with. Kelsey's love for heavy lifting and drive to be the very best will be sure to excel her as a Marine. Anyone on the crew team can attest to her fierce demeanor, strong will, and skill to slay anyone who crosses her on and off the water. But don't be scared off; just grab a couple margaritas from Chevy's or a glass of cab from Red Red Wine with her and you'll wish you had met her earlier.

Kaitlyn Jan

Navy Pilot

While Katie Jan is most recognizable for her red hot hair, she is also wicked fast/cool. Katie is the top kitty of Karen's Katz. As mama of the litter, she has helped lead the track and cross country teams this year to breaking many school records. If she's not on the track, you can probably find her deep in a bag of baby carrots or a pint of Ben & Jerry's while binge watching Netflix documentaries. When Katie is not working on schoolwork due months in advance, she is usually planning an epic trip to somewhere around the world. This woman has traveled to more places than some of the most seasoned and salty SWOs. With reason and logic driving all of Katie's actions, she still has the need...the need for speed that is. Katie is following in the footsteps of Jan men who have come before her by joining the Naval Aviation community. While keeping with family tradition, Katie is blazing a fiery trail by becoming the first female aviator in her lineage. This only makes sense seeing as she is a proud member of room 3326, better known as The Feminist Agenda. Congratulations, Katie, for completing the past four years with such style and grace.

Aiden Lang

USMC Ground

Aiden Lang wakes up every morning at the crack of dawn to the sound of his national anthem alarm clock and the scent of his Black Rifle Co. Coffee brewing. During the day, he is entrenched in the basement of Michelson where he tends to his 10,0000 credit Chemistry course load with the goal of joining the Medical Corp in order to be the next Navy Graduate to cure cancer. However, everything changed when Aiden attended Leatherneck and was turned to the only true corps: the Nuclear Corps the Marine Corps. Now, Aiden can be found walking everywhere in his boots and short shorts yelling a motivational "Hoo-yut!" to anyone and everyone in earshot – ending each school day with a fresh skin fade and a 10 mile ruck run. His biography would include a section about his personal life, except that he's always so busy that he has "no other way" to relax except to join another community service project or plan yet another company SMT. What is known, however, is that Aiden is known for his terrible sleep habits (seriously, he never sleeps) and that he survives off of pure motivation alone."

Wyatt La Pointe

Wyatt The prince of room 3314. The busiest mid you ever did seen.
He does the school more than anyone I know.
His inability to talk to girls is quickly remedied by his ability to contort his body into any shape possible. Girls(Or guys) don't' care if you can talk, if you can put your legs behind your head.
The most politically correct and compassionate soul this side of the Mississippi.
La Pointe's time in the Navy will surely be filled with accomplishment.

David Larkin

Surface Warfare

David, otherwise known as "Lurpee" among his close friends and O-6s on the Yard, is a proud native to Snohomish, WA. When he arrived, he was surprised to find there were more people in the world than his high school graduating class totalling at seven. A love-chit from 5th company, David made it through this culture shock and swooned a girl while he was at it. "Mr. President" made a name for himself, being in charge of Midshipman Action Group, ALLIES, and Ethics Debate Team while commanding 4th Co. his last semester. As an outdoorsman, he'll never turn down the opportunity to climb a mountain or go camping with friends. He spent his last year trying to get big in the Mac-D gym to no avail. A great leader and of fantastic intellect, David will serve well swabbing the decks as an Ensign on his first ship. This picture next to him does him no good (he just got a nose job.) And of course, if you are ever feeling down, he gives a riveting version of Amazing Grace that will lift your spirits within the first note. He will always be remembered as one of the most dependable, caring people to graduate from this fine institution. There is no doubt that David, with the many great legacies he's left over his four years here, will make an excellent officer and anything else that he sets his mind to.

James Lieto

Surface Warfare

Leetoe, Li-eh-toe, Ledo, no one knows for sure. One of the best dressed men in the Brigade, James Lieto will raise the average level of attractiveness of any group. However, his interest in a particular woman lasts about as long as this biography. Known for his extensive knowledge of fancy cocktails, James can commonly be found in one of three places: his rack, the weight room of Wesley Brown Field House, or at a high-class bar with a Moscow Mule in hand. A life-long friend and Sprint Football brother, James is the type of guy to have your back under any circumstance. He is definitely a guy to have in your corner through thick or thin, though he might arrive a few minutes late... Then, once he gets there don't be surprised if he gets Rhabdo. But in all seriousness, this bi-racial angel is the man.

Kendall Mackey

Naval Flight Officer

Catherine Macklin

Surface Warfare

"Cat Macklin is the definition of a wildcard. She is known for her extremely unpredictable behavior. Cat's favorite pastime is getting "slightly" intoxicated in DTA and coming back to Bancroft to deep clean her room. She will make a great wife one day. On her soccer team, it is known that Cat speaks her own language. Her voice is so high and she talks so fast that in high-pressure situations, she is pretty much incomprehensible. She is known as the "heart breaker" as she has broken the heart of almost every male midshipmen on a sports team. Rightfully so, they have fallen in love with her upbeat personality and striking good looks. You can not find a more positive and peppy person than Cat Macklin. She will be a great asset to the Navy; her positivity could lighten an entire command. She will do great things in her future!"

MICHELLE McCOLLUM

SURFACE WARFARE

Do you like shopping at Walmart? Because if not, Michelle McCollum will 100% make sure you do. This brown haired, blue-eyed beauty has the voice of an angel and a piercing stare that almost no one will ever understand what she is thinking other than the pot planters on isle 5. Although Michelle is bound to have her gig-line off by a good inch, her personality beats it all. She has a light that illuminates the room, a squealing laugh that will force you to laugh too, and an incredible ability to fall asleep in 10 seconds whenever and wherever she wants. Most importantly though, Michelle has a heart of gold. So much so that nearly every boy wanted a piece of it, but it was stolen by the Lord and our dear, "Coastie," Townshend (#HirstLove). Her love for the Lord and every person she has invested her time into over the years is remarkable. I am beyond thankful for her in my life. To Michelle's children: Your mother is a stunningly, beautiful woman of God. Her wisdom, laughter, character, and sense of humor will forever be appreciated. God Bless.

MARK MELORO

SEALs

As we sit here and write this two weeks before graduation, we are still unsure if Mark will graduate on time.. If he will DOR.. Or if he will go Marine Corps.. He claims to be from Allentown, NJ, but we all know he's from The Shore. How's Snookie? With his tan, countless hours in the gym, and a thick slicked back mane that rivals Uncle Jesse's, this guido stays true to his heritage. If you find him out in DTA there's no chance he'll remember seeing you the next day. If you're a friend, you'll be greeted with a powerful hug, and if not...it'll probably be a headbutt. This aspiring movie star's favorite moments at the Academy all revolve around one of his favorite pastimes of "beers, burgers, and babes." People who know Mark well enough like the women's track or soccer teams know that they're lucky to have a guy like him in their life. Those who don't know him, should wish they did. He is loyal as all hell, and always up for a good time He is there when you need him most...except for when you text him. For then you shall wait 3 days for a response. Snoopy Cuerpo is one of the best people around, and if he isn't making his mark on street signs he'll probably be causing his friends to die laughing with his coined Jersey laugh. Which is one of the things we love most about him. The non-stop laughter and reminiscing about days past make the academy experience "almost" bearable. Though he never lived up to the legend that is Mark Meloro Sr, there's no dude better to share a Friday night, or a Saturday morning, drink with.
Cheers, and PISCATELLIIIIIIIIIII, MY BROTHERRRRR!!!

MUSTAPHA MUHAMMED

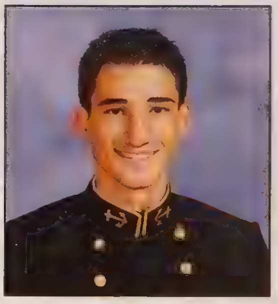
Real Madrid > Barcelona. "The Prince." Mustapha is an exchange student from the Nigerian Defense Academy. "Musty", or "Moo Moo," as some of his closest friends call him, found the Naval Academy easy in discipline compared to the hard rigors of the NDA. He spends most of his time asleep during work hours and awake, busy, and loud when his roommates are sleeping. As a deep critical thinker and philosopher, he constantly challenges the American status-quo, asking us the heart-wrenching question, "WHAT IS DEES?" While here in the United States, Mustapha fell in love with American mediocre sitcoms. He has boasts impressive accomplishments over his firstie year, like binge-watching over 6 different television series such as "Friends", "Hell on Wheels", "13 Reasons Why", "The Office", "Daredevil", "How I Met Your Mother", "Man in the High Castle" and was the president of the Muslim Midshipman club. Mustapha is a strong, independent black man who plans to be the best officer he can be back in the Nigerian Navy. He is faithful to God, faithful to his friends, and has been an awesome part of 4th company.

ANDREW PATTERSON

USMC GROUND

Unanimously regarded as the nicest dude in the company, Andrew Patterson is the definition of servant leadership. Everything Andrew does is aimed to help others succeed. When he's not volunteering his time or helping a company-mate, Patty can be found on the face of a rock wall, pitching a tent 16 miles off some trail in the mountains, or kicking up dust on the back roads of Annapolis singing his heart out to Brantley Gilbert. A man of many talents, Andrew can fix everything from sinks to trucks, can hit any target from any distance with his MP5, and has been known to serenade the mate's desk with his famous rendition of Wonderwall. A physical stud with a heart of gold, Andrew Patterson is the leader the Marine Corps deserves and needs. Andrew's Marines will be the luckiest grunts in the Corps, and up against them, America's enemies will be screwed.

CHARLES QUINLAN



SURFACE WARFARE NUKE

Charlie Quinlan, a native of Maryland, enjoys leaving the yard as much as possible, playing video games, and napping. Charlie pursued a degree in Systems Engineering, where it is unclear whether or not he ever actually handed any of his assignments in. None the less, his IQ alone carried him through all 4 years at the academy with a better GPA than most of his friends liked to acknowledge. Charlie served as the Conduct Officer for his company because getting fried was something he knew well. Charlie early selected Subs second class year but after hearing that his girlfriend was going Nuke SWO, quickly jumped ships to join her. He will be heading out to San Diego where he hopes to carry on his traditions of NARP naps and gaming, while applying all the skills he learned on his YP Cruises to the Surface Navy.

Alexander Richardson

SEALs

Once weighing two pounds per inch in order to run fast on the Track team, Alec decided to bulk up to an admirable two and a half pounds per inch in order join the Bancroft Bullies in winning the Intramural Flag Football Championship, and furthermore the World Championship for Fieldball. He diligently carries out the academic mission in the library waiting in line at the Coffee Mess. When he's not in WesB, getting coffee or training plebes, he can be found at Buddy's, presumably preparing for BUDS. In Buddy's, Alec goes hard, consuming copious amounts of fruity drinks, he becomes one with the chaos and literally dancing his pants off. Alec does everything in his life at 300%, whether it's trying to become the Ter-Bear's favorite sponsor mid, or growing the dirtiest 'stache in the Brigade. He is an incredibly loyal friend and colleague, and until he heads out you can find him at BUD...dy's.

Kyle Schaff

Submarines

"Affectionately known as $chmoney, Kyle Schaff exudes excellence in all he does. When he's not smashing on people on the volleyball court, annihilating chess opponents in the wardroom, or studying diligently in the library, Kyle is a daily visitor to the "Jailhouse," aka 7th Wing gym. After plebe year he traded candy for doing curls for the girls, slowly but surely shaping his body into the chiseled masterpiece that it now is. Kyle's heroes include his older brother Trevor, Rick Ross, and Neil DeGrasse Tyson, all of whom shape his one-of-a-kind personality. Though his heart lies with his roommates, known universally as The Pipe, Kyle's presence is made known wherever he goes. He's the life of the party, a loyal friend, and never ceases to make those he encounters laugh. The silent service will be welcoming in a genuine maverick, one who is sure to get the job done and leave a positive and memorable impact on his sailors."

Bradley Scheiner

Navy Pilot

Brad Scheiner is just a good dude. He flew low and fast at the academy, spending most of his time either at the gym or on the golf course. When Gingerbrad House isn't quadruple-fisting Miller tallboys or blowing cookies in your shower after a beer-too-many at McGreevy's, he's good for being the only one in room 3324 to actually do any work. Brad is, in actuality, the archetypal good-guy—a man who would give the shirt off his back to someone he even dislikes. He is the center of our room's Chi. He is our spirit guide and the force without which the room would be chaos. Without Brad, no Miller can pyramid is complete, no dock sesh fulfilling, and no baconing fully-blessed. With his volleyball spike, and aviator sunglasses, he will surely be flying inverted in just a couple of years.

Christian Scroggs

USMC Pilot

Intimately known by his dance partners as Nega, Scroggs makes for an average time anywhere he shows up. He is known to take balls to the chest during a game without even flinching. Fueled by Cope and Rip-its, Scroggs has become quite the [digital] aviator through an endless amount of [digital] flight hours. A walking, breathing meme, if you ask him "How he do you do it?" He'll pour multiple scoops of C4 down his pipe and offer to buy you a drink. The Marine Corps is lucky to have Scroggs because there isn't anyone else we'd rather have behind the stick. Enjoy A Fine Day, Christian

Roy Seitz-McLeese

Naval Flight Officer

"The man of a thousand names. On any given day you can never be sure of what version of Roy you'll be meeting. Will it be Rick Van Dino (RVD) fboi supreme? Or Rick Van Pino his more sophisticated cousin? Will it be Rude Boy Rick, the snapback king? Or Big Daddy Roy the lovable teddy bear? Either way you're lucky to count Roy as a friend, both for his hilarious antics and the persian rug he wears on his chest (and pretty much anywhere else). On any given night in DTA Roy has had three different cocktails that remind you he's richer than you ever will be (wtf is a Sidecar), and will most likely be wearing the same Redskins jersey you saw him in a month ago (no it hasn't been washed). Hurricane Roy is going to make a splash in Pensacola and kill it as an NFO. Also voted most likely to have An Officer and a Gentleman be based on his future life."

KATELYN SHINAVSKI

SURFACE WAREFARE

Katie is always up for a party. She somehow managed to be one of the highest achievers at the Naval Academy, while watching a large amount of netflix and having in depth plans every weekend. Known for her fun-loving obsession with country music, it is always best to cover your ears when she starts singing along. If anyone is wondering whether to get involved with an ECA, just ask Katie because she is a part of almost every club on the Yard, even the ones no midshipmen know exist. If you don't understand what Katie is saying, she'll ask you time and time again if you know what she means: "Yeknowimeen?". She is always up for any sort of adventure; especially the outdoorsy intense-planning ones. She will be your hiking, canoeing, kayaking, camping or any sort of adventure buddy you need. Compassionate, Intelligent, and sporadic, she will make a wonderful SWO:)

NICOLAS SHYNE

SURFACE WARFARE

Nicolas Andrew Shyne, known to his brothers as Nick Van Peeno. His voice is like two gazelles making love by the river Zambezi in East Africa. When he is not gracing the Men's Glee Club with his dulcet vocal tones, he can be found at his desk with his eyes firmly fixed on his ninth or tenth novel of the week. His thirst for knowledge would rate a place at the Algonquin Round Table, but his thirst for Tequila seems to more commonly rate a place at the Metro Rooftop bar. Never before has a Naval Academy midshipman worked his way both through so many books and so many bottles of Patron. In his personal life, Nick Van Peeno is a serial monogamist but somehow seems to remain firmly "for the boys" in every measurable way. His commitment to his family, friends, girlfriend, and company mates leaves nobody in his life concerned about whether or not he will keep in touch. Everyone knows that Nico will be a lifelong friend

TAGO SMITH

SURFACE WAREFARE

Bruh. Somebody once told me that Tago Smith was an athlete. Maybe that's why he was thinking about getting a tattoo that said "2 Fast." It could have been his unrivaled dedication to the football team that made him an athlete. Maybe it was his 40 time. Or maybe his giant hands. He's also a walking fashion show (maybe that explains his affinity for sugary alcohol), dreams of being a professional gambler, loves Drake more than Rihanna, viral left-stroker cares more about his curls than a schoolgirl, flexing on IG, and coaching up Yung Schmoney. You can catch him in SmAcme hanging with YBE+1 or asleep in his rack holding his phone after a long, day of nothing. He'll miss King Hall's banana nut muffins and The Pipe while he's standing watch on the Carter Hall.

CHARLES STABLER

NAVAL FLIGHT OFFICER

Chuck E. Stabes. The Yung God of Wisdom. For fun I like to sit in the cockpit of my private jet and tell my pilot where to take me as I get paid some extra Benji's. In my off time, Tevas are my shoes of choice and similar to what Future said, "I will take your girl in some Teva flip flops. I just bought two shoes and I made them pip, pop." To complement my Tevas I dress it up with my infamous Dad Jeans, and my "Always Tucked In" polo. Back in my heyday, sailing was my sport of choice. Fresh out the womb I had to learn how to sail the seven seas, alone. It took me 24 hours, give or take 2 hours, from birth to earn my craftmaster pin. If I wasn't the GOAT sailor to come through USNA I would have taken my talents over to any sport that could have shown off my cannon of an arm. During the weekday (Sun.-Thurs.) you can catch a rare sighting of my super soaker between 2000-2300. Many ask me, "Chuck why are you so wavy? Why are you so lit?" I reply, "All credit is given to my brother from another, Yung Tahgy." 4 years of braziness, I made a bond with three other roommates that will never be forgotten and from the beginning to the end we will always Pipe It Up.

MADELINE STEVENS

NAVAL FIGHT OFFICER

Madeline Marie Stevens....what a beaut. This golden girl has lived and breathed the word "success" since the day she stepped foot on Stribling Lane. She's a winner in the hearts of all, other than the line of boys' she broke. She's a stunna, a motivator, an adventurer, a squinty-eyed smiler, and the world's best match-maker. Maddie's optimism mixed with her unique bit of sass could fill a room with laughter. She also had the ability to turn any unfortunate situation into an opportunity, such as learning how to fry people for parking! Coming into the home stretch, I am grateful to have met such a beautiful soul. To Maddie's children: Your mother's heart is selfless and relentless almost to a fault. Her squinty-eyed smile and compassion for others will always be appreciated by so many here at the Academy and beyond. All this being said though, I hope that by the time you read this, Maddie has vastly improved on her Zumba skills

Erin Thamm

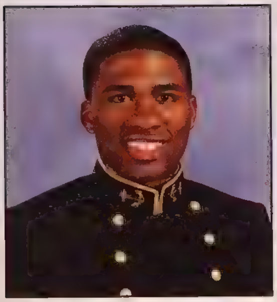
Navy Pilot

Erin Thamm is the first person to ever leave her home state, Wyoming. Because of this, many do not understand her strange ways, especially her strange taste in shoes. She has spent her time at the academy telling everyone that she is bad at sports while managing to be a nationally ranked cyclist and beating all the boys in the PRT. She spent most of her time throughout her day looking deep into people's souls, and thus waited until 2 or 3am to do any sort of academic work. Her infectious smile and optimistic personality made almost every boy in Bancroft come knocking at her door every night. She broke many, many hearts of USNA male mid population the day she posted a profile picture with her boyfriend (the boy downstairs). Erin Thamm will always be remembered for the way she always agreed to doing anything crazy you could come up with. A "good girl" on the outside, Erin Thamm was never afraid to break the rules when the time called for it. She is the most spontaneous, adventurous, and genuine person you could ever encounter. She will serve the Navy well as a Navy Pilot, as she is always up for a new adventure and challenge.

Sara Tumbas

Navy Pilot

Sara Tumbas is many things, but not a beige cardigan—all the boldness of a biker girl in dark jeans, flannel, boots and a tattered Stones tee shirt, with all the soft charm and charisma of a Midwestern native holding her family's Golden Retriever puppy. Sara is nothing if not authentic, brilliant, and passionate That, and she's a revolutionary who sees Bee Movie for what it is—an expression of rebellion against the corporate norms meant to inhibit our potential as a civilization. The Fair Valparaiso Maiden (who is loath to be anything but strong and dark) isn't half as scary as her love for Russian literature and eyeliner suggest; in fact, she's equal parts a strong-willed Belle and devotee of The Magic Kingdom with childlike awe and religiosity. While she can summon Lacanian theory with her command over the pen and language, she has also been known to kick back with her friends at the beach, with her beloved sisters on the lake in Michigan, or at a tailgate with the guys stealing hearts and breaking them with her dead shot accuracy at cornhole. Pensacola doesn't know it's about to get a reluctant genius and tortured artist down there, so "darken your clothes, strike a violent pose," and try not to break too many fellas' egos on the volleyball courts there, Icegirl...May your love of this fractured, beautifully complex world and your skill with words never falter, and may your heart always match your countenance. As Keats wrote it--La Belle Dame sans Merci, Hath thee in thrall. Until The Void



Julian Turner

Surface Warfare

"Very few have the confidence of Julian Turner. Heck, he thinks he can beat LeBron James in one on one. However, very few people have the heart of him either. A consistent example of putting others first, Julian has a heart almost as big as his ego. A man that is literally good at everything except time management, Julian is a true winner. Most known by his hoopty high school car with the license plate ""Ya Boy Ju."" Do not be confused by his squeaky breaks, because that won't stop him from pulling up to steal the heart of your girl. #YBE #ThePipe'

Hannah Vincent

Navy Pilot

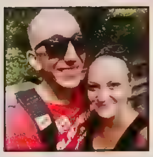
Throughout her Academy career, this daughter of Ohio blazed a trail the likes of which only a Vincent woman could pull off. During her tenure, Hannah worked tirelessly to promote the mainstream acceptance of glitter as an appropriate accessory to military uniforms. Her passion for feminine expression within the military lifestyle was cemented with the purchase of her pink sapphire diamond clustered rose gold stunna of a class ring. Bravo Zulu, Hannah. A martyr without a cause, Hannah refined the art of living the varsity athlete lifestyle without ever actually being a varsity athlete. She has a particular proclivity for Cheetos of the flamin' hot variety as well as various buffalo sauces...her two spices of life. Words to live by in Hannah's opinion? Live every day like it's your birthday. We fully expect her to make great contributions to the Naval Aviation community, undoubtedly offering her own unique blend of Amelia Earhart type skill and Paris Hilton-esque chic aloofness.
She is beauty, she is grace.

Nicholas Wilcox

USMC Ground

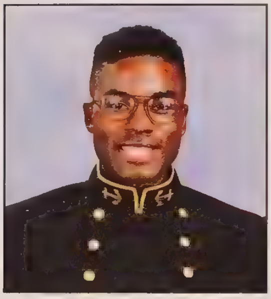
"You hear this man before you see him. It's laughter from 17,000 miles away. More than likely, he's making fun of you- you just don't know it yet. Don't let his humor deceive you, this man outmuscled a Nigerian prince in armwrestling, has a masculine, booming spread of chest hair, and traveled the world on the academy's dime.. An Air Force brat, he has defied the odds and joined the Marines. He has surely won the game of life. Nick possesses the kind of energy that lights any room he enters. If you're not laughing within 5 minutes of talking with this man, there's something wrong with you. Nick will always be a kid at heart, but his wise words surpass his years. Nick cares deeply about his friends, is a man of great faith, and brings immense happiness to those around him. The future might hold us in different time zones, but with a friend like Nick, you know there's always someone you can count on. He is the best buddy anyone can ask for.'

Robert Woods



Navy Pilot

Whats that in the sky?!?! Is it a bird? Is it a plane? Negative. It's Robert "Ergo" Woods standing high above the competition. If you're lucky enough to observe him perfecting his craft, you'll do so in 1 of 2 places: the Navy crew boathouse slaving away or at his desk skyping his 2% girlfriend. There are few individuals with the drive to be great like Robert and even fewer who can make it look so easy. Not only will he have your back in a bind, but he'll have it with a smile. Natural splendor aside, Robert is exactly the type of savage you'd want by your side when things get tough because when they go low, he goes even lower. Though he won't be bringing his charisma to the Marine Corps. after graduation (SAD!), be relieved to know it'll be in a cockpit barreling toward the sound of chaos to drop freedom wherever need be. Papa Bless. #IJPIITB



Joseph Yates

USMC Ground

"Hide your plebes hide your plebes because 1/C Yates is coming to rate them, alright ok. Many might call him Joe but others call him a Joe. But all of his teammates know he's a silly and goofy guy who loves to mess around and watch cartoons. It's a shame he's going Marine Corps because he loves to be lazy and complain about rowing. Nonetheless, Joe is incredibly dependable and will always have your back, even if he's staying up all night working for his non-credited major."

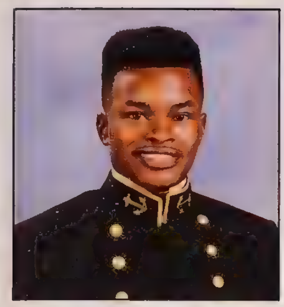
5TH COMPANY



Kadeem Adams

Supply Corps

Kadeem Adams, to his friends he is known as Deem. A man who is devoted to his rising DJ career, you can see him perform on the weekends if you can fight through his fan base of 10 who don't know much about actual DJing. But to his close friends Kadeem is known as Dark Chocolate Deem. Dark Choolate Deem treats his close friends like he treats his mustang, impeccibly. He shows his true love by showering them with compliments, taking them to nice restaurants, and in his car's case, outfitting her with the nicest parts money could ask for. Kadeem is an awesome guy who takes care of his own and if he loves you like he loves is 'stang, if that's even possible, you'll be friends for life.

Maryam Al-Hassan

Surface Warfare Nuke

This ferocious feline is best known for her ability to escape social events so that she can really just finish her labs and color. She has the walk of a tigress/spoiled house cat, one that not only portrays her confidence but makes her waist smaller, back tighter, and abs stronger. She may seem cold and made of steel on the outside, but really she is warm and loving on the inside. Her innate ability to pick up languages is only further accompanied by her brilliant coding skills and talent to pass classes without always paying attention in class. Beware because this Tigress sleeps no more than five hours a night and might just wake you up as well if she gets bored. Her passion for cooking delicious homemade food may sound welcoming, but it only extends to eggs and pasta. Her hatred for all things chocolate and coffee is really just disguised as her so called food allergy. On the dance floor, this chick magically transforms from being quiet and reserved to the center of attention, winning hearts and minds, even marriage proposals. Her feminine traits and curvy figure are unquestionably not due to her time spent training and running. In fact, being a part of the 3 miler club(running 3 miles a year due to the mandatory prt) is something she is proud of, just as much as her reputation on the Fencing Strip. Twinkle toes over here is known to jump into her opponent, launching a fierce attack in the triangle.Her beauty is only matched by her determination. MEOW to that!!!

Lorenzo Armstrong

Navy Pilot

Voted most likely to use his 2/C loan on a Rogaine regiment, Lorenzo never fails to leverage his Italian roots in whatever means benefit him most (insert Italian hand gesture). Lorenzo always voices his opinion, even if that opinion was badly worded and pronounced incorrectly. English is only his second language, you know. Spend about ten minutes with him and he'll be sure to tell you. Renowned as the company bachelor, it is rumored that he has been rejected by every woman in 5th at least once (and in some cases twice).. Despite his failure to land a belle while at the Academy, nobody has done more to promote international relations between the United States and Italy than this cosmopolitan man. His many accomplishments include the presidency of Trident Brass, the mastery of FIFA (beating CT Camardella over 50% of the time), and being the only drill-motivated Midshipman 5th company has produced in the last four years. He will be fondly remembered among those he leaves behind.

Steven Brown

USMC Ground

The most sweet-tea drinking, long syllable speaking, deer slaughtering, steerage-loving Southern Boi from Red Bank South Cackalacky you'll ever meet in your whole gosh-darn lyfe! He's a Gamecocks fan but a closet Clemson man whose own sport here betrayed him and left him for the dust Firstie year. And so good ole' Blackbeard took pity and gave him CC after LT Holt put in a good word for him, one of the only words he spoke for the record. The Marine select loves to keep in touch with his favorite sailor man via text message, some would argue this is against Navy regs but much like having one glass of wine a night he threw that right out the window. Despite his penchant for frat withe the ole LT, his company-mates will always appreciate his big heart and little command voice. Alex will forever be fondly remembered as 5th Company's big brown teddy bear.

James Camaliche

Navy Pilot

Hailing from Miami, Florida, James Camaliche is the whitest person you will ever meet. Spending his days memorizing country capitals, playing online computer games about conquest, making bruschetta for his girlfriend, and reading obscure science fiction novels, he has officially convinced everyone that he is not a Cuban spy, but rather a privileged white kid from the suburbs. Although he peaked in high school, his legacy at the Naval Academy will be a handful of intramural competitions, completing 9 handstands in 4 hours, and becoming president of a club no one knows or cares about. When he is not striving to uphold the three mission areas of the Naval Academy, you can find him Facetiming his new girlfriend he met on spring break, choosing a new cardigan to wear out for the weekend, or taking a comfortable nap in the back of his car. Because of his cultural background in Miami, he is known among his friends to play the best music at parties. When spending time with James, you will soon learn that no one can rival his stories. Although they may be exaggerated, his run-in with authority figures and giant sea monsters are almost always true. As a Naval Officer, he will return to his home state to be a Naval Aviator. It is a little more north of his upbringing, but he fit right in with his Alabama brethren by singing his favorite song: "Dixieland Delight." Good luck in Flight School, James. At least Aidan won't be there to fail you this time

Andrew Camardella

Navy Pilot

"CT Camardella is easily one of the most loved members of the thriving downtown Annapolis committee. Although he did earn a degree from the town's local college (USNA), he will be best remembered by every bartender in the Annapolis area. While at the academy, he dedicated himself to thought, carefully planning each assignment for days before writing down his conclusions mere hours before it was due. The only thing harder than cutting into his aggressive sleeping schedule was to find him at the gym. CT's glory days as a member of the collegiate national rugby team were far behind him, however he did enjoy playing a surprisingly wide variety of sports and show casing unexpected athleticism...Until he inevitably got injured. It must have been a side effect of the centuries of arthritis, as he was indeed the oldest Midshipman in the Brigade. CT will assuredly lead the men and women in his charge as boldly as the heroes of the Revolution, the civil War, and both World Wars. We can be certain of this, because CT was there for all of them."

Miguel Castro

Submarines

Miguel "Mig" Castro. A man of many stories and almost all of them will make you laugh. He emits a West Coast vibe for sure, Seattle more specifically. His flyness and swagger are so high that the Navy has overlooked the fact that they are sending Fidel Castro's grandson to our most secret warships and are submerging him for a second time to level the playing field for everyone else, semper deep. Friendly to all, people are afraid of how much they love Mig. He knows his sports and he knows the people around him better than anyone else. Men may admire the quarterbacks Mig praises (Tom Brady and Russell Wilson), he is convinced women admire his confidence for wearing sweats out to bars, but I admire his authenticity and his "Mig El Pablo's Ay Papi Playlist" on Spotify. Whether Mig makes Admiral or 5 and dives, he will be an outstanding Naval Officer.

Jonathan Daus

Surface Warfare EDO

The Dauster, as he likes to be called, is the pinnacle of optimism, and nobody embodies the spirit of the Academy more than this rising NHL star. If you ever want to know where he is, just listen for the frequent loud sighs and constant slamming of doors and various objects. He can most often be found in Rickover, the BSC, behind closed doors with CT, or the company wardroom expressing the joy of life and spreading cheer to those around him. If you're wondering what Rickover is, no worries, as Jon will explain for several hours, whether you are listening or not, how much he works on his capstone, which did not even work. Those several hours might be cut short though, due to the daily pains of being a century old, which comes with back, joint, and knee pains, as well as a receding hairline. Nevertheless Jonathan "Dauster" Daus will be a champ of a Marine Officer err... SWO EDO.

Haruka Earney

Navy Pilot

Ruk has spent his four years at the Academy struggling under the pressure of being a varsity rifle team manager. Between looking at pictures of stars and playing video games, he barely had time to get red-faced on a beer and get turned down by Dillo's girls. Fortunately, no matter how many failed attempts, Ruk could always find comfort in one of his numerous Asian mistresses or the sink. His favorite drink remains a root-beer float, and no one is more concerned about not spending money. He would constantly turn down steerage trips and save the $6.50 on the Sea Sparrow so that he could buy his $19K car. Ruk will have a successful career as an aviator. He will do his cross country flight and then keep going until he hits the shores of Hiroshima. There is no place Ruk would rather be than in the Motherland serving the rising sun.

Aidan Farrell

Navy Pilot

The California rightful Lord of Dabs who slays in the DR and has a headache the size of his headache, Aidan has only spoken 3 curse words in his time at the Academy which qualifies him as a sailor. When he's not inviting girls over to drink all of your alcohol or denying the existence of aliens he's watching innocent Facebook videos or sleeping in his rack. Oceanographer? Maybe. He spends a lot of time in his look-alikes room trying to figure out anything that was said in class. After spending a year trying to run away from the Academy on the Track team he came to his senses and joined the 5th Company Soccer Cult to lead as the coveted Intramural Captain. Aidan is almost as good at passing the ball as he is as an aviator, just ask James. Despite his goofy demeanor Aidan is just one of the boys who's always been able to give as much as he's gotten. We cannot wait to see where Aidan "Headache" Farrell winds up!

Shelby Hairr

Naval Flight Officer

If y'all ever thought you's knew what southern belles were all 'bout, pump the brakes and strap yo'self in because Shelby is about to learn you sumthin' new. Hailing all the way from One Stoplight, North Carolina, Shelby epitomizes the notion of southern charm and grace, exceptin' those rare occasions when she's hangry, of course. When she isn't entertaining guests in her room, she spends her time confusing her southern roots by Irish dancing with Pipes and Drums and teaching the uncouth masses how proper gentlemen and gentleladies are supposed to eat with the Protocol staff. Her free time is most often spent in search of the nearest dog to pet, book to read, or marathon to slough through, though not always at the same time. Despite managing to woo a wide swath of 5th company males in her time here (most of whom had strikingly similar receding hairlines...) she remains a voluntary bachelorette, knowing that few mortals could ever handle her obsession with Monty Python and all those other weird things English majors love. Nevertheless, she remains one of the most beloved members of 5th company for her boundless kindness and quick laughter. She is sure to be successful no matter where her career takes her (though hopefully it's somewhere with real sweet tea).

Alyson Hands

Surface Warfare

Rumor has it, that when Aly "not Alyson" Hands was a plebe, her chow calls could be heard from the Buchanan House. Since those fateful plebe days of squaring corners and pretending to not listen to Broadway soundtracks, Aly has risen the ranks to be both Women's Glee Club and Winter Musical President. She has graced us with her presence as the sultry Sally Bowles in Cabaret, the pining Rosemary Pilkington in How To Succeed in Business Without Really Trying, and the mysterious Lady of the Lake in Spamalot. Let it go down in the records that Aly is the only firstie to make it through the winter musical for four consecutive years, so it's safe to say she has the most experience. The Academy is lucky to have her passionate heart because before we know it, Broadway is going to steal her away. In the meantime, Aly will be remembered as the plebe's favorite firstie for saving them on many occasions during plebe summer to discuss their honor and give lessons on her favorite Disney princesses. When not singing, Aly can be found rearranging the (almost) excessive amount of trinkets on her desk, walking to Starbucks, talking about how she's from Washington, or chasing the mouse that lives in 3426. Did we mentioned that she's from Washington?

Brian Hardy

Cryptologic Warfare

Brian "super sleuth" Hardy usually ends every weekend semi-passed out on the ground moaning "why did I do this again, my body hates me". He's not an alcoholic, just a cyclist Brian "Super Sleuth" Hardy may tell you he was the Navy Cycling team captain during his time here at USNA, but what he really means is that he was the team Trash Plebe for 4 years. More likely to say "Why are you doing that to yourself" than "Yeah go on a hard ride today," he inspired many to race their best even though he led a team most well-known for crashing every race. Brian "I'm Reg XO dammit I'm important" Hardy will also be remembered for his CDO emails that took 3+ hours to write and his quote "I used to have dreams, but now I have memes." Brian "Chief Doggo" Hardy service selected cryptologic warfare, but he's more likely to be able to direct you to the nearest doggo meme than furthering the objectives of his warfighting community Be careful eating dinner with Brian as you will spend a majority of the time listening to food puns instead of actually eating your meal. Why didn't Brian write this bio himself? Because his cycling team bio has been the same for 4 years except for the line that says I am finally no longer a plebe A legend on the Navy Cycling team who is also known for saying he'll do terrible in a race but basically winning it, writing workouts with titles such as "Knees Weak, Legs Heavy, There's Spaghetti on the Floor Already, Mom's Sweater", and leading us to victory, he will be greatly missed and the team definitely won't be the same without him. Good thing he's coming back for his super-senior year

Treye Harrison

Navy Pilot

Nicolas Hart

Submarines

"Snickers" Charismatic, charming, kind, loving, giving, a true friend and leader. Nick has always been a people person, who would do anything he can to lighten someone else's load. Nick is so easy to get along with and is a great listener. He has never met someone he could not comfortably get to know. Not a day has gone by in his entire life that he wasn't told how much he is loved. Nick is a true hero to his family and closest friends. The Academy was a perfect fit for Nick and he has excelled and enjoyed his 4 years as a Midshipman. As an officer Nick will command respect and in turn respect those who serve with him.

Alison Keenan

USMC Ground

Alison Keenan may come off as the anti-stereotypical Starbucks drinking, yoga pant wearing, North Face hoarding femid who goes YUT Corps after her sentence at this well constructed security facility, and if you think of her as that, then, well, you are 100% accurate in your judgement. If you can't find her in the 5th Company wardroom wearing a 'borrowed' hoodie or t-shirt with atrocious Birkenstock sandals and (what questionably passes as spirit gear) lulu lemon pants, she's probably setting the record for most number of negative form-1s written in a single semester, or robbing the rest of the Brigade of their white mochas from the Coffee Mess. Her time as an English major has taught her many skills, most notably reading and writing. After three years of rigorous English courses her crowning achievements include learning to read many of the novels by Dr. Seuss such as Fox in Sox and One Fish, Two Fish, Red Fish, Blue Fish, and even more importantly how to write her name in crayon without eating them. If you find yourself in the same room as Alison make sure you have an escape plan because she hates everyone and has a plan to kill anyone within knife-hand range. While all of these are true facts, what's most important is that she is very dedicated to her friends and those who reciprocate trust and loyalty. She will always have your 6 in life and the field and can be counted on as a great friend. The Marine Corps is lucky to have her and you would be too. Stay dark and twisted.

Brett Kraft

Naval Flight Officer

This Star Wars lunatic, homegrown Jersey-boi, Photoshop maestro, found his inspiration at the Naval Academy from the legendary Ruthy and the idea of becoming a member of the Navy cycling team. However, following a devastating bike crash his Youngster year, and knowing the ensuing chit would not last forever, Brett quickly joined the forces dedicated to defending his beloved Brigade (but most importantly, to get out of parades). To the delight of his friends and his own dismay, this position of defense would lead to a healthy dose of OC spray in his eyes. In spite of his knee injury, this lightweight is a sure shoo-in for the USNA track team, given his propensity for running as far and fast as he can after enjoying a night out in DTA, leaving his friends without the slightest clue to his whereabouts. The Moe's late-night staff has surely memorized his face and order considering the number of times he's walked in the door five minutes before closing on his weekday liberty jaunts. Despite his inability to chew with his mouth closed, he remains near and dear to our hearts. We will sorely miss his goldmine of relevant gifs and meme creations, though we rest easy knowing he is gracing some other corner of the Navy with his ridiculous antics.

Nathan Markon

USMC Ground

The Canada-claiming, serial dating, gun-toting wannabe Southern Boi, you can always count on him to ditch you to go on a date with a girl he's never met. Nathan likes to start his day blaring "Danger Zone" to serve as the room's unwanted alarm for which his roommates despise him. I've never seen so much Marine Corps motivation on a single desk, but I've never heard so much as a yut or rah escape his lips. Firstie year he returned the favor to the giver of his stuffed deer with an oral peticure. While on the subject of the Rhapsody, Nathan also discovered his lifelong passion of gambling and is convinced his success lies in the losses of the Peach Man. It is rumored that the lineage of Markon has been crossed with that of Michael Jackson, as seen on the Buddy's dancefloor where he violently bobs up and down. This American-grown country Boi has held a lifelong passion of becoming a warrior in the world's greatest fighting force, the United States Marine Corps. Dontcha-know-eh-maple-syrup-hockey!

Hannah Meadows

Surface Warfare

Hannah Meadows, otherwise known as "Hannah Jane" or "Hannah Banana" by her friends, is a native of Atlanta, Georgia. If she's not working out, then she's......well she's always working out. But if she's not, she's checking up on you to see how you are doing or leaving a note and a candy on your desk so you know you're special. She went missing for a semester pulling a Benedict Arnold up at West Point, but came back more in love with the Navy than ever. She's team captain of the Endurance Team and somehow convinced 29 people who had never completed a triathlon that it was a good idea to start with a half-ironman. Hannah is a crazy, silly, endurance nut. She epitomizes what it means to be "selfless," which has earned her the endearing love of all who know her.

Jett Meenach

Taylor Mooers

Naval Flight Officer

5th Company bestowed the honor of being a Rock upon Taylor two years ago and never looked back; since her humble beginnings at NAPS, she has managed to steal the hearts of 5th Company. When not lounging on her pink couch, the pride and joy of room 3426, she can be found tearing it up on the ice as a member of the Women's Ice Hockey Team. Frontline reports show she is a vicious player, using her own sprawled body as a defense mechanism. Yet, it doesn't end at her hockey career. After a self-imposed exile from Women's Glee Club, she took the Gospel Choir by storm and procured the position of Secretary. Other hobbies include rollerblading around Farragut, googling her next crochet design, and looking at DOR paperwork to pursue her lifelong dream of becoming a dolphin trainer. Taylor's passion for animals goes further than dolphins, she also used her systems engineering skills to save the elephants. Despite her ability to help other living things, one person that she can't keep healthy is herself. She is known for having the worst immune system in the brigade and she frequented Dental so often that they even threw her a party. Despite her deficient immune system, if you haven't met Taylor during your time here, consider yourself shorted. This girl not only knows how to nap, she knows how to brighten your day and have a good time.

Alexis Opferman

Surface Warfare Intel

When Alex longingly left behind her kindred state of Nevada for DTA, she brought more than just a boyish haircut and an affinity for dental hygiene. She brought an unprecedented can-do attitude and levels of perseverance that only members of the Navy Marathon Team possess. When not posted up in her favorite spot on the second floor of Nimitz, she can be found unscrambling misplaced modifiers in the writing center or training plebes from her forward operating base in 1st Battalion spaces. When she does decide to make the trek up four flights of stairs to her old home, her roommates don't know what is more exciting, the newest Bachelor episode or her love life. She can always be counted on for a passionate monologue about any current event, an eccentric quip, or a shoulder to lean on. Her favorite napping places include the back desk in 3426, Forrestal lectures, and cars. While her deep conditioned bun and high standards might fool you, this vodka-cran loving chick knows how to have a good time!

Saul Park

Navy Pilot

There's no one out to sea with a cooler head. Take care and remember the best ships are friendships.

Nathan Pearson

Navy Pilot

Nathan "Nate" Pearson accomplished his crowning achievement of his academy career a mere month before graduation: winning $10,000 on The Price is Right, which you will probably be aware of within 5 minutes of conversation with him. His next greatest achievement is winning a season cup in Rocket League, against platoon members who have never played before. When he's not working hard on last month's schoolwork, he can often be found on Tinder, with which he has had much success... and many more story-worthy regrets. The sailing team has left him in peak physical condition, weighing a solid 180 lbs of pure anything-but-muscle! Nate is always known as being helpful and talkative, engaging conversations with everyone, including those around him that are trying to get work done. In all seriousness, Nate has taken advantage of the numerous opportunities he has been presented with, striving to become the best he can be at the Naval Academy, and the best he can be as an officer and a NAAAVY PILOT.

Nicole Peer

USMC Ground

Have you ever wondered what Academy life would be like if viewed from the perspective of a yard dog? That's what 5th Company's "Little Body" handles on the daily. Aside from destroying sushi rolls three times her size at Tsunami's happy hour, you can find her utilizing step stools and ladders to meet every day, normal sized human tasks such as: climbing into her rack, reaching water fountains, and grabbing cereal from the cereal carts in KH. If she's not hacking the Pentagon or creating SKYNET with her sick IT skills you'll find her 'Running.' -Forrest Gump. She's a PT stud that the YUT Corps just had to snag up because the enemy will consistently fire over her Gunny Abbott approved bun. She's a great ball of fun and energy that anyone would be glad to have around and has been a great blessing to the 5th Company family.

Matthew Rees

Matt "the big panda" Rees's favorite thing in the world is dominating the lacrosse field, unfortunately Matt's favorite thing in the world has led directly into Matt's least favorite thing in the world...Having to speak in public. Whether it's looking at a teleprompter he can't read or having to answer questions from a friendly reporter, Rees is known to rush out of all of public appearances, kinda like he rushes into every one of his romantic relationships. On the bright side Matt recently broke the Navy lacrosse all time record in forced turnovers with 84... divide that by 8.4 and you get the exact number of people Matt has talked to during his 4 years here. Quiet and humble the Brigade will miss Matt's presence, or lack thereof.

Donald Ross

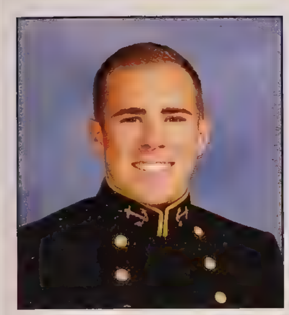
Navy Pilot

His strengths include rugby and being mistaken as an old Japanese man. His weaknesses are smiling, understanding sarcasm, and English. Don gets offended anytime someone mispronounces words in his native language and will threaten to backhand you in true Japanese fashion. This man went from "hoorah" to the chillest community the Navy has to offer. Yoshi simmered down his inner motivator and decided to join in on the "fly navy" attitude but we'll see how well he fits in because of his fear of alcoholics. Even though he has a tough exterior we all know he's a big softie. Don has one of the biggest hearts known and will do great when he adopts his big brother attitude into the fleet.

Brandon Russell

Submarines

There are men is this world that excel at being a player and a hound dog, and there are men who fail trying. Brandon "BJ" Russell is one of the latter men Brandon is always in it for the long haul. Both with women, (named Emily 1,2,3,etc...), and with his notoriously drawn-out flatulence while actively yoga posing. If a representative for the Guinness Book of World Records was present during his longest fart... she would have died of monoxide poisoning. He also took his time when promoting from Bronze to Silver in League of Legends. If his submarine pin is pursued with similar vigor, his pinning ceremony will also be his retirement ceremony. His most developed skill set is rapidly hitting the mechanical space bar on his computer at 2 am, when his roommate is sleeping, and taking naps during sports period. Hopefully his skills at the keyboard will be useful in the submarine community. Unless by "strategic planning" they don't mean online gaming, in which case he'll be helpless. The high point of his Academy career was being highlighted as "Hardest Rock of the Week," after not working out for 18 months and passing the physically demanding tryouts to become manager of the water polo team. His odd habits nclude dancing poorly at Buddies, watching ESPN First take religiously, talking smack about anything, and preferring to eat downstairs out in the back when visiting a woman's house. Odd habits aside, Brandon will make a fine submarine officer and a gentleman, and I wish him well in his endeavors



Dylan Sewell

Navy Pilot

Dylan tried to write his Firstie bio but we wouldn't let him, and here we are! The wounded warrior of 5th Company who thought that going to NAPS validated Plebe Summer upon discover that this was not the case gave himself rhaboo to try to get out of the rest of it. Unfortunately for him the Academy had other plans and the rest of us haven't heard the end of it since. The only Drill Officer to "validate" every formation, Dylan instead chooses to live vicariously through his roommate, the CC. And after Alex taught him how to shoot a bow he'll tell you he belongs on the Outdoor Network. He's the prime example of why you should never boot and rally, throwback to his 21st at the Black Bag Hotel when he blacked out fully clothed in the Oval Office. Part of the original Southern Comfort he still swears by his Clyde May, and his sweet talking southern drawl will be missed in 5th Company's halls. We look forward to where the winds take this aviator, although we're sure he's going to tell us about it anyway.

Bleu Strong

Naval Flight Officer

Bleu "Blue Falcon" Strong had a favorite spot to be in Bancroft, his rack. He was willing to pay people to pick up his food, so he could continue his losing streak in Counter-Strike. The former PT stud Bleu might talk about his physical prowess, but you would be surprised to learn that he has ran once this past semester, including the PRT. His hobbies include not getting a haircut, falling down during the Patriot Games, and passing room inspections. All in all, Bleu will enjoy a great career as a Marine, I mean submariner, I mean NFO.

William Walker

Naval Flight Officer

William Remy Walker, or Billy to those who know him best is your quintessential midshipman. A native of Santa Clara, California, Billy arrived in Annapolis unprepared for East Coast hustle and bustle. Hiding behind thick glasses and a baby face, Billy was at most unassuming and at worst largely forgotten when compared to his more rambunctious fellow plebes. During this time, he could be often found on Ingram track, throwing down mediocre 400's with the rest of the bone thugs on the cross country team, or in Nimitz studying away in pursuit of his gaudy 4.0. Yet it is here in which young Bill grew into the great man we all love. Billy joined the Navy Model UN team his youngster year where he developed notoriety for his social interactions with college students from around the nation who were yearning to get a small taste of the daily rigors of life as a midshipman. In company, Billy was known for the affection and emotional support that he often gave to his neighbors, especially in their time in need. Second Class Year saw Billy embrace his role as a mentor within the Brigade, bringing several wayward youngsters under his steady guidance. Yet this was not enough for little Bill, as he left second semester, leaving both 5th Company and the XC Team behind for the wonders of the Orient. In Singapore, Billy's maturity was expedited, showing the locals the responsibility in which they should expect in a midshipman. Billy returned determined to end his USNA life as extraordinarily as it started blandly. To this end Billy and the sensible fraternity of gentlemen in which he surrounds himself with took it upon themselves to experience all that Annapolis and the surrounding lands had to offer. Notable highlights include large philanthropic work for the Cab Drivers Association of Charlottesville, and placing an impressive first place in the 1st Annual Navy Marine Corps Stadium Quadrathalon. A distinguished social activist and lover of animals, Billy currently leads efforts to save the endangered Annapolis Armadillos, whose native territory is severely threatened by the encroachment of several species of crustaceans. With this Billy looks to his future as a Naval Flight Officer with excitement and wonder, for if Pensacola does as much for Ensign Walker as Annapolis did for Midshipmen Walker then who knows what his future has in store?

Stephen Ward

Submarines

Stephen "Dirty Steve/Sleezy Steve" Ward can often be seen running, but can't seem to wake up for company workouts. His passions include talking to Anna, video chatting with Anna, or texting Anna. Outside of Anna there's not much about this homegrown Texan. He enjoys sea sparrows and late night talks with Brandon, with whom he shares a very close relationship with. As an Ops Research major, Dirty Steve has had constant competition with Brandon for who is the smarter Mid, and would frequently stay up at night on the phone (with Anna of course) trying to figure out how he could surpass Brandon for that title. He is also an average marathon runner, and will let you know through his fashion style which all includes participation shirts from various running events. Stephen will make an okay addition to the Submarine community, as long as he doesn't ruin their trashcans.

Robert Whitlock

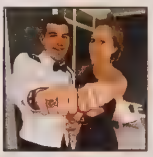
USMC Pilot

Georgia's very own IPA drinking, Tito's chugging, angry Statham-looking Peach Man has fought a long-hard battle since Plebe year against the forces of his hair line. Who was once known for either being totally lit or totally recovering, now he's just totally sleepy but mitigates this with way too many supps and caffeine pills. As XO, his love for his CC failed not whether in the Bahamas or in the Hall. Robbie loves the standards as much as he loves pitchers of Yuengling at Fleet with his roomie, which is a great deal might we add. Known to 2020 as "Whitlock Sees All", the sound of his footsteps are feared by all who dare to toe the line. Not a day goes by that he doesn't have a gripe with someone else's decision, or literally any opinion ever. This Marine Corps motivated wannabe fly boi always has proper accountability of his gear (except his credit card, ID, phone, sanity, etc.), and while he isn't about to win any Mr Congeniality contests, Roodle Boodle is always down for a good time when in-country or in Roatan.

Rachel Wible

Submarines

Rachel is truly one of a kind. Her sweet personality and fresh minty breath (from all that aggressive flossing) makes her the ideal roommate! On her free time Rachel can be found petting dogs on the sidewalk, ordering colored ink on amazon, or making bi-weekly trips to Annapolis Ice Cream. But her free spirit does not end there. Rachel also spends her time as a dedicated singer for Castle Bay Karaoke, where she brags about her month long streak. After turning up to Katy Perry on the stage, she loves to sit down and converse with her roommates about her cravings for crab dip and King Hall's famous cheddar munchers. Lucky for her, her roommates are dedicated to her health and have consistently brought her up meals, when she was too busy attending train-o, squad leader or "smart people" meetings. Coming back to a pile of crispitos on her desk has always made her smile. We assume all this brain-power food paid off. as Gates Scholar Rachel Ann Wible has been accepted into Cambridge in the fall. Oh, and did we mention? She has also run 9 marathons, fueled by cheese and chocolate alone. We will truly miss her spunky attitude and denim skirts, as she begins the next chapter in her life. There are two types of girls in this world.   and Rachel knows where she belongs. Because there are BIG ships and SMALL ships but the BEST ships are FRIENDships



Bodi Williams

Surface Warfare

What is there to say about good old Bolbi that can't be said in a single DOR form? One wonders how many trees could have been saved if only he could have made up his mind. If there was an app for complaining about the Academy, he would use it nearly as frequently as he used Tinder. Thankfully for him, the flame eventually took and he soon found himself playing with the fire of young love. Some have said that this is what led him to spend more time in Florida than James Camaliche. The NARPiest of the NARPs, Bodi continually pushed the laws of physics in how fast he tried to get dressed in the morning. Maybe if he had spent more time practicing and less time sleeping, the Cannoneers wouldn't have ND'd. He did make it through the Academy in one piece, though, and for that reason, Bodi Williams, we salute you! We look forward to your life-long career of Naval Service and your future stint as CNO.

Edward Alade

Surface Warfare

#33 on the court but #1 to his rack after a six-in. Edward Alade stunned the masses that filed into Alumni to watch him block shots and slam dunks on Patriot League foes. The prodigal son of the streets of H-Town, the Economics major was constantly calculating how to "get that check" with his streets mentality and how to emulate Jay Z and 50 Cents success. This 6'9" SWO daddy will have plenty of problems sleeping in his rack aboard the ship but at the end of day, the only thing that matters is "that check." The ROC CEO himself is truly one of a kind and will forever be remembered for his legacy these past 4 years.

Leslie Alasagas

Surface Warfare Nuke

Leslie Ann Alasagas: The Big Sister, who will most likely still be carded long after her 30th Birthday. This little firecracker has figure skated her way into many hearts. Her undeniable loyalty, optimistic heart, and big sister advice will help you through all your problems, even if you don't think you have any! Leslie Ann's incredible strength and poise will carry her far in her career as a Nuclear Surface Warfare Officer. When she's not studying her butt off as an applied physics (nuclear engineering option) major, you can find her in her natural habitat a.k.a. your local coffee shop or patisserie.

Rafael Alpizar

Navy Pilot

Our tall, dark, and handsome Costa Rican amigo graced the Naval Academy with his presence, accent, and good latin music. Having fooled the United States Navy into thinking Costa Rica has a military, he has service selected Beach Bum where he will return to tropical paradise in Central America upon commissioning. This dedicated Aerospace Engineer and Commander of the Strong Side has excelled in his classes and is shooting for the stars in the hopes of becoming an astronaut, president, American citizen, or anything that gives him enough to buy some tacos. Raf's 'wisdom' has been collected through years of heartache and heartbreak as he swoons gringas all over town with his slick dance moves on the salsa floor. Knowing just what to say, this silver-tongued devil showed us all his skills when he melted the heart of a particular, lovely gringa. Soccer comes naturally to him as shown by his fast footed skills on the intramural soccer field and has been titled the "Crowned King Division 4 Casual Soccer" on Farragut when he is not complaining about this or that injury. Wherever life takes him in the coming years Rafa is sure to spread his light as a kind, compassionate, and courageous individual! All our love, the Victorious Secret.

Alexander Barta

Navy Pilot

Alex Barta...he would tell you hes from 8-mile but hes really from the rich suburbs of Detroit. You could always catch him up late in his room doing homework because he was a Systems Engineer AND football player. But was he really a football player? Yes, punters are people too. On Saturdays you could see him on the Gridiron, pinning opponents deep in their own territory. The Naval Aviation community is getting a solid dude in Alex. He will be missed around USNA!

Alexander Bergman

USMC Ground

You better keep this guy away from your sister. Dr. Jimmy Brungis is below average cool and above average chubby. During the weekdays you can find him in his room, half asleep, and heavy breathing. On the weekends you can find him blacked out, half asleep, and heavy breathing somewhere other than his room. He can be described as loyal, loving, and girthy. He has superior balance and an incredible ability to use his ninja focus to lower his heart rate. Whether it's grounding-and-pounding the day before army navy or using his sling as a weapon . You can bet this dude will have your back at every turn. He is a man of complicated emotions: he hates puppies, but can't even look at the cover of Fast 7 without dropping to his knees. He is a silent guardian, a watchful protector...he is the sheepdog.

Cabot Bisbee

Surface Wareface Nuke

Always seemingly marching before you now, Cabot has continuously drummed and bugled his way into our hearts here in Sixth Company. From his humble beginnings growing up in the hinterlands of Western Pennsylvania among Pirates, Penguins, and those dang Amish, Cabot has grown and is in control of over 60 midshipmen who perform at parades, formations, football games, and concerts in support of not only the Brigade of Midshipmen, but Navy fans all over the world! Always present or accounted for, except for when he is not (Mondays, Wednesdays, Thursdays, Fridays), Cabot can unfailingly be counted on to provide the Brigade with a small, musically talented cough group of midshipmen; provided that it is never at a baseball game between the Naval Academy and its neighbor, St. John's College.

William Bourque

USMC Ground

William Francis Bourque AKA, "Billy Baby Leg" received his nickname for the copious hours spent in the gym and only having his abnormally large upper body physique to show for it. He is the epitome of the model Midshipman who is all around talented, engaging, and resembles a better looking Keanu Reeves. He is not only the president of the "Nocturnal Hours Club" while holding the position of Brigade Drill Officer, but has also been known to have the voice of a "Dean Martin" during his time in the Glee Club. A native of Ho-ho-kus, New Jersey (sounds like a Doctor Seuss town), Billy was 6th Company Commander first semester. Graduating with honors from the "Casual Formality School of Dress" he often resembles the facade of a frat boy and has been recruited multiple times by the infamous fraternity "Wanna-tapa-kega" for his guido-ish skin fade hairstyle. He is the hardest working Midshipman who never exaggerates about the "1000 hours of Electrical Engineering work (he) does a night." He will be your best friend in the worst of times and will make your problem his own so you do not have to go through it alone. Any Marine under his command will be extremely lucky to have Bill.

Skyler Briggs

USMC Ground

"Whether it be power-napping through Forrestals and every free period, or lifting heavy things and putting them back down, Briggs is all about the high speed, low drag life style. As Sixth Company's resident Shield Maiden she's just at home in the gym as she is head-banging at a Metal show. She is never truly at home unless she can be wholly "sans-pants". Between being abrasive and honest you'll always get the "skinny" from Briggs while she eats a whole bag of Twizzlers. She may omit the last "e" from "Shakespeare" but she knows better than to leave out the other "z" in "Twizzlers"*. To quote her favorite Man in Black, Johnny Cash, "she's in good shape for the shape she's in, 'cause she's been through the fire before and I believe she can take a whole lot more", Quantico here we come...the Corps ain't seen nuttin' yet. We made it Beesh! I wouldn't want anyone else checking me for ticks (you know where). <3 your ride or die,
Marleigh A. Ragni (Marrrr)
*See MIDN 1/C Ragni, 6th Co."

Marcus Brown

Navy Pilot

This Chris Brown look-alike can be seen getting discounted drinks at Fleet sporting his stylish fedora. Marcus Power Brown, who reigns from the great sunny state of Florida, is an NBA enthusiast and lover of all things LeBron James, aka "The G.O.A.T." (As quoted by Marcus). His swag is second to none although he boasts an extremely out of regs afro. When Marcus is not analyzing mixed drinks as the company ADEO, also "The G.O.A.T.", he is throwing Frisbees on the Jackalopes' Ultimate Frisbee team. Academics may have always come second to watching Youtube videos and playing Rocket League, but that doesn't mean you won't find this warrior dropping warheads on foreheads after he commissions as a Naval Aviator.

James Calloway

Navy Pilot

From a young age, Andrew "Keh Keh" Calloway knew he would touch the stars. Hailing from the Texas woodlands, young Andrew learned perseverance and patience from his mother, Sharon. "No matter how many times he went to the gym, he never seemed to get any bigger. But he never quit." says a friend close to Andrew. Although the gym was a bridge too far, Andrew made up for it in the classroom, completing an impressive degree in Aerospace Engineering (wow!). "Even when I don't try, no matter what...I always get an A" says Andrew. When given liberty, Andrew was often seen in New York for unknown purposes. Many speculate it was his love for stray alley cats that drew him to the Big Apple. When asked about his frequent trips, Andrew would only reply "So it begins...so it begins".

Garrett Carlson

USMC Ground

Garrett “Carly” Carlson is a great friend, solid athlete, and very average gamer who hails from the bustling city of Belfry Montana. A real man's man, if he's not laying down sick beats, destroying Plebes in basketball, or trying to pick up German girls, he can usually be found daydreaming about his herd of cattle while reading a library book that he still has checked out from Plebe year. Caught somewhere between George Straight and a lagging internet connection, this motivated Montanan aspires to one day lead United States Marines. Garrett will always be remembered for his devilish good looks and his love for the liberal arts. He will be truly missed by all those he graced with his presence during his four years by the bay.

Joshua Escobar

USMC Ground

Joshua Escobar, also often referred to as Swole-scobar is a native of Ocala, FL and a nuclear engineering major. Quite frankly, he is the most generous midshipman in the brigade. He would give you the shirt of his back, (if he wore one that day) or he would give you a spot in the gym and make you feel like you were just as big as him. He has adopted a new religion and reads from the “Swoly-bible” daily while doing his super-set. He has been mistaken numerous times for his teacher, Dom Mazzetti. His laid back personality and endearing spirit makes him appealing to everyone and he could make friends easier than puppy at a dog park. He is a man of refined taste and superior quality, often times strutting around DTA with his finely carved wooden cane (only for aesthetics) while smoking an expensive stogie. He sends it.

Patrick French

Surface Warfare

Known as the life of the party or simply the loudest person at the bar. Taylor French can take any night and turn it into one for the records.The only thing stronger than his desire to have a good time is his liver. If presented the opportunity it is completely believable that he would be able to turn an AA meeting into a drinking event. We are still yet to figure out if it is his quick wit, leprechaun looks, or simply the copious amounts of alcohol that has given him the ability to propose to over 5 different women, placing them all as back up plans for when his first marriage fails (Because in his famous words you have to marry for money twice before you can ever look for love). Despite being a lady killer he is one of the most solid dudes one can ever hope to encounter. He embodies “being for the boys” in every action he takes.

Brett Gentile

Surface Warefare Nuke

Lost one or two of your stripes? Not a problem, Brett Gentile could lend you one and still have more combined stripes than anyone on the past or present Brigade Staff. Don't let his smooth shave fool you, behind the baby-faced façade is the potential for a burly beard typical of only true Colorado mountain men. Brett was born clutching a coffee mug and has not set it down for the past 23 years. His first words were, “French-Pressed” and he only retires his coffee mug when faced with the opportunity to slowly sip a craft beer. As a Computer Science Major and Bowman Scholar, Brett's independent research project made groundbreaking progress in the fields of both, “Making sure that it's plugged in,” and, “Turning it off, and then back on again.” Loyal to a fault, Brett is one of the most compassionate and dedicated people that you will ever meet. Over the four years that he's been at the Academy, Brett has improved both this institution and the people around him tremendously, and the Nuclear Surface Warfare community is fortunate to be receiving an officer and person of his caliber."

Andrei Ghioca

USMC Pilot

"So much has been said and written about Andrei “2 Pep!” Ghioca, that one paragraph could never sum his achievements. A progressive in gender issues, Andrei was always quick to give everyone a fair shake. He is a purveyor of forbidden loves, and may have found his quinn in an unlikely place. A proud soon-to-be Marine, Andrei performed best during the gas attack portions of his Marine training, outperforming every normal person to ever be tracked. Andrei was always among friends, and quick to invite others to "get a salad or somethin". If you want to find him, it may be hard, because the gypsies are a nomadic race. But if you jingle your rubles just right and have an offering of vodka cran on hand, you just might be able to summon him for a bout of whale harpooning off the Ocean City coastline."

Hanna Gillcrist

Navy Pilot

Hanna is a girl who has all the tricks of the trade. If you've met her I'm sure you haven't forgotten the tall blondie with some of the bluest eyes you've ever seen. She is driven and hardworking, one of the strongest pretty girls you'll ever meet, but also knows how to have a lovely dinner with her best friends in DTA. Hanna has helped lead her team to victory and is a part of the "Bad Mom's Club" on the Navy Women's Swimming and Diving Team. She is one of the sweetest people you'll ever meet, but she would also be the first person to back you up in a fight if you ever needed anything. She is what some would call a lyrical genius when it comes to writing her own songs that have surprisingly familiar tunes, and her dance moves are sometimes so unique you've never seen them before in your life. Yet her charm and friendliness without a doubt still attracts a crowd and sometimes quenches the thirst of her and her friends. Hanna will be the life of the party, but at the end of the night will still be willing to help you through anything over a saucy slices of pizza and some ice cream. Hanna is loved by all, and will be missed very much by everyone she has met over the past four years

Lloyd Hansen

SEALs

"Forrest had a rough start at the Academy, where his long-lost dreams of becoming a diligent Supply Officer were utterly broken by his bad streak of Squad Leaders. Heart-broken and disappointed, our Aloha-wannabe philosopher hippie resorted, against his instincts, to the Infantry Skills team, where he finally discovered his half manhood. 'Floyd' quickly changed his entire lifestyle and embraced an unexpected combination of warrior and cyber warrior identities. When not rucking, PTing, or engaging in never-ending cycles of irrational arguments, our self-proclaimed pro-debater would be found deeply immersed in his hoodie and in his dark corner codin the night away. A well-known celebrity in DTA, Forrest will be forever remembered by his fans for his unsuccessful attempt to popularize the chonies, jeans, flip-flops, and the Hawaiian dad, I-bought-this-for-two-bucks, button-up shirt look. Beware! To cover up his love for a good chick flick, Forrest will throw out his classic will whoop your ass!" threats. A rock climber, guitarist, and a conflicted lover, Forrest enjoys life as long as his hemoglobin allows him to. A principled warrior, and against his heart's desire, Forrest is surely one of the best NSW selectees out there. Thanks for delighting us all those nights past zero dark thirty with your premeditated guitar jam sessions; we will surely miss them. Good luck in the teams, brother!"

Matthew Harrigan

Explosive Ordance Disposal

After getting cut from the lightweight crew team plebe year, Matthew "crap chat" Harrigan bounced back to have one of the most successful careers at the Naval Academy. Most notably dating a D1 athlete and getting a C in Plebe Leadership. Matthew is service selecting EOD because his favorite movie is "The Hurt Locker." "My Little Jibbit," what his D1 girlfriend refers to him as, can often be found on Wednesday nights at the Baltimore Casinos furthering his massive gambling addiction. When asked what he will miss the most about the academy he responded, "playing hockey with the boys and farting under my blankets and smelling it ... especially that." On the dance floor, Matt likes to completely disable his motor skills, and this complete lack of coordination should serve him well while disabling extremely dangerous ordnance in the Fleet. Matt will make a great officer because he is a great leader, teammate, brother. and of course has great hair...NOT.

Stephen Johnson

Navy Pilot

Stephen "FF" Johnson hatched from within the deep woods of Peoria, Illinois. He can often be found in his rack, where only the sound of a Poke Flute can awaken him. When out with the boys he can only last so long before his cold blooded nature drives him back to his rack. His incredible multi-tasking skills allow him to watch video games, play video games, and code video games at the same time, yet never finishing any of them. Rather than waste time at the gym, "Johnny" was often spotted at Nano's, chatting up the waitresses while eating enough Pad Thai for 12. It is recommended that if you are ever out of town, hide your girl, hide your wife, and hide your daughter, because Johnny might just swipe her.

Evan Jones

Naval Flight Officer

'God's gift to man, err... Science's gift to Science, Evan "Little" Jones can be usually found deep in his books and scatter plots. But don't be fooled by his "Little Bear" identity, for when he is not busy working for the Brigade's welfare as Lil'Suppo, or overseeing countless research projects, Derv comes out from his Quantum den as a whole different character. "Big Bear" emerges ready to have a great time amongst friends and shred the streets and establishments of DTA. Also known to us as a Legendary SnapChatter, Evan will frequently bedazzle his many fans as he jams the night away delighting us all with his master guitarist skills. As he continues his odyssey in this fast-paced world, we are sure that Little Jones will continue to faithfully offer a helping hand whenever and wherever it's needed, provide sound, logical arguments in every conversation, and update everyone on events/news that we were all aware of days ago. Best of luck in your Naval Flight Officer career, brother!

Ashley Lois

Naval Flight Officer

When you find a picture from when you were younger and cannot tell who is who...been there before. Let me introduce to you my better half, my partner in crime, my identical twin sister, and my best friend, Ashley Lois. And to answer your question, yes, we do have telepathic powers! It is a difficult phenomenon to explain, but it is true and incredible to experience. I have lived beside this girl since we were in the womb...and I can tell you she is something special. Her dedication and desire to succeed will make her unstoppable. The NFO community is lucky to have Ashley as part of their team. But beware, Ashley and I always find our way back together, so get ready for the pilot-NFO twin duo! I know the separation will be tough out there in the fleet, but I know our bond is like no other, and that will keep us stronger than ever. I love you so much twin.

Erick Lozano

Surface Warfare

'Born in the mountains of Ecuador and raised on the hard streets of the Bronx, Erick Lozano has found the transition to civilized life difficult but doable. Although he had to learn to not 'square up' to 'fools that be trippin', he managed to become a functioning and contributing member of the Brigade. He can be found north of Baltimore on the weekends, seeking his Tinderella, and finding solace in the wilderness while wearing his Ecuadorian wizard's robe. One remainder of his rough upbringing can be seen in his often sleeping in others' beds. Round as he is tall, Erick has graced Bancroft with his presence, often seen rolling through the halls, spreading cheer where he goes. We will never forget his immortal words, "Im frum da Brawnx". "

Madeline Manhertz

Navy Pilot

Calling all BBQ's!!! If you were looking for the best cakes in the Jackalope Jungle hit up 5001. A fan of conflict and mike's hard, Maddy is everyone favorite pessimist. Never one to turn down a turn uhhh, Madeline can be found surrounded by guys shooting a shot at a rimless hoop. If you can't spot the big haired beauty you'll be sure to hear her abhorrent voice echoing down the hall. Oh, was that word too big for you? Maddy loves to remind everyone that she's an English major by using unnecessarily large words in everyday conversation. Nevertheless, a valued member of the school community, Maddy managed to triple jump her way into nearly everyone's heart. She will continue to soar as she heads off to Pensacola as a navy pilot in June. #STAYWOKE #BBQ #LIT #Matriarchy #TeamNatural

Brendan Metcalf

Surface Warfare

"Brendan "Birddog" "Yee Yee" Metcalf, the doge, came to the Academy from the beautiful state of Virginia. Earning two high school diplomas, he was an extremely over qualified midshipman and boy did he sure act like it. He knew earlier on that one sleeps simply when tired. Although originally recruited to the Cross Country squad he settled on water polo ensuring that every opponent would leave the pool looking like a little boy. He has found a second home at the "Grill" and he can be found there on most weekends, Tuesdays, Thursdays, or really any free second. He will go home at all costs even if this means abandoning the QRF. The bathroom at his home will never be the same. He has a love for all food cheesy or crusty and always wants to shove it in peculiar places. Birddog possess the persona of Will Ferrell, is a blonde Burt Reynolds, but aspires to grow locks like Joe Dirt. Brendan is a stand up guy and although he is headed to a wooden ship he is surely an iron man! We love you Birddog! SHAKA!!!!!

Alexander Mueller

USMC Ground

Alex "Rattled" Mueller hails from the cult village of Wall, Texas. Mueller is best known for missing only one question on the reading SAT (wow!). Mueller has many passions including Navy Football, Tinder swiping, and supporting the liberal cause. Unfortunately, his prowess as a master debater does not extend to other areas of his life such as chess, but luckily Grandmaster Ghioca has agreed to tutor him. The only thing he enjoys more than learning the names of his company mates is getting awoken from one of his daily midday naps. Despite his best efforts to avoid falling prey to the notorious Mid-Hound, one particularly ferocious specimen sniffed out his fiery red hair and extensive wardrobe and managed to sink her teeth in. Sources say there may be a ring in the future.

Jules Murphy

Navy Pilot

Can't seem to find the words to express what's on your mind? That's okay, neither can Jules "Mules Jurphy" Murphy. When God made Jules, He was answering the prayers of the Navy Sprint Football team by sculpting a right leg of gold. A true Bahston Boy at heart, the Patriots, Red Sox, and Mark Wahlberg can rest easy at night knowing that Jules has defended their legacies at the Naval Academy. As a Chemistry Major, Jules spent over twenty-five hours per week making strides in emerging areas of research such as "Rocket League" and "Reddit." Over the past four years, Jules has developed an immunity to the effects of the alarm clock, but has also set records in being able to wake up, shower, shave, brush his teeth and get dressed all in 6 minutes. Jules is one of the most genuine and caring people you will ever meet; he leaves a lasting impression on everyone that he meets, and this company would not be the same without him. Jules has made this institution, and everyone arolnd him better by his presence, and his future squadron is fortunate to have someone like Jules flying with them.

Sarah Nantz

Navy Pilot

"For four years we were blessed with Maggie's kindness and management skills in our lives. She was the embodiment of service, selflessness, and courage in her actions as a faithful event planner, group outing organizer, and party mom. Above all she distinguished herself as the most affectionate and outstanding dog lover that earned the trust and respect of "the boys". As we all know, her heart beats for her little Golden Rosie, who we have all grown to love in Room 5021, where she is an Honorary Member. "Sarah Margaret", as rumor has it was her name at birth, will be the first in line to have a good time with friends, enjoy the outdoors, or go for a hike, bike, run, marathon, or any other means of self-torture. This Southern Maryland girl would've probably become the next adventure-seeking, Indiana-Jones-wannabe globetrotter and world traveler had the Navy not flung an enticing Aviator contract in her way. As a firm believer of the "Treat Yo Self" doctrine, Maggie will not hesitate to take any free time to travel to the most exotic and adventurous places on earth, neither will she ever decline a good piece of chocolate. We are certain that her great personality, exemplary friendliness, and indefatigable determination will follow her in her career path as successful Naval Aviator. Fly high, Maggie!"

Kyle Pettys

Navy Pilot

Kyle "The Sloth" Pettys quickly became known to the world of Bancroft as the nefarious "Dr. Peettys". Having taken us all by surprise, Kyle quickly earned an illustrious reputation as the Resident International Diplomat and Delegate Wooer of USNA. Dr. Peettys has proven to be an elite Group 3 Poli-Sci of the highest caliber, and has become what all others struggle to pretend to be: sincerely invested in their work. When he's not attending every single foreign affairs and leadership conference across the United States for his own hidden agenda and benefit, the Sloth continues his ongoing work for his second doctoral thesis titled: "A discourse on how to function while moving as slowly as possible without anyone noticing." Kyle's love for the outdoors and for his fellow conference colleagues have also earned him the title of "Mountain Lover", and there are few who can dispute his ability to lay down mad truths, arguments, and counter arguments against anyone, at any time, without notice. We are sure his determination, commitment, and dependability will take him to great places. We wish you success at Flight School and kill it in your career as a Naval Aviator, brother!

Bryan Puch

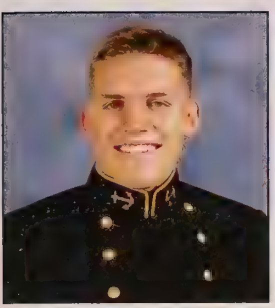
USMC Ground

He's the valedictorian and the anchorman, the first and the last, the Alpha and the Omega. Proudly introducing the "super senior" of the class of 2017.25 Bryan A. Puch. Commanding ships in the "struggle fleet" with me since NAPS when I first asked him if he'd ever seen the movie Fargo. I'm looking forward to sharing the title Marine with him and being at his wedding. We started from the bottom and - we're still kind of there... but we're moving on up.

Marleigh Ragni

USMC Ground

To quote Shakespeare, "Though she be but little, she is fierce." If she is around, chances are you've probably already heard her. She's got a voice she really knows how to project. You will find her quoting H. P. Lovecraft, and the writers of Wedding Crashers, Mean Girls, and The Big Lebowski. If cardio is involved, she will surely win. Did you know that flamingos are pink because of the shrimp they eat? Because she knows that along with a million other random obscure facts. Snakes, lizards, dragons, and Corgi's are just a few of her favorite animals. Her favorite food group is starches. She'll never turn down some taters, sushi rice, or bread rolls. Don't try to take her food, even if it has been sitting there for an hour, she will forever be, "still pickin' at it." You can't rush perfection and she will let you know that every time you're waiting on her. But above all she is loyal; more loyal than her 7 year old Golden, Rudy (who watches Catfish on MTV) and she's one of my very best friends. She is Marleigh Alice Ragni. Rah. Yut. Kill...Quantico ain't ready



Andrew Raves

Submarines

"Andrew, Lord Commander of the Weak Side, is a loud, conflicted, and compassionate scholar who selflessly dedicates his life to those smaller forms of life around him. Referring to his qualifications as a naval officer, James Webb once said that Andrew "drives fast cars, usually sports cars. He plays hard. He drinks hard. And he is physical, often belligerent... He is competitive, often vulgar, and tough..." Andrew is sharp as a tack and likes to throw around his knowledge of the world (in Turkish) and assorted pizza boxes, just to prove how wrong you clearly are. Quite the cultured man, Andrew has traveled to many far-away places and can demolish Bancroft's P-Ways and DTA's karaoke bars with his angel-like voice and classic, underrated, bright-blue shirts. His voice travels like the wind in a hurricane, speedily pointing out your fake news at the rhythm of his three well-practiced guitar songs. We are sure all the creatures of the deep will flee from you in your career as a Naval Submariner. Dive deep and rise quickly, brother!"

Dylan Riordan

Navy Pilot

Dylan Riordan is never afraid to tell you how he really feels. His penchant for heated debate and love of history has led some to believe that he may actually be an old man in disguise—but actually he is only 23. While his fascinations with the Desert Fox and Soviet Russia are slightly concerning, he has not yet yielded to authoritarian or communist ideologies. On the rare occasions he is sighted out in town, Dylan is always eager to share his dry humor, appreciation for satire, and dash of cynicism over a few drinks. Dylan has made his mark on Sixth Company and its members as a fantastic friend, squad mate, roommate, company mate, operations officer, and squad leader.

Ian Rosete

Navy Pilot

Ian Rosete. Renaissance man, philanthropist, professional aqua rock, pun-making master, the Ninong, humble man of past, present, future (the list is endless). As you can tell, he is a man of many talents. He can probably keep up an entire conversation by just using memes while eating 10 bowls of rice (don't touch his rice) in his elephant pants and slippers. He swears to alcoholic he's not God, but even his liver gets surprised whenever he drinks water. And if you're ever looking for him, just listen carefully and you can probably hear him from across the yard telling people about his trips abroad. Despite his craziness, you'll never find anyone as exciting as Ian Rosete. You want to learn how to enjoy life and take risks you never imagined? Go talk to Ian Rosete. You want to learn more about being self-independent and being able to survive in any country? Go travel with Ian Rosete. You want a friend who will always have your back, be realistic with you, and will out-petty anyone for you? Go be friends with Ian Rosete. He is a one-of-a-kind guy who can bring smiles and laughter into a room instantly. Any fish would be lucky to have him.

Jeanelle Seals

Surface Warfare

Jeanelle "Sleepy-eyes" Seals, hails from Hot-lanta and is guaranteed to be the sweetest Georgia peach one could hoped to come across. "Jen's" hobbies include capturing her company's most precious moments as photographer and PAO, showing our rivals who's got that good D(efense) on the Field Hockey pitch and smashing the Glass Ceiling. When she's not aggressively saving the planet one correctly-disposed-of plastic bottle at a time, one might find her actively avoiding the shadow of her older brother, a legend of the class of '15, "Senor Sealis". In any case, this SWO Mama loves her company, her friends, teammates and loves them deeply. In fact, her love literally knows no bounds and spread like a virus, across an ocean to Morocco, where she studied Arabic and became a refined woman for her 1/C fall semester. Despite her usually lifeless eyes, Jeanelle's inner spark is bright and infectious. She is kind and will always try to put a smile on your face. She is fearless and never shies away from a challenge or confrontation. She is dedicated and the Surface Warfare community would be wise to brace for this force of nature to join their ranks. She is destined for greatness and I challenge anyone to convince her otherwise. Fair winds and following seas!

Nicholas Segreti

Navy Pilot

Nick "Neck" Segreti was born with privilege on Long Island in 1995. From an early age, Nick was surrounded by strong women. From his social media-savvy mother, to his very involved girlfriend, Nick always had to spend a lot of time on Skype. Says Nick, "I always did all I could to keep them happy." Never known to be early, Nick would often take extra time to make sure he looked his best. A lifelong practitioner of the Arcane Arts, Nick always has a magic trick up his sleeve for the party. When not coding or browsing Reddit for the latest tidbit of useless information, Nick likes to take his Jeep for long drives on the beach. If he decides not to make a career out of being a pilot, there's always a future for him as a barista at a hipster coffee shop.

JAMES SHROPSHIRE

SUBMARINES

Trevor Shropshire brings the heart and soul of Tennessee to Annapolis. Whether he is wearing his Vols attire through Bancroft Hall or orange suspenders and bow tie to croquet you won't find a better friend to sing "Rocky Top" with at karaoke night. When he's not dreaming about Butch Jones Trevor is leading the 6th Company Fieldball team to victory. Caught somewhere between a sloth and bear this Deliverance inspired Midshipman plans on diving deep with the Submarine Corps upon graduation with a degree in Mechanical Engineering.

MASSIMO SMALDINO

NAVAL FLIGHT OFFICER

"Massimo "Unreal Tech" Smaldino is a good friend and better pirate. It is rumored that he once slayed the Orc of Red Beach with only his fingers. His mentor, Paul Schreiner, describes him as "the kind of Mid you would want to share a drink with." Always quick to take a grenade for a friend, Massimo displays courage rarely seen from a San Francisco resident. "I once saw him swing a log while dipping a full log. Simply incredible." says a local law enforcement officer. As a true pioneer in the chiller realm, his unfiltered comments often leave those around him with an agape mouth. Massimo will be joined in the NFO community with his twin, Mario. Scientists are attempting to translate their language, with little progress to report."

HANNAH SPERL

SURFACE WARFARE

"Hannah Jane Sperl. The girl, the myth, the legend – all of it is true. She is beautiful, smart, caring. She has hair that would make Fabio Lanzoni jealous. Her bun is thicker than a Chic-Fil-A milkshake (trust me, we measured). Her QPR is, well, it's so high that I don't feel that I have the right to ask her to quantify it for me. Her slap-happy laugh is quite memorable; it would certainly make Chesley "Sully" Sullenberger really nervous after his encounter with geese over the Hudson. Hannah is the most loyal, protective, and caring leader I've had the privilege to learn from. She will be remembered in YP Squadron not just as a former commodore or "the future Mrs. Blackadar," but more importantly, for the way she supported, encouraged, and provided for her subordinates in order to enable them to succeed. The Brigade will be a little less bright with her gone, and the surface Navy is fortunate to have such an incredibly talented, passionate, and creative leader."

TROY THOMPSON

SURFACE WARFARE

Unapologetically intelligent and selfless. The future Governor of Georgia and possibly President of the United States. Truly a man of action in all aspects of life. Never settles with mediocrity in any arena of his life but chases excellence to the fullest of his efforts. He is a friend beyond comparison, the definition of a ride or die brother. Affectionately known as Trizz by his brothers, he has his own business cards (that he stole from Floyd Maywether's brand). You will not meet another person with the combination of intelligence, humor, culture, confidence, and style that he has.

NATHANAEL WASIK

USMC GROUND

Nate "Yut" Wasik is the model Marine, perhaps too much so. Ever faithful to the rules, Nate makes sure that everyone is squared away and, as the tattoo on his lower back says, may not ever question command authority. When he's not silently PT'ing in the room wearing secretly headphone-filled beanies, he's soaking in the requisite video games, TV, and movie reviews for history "research." His sleep schedule evolved from nocturnal to downright erratic as he will sleep at one hour intervals randomly throughout the day or night on the couch, in his rack, or even in his chair so long as his facemask is handy. Always willing to grab a beer or share a pitcher, Nate makes a great DTA buddy, but we all know he hides a sharp knife hand in his never-before-washed jeans and black sweater that he secretly wears in 'The Room'. He loves inside jokes and ain't afraid to be a little weird for the sake of esprit de corps. Nathan's hard working ethic, dependability and friendliness will surely follow him in his career as a Marine Corps Officer, where we wish him the very best throughout all his years!

Jude Ampolini

USMC Pilot

Chronically late and habitually forgetful, Jude is still coming and still looking for it. At best, he is in the shower and, at worst, his car is still at the Westin. Whatever the case may be, you can be sure Jude is having a good time. From being the soccer mom of 2/C year, shuttling around his car-less buddies, to poppin' bottles with Bleu as a 3/C, he knows how to walk the walk, or rather, march the march. Sporting a smile, always, and whistling a tune, perpetually, Jude's infectious personally is "hundo-p." He has come a long way from being handcuffed in the back of a townie car as a Plebe to rocking four stripes on his cuff as a Firstie. Hey Jude has done it all from maxing the PRT to failing an alpha inspection. From serving as a company ADEO (obviously, the most coveted billet) to turning to the dark-side (but it is okay, we approve of MK). From achieving near perfect grades as an electrical engineer to falling prey to the unlikely clutches of a 'Nova wildcat...swerve (Jude is an excellent X-Wing pilot, too). Ultimately, Jude has maintained his wits through deep self-reflection, habituating Aristotelian virtues, and maintaining rigorous levels physical training (have you heard about his interval training?). Jude is a true warrior-monk and a Marine's Marine – do not let his soft smile and his baby blue eyes fool you. He is a man of simple pleasures; a Corona and some Jimmy John's will do. He is a man of mature tastes' dad jeans (with a shirt tucked-in, of course) and classic rock tickle his fancy. He is a man of collegiate education; he was in a frat you know! I guess the best place to finish is where it all began: from his days of youth, kicking soccer balls across the rolling hills of Georgia and hiking the trails of Appalachia, Jude was destined to achieve great heights. As a classmate, friend, and brother, Jude is unparalleled in his excellence. It sound cliché but Jude is one of a kind. One of the last true Renaissance men alive. Jude is the epitome of a leader of character and his sense of honor, courage, and humility will carry him to great success in the fleet. We are proud and lucky to call Jude our friend. The Marine Corps is lucky to have him ~ Semper Fi, brofessor. Air Assault. Strength and Honor

Alexander Barbaria

Explosive Ordance Disposal

The Academy was probably too easy for A.J. since he was trained in Sparta, educated in Athens, and rode Bucephalus on his way to conquering Persia. He conquered a few other places to include the 7th wing locker room, Anne Arundel Community College, and Leonardtown High. After expanding the empire, he doled out spoils to many of his peers – what a guy! In fact, he once boasted: "I am the party." He proceeded to take a sip of beer and sprinted back to the yard and was sound asleep by 10 PM. Whether or not A.J. has ever finished an entire 12 oz. beer in DTA remains a mystery. Underneath the out-of-regs mop on his head, there is a diabolical mind that could rattle off Supreme Court cases and rap lyrics seemingly at will. He's also known for his great analogies: "Her mind is less stable than the fledging political structure of Brazil" and "that speech was about as dry as the tongue of a camel after a caravan through the Rub' al Khali." Really, the only thing dry about A.J. was his sense of humor. He was literally too hard for jokes. What a badass. But not really - he is a mama's boy. I dare you to compliment the pasta in King Hall – he'll carry on about how his mother is the only human being on the planet capable of preparing a good bowl of past. If you are lucky, you might even get in-depth analysis of tribal behaviors and codes of honor in the Godfather and the Departed Who knew A.J. was an Italian-American from New York? Well, not NYC...but close. No, not a borough. Actually, he might secretly be from upstate. But don't say that, he gets salty. Like all decent New Yorkers, we are glad to see him end up in Florida albeit 60 years too soon. There is no doubt A.J.'s passion and work ethic will serve him well as an EOD officer. Leading by example, and leading from the front (on every PRT), A.J embodies the values of service, character, and the warrior spirit

Alexander Blink

Naval Flight Officer

There is more hair on Alex's chest than on the rest of the company combined. Though when you look at his head, you see where it all went. Yet Sasquatch is really more of a ghost, disappearing with ease and impossible to find in the room or a practice parade. Except when he gets drunk, then he haunts you and is too present. For a math major he sure cannot count his drinks, or CDO assignments, well. However the budding scientist does not limit himself to the "M" in STEM, raising fungal cultures in Tupperware in the room...or his feet. Alex's organizational skills are in an odd way amazing, turning a tornado into a passing room and back with a cyclic efficiency. A cyclic efficiently that also applied to his love life, until recently. To his and her roommates' despair, the self-supposed two sport athlete can catch and shoot...but not walk across Smoke Park. In the end though, Alex started a board game group, with the table he bought from Home Depot, and brought the room some of its unique characteristics. Alex is competent and dedicated to his work, and will serve the Navy well staring at the back of Blake's head.

Michael Brown

Surface Warfare

A Philly native whose guest house is bigger than the whole city of Houston, Michael "Drizzy Drake 6 God" Brown is as intelligent as they come. When he is not on romantic dates, he is probably reciting his favorite rapper Drake's lyrics or eating some kind of pasta. From the moment he was leading the plebes during chow calls stations, everyone knew he was going to become a force to be reckoned with at the Academy and in the Fleet. As only time could tell, "they" were right, and he was the first MIDN ever recognized by PERS41 as a future SWO leader in the spotlight! There is no doubt, he will bring honor, courage and commitment to the FLEET!

Kara Butler

Surface Warfare

Kara, K.B., Kar-ar-a, Mama Butler... she has many nick names but her full name is Kara Victoria Butler. She is a Political Science major that hails from the beautiful state of Alaska. I will never forget when I watched Kara struggle up the stairs on I-Day with her issued bag that weighed at least 30 pounds more than her. Little did I know that I was about to meet one of the most reliable, amazing, and beautiful people one could ever hope to encounter. During her four years here Kara has been a leader in so many areas at USNA including the Baptist Collegiate Ministry and our very own 7th Company. As an intramural warrior and a Zumba queen, Kara loves to work out and look good while doing it. In fact, she always looks good and has my vote for the best dressed girl in the class for 2017 When she's not shopping, church going, or cooking delicious food for dozens of hungry boys, Kara loves to run, read, and create incredible artwork. Kara, my friend, I know you will enter the fleet as a Surface Warfare Officer and take it by storm. Watch out San Diego, here comes a sassy, savage, woman of God who is going to be an incredible Naval Officer. Much love K.B - Joshua 1:9

Liam Catoe

USMC Pilot

Most introductions start off with a brief greeting followed by introducing yourself by name. Liam, however, is no ordinary man. Liam began his Naval Academy career with greeting his new roommates: "Hi, I'm from Texas". And well that statement isn't false, it isn't entirely true either. Liam is from Grand Forks, ND; Abilene, TX; Springfield, VA; Montgomery, AL; Colorado Springs, CO; Rapid City, SD; and last but not least: San Antonio, TX. Liam is the middle child of two Air Force Academy graduates and is quite familiar with the phrase: "You disappointment me, son". That is a lie, but you can imagine how two zoomies felt when their own flesh and blood proclaimed that he wanted to be a devil dog in middle school. Liam has been rocking the high and tight since plebe year. His passion for the rules and upholding the standards only come second to his passion for dank memes on Imgur and sharing funny Facebook videos with close friends. He is always the last one to go to bed in the room and the first one to pass out in any mandatory brief. Liam's love for the San Antonio Spurs and the Tampa Buccaneers is unparalleled with the exception of his special lady. The only difference is his love for his professional teams is undying and he still can't get a refund for that engagement ring. Like many of the members of 7th company, Liam enjoys a cold beer. Or two, or three But really, who is counting? DTA is a better place for having known drunk Liam, and many women are eternally grateful for this knight in shining armor flying in to protect them from the creepy mids that don't understand social cues. Although Liam enjoys a good time, he is one of the most dedicated and professional midshipmen that the brigade has been honored to serve with. His love for country and willingness to say it like it is demonstrate his ability to be a genuine leader. With Liam, you get what you see and we have no doubt that he is capable of being the second Colonel Catoe.

Blake Copeland

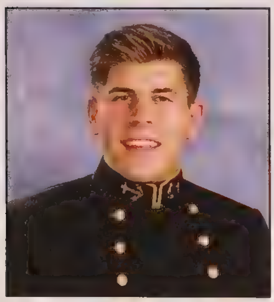
Navy Pilot

Blake Copeland has both the biggest heart, and the biggest baby face, of anyone on the Yard. The only thing larger than his love for his friends and family is the amount of food he needed to eat in order to support being an offensive lineman. Blake is amusingly argumentative and one hell of a board game fanatic. Though not a drinker, Blake knows how to hang out with the guys and have a lot of fun; especially when Star Wars happens to be involved. Blake may have been raised a football player, but he's also a valuable resource for economic information, as investment is an avid passion of his. Quick to laugh and never one to pass up on an adventure, Blake is just as comfortable watching movies at the mall as he is wandering around Baltimore looking for Pokemon. Strong, self-assured, and reliable, Blake is an incredible friend who's always ready to put on a pair of tiny trunks and take a trip to the pool. Blake Alexander Copeland is a good-hearted, loveable, Challenger driving giant, and his friends are lucky to have him around.

Daniel Coyne

Surface Warfare

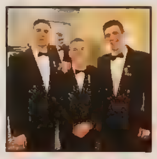
Blink and you might miss Daniel whizz by in his super sporty, super fast...Ford Focus? Though maybe his new whip isn't as cool as her new ring, just try to find him during liberty hours. Go on the new Navy-Towson Shuttle, service every Tuesday/Thursday 1800, and Friday 1300. I can't ever find him studying English, that's fo sho. Can't catch him studying aeronautical engineering either. And how did Navy pilot turn out? Really, some people take a "Come to Jesus Moment" literally. Memories of the January night when it all came to a head, picking USS Rose out of Norfolk, Virginia. Errr, that's at least how everyone else remembers it. No, but for real, Daniel is ever the philosopher on the intricacies of pastries, namely the Coyne's law and BTGI; the subtleties of his favorite country music, Kendrick Lamar's drawl is spot on the same; and all sports, literally all of them...I can't even make a joke here. Rumor has it he even dabbles in chess, among other things you would not expect (did anyone else buy The Watch Officer's Guide?) Overall though, Daniel Coyne is dedicated, clever, loyal, and downright personable. Seriously, if he can hit it off with a gate guard arresting him, he can hit it off with any sailor. Eventually, we'll see him running a casino in his native Las Vegas, Nev-ah-da (totally pronounced that way), his panda at his side, and looking exactly like all of his friends from home.



Michael Daniels Vassallo

Surface Warfare Nuke

In 2013, Mike Vassallo walked into MacD at 165lbs hoping to get as big as his better looking roommates. He found the pot of testosterone that many have sought and walked out four years later as 200lbs of straight Italian luxury (Versace). His hobbies include breaking up with girlfriends, forgetting to be an engineer, and taking care of the best looking flow in the brigade. Versace is as good as they come at sleeping anywhere and anytime—other than in his rack...at night. If you're looking for him at 4am, he may be on your couch, in the "wardroom," or getting a head start on his hour long morning shower. Eventually, the Navy caught on to the best kept secret around—he can actually do math, so they called him to the nuclear navy. They even realized he was broke and gave him 15K to do it. Mike would jump out of a building for any one of his friends or his family, who are the most important people in the world to him. He is a friend to the few, a brother and son to the proud, and the envy of all.



John Davin

USMC Pilot

"Hey, is John in?" "He's asleep." "But it's 9:30." "Yep." John is unquestionably the most well rested Trident Scholar in USNA history; credit that to his laser-focus and lack of hobbies outside of his car. As a mid, John drove what some consider the ugliest car ever created: a Nissan Juke. Now he has an Infiniti, so still a Juke, but now he has leather seats. He's the fourth and last of his brothers to graduate from USNA, and he will be ranked higher than all of them. That really doesn't mean anything though, since his brothers were group 1 while John coasted by as a group 2. When he's not sleeping, he can be found trying to mooch KB's gummy bears or in MacD, checking out his gains in the mirror. He spends his time on the weekends tearing up the dance floor at the house he made lit again: Buddy's. After graduation, I have no doubt that John will continue pursuing excellence in every part of his life. He has always been a daring leader, hard worker, and steadfast friend. Go get the juice, brother.

Rachel Feldman

Surface Warfare

Midshipman 7th Class Rachel "Feldy" "Fled" "Ratch" Feldman of the Delta Company was born and raised in California. In the summer of 2013, Feldy decided that she had enough of her life on the West Coast (but really just enough of her ever-adoring mother, Wendles) and decided to get as far away as possible. On June 27th, she was welcomed to the lovely town of Annapolis for summer camp. Despite her horrendous mushroom head haircut, oompa loompa tan, and an ankle surgery that sidelined her for the majority of her first college soccer season, Plebe Year progressed rather smoothly for 4/C Feldman. The only rough spot to note is that one time she did one-way P-ways on crutches and refused, due to her unyielding principles, to take the elevator. The first hot morning of preseason during her youngster year, she slipped on her new under armor Navy soccer spirit gear and she hasn't taken it off since Firstie year finally arrived, and MIDN LCDR Feldman's quest for power has finally been fulfilled as her name blares through both the Bancroft Hall 1MC on her MOOW days. However, she still manages to sprain her ankle in virtually any situation. Moreover, she is so multitalented that she speaks Spanish during Arabic presentations, plays remarkably at tennis (remarkably bad, but that's not important), and can run 100 miles two weeks after a marathon. We're excited to see what she'll accomplish in the Fleet with her wonderful balance of dry humor, boundless energy and strength, and unquestionable competence Don't ask her to celebrate over drinks, though--she might have a soccer game in three months.

Hugo Gomez

Submarines

Midshipman Gomez is no stranger to enforcing standards. The Plebes still fear him when he walks the P-ways. Even his younger brother received a "real Plebe year" treatment from him. But he knows when to turn off and on "the switch", a prime example being switching his desired service selection from Seals to Subs. He is most well known for bringing Nutella to the brigade, ordering the BATS from Sofi's Crepes and being seen on the weekends at Buddys, which he made lit again.

Gabriella Gonzalez

USMC Ground

aby "speedy" Gonzalez is a fire cracker. There's no photo evidence but we are pretty sure she came out swinging. Learning from the feisty rhythms of her Miami upbringings, she doesn't take any crap from anyone. She has the biggest heart you'll find, both in love and cardiovascular activity. In case joining crew wasn't rough enough, she decided to ride bikes up and down large hills instead, several times leaving some of her flesh behind. She's a little nerdy- who thought Cyber was actually fun? – but hey, we love her just the same. Who else would work as hard and sacrifice as much for her friends as this go-getter. She likes her workouts tough, her hair tight, her jokes loud, and her laughter louder. I don't think the Corps knows what's coming. Get ready, get set, "mush Gaby mush"! YUT!

Nelson Gorrick

Navy Pilot

Bruh. Dude. Swag. Oh sh*t. Belson Borrick. Have you seen him taking photos yet? No? Maybe look a little lower. At a towering 5'2" Nelson is the biggest ball of pure muscle you'll meet that doesn't work out. Catch him out at buddys in his issued New Balances sporting a button down buttoned all the way to the top. Chances are he's the asexual one glued to his phone. Did you know that he holds it in his hands even when he sleeps? You'll know when he's drunk because he'll start tagging you in instagram photos...maybe even slide into your DMs. And if you don't like this yearbook you're reading, then you can blame him, he's the Lucky Bag president! This fashionable young officer is off to Pensacola to pursue the chiller sides of the navy. An aviator in demeanor if nothing else. Nelson is sure to find success in his skyward endeavors and all his pursuits in the days to come. Bruh.

Megan Hartman

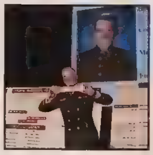
Submarines

Megan "Mama Bear" Hartman is one of the fiercest friends a person could ask for. Having come directly from NAPS, Megan took no sass from anyone and had no fear standing up to the detailers. She proudly declared that she would become a naval aviator and that she wanted to join D&B, neither of which lasted long. She decided to switch to flying under the water when she failed both the naval aviation proquiz and ground school. D&B was dropped for the sailing team after a summer of OSTS. 1/C Hartman can do it all, she's a swing dancing machine, drinks those dark and stormies like a sailor, snatches like a beast, and early selected subs. As a math major, she is one of the most rational people I know, except for using her Nuke bonus to buy a plane ticket to Alaska with three day's notice. Megan is going to crush it in power school and wherever she goes after that (hopefully not Guam). While I can't wait to live on my own, I would totally live with you forever and ever amen. I love you and am so proud of you. Proverbs 18:24.

Meghan Hubley

Surface Warfare Nuke

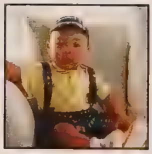
Meghan Hubley better known as Huey/Huepants/Meg/Hubley/Hue is finally leaving USNA as the speediest defender that Navy Women's Lacrosse has ever seen. Not only is she the speediest, rumor has it that she is also Coach Cindy Timchal's favorite. Known as the girl with the best ID picture in the brigade. Huey has had her ups and down, but she always comes out on top. One might say that Huey's brightest moment at this fine institution was on her 21st birthday. She claims to "not remember" but we all know that having her teammates physically hand her over to her parents was one of the best nights of her life. Besides her 21st birthday mishap, this girl has had her fair share of adventures and for some reason the adventures just don't stop for her. Between NOLS (when she had to save her best friend from a crevasse...or a deep hole in a glacier for those who don't know), DTA, and Cindy Timchal, this girl has really gotten the full USNA experience. We can all agree that Huey has been personally victimized by Cindy Timchal on more than one occasion, but she has become a better person because of it. We will miss this brainy girl as she heads out to the great city of San Diego to become a Nuke SWO. We are positive that she has left a lasting impact on this place and will never be forgotten. We love you Two-Zero!!!! WAWG.



Christian Jaunich

Surface Warfare Nuke

While not much is known about this behemoth hailing from the Scandinavian hills, one thing was made clear plebe year, he will never leave his classmates behind. Despite his near perfect recall of Reagan's Rendezvous with Destiny speech, Christian seemed destined for his own rendezvous with destiny when he proudly exclaimed that yes, our reef points do in fact have "sandblower" in them. Although some may remember Christian for his uncanny ability to show up and "Jaunich" in your room which generally might end with an attempt to choke you out, I will forever remember his constant dedication to supporting the fine downtown establishments known as Moe's, Sofies, and Iron Rooster. Albert Einstein once said that the definition of insanity is doing the same thing over and over and expecting a different result. In Christian's case, his desk is still dirty, and his laundry still smells, but for some reason he thinks that next time we will pass our bravo inspections. After four long, difficult years of living with this lovable giant, I can't think of a finer man to lead our sailors on the seven seas. Whether it's in the engine room or the bridge, we will all be safer for having him on our side. Fair Winds and Following Seas brother.



Jordan Kangwijaya

USMC Pilot

Jordan Kanjiwaja...Kawijia...Kangjawajawija-a...uhh, Kiwi, has the body of a Greek God: jacked and hairless. His days are spent atop Mount MacD, because he's better at that than at school. If you want the true secret to his physical prowess, ask him about his forearms...after all they are the most visible part of his body. Though his young days are already numbered with the onset of many aches and ailments (aka weakness), he still possesses a badger-like determination; whether trying to get the wifi password at Fleet or finding a date to Ring Dance, he still manages to succeed. His renowned Asian driving skills always makes "Tiguan Time" an excitement. If you survive long enough to chat with him youprobablywillnotbeabletounderstandhimanywaybecausehespeakssoslowlyandclearly. Speed that he wishes could translate to the slopes or to his runs. Despite his valor in the great Windows Wars 1 and 2, Jordan will be most remembered for his exploits on the virtual battlefields—watching other people play games rather than doing so himself. Additionally, his sense of thriftiness serves him well; he needs every penny he can spare to maybe one day win a hand of Blackjack. Besides, those used shoes won't buy themselves. Born to soar the skies in the Marine Corps, Jordan Kangwijaya sleeps like a corpse Still, he is one of the greatest individuals you will ever meet. Whether it's giving rides...into concrete barriers, fitting three people into a room with one bed, or simply to hanging out with, just let him use the bathroom first. Jordan is an amazing friend, infinitely patient roommate, and a brother to most, father to Derek. We can't wait to see where the future takes him.

Shaquil Keels

Surface Warfare

Shaq Keels is a name that most people at the Academy might recognize. From serving as President of the Surface Navy Association to spearheading Vice President Joe Biden's It's On Us program as the service academy liaison, Shaq has had a positive impact on the Brigade throughout his time here. However, if you ask Shaq, the pinnacle of his success lies in the amount of Instagrams he was able to post with his beloved Joe or the number of times he was able to skip class to visit the White House. If he is not at the White House, and you still can't find him, then check his Snapchat to determine his whereabouts. In true Snapchat king fashion, Shaq never misses a day without posting a myriad of pointless videos of his daily life, to include him (badly) singing along to 90s rap music. Originally from Philadelphia, Shaq came here four years ago with a drive to make a difference, and he has been quite successful. Shaq, like the true SWO-tivator he is, cares deeply about the people around him and always strives to make the environment a better place

RUTHVIK KUMAR

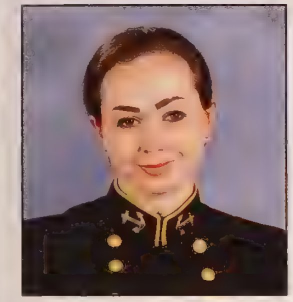
NAVY PILOT

Ruthvik's Naval Academy carear started at Plebe Summer much like everyone else's: clueless ("What's a shelf peg?"), physically strenuous ("My starboard brain hurts."), and...exciting? (The infamous Blue and Gold). From there he could only go up, and so he tried, from falling asleep to the answer to a question he asked, to wearing PT gear to King Hall. But that was as a foolish Plebe. As Second Class he resisted the call of the bottle whether at West Point, Towson, or Bancroft. Where can you find Ruthvik now? In his fancy chair in front of his computer any time day or night. Unless he spills milk on it. Ruthvik is well known for being very smart—in very narrow fields. He can design an airplane, but can't find his phone in his own pocket. He can code wing bending moment analysis, but can't cook on a hotplate in the room without setting off the smoke alarm. He can tell you anything about Game of Thrones, but not the difference between BB-8 and Poe Dameron. There is no one like Ruthvik Kumar. For all of his faults, his a loyal friend and I am happy to have lived with him for four years. I will miss having you there a few feet away, even if silent, totally ignoring me and everything in the real world, outside the computer, outside the room. The Mercury or Helo squadron he ends up at will be lucky to have him...if he doesn't fall asleep at the stick.

ROBERT MARSHBURN

SUBMARINES

Raised on a several thousand acre timber farm in an 18th century manor home and the son of a retired Colonel and current doctor Robert "Bob" "Bobby" Marshburn had a relatively humble upbringing. Throughout his teenage years, Robert primarily devoted his time towards one major goal playing football at the collegiate level. After his Plebe year, he decided that his goal was fulfilled and that it was time to move on to much more pressing matters. earning a BS in Chemistry and consuming alcohol as regularly as possible His 3.6 CQPR is evidence that he successfully attained the first goal and his self-proclaimed "dad bod' is evidence that he accomplished the second, though he was voted the most attractive of his roommates... by his roommates. When not partaking in drinking. Bob likes to spend his time avoiding MacD at all costs because it's always PRT (pert) season and being absurdly stingy so that he has more money to blow on alcohol, his girlfriend, Lauren, and slickdeals.com. "If you don't buy it, you're losing money" has come to be his mantra. Despite his stinginess, one could never mistake Bob for a selfish individual. He is always quick to offer to buy friends, acquaintances, or even strangers a drink.. provided those drinks are free-of-charge at an all-inclusive resort Bob and Lauren are both Chemistry majors, and anyone who knows these two lovebirds can attest that they do indeed have "chemistry." They are all but inseparable.. that is until Bob has one too many drinks at Fleet. You see, some people are angry drunks or sad drunks or promiscuous drunks. Bob is a wandering drunk. He will simply get up without a word and disappear, leaving his roommates, girlfriend, and friends clueless, only to pop up hours later with squinty eyes and a smile on his face. One never knows when this disappearance could occur because while his friends are socializing, Bob is sneakily consuming at least twice as many drinks as they are. Thankfully, it is extremely difficult to get lost on a submarine All things aside, there is no doubt that Bob will excel in Nuclear Power School, as a Submariner, and in all his future endeavors More than likely he will end up being the 9th, yes 9th, M D. in only two generations of Marshburns P.S. "What is a Marshburn?"



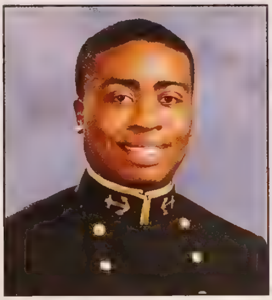
JESSICA MILLER

MEDICAL CORPS

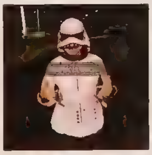
Sprung straight from the surly suburbs of Southeastern Virginia, this overflowing fountain of swift wit and genuine solicitude first took hold of the Academy's brass-plated door knockers in the Summer of 2013. Given that both her parents served as Naval Officers, Bancroft was certainly a homely house for her. In her free time, she also gave the occasional jab both on the Fencing team as a foilist, and off as an irreverent but articulate midshipman dissatisfied with the status quo. Her reign of satire began shortly after Induction Day when Plebe Jess began illustrating and editing for the Academy's foremost publication, The LAAAAAWG. As a 2/C, Jess became the youngest Editor-In-Chief in the 104-year history of the Magazine, showing once again that age certainly does not matter to her. Her firstie year put her squarely into a contest with a most formidable beast; nevertheless, she persisted. In the Fleet, Jess hopes to do what she has always done best: take care of people and express her opinions

KENNETH MOUTON

SURFACE WARFARE



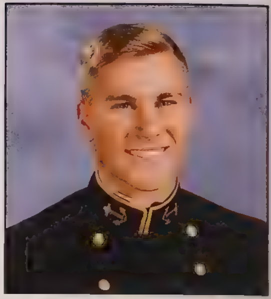
When Kenny Mouton showed up to NAPS in 2012, the Navy had to custom make a cover to fit his head--not because he's arrogant...he just has a big head. This warfighter has been at battle with the North East from the moment that he left South Florida. A native to the tropics, he doesn't take too well to being cold Yet when it gets too hot in the summer, he models his behavior after the glaciers and moves at a pace so slow that he couldn't possibly break a sweat. This fierce and ferocious battle has led to a five year retreat to the promised land: Dallas, Texas. Kenny, or sometimes referred to as K-Mou, spent three years deliberating which ex he should keep around. and in the process, he found a new girl just up the stairs. If anyone is looking to for some extra cash, he will gladly pass on his duty to you. CMOD? CDO? You name the price, he'll get it to you. Unless, of-course, his watch falls on a Forrestal...in which case, he'll pay you so he can keep it. K-Mou, like any good high achiever, has always wanted to own a world record, so he set his sights on the record for the largest collection of unworn shoes. If he could just get another 2/C loan, he might be able to get there. A normal conversation with Kenny usually involves him trying to convince you that Tom Brady is a god among mortals, that Kenny really is Kendrick's older brother, or that "that North Korean joker" really needs a new haircut. Living with Kenny does come with its advantages, the biggest of which is that he will scare all predators away at night with the freight-train impression he makes when he sleeps. The world better watch out, because one of the most genuine dudes around is coming right at it. His loyalty to his family and friends make him someone that I want by my side through the fun times and the tough times



DEREK NGUYEN

USMC GROUND

When he's not sleeping, or with Jordan, or in Jordan's room.......he is probably playing World of Warships with Jordan. Derek's ambitions and consistency are larger than life, just like he is. He joined the Academy wanting to be a SWO, and bought a pin as a symbol of the commitment...until he decided the Hudson River suited him better...and then bought a flight suit for his future as a Naval Aviator...which gave way to MARPATS...and now just a cool scar on his leg. Regardless of the uniform, his chest will always be decorated with Airborne wings, just watch out below. With unmatched determination, Derek showed his amazing ability to manipulate the system, spending a semester in France without even the language proficiency. It there, (not Ring Dance) and his classified expedition to the Rhine (and to other European Countries....shhhh), that the world met the connoisseur of fine spirits, like Spirits the ordained minister found while here. Both turned out well, with videos of the former, and a boot to boot on the latter. Financial management is a forte; whether a restrained, frugal 21st birthday, or holding on to Benjamins, as in the literal, physical dollar bill, at the casino. In managing other's money, he provided 7th Company with its first real dining out at an affordable price with proper refreshments and portions. Derek's managerial acumen and fanatical enthusiasm will serve wherever he ends up, we still don't know, well. With his family's love and support reciprocated, Derek will make his father Jordan and the rest of us proud. Throughout his time at the Academy, Derek has proven that his willpower and determination can carry him through anything. With the heart of a lion, and the grades of a B-sian Derek is the best friend anyone could ask for. He will make a great Marine and he will be missed by everyone. Semper Fi Brother!



MICHAEL PENTALERI

NAVY PILOT

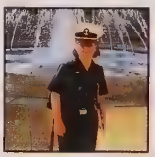
Jacked Mike? Big Mike? Who? Ohhh the pretty one? Yeah, that's him! Being the finest man in the Navy is no easy task for Michael James, but he happily puts in the work to claim the top spot. Have you seen him flex in the mirror yet? Oh how about that beautiful face when he concentrates hard on pulling that oar! Too jacked for the lightweights, Mike finally made the right decision his 1/C year to go heavy. His roommates and the bars of Annapolis can't thank him enough for that! Ladies, have you seen his car? He loves it more than he loves you. What about his steering wheel? He'd be happy to let you take his desk for a ride around the track. Now a guy this cool couldn't be stuck underwater or in some far off desert, no Mike is going back to his native Florida to become a Navy Pilot! The Navy is lucky to have an officer and gentleman like Michael, he is sure to meet great success in all his endeavors both in the fleet and beyond.

ALEJANDRO PEREZ

NAVY PILOT

Hailing from the tropical U.S. Virgin Islands, there is nothing pure about Alejandro Gabriel Perez. From the beaches of Cancun to the wardroom of Seven, nowhere is safe. He has no trouble with the ladies: check off three different company-mates' Ring Dance date, crush, and fiancé's roommate. And yet...he went to Ring Dance stag. Alejandro, however excels in his billets, from ADEO corporal clamping down on underage drinking to ADEO officer clamping down on drinking in a parked car. He also excels in investing, who else could turn a profit by totaling their whip? Beneath the tough, perennial 5 o'clock shadow and heavily styled, flowing black hair, is a soft sweet boy who legitimately cares about his friends...after his hour long shower. Alejandro can be depended on to go out to watch an animated Disney movie or be a fashion advisor, just don't block his car in or you can expect a flurry of insults. Ride with him to hear a Puerto Rican born, Belgian raised, Crucian belt out country music. We will miss his distinctive chpz and "Santa Maria" as he follows all of his friends down to Florida for flight school. His squadron will be lucky to have someone so personable, dedicated, and downright good natured.

MADINA PETASHVILI



SURFACE WARFARE

Madina Petashvili (aka PETA) is Turk-ish, American-ish, NAPster-ish, Midshipman-ish, and soon to be officer-ish. She is a fierce Russian with a voice so distinctive that you can hear her all around Annapolis as she yells "LEFT, LEFT, LEFT, RIGHT!" Do not mess with this girl, let me tell you. However, on her more conservative side, Madina is a sweet, down-to-earth woman who genuinely loves getting to know people on a personal level. She perseveres through all obstacles that come her way, and knows how to work hard, but also play hard. Madina studied Computer Engineering here at the Naval Academy. She is going to commission as a Navy Ensign in the Surface Warfare community where she will take her fierce attitude to the seas. Corn DEE Muffin'!

STEPHEN PHILLIPS

NAVY PILOT

We all remember the adage from Plebe Summer about how long we've been in the Navy. However, for MIDN CAPT (ret.) Stephen Phillips, well, let's just say he's special. His reads as follows: All me bloomin life, sir! Me mother was Mother B, me father was Col Zeus
I was born on the P-ways of 5-2 and rocked by the roar of a chow call. White works and blues are me clothes. Every tooth in me head is an anchor; the hair on me head is mandatory (like breakfast). Every bone in me body is a spar, and when I spits, I spits tar!
Ise hard, I is, I am, I are! From his earliest beginnings as a chicken-necked plebe, to the only slightly less chicken-necked Brigade Commander, we will all remember Steve as the loudest in the room; however, he was usually the only sane one too. That being said, rank hath its privileges, mostly found on the dance floors of Fed House and Dillos. Whether getting hit on in the bars of New York or burlesque clubs in Oklahoma City, Steve likes to keep his relationships long lasting, mutual, and all the way up to Ring Dance. If you ever need a good laugh ask him about his marathon time...or his run in's with Annapolis PD on Spirit Missions. But while Saint Steve may not totally live up to his moniker, he is ever the greatest friend someone could ask for. No one else can pull off Taylor Swift car-ride snapchats with such skill and passion, nor host such killer parties (that is, when he doesn't cancel them), but his insistence on 17 second keg stands is a bit much (I guess his stomach can't handle the motivation). The Brigade is losing their biggest fan and Navy Football games just won't be the same without him (even if he did lose to army for the first time in 15 years), but knowing Stove, he'll be back, probably as Commandant. But first, he's going to wreak havoc in the skies. Carry on my wayward son

CHELSEA PIXA

SUBMARINES

Chelsea Pixa is a beloved member of the women's soccer team. Her hobbies include engineering, salad eating, and being in relationships. For some reason people still like hanging out with her even though she can't spend a few bucks to go to dinner...ever....even with the sub bonus. Beyond being smart enough to early select submarines, Chelsea is also an extremely gifted athlete. She's so talented that she actually had to get stitches after she fell off of a weight machine in Wes B. She was voted most likely to be a trophy wife by her teammates, which seems appropriate, because she's probably the only person ever to succeed at getting a date from a Swarovski employee at the mall. All in all, Chelsea is a smart, talented, and compassionate person, and she is going to do big things as a submarine officer. I can't think of a better person to serve with than her.

Matthew Robbins

USMC Ground

If you've ever shared a bed with Matt Robbins you should know not to expect the covers. Regardless of this critical flaw Matt can be relied on for pretty much anything. Sailor, running partner, history major, life counselor, expert foosball player, and even better dancer, Matt can pretty much do it all. He walks around with an ever-present smile and can only go about five steps before saying hello to someone he knows. A genuinely caring and charismatic guy Matt spends his time winning races for VOST, writing award winning essays and attempting to max the PRT. If you ever find yourself bored, challenge Matt to a racquetball game. He's quite the opponent, well, at least he tries hard. There are a lot of Marine Corps officers out there, but I know Matt will be better than the best of them. If he doesn't become the Commandant then I'll expect him to be the next Ken Read. Through thick and thin Matt will stand by your side, unflinching, confident, and ready to catch you when you stumble. Without a doubt, he is a friend to countless, a role model for many, and, if you ever get to meet him, a man you will never forget.

William Rudiger

Navy Pilot

If you haven't found out that Billy Rudiger, more formally known as William Hampton Rudiger III, is from Carmel (pronounced Car-MEL) California within the first five minutes of talking to him, then you should probably get your hearing checked. The Big Sur enthusiast spent much of his time at the Academy looking at Big Sur on Google Earth when he wasn't pretending to be president of the sailing ECA, flying planes, or taking pictures for Lucky Bag. He somehow used Aerospace Engineering to get three straight summers of internships in Monterey, California while we rarely saw him doing homework for any of his classes. Billy will no doubt make an excellent Navy Pilot and we are sure he will eventually make his way back to the west coast.

Michael Smallberg

Surface Warfare

Despite his status as a native of the "City of Angels," there is nothing "religious" about Michael. Nothing except that he worships RBG, religiously frequents the church of gains for "vanity exercises," and makes the annual pilgrimage to his hometown for the Los Angeles Marathon. Impressively, Lord Bergsmall trekked to the far off hinterlands of Minnesota to participate in a 100 miler. He's so cool. But don't let his workout regimen fool you – he is familiar with the yellow measuring tape of marking officers everywhere. Anyway, Michael is so filled with the spirit that his feet have literally never touched the deck here in Mother B. Literally, the bare soles of his feet have never touched ground (low carbon footprint). Surely, Mike is too humble to ever reveal this fact (did he tell you how he goes to grad school yet?) But if you ask him, especially after a night out at Fleet, he will practically glow red with pride...UMD Terps Red. This type of pride allows one to thrive as a company adjutant, pursue Falcons from sea to shining sea, and to never give up the ship – especially after Pre-Comms. Despite his quirks, Mike is an okay dude. He is a mediocre dancer with a brilliant penchant for life and watch bills. His head is big, literally and figuratively, and it is because his brain matter is literally just bigger and better than ours. He will be an asset wherever he serves Mike is rational, intelligent, and professional. He's a beloved classmate and we are glad to call him our friend. We have no doubt he will engineer his way to success'

Evan Stargel

SEALs

Evan James "I can't believe someone left me a 'stubborn' comment, I'm the least stubborn person ever" Donaldson Stargel is a simple southern man. He was born in Louisiana, raised in Kentucky, and is a diehard fan of Florida State Football (not basketball) and UK Basketball (not football). He is the 3rd of 7 children and the eldest boy. Evan was homeschooled for the entirety of his childhood and teenage years, except for 5th grade. This time actually solidified his desire to be homeschooled all the way through high school, because "kids at normal school are dumb." Being homeschooled and growing up in an extremely small and tight-knit town with traditional southern values led to a bit of a culture shock upon arrival at the Naval Academy. In the wise words of the Grammy Award winning rapper, Drake, Evan went "0-100 real quick." Just as Evan has an affinity for a specific type of protein powder (ONLY strawberry), so too does he have an affinity for a specific type of woman. He likes his women the same way he likes his favorite pair of running shorts: super short, lightweight, and flexible. When Evan is not busy lackadaisically making Supe's List every single semester, he enjoys getting punched in the face repeatedly by muscular men, snoring like a MAC truck due to his obliterated nasal bones, obsessively working out, staring at himself in the mirror as he obsessively works out, and proving to everyone and anyone that anything you can do, he can do better. Oh, you can throw a baseball 100 yards? He can throw it 101. You can rep 135 on the squat rack 50 times? He can do 51 reps. You can drink 16 mimosas at Metropolitan? He can drink 17...wait, actually no he can't. You can pretend to pull tequila for 4 seconds? He will actually drink for 5. This tenacious and competitive nature has led Evan to earn prestige as a Brigade Boxing Champion and a SEAL select. Only someone with his level of insanity and motivation would regularly embrace the type of workouts that solely consist of "a %@!&-ton of burpees" or 3 miles of weighted lunges uphill both ways in the snow. All things aside, the SEAL community will be lucky to have an individual as headstrong and determined as Evan. There is no obstacle too great for him to conquer

Emily Troelstra

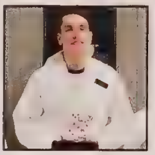
Surface Warfare

There is so much to say about this wonderful company-mom-turned-SWO-mama. She is an immensely talented athlete (despite what the PMO board would have you believe), a compassionate leader, and dedicated friend. She came to the Academy as a track star--she was no stranger to having obstacles in her path, as she ran hurdles the entirety of her plebe year. However, she ultimately realized her calling was to lead the 7th Company Intramural Ultimate Frisbee team to the Brigade Championship. She speaks close to fluent Chinese, as she spent a whole semester abroad there perfecting her language skills and, more impressively, learning how to run half-marathons in Beijing smog. However, her travels and athleticism do not express the full extent of what defines this wonderful human being. Emily, everyone who has ever crossed your path has sensed your love, and knows how truly awesome you are. You have flourished here, with your unstoppable drive, knack for leadership, and heart of gold.
Although we're still not sure if she knows what an E-8 in the Marine Corps is quite yet, there is no doubt that she'll be a killer SWO Mama.

Thomas Warner

Submarines

Try to get a word out of Tom Warner, and you will fail. Try to get a complete EDM song out of Tom Warner, and you will fail. Try to restrain Tom Warner's more...animal instincts, and you will fail. This Boston born boy from a pious Catholic family is known for his restraint from the vices of alcohol, tobacco, and loose women. Turn-up Tom (King Tut) cannot be found prowling the streets or college campuses...because he simply cannot be found until the next morning. A healthy run around the stadium does not end with sneaking into Seven-eleven for a can of Copenhagen. Bridget and College Park or Maria and Swarthmore are of no particular significance to him. Tom keeps mind and body clean, whether it is the sock in the corner of his rack for...dusting? Or a CMOD logbook and watchbelt for...keeping MK's deck secure. He is also the paradigm of honesty, like the time that the Academy recalled us before New Year's, or at least that's what he told his parents. Whether sleeping in his car alone for a week or keeping alert high up in the press box of a hockey game, Tom is adaptable to any situation. Tom's intelligence and penchant for quiet makes him a perfect fit for the Silent Service, and we all hope to see how well he does in a small, confined tube for months on end once the dip runs out.



David Wert

Navy Pilot

Hailing from the crime-ridden streets of Wilkes-Barre (Wilkeees-Bar), PA, David Wert was raised a devout Catholic choir boy, boy scout, and avid Call of Duty enthusiast. Formerly a high school football, basketball, and track star, David quickly realized after only an hour of sprint football that he was destined for the the intramural ultimate frisbee field. This sport he played, and played well, leading his team to the first loser's position after 4 long hard years. At first glance, the large girth of David's calves might trick you into thinking he's well-versed in the art of gains, but don't let these insignificant muscles fool you, he still is on the verge of death at the end of every PRT. David's dreams of becoming a Marine were sold for only $10 after his roommates paid him to grow his hair past the motivating shortness of a devil dog's. He quickly fell in love with the flow of a Naval Aviator and is now thankful that he never has to do another pull-up. This 4th grade spelling bee champion turned Political Science major is never one to shy away from a debate, and if you ever find yourself listening to one of his Blue and Gold speeches, you might have to pinch yourself to make sure you're not in Congress listening to a filibuster. Like any good politician, David definitely follows all the rules... except for the ones he chooses to break... those are the only ones that are okay to break. David's intellect was once one that rivaled the ancient Greeks, but after living with his southern roommates for four years, he's regressed into the culture of sweet tea and "y'all." Though he's had a long-time ex-girlfriend more loyal than Juliet, David's heart now can never love another after setting eyes on Marena from Sao Paulo while on vacation in the Dominican Republic. If David doesn't die in a "tragic" skydiving accident at a ripe old age of 42, he will surely be found living in one of his roommates' basement, eating Tasty Cakes, playing CoD, and watching college football. David's sarcastic humor fit well into the room dynamic, and you could never find a more loyal friend. He is someone that will always come through in a bind for his friends... and he'll never let you forget it. P.S. "Deny, deny, counter accuse, blame the paddle."

Brandon Aldred

USMC Pilot

Brandon started Plebe Summer as a simple teenage boy from Iowa, enjoying junk food, video games, and overdone action movies. After 4 years of military training and new experiences, he remains astoundingly unchanged. Brandon excelled academically, majoring in YouTube (with a minor in History), and demonstrates his proficiency by watching multiple videos at once while playing video games. His plebe and youngster year, Brandon could always be found with his roommates or other friends in company. Since the start of his 2/C year though, these friends could no longer find him, he was lost to the dark side. Brandon's future is bright, however. His countless years of training in the Iowa Sea Cadet Corps have undoubtedly prepared him for the rigors of TBS and a career in the Marine Corps.

Ma'en Alhalawani

Hailing from the great sand farms of Jordan, our boy Matt is the definition of sheikh. I first met Matt -later to be known as DTG- in plebe boxing. Class after class we would be play-fighting and giggling in the rings of MacD. On the day of the final, he broke my heart. He came down with a severe case of the flu and didn't show up. Probably from the party that he had to jumped the walls to go to the night before. He is a party animal in his own right. Before he was cuffed down, this man was making ladies swoon left and right. It would honestly be a shock if he didn't come out of a club/bar/football game MD without a lady on each arm. As of physical fitness, this 150lb animal can take down a 250lb frat kid within the timespan of snapchat video, drink a 340lb linebacker under the table, outrun the fastest cop, finish the O-course faster than a monkey, swim like a shark and is pretty good at jumping out of planes, no wonder he is going EOD. In addition to his athleticism, this man is also a genius. When he wasn't tutoring almost every single Arabic major at the Academy he found time to focus on his mechanical engineering degree by watching family guy/archer/american dad/ect and still get better grades than the rest of us while maintaining a one-week-per semester visit to the ER ending with emergency surgeries for the most random reasons(ask him how he got the name DTG) .Whether you called him Maen, Matt, Wally, Bill the Goat, or some random name he decided to give you at the club, he is a very sweet guy who will go out of his way to help you. His wingmaning skills never fail—he helped me receive my first kiss, let's keep it at that!! One day I will open the newspaper and see that he is the Commander in Chief of Jordan, good luck brother.

David Bishop

Nuclear Power Institute

Entering the Academy after two years of Army ROTC at the University of Georgia, David had more experience and wisdom than most of his peers and upperclass. He maintained this advantage through all four years, at least according to him, and has never met a leader or teammate that he couldn't do better than. By joining Team Bill his plebe year, David was finally able to hang out with beings as routinely discontent as himself, the Navy goats. Like many plebes, David struggled academically, receiving two rare B's in Chemistry. He then chose to settle for an easy Mechanical Engineering courseload where he performed adequately, becoming the president of an honor society or two. In company, regardless of his position, David could always be counted on for advice, whether it was wanted or not. He will head down to Charleston after graduation to fight the war on grade inflation at nuke school.

Daniel Chow

USMC Ground

Daniel Chow is a man that bleeds red white and blue. A man of faith and of the people, it is safe to say that Dan knows at least half of the brigade by name. When not off breaking his ankle or getting fried for something he didn't do, Dan can be found at McGarvey's or Castle Bay singing loud country music while wearing his favorite flannel. His impersonations of infamous politicians are something to witness and have been described as "beauuutiful". While Dan has several great officer mentors it is safe to say that his greatest role model is none other than Dublin's own Conor McGregor. Following Conor's words of wisdom to "say it like it is" and to "apologize to absolutely nobody" Dan is the most honest man you will ever meet and is never afraid to voice his opinions for better or for worse. His charisma and commitment to becoming a physical savage will make him an incredible Marine officer in the future to compensate for his "disgraceful" academic skills.

Samuel Ciocco

Submarines

The workers at Steerage know his order, the people on World of Warships know his cruiser, the people at Fleet know he hates beer, and the bank knows him as Jeff. A true feaster indeed. The only quarrel he had was with a door and he lost. He may be the one person who can finish a pound bag of Smarties in one sitting. Patience was Sam's greatest virtue, as he enjoyed spending time after practice speaking with the Committee and whenever there was a hint of frustration it was never something that couldn't be solved by a 5 lb bag of swedish fish. He will be remembered for his calm temperament and attitude, never getting too mad at anything. NMSD proud.

Adam Coberly

USMC Ground

Adam (Slippery Fish) Coberly. Whether he is greeting you with a smile or working on his "YUT" in the shower, Coberly is always looking to improve. With an extensive working knowledge of pop culture references and obscure movie quotes rivaling that of most online databases, Adam Coberly is basically a walking meme. However, somehow there's enough room left in his brain for mechanical engineering, something which both horrifies and embarrasses many of his less academically inclined friends. As a regular at ACME, he shreds the dance floor with his jazzercises. Able to contort his body like Mr. Fantastic, on both the dance floor and the rugby pitch, he can slip and slither his way through tackles and hearts like a salmon squirming upstream. Navy Rugby is losing one of its most prominent members just as we felt we were finally beginning to truly understand him. Enjoy a Fine Day, Adam.

Trevor Diamond

Surface Warfare

Trevor Diamond aka "diamond like the rock sir" is always a good time when he's not on restriction, which unfortunately is almost never. Trevor has thoroughly enjoyed himself at the Academy over his 4

Michelle Doan

Surface Warfare

Michelle is the entire Brigade's Woman Crush Wednesday and yet has only gone on a total of -2 dates. Her smile is more lit than Buddy's on a Saturday and her eyes mesmerize anyone who has ever spoken to her. Whether you have a conversation with her or you're off and only mutter a "hello," she will have you under her spell. With a smile that can light up a room, Michelle is often the life of the party. Not only is she beauty but she also has supa thicc brains. Despite her dreadful chemistry major, she still soars high amongst the Brigade and everything often seems to come easy for her. In a nutshell Michelle is a book you can't judge by her cover. Even though she's little and petite she is tougher than most people you can name off the top of your head and has a personality that is antithetical to her size. She is best described as a little fire ball, but not the kind that burns your hands or your eyes, the kind that no matter how hard you try you can't seem to take your eyes off her. Michelle never turns down opportunities to embark on new adventures even if it means signing up to go skydiving or run a Half Ironman at the very last minute. Though Michelle is one of the most well-intentioned people you will meet, she is plagued by the worst luck known to man and is known to proclaim that she needs to "get her life together." Nonetheless, she always seems to find her way out of sticky situations and "close calls" with a smile to show for it. Her friends regard her as one of the truest and most loyal friends you could have. A lover of life, coffee, sunshine, God, and "good vibes," Michelle will be missed in the halls of Mother B but is certainly on to bigger and better adventures as the Navy's newest SWO Momma

Shane DuBord

USMC Ground

hane DuBord hails from the icy tundra of Fargo, North Dakota. Known colloquially by his nickname "Two-Shanes" and for getting too close to his company mates, men of his caliber are in.. short.. supply. The ideal date, Shane will neither eat nor drink much since it's all getting thrown back up at 0500 anyways. He claims to be an Operations Research Major, but there have yet to be sightings of him actually doing any homework. Shane considers his greatest accomplishment during his time at the Naval Academy as holding the all-time record for watching "The Office" all the way through 7 times in a row. He has been a member of the Special Operations Team for all four years, and it really does take someone 'special' to workout in a tetanus-riddled shed with 12 other dudes every day or to voluntarily do log workouts. He will commision as a 2nd Lt in the Marine Corps and he's most excited for the crayon eating jokes to never get old.

Nicholas Falconi

Submarines

Ever since he visited Duke University he has been walking down both sides of the street. Guaranteed to be found in DTA, especially in the Den of the Fox on Sunday afternoons. He learned the hard way that telephone poles can come out of nowhere. A great teammate and friend, he helped lead the divers to one of their most successful seasons in team history. NMSD proud.

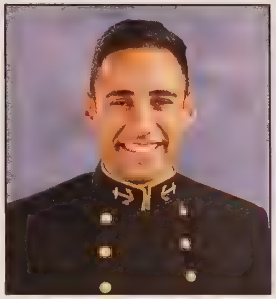
Brandon Gilbert

Navy Pilot

randon Gilbert came to the Naval Academy hopeful and ready to begin his unique "Not College' experience. He took the challenge head on by majoring in computer engineering and becoming an intramural warrior. He clung to rifts of his old life by continuing to DJ in Navy Beats and trying to get a pump at his favorite gym, the Mac D Zoo. In Brandon's free time you can find him either passed out in his chair or contemplating the complexity and unfairness of life. Brandon is not a stranger to having fun when time permits, the only issue is that rarely happens, but when it does watch out! Brandon plans to fly high and fast after graduation, never looking back.

Liam Gregory

Navy Pilot



An ex-member of the Glee Club, Liam's claim to fame is being the star member of the YouTube sensation "Naptown Funk". Show casing his music and dancing ability, Liam successfully Naptown Funk-ed up America, currently sitting at 6,073,393 views (as of 1302 on 19APR2017). What does a star do in his spare time? Liam can often be found in the middle of the action at Acme, fulfilling his need to express himself in the form of modern dance.

Molly Hanson

Navy Pilot

Molly Hanson comes from the smallest state in the Union but that doesn't stop her from showing her Rhode Island pride. Her state is so small she can walk across it so she never bothered learning how to drive. She strategically kept putting it off so she never had to be the designated driver during her four years either. At the rate she is going she will be able to fly a jet off of a carrier before she learns how to drive on the street. Who knows maybe she will Uber down to Pensacola? She is also the only person I know who genuinely likes being burned to a crisp by the sun. I believe it is because it proves that even though she is a red head she can still sort of tan. Her academic career focused on the hard job of guessing the weather in Oceanography which sent her chasing tornadoes and flying through hurricanes, the most dangerous summer training the Academy will let Midshipmen take. Molly spent her weekends belting out Fight Song and Moments in a duty van up and down I-95. Whether sailing in the "Molly Boat", "Tabor Boat", or helping young plebes focus, Molly's legacy down in the Bobby C will not be forgotten. Go NADS!

Zachary Johnson

USMC Pilot

Regarded by many as "sunshine," Zack can often be spotted talking to one of the 4000 people he knows in the hall. A connoisseur of expensive Johnny Walker someone most likely gave to him, he enjoys the finer things like hole digging, throwing knives, and push daggers. The vanilla gorilla will be missed by many. Semper Fi

Sara Jones

Surface Warfare

Sara will be best remembered by her kind heart and contagious smile. She is the first person to volunteer to help someone, despite the responsibilities she may be drowning in herself. Her motherly embrace attracts people who will be kept safe under her wing. Don't be fooled by the snacks she brings out to the intramural soccer field because as a former baller, she is a fierce competitor who is in it to win it. Her good looks and great personality are accompanied by her impressive skills to get through the day without a cup of coffee. She is never too far from her man, Mike Brown, which is why they are considered to be the power couple of the year.

Ty Laframboise

Submarines

When he's not on one of his episodic binges in Acme/ Castle Bay or nursing the hangover from said bender, Ty can be found in the depths of the wrestling locker room under a barrage of laundry that needs to be washed. A simple thank you is all that Ty needs to hear to feel appreciated--that and a bottle of whisky. Ty came to us a simple minded boy from Colorado but has evolved into the reliable, humble man we know today through the adversity of a combination of a plethora of abusive chores coach made him complete which mirror that of a child slave and a self induced heat stroke brought on by going on one of his famous benders the night before a 5 mile team run in 100 degree weather . When he came to, he simply said he was trying out what he called "resistance training." The nice, fun loving demeanor that Ty exudes on the daily is merely a facade he has constructed to pay him time until he can carry out the dark and twisted revenge he's been plotting against Coach Joel Sharratt. Just kidding... kinda. The (sub) Marine Corp is lucky to have such a generous guy as you, Ty. Don't let them keep you down--Semper deep.

Jonathan Lee

Submarines

Johnny is someone that is literally out of this world. It always seem like he is in his own little world especially when he is late to everything. You need to have a tracker on him because he's a lost duckling. Besides all of this, he's a loyal friend and is willing to help anyone in need. Whenever he sees anyone in the dumps, he will be there to pick up your spirits with his goofy personality. If you ever need to look for him, he is most likely working out which is like 5 times in the day. He's a super smart kid even though he is such a derp which is his nickname. Johnny is a great guy and can brighten up anyone's day!

If you dont see him swimming in the kiddie pool in Mac D, you can find him trying get as big as his good-looking, chocolate homie. He keeps things interesting by sending Plebes on message runs in King Hall

#systemseng #derp to ted2

Michael Lopez de Arriaga-Shaw

USMC Ground

Michael Anthony Lopez de Arriaga-Shaw, MALDAS to his closest friends or Shaw to the truly ignorant, was born to be a Marine. He speaks only in one volume, motivated, a skill he learned from his much higher pitched mother. Always one to devise the most complicated solution to any problem, he embodies the "why work smarter, when you can work harder" attitude. During the day, you can find him rucking outside in the rain or in his room watching obscure batman cartoons, but most often you will find him in a Semper Fi Society meeting. Each night, he mysteriously disappears returning just in time to rearrange all his earthly possessions which he stores in various plastic tubs with astounding acoustic properties. After a hard week of warring against the Academy's unmotivated turds, Mike likes to visit his fiancée or just drive aimlessly about the state of Maryland.

Hayes McCullagh

Navy Pilot

Majored in Political Science with a minor in Asian Relations. Aside from Lin's sushi roll, he hasn't touched a carb since the summer of '04, including a side of baloney.You'd think he's a grandpa based on his 7 p.m. bedtime. Whenever he wasn't sleeping he was working on his washboard abs but that still never stopped him from throwing out his arm on the Buddy's dance floor, courtesy of his signature and only dance move. Guaranteed to be seen haggling soon-to-be-deployed soldiers for their ocean dinghies. NMSD Proud

Andrea McDavid

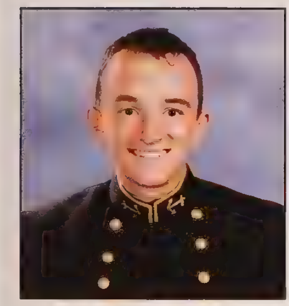
Surface Warfare

I picked Oceanography as my major because I love nature! I'm from Anderson, Alaska and I have a chocolate lab always eager to greet me when I come back home. I really like drawing and recently got into photography as well. I plan to visit every state and other countries after graduation!

Amelia Panek

Naval Flight Officer

Amelia Panek is the heart and soul of 8th company. She's always there to pick you up with a "hooyah 8" or "hooyah navy." There is not another person with her level of motivation – as Amelia will sometimes do homework on Saturdays, yes Saturdays. The perfect date for Amelia would include seeing the Boston Bruins play (hooyah bruins) or catching a ballet. But... don't even try, she's taken by Joe Barrett of 26th company and together their brain power could save the world. Look for Amelia in the fleet being the coolest NFO there ever was and breaking records and barriers along the way.



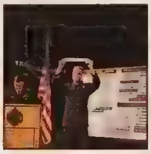
Jack Partlow

Navy Pilot

Somehow managing to succeed as an Aero major while never attending class or doing any work, Jack can always be found in his rack. As sounds of mice breathing two miles away keep him awake, he never sleeps. Instead, he hones his online chess and poker skills while listening to Jimmy Buffett or Irish rebel music which blare incessantly from his unnaturally loud laptop speakers. His favorite pastime is reading the news and Wikipedia articles to his roommates as they try to do work. Truly the master of useless facts and irrelevant stories, Jack dominates all conversation. With so many articles to read and memes to view, Jack does not waste time with petty things like organization or cleanliness. He saves time by keeping all his belongings within reach, on the floor. Not wanting to be over burdened by needless items, Jack prefers to borrow everything. Although he already knows everything, Jack consults Brandon the Wise every night for life advice.

Kyle Pate

Surface Warfare



Kyle Van Horn Pate, or as some like to call him, "Pâté" or "SWO Daddy" is a TROUBLEMAKER in a quiet and athletic disguise. Do not let him fool you with his innocent looks. He fooled me for four years. I mean it, he is trouble. He came to us plebe year as one of the fastest and strongest things on planet earth. This guy showed that he could run as if devil dogs were hunting him. Not only that, he showed that he is insanely strong. Therefore, Kyle decided to join the Varsity Offshore Sailing Team to capitalize on his athletic skills...I hope you notice my sarcasm here. Anyways, he is mad smart, a complete nerd, but wait... he chose the wrong MAJOR (Honors History). Anyone can read over 150 pages, type a 10-page paper subsequently and get an A+ on it. What a waste of potential, right? Those were all jokes. On a serious note, Kyle has been a tremendous solrce of inspiration for everyone who he meets. He is the type of person who, when everything has gone south, will stay by your side. He will be extremely missed by everyone who has got to know him, especially his roommates and closest friends. The Surface Warfare Officer Community is extremely lucky to have him join their ranks.

Matthias Pecoraro

SEALs

Luis Pedrazacolon

Luis Enrique Pedrazacolon can only be sighted on certain, special occasions. If you do see him you should report the incident immediately to the Board of Endangered Species as there have only been a half dozen sightings in the past 10 years. Regardless of his hermit-like existence, Luis is about as faithful as it gets, to his friends, fellow classmates, and especially Chihiro. Don't ask him to do anything if he's talking with her because the answer is always "no." He knows his priorities. A stellar guide-on, motivated youngster, and dedicated squad leader, Luis is best known for his exceptional swimming skills. At one time called the Puerto Rican Michael Phelps, he has since moved on to other athletic ventures, notably billiards. A rising star, he still struggles to defeat his roommate who usually beats him multiple games in a row. Luis is the hardest worker I know, day in, day out, you'll find him occupied with his next project. More importantly, he has a heart second to none. Always there for a friend, he will drop everything to help someone in need. A wise counselor, sensitive listener, and trusted confidant, I wouldn't give up his friendship for anything.

Brandon Pippin

Submarines

Brandon "My Real Dad" Pippin portrays the perfect mixture of 1 part squealing pig and 1 part potato. An athlete whose athletic prowess is on display daily both on the rifle range and in his NCAA 14 Football road to glory, he began his journey from humble beginnings in Soddy Daisy Tennessee, where 4 out of 5 of his past girlfriends were related to him, math was just a three letter word and English was his second language. He only knows two seasons: Tennessee football season and the rest of the year. The majority of his closest friends are female as he poses no sexual threat to women in any way. He can often be found in buffalo wild wings in his finest khakis, with tennis shoes and a Tennessee Vols shirt, an outfit that would make dads everywhere proud. Despite his very strong feminine demeanor, he somehow managed to attract his better half after only one date plebe year, which is good as she is comfortable wearing the pants in the relationship. We all look forward to serving with you in the Navy and maintaining a lifelong friendship. You are a good man, and we are lucky to know you. Please don't fry us.

Brian Primeaux

SEALs

By using a secret blend of antibiotics and cajun spices, Brian "Ace-In-The-Hole" Primeaux has shredded his way to the top and accomplished feats including but not limited to having both of his lungs surgically removed, completing workouts and triathlon race competitions in preparation for the PRT, and even earning the coveted Navy Achievement Medal for a daring sea rescue. After meeting Brian, one soon realizes that behind his charming Louisiana smile and Oakley shades is a man of complexity and fascinating charisma. He is everything a great leader and friend should be: his sincere humility and hard work inspire those around him much more than any condescending speech ever could. It isn't easy to summarize Brian in a single paragraph, but perhaps the best sentence to capture his scope can be found in his favorite quote: "An apple a day keeps the bird in the bush so that chickens being counted have been spilt with milk where the devil's idol hands can catch a lion's tail and lead the horse to pick a penny up."

Robert Reading

USMC Pilot

Bobby has done the least amount of work possible to somehow graduate near the top of his class. He begins his day with half a dozen donut holes, 2 cups of coffee, and a 5 hour energy to prepare himself for a rigorous schedule. He averages roughly 2 hours a day napping and 8 hours a day doing a combination of watching sports, Netflix, and playing online pool. He only leaves his chair to attend class and run down to Steerage for a sea sparrow. 2/C year he developed bedsores and the doctors ordered him to become more active. This led to his decision to become a pilot in the Marine Corps, emphasis on the pilot. His favorite foods are: pop tarts, 5 hour energy, hot dogs, and fireball shots. Don't ask him where his CAC card, Driver's License, credit or debit cards are because he doesn't know either. Someday he hopes to gain enough weight to challenge the dominance of his more athletic, better looking roommates. Truly Bobby is a great friend, a fun roommate, and a true scholar. He will make a fine Marine Pilot. We wish you the best in all your endeavors.

Helen Robertson

Surface Warfare Nuke

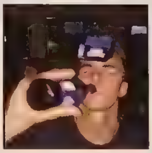
This tall brunette beauty hails from the greatest city in America: the Big Apple. Just like New York City, she is magnetic, electric, energetic, INCREDIBLE, vibrant, brilliant...there are not enough adjectives in the English language to describe her. She is invincible: nothing stands in her way when she goes after what she wants...not even the reliable Sunday morning hangover she gets from dancing every weekend all weekend (no Helen, I'm not going out with you two nights in a row). Helen has recently been exploited as a Canadian spy due to her strong family ties there, which is probably also where she gets her obsession of watching hockey. She is a die-hard New York Rangers fan and she never lets you forget when they're playing or what the score is, no matter just how disinterested you let her know you are. She is the workout queen and often forces her best friends to run miles and miles, or even worse: ERG. Her ability to never pay for drinks in DTA is unmatched by any other midshipman and is envied by many bank accounts. Helen is one of those friends that is always there for you no matter what. She is a paper-editing genius and has saved countless grades due to this calling. Surprise, she's good at school. Helen of Crew will be missed by her friends as this San Diego Nuke SWO mama is ready to sail the Seven Seas and conquer everything that comes her way!

Face of a PRT failure

Jonathan Schabdach

SEALs

Jon "Dad Left to Get Milk and Never Came Back" Schabdach, when he is not hazing himself out on hospital point with his boyfriends, can be found emulating the eating habits of a dinosaur at meal. This one tooth wonder is simultaneously the fattest and most in shape person we all know, constantly gorging himself on Wawa tasty cakes and buffalo chicken quesadillas. Despite seeming to not wear any clothes...ever and never sleeping as a normal human should, his puny and truly horrible jokes always keep a smile on the faces of those around him even in the hardest of times here at the Academy. Driven only by the obscene quantities of monster he drinks to "sleep better" this man inspires everyone he meets to be the best version of themselves they can be. We have all been blessed to have gotten to know this trailer-trash wannabe. He is a selfless, caring, humble individual, despite his great personal accomplishments, and we are lucky that he will be out there protecting our freedom.



Garrett Smith

USMC Ground

Perhaps best known for the lead role he played in the documentary film Men in Black, Garrett found a perfect post stardom home on the navy rugby team. While his drink of choice is sugar water, Garrett can often be found enjoying a shot of Jameson or pitcher of Guinness in one of the bars in DTA. Garrett is a true romantic, coining many foolproof pick-up lines like "Hey, we should hangout more' and "I like the way you look. While Garrett may not be considered by many a standout in the classroom, he has excelled during his countless lessons at the School of Hard Knocks. A surprise to some, Garrett has redefined what it means to be a true professional. He has revolutionized the role of company safety officer educating his company on an array of skills, from heating your body with internal rage, to performing ballpoint pen C-Sections. Garrett is truly a renaissance man Above all, he will always be known for his competitive spirit and relentless work ethic. Garrett is a great teammate and a great friend, the Corps is lucky to be getting this definitely not crazy Texan. Enjoy A Fine Day, Scarrett.

Raymond Snell

Surface Warfare Nuke

RJ Snell has embodied the United States Naval Academy's fighting spirit since he arrived on I-Day, June 27th, 2013. Brimming with boundless enthusiasm, as a Midshipman, Snell has gone above and beyond the call of duty here at the Naval Academy in his relentless pursuit of excellence. He is often seen throughout these hallowed halls doing his best to develop himself morally, mentally, and physically, and is never seen asleep on the job. As an ever vigilant student-athlete hybrid, Snell has stopped at nothing to squeeze every last drop of professional development out of the sweaty knowledge rag that is the United States Naval Academy. His graduation will be marked with bounding echos of Honor, Courage, and Commitment that will resonate throughout the Academy's sacred grounds for time immemorial. His memory will go on, as hushed whispers of his greatness grace the ears of those he leaves behind. Snelly-wop , they will say, "A god among men".

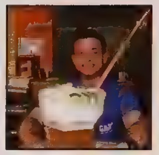
Dylan Thompson-Sevcik

Submarines

Dylan "The Bionic Collar Monk" Thompson-Sevcik embodies the idea of speak softly and carry a big stick... by far the biggest you have ever seen. A man not weighed down by worldly possessions, he has been training for races ranging from a triathlon to a 100 mile hike which he will do one day, probably, he swears. Sustained by a diet of steerage pizza he claims he will never buy again, he exemplifies the meaning of student athlete as a member of the Varsity Offshore Sailing team (retired...depending on the day) which is definitely a super hard sport. His athletic prowess drew many female suiters for the right to his heart, whose own hearts he unwillingly just had to break, he swears, #foreveralone. Between the rigors of Varsity Athletics, Command, that girlfriend he swears he doesn't have, random "mediation" sessions in the room, a heavy academic load, and his continuous personal study in trying to one day understand sarcasm, he still managed to get in bed before 2030 every day through the mastery of delegation and an unwillingness to clean up anything, ever. He was probably just super tired from sailing practice which, again, is definitely a sport. Please do not take this personally, as you are one of the best guys we have had the privilege of knowing. The Navy is lucky to have such a competent officer in their force and we are happy that we will be able to serve alongside you. We love you man

David Tossavainen



Submarines

David Tyler "Toss" Tossavainen. The man, the myth, the dude with the three stripes. Between his college hijinks in Singapore (or wherever he was during his semester abroad), his vigorous pursuit of the ultimate 3.99999, and his unceasing desire to "get big", Tyler could be found breaking blonde southern bell's hearts. Females of every background would be found literally throwing themselves at him daily. Unfortunately for their sake, Toss swore to be cursed with being #foreveralone, a simple "truth" that many of his female suitors would simply not accept as factual. His weird love for Lebron James and the NBA demonstrated his ability to love something that everyone else hated. As a three year varsity tennis player, Tyler learned how to manage his intensity by yelling at inanimate objects between sets. Only his tennis racket and few others actually realized how articulate he was when triggered, until he became company commander, where he was known to even make officers cry. His intensity and ability to overcome challenges landed him a spot as an early select for the submarine force his 2/C year. The submarine community is lucky to have someone as competent and passionate as Tyler and we are honored to be serving with someone with such high caliber.

Khaalif Wolfe

Naval Flight Officer

So what's cooler than being cool? Being Khaalif. Wolfie the stud has been teaching us how to dress since the Training Day -1. If he's not stunting on the boys or macking the ladies near and far, you can catch him dominating on the runway...the track and field runway. As a star jumper, fashion extraordinaire, and an engineer we just don't know how this man does it all but ooh does he find the time! Never missing a beat to hang with the fellas and guide the young boys onto the path of righteousness, he as definitely made his mark and left his influence. Great things await this young man as he goes off to flight school to learn how boss people around in the sky now that he has put us all in our places on the ground.

Evan Wray

USMC Pilot

The odds are good but the goods are odd. When he's not in the Log room, he's still not in our room so please stop asking. Eric "Beans" Wray hails from Orange County, California but the cactus sweater and floral shoes were probably a bit of a giveaway. Known for shredding the ukulele and his uncomfortable obsession with Elon Musk, Eric exudes an aura that says something in Arabic. we aren't really sure. He is a valued member of the Masqueraders, most recently starring in "4 Years at the Naval Academy". Despite an earnest attempt to pretend to care about the minutia of academy life, about halfway through his heart was clearly not in the performance and left much to be desired. Eric moonlights as a magician, once disappearing for a whole semester, possibly to the Log room. His most famous act is the one where he leaves all of his items in his room when he goes on leave for the summer and magically they are taken care of for him. Tada! Another classic act is the "Sleepus-Interuptus" where Eric's movements about the room are amplified to ear shattering decibel levels cumulating in the good old slam your shoes onto the ground to wake up your roommates. Evan will make a fine Marine Corps pilot and we are lucky to be serving with him.

9TH COMPANY

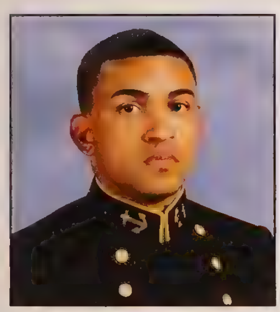
Nneamaka Adirika

"Chrysa, also known as Nneamaka, Diriks, Adirika, in fact, she really didnt mind whichever you choose to call her. She would always say ""Whichever name is easiest for you is fine with me"". That was how simple her life is. Does not like complicated issues, and tries to keep things as straight forward as possible. Chrysa is from Nigeria, and attended 2 years of her military academy before coming to the USNA. She was in the class of the first females to ever attend her academy, and relates to how tough the experience was for her, but it was also rewarding at the same time because she feels honored to be among the pioneer females at her academy, and she will undoubtedly be recorded in the history of the Nigerian Defence Academy, as well as Nigerian History. During her time at the USNA, Chrysa strove to be the best midshipman she could possibly be. She had her challenges, being from another country, but she did not let that prevent her from accomplishing what she has set her mind to. She was an Information Technology major and held several leadership positions in her company. She served as a detailer twice, once as a Summer Seminar detail, and the second as a Plebe Summer detail. She was a devoted Catholic as well, and worked hard in her spiritual life, just as she did in all the other aspects of her training at the academy. Knowing Chrysa, her work ethic, and her absolute faith in God, I have no doubt that she will be a great asset to the Nigerian Navy, and Nigeria as a whole, to bring positive changes to wherever she finds herself.
Adios amigo"

Joshua Antol

Navy Pilot

Expelled as a space ranger working for Star Command, young Buzz -- I mean Josh -- pursued a career as a midshipman in order to make the world a better place free from the clutches of Emperor Zurg. Here at the Naval Academy, Josh has excelled as Navy Football's long snapper, however his true passion would find him in his avid career as a trainer within 9th Company. Everyone who knows him will fondly remember him for his loud dog "Boof" and his infectious laughter. Despite spending 3 ½ years away from the Academy for football, he has spent his last few months in Bancroft making friends and getting to know his classmates. Without Josh there would have been no one to look out for the little guys, and 9th Company is truly lucky to have had him.



Jose Arroyo

USMC Ground

"Nobody can ever remember where Jose Arroyo grew up, but he fought his way to Annapolis and hasn't looked back since. Surviving on a steady diet of canned chicken, Worldstar videos, and sadistic boxing workouts, JJ worked impossibly hard and slept impossibly little in his four years by the Bay. Affectionately referred to as "9 and 3/4," he gave his heart and soul to USNA and left part of his finger in the Severn. His life story served as an inspiration to all, and his genuine care for those around him left a lasting impression on everyone who had the privilege of his mentorship. Mistaken for a prior-enlisted Marine for the entirety of Plebe Summer, the Corps is lucky to be getting the rat-slaying, pad-punching, wilderness-seeking, selfless Pride of the South Bronx."

Madeline Bliss

Naval Flight Officer

This Texas sweetheart will make you remember her by not only her southern charm but the hard work and dedication she puts in everything she does. Maddie will foul ya, because even though she is sweet and innocent, you can always count on her to have a good time and bring the party wherever you are at. Maddie's hair is as curly as her smile is bright, and she will bring a smile to your face with her infectious laugh that is so distinct enough to notice even 100 meters away. She is known as the "mother of the distance group" helping her babies and the rest of the Navy Womens Swim and Dive team to victory. Her love for the sport of swimming shows with her effort each day as she conquers the many yards of a distance set but will be the first to tell you that life of a SWAMMER is great! Maddie brings humor to the room by finding the most obscure but most-likely-to-make-you-laugh videos. She is always the first and last person to laugh at something funny, even if she's the only one laughing. She is a pro capstone cartoon designer and can make any scenario a fun time for all involved. This goofy girl is someone you can rely on when times are rough or when you just want to party! Her pride for her state is unmatched and always finds a way to contribute "everything is bigger in Texas" in every conversation. You are looking at the next Goose every Maverick wishes they had as she flies into the Navy as an NFO. She will be missed by many as she sets off on her journey with the sky as her limit! Love you lots #nwsd4lyfe

Garrett Bradley

Navy Pilot

Garrett Bradley was born in the hot and humid summer of 1993 to Harry and Debbie Bradley. As an avid gamer, arguably the worst FIFA player in the brigade, Garrett has developed an unhealthy affection for soccer and Lionel Messi. But hey, it's a new Navy. Always for the boys, Garrett is happy to be the first to buy a few rounds of Irish Car Bombs or Caribou Lou. When Garrett is training, he either practices his handstands in inconvenient places in the room or trains to earn his tan belt in drunken-monkey style martial arts. As a cyber major, Garrett can find a quick fix on any computer, but not in relationships. If you're going out into DTA with Garrett, remember to wear your pastel collared shirts or you'll look underdressed. Ooomega Pii Ommegaa!

Charles Crans

Explosive Ordance Disposal

With the body of a 5'5" Greek God, Charles Alexis Crans III came, saw and conquered. From his humble beginnings in the slums of the ocean front yacht town of Camden Maine, Crans came to the academy with one goal in mind, maintaining his status in the 2% club. He failed. His aim turned toward becoming an EOD operator, primarily for his sick and twisted enjoyment of pain. His hobbies are vast, including sawing mice in half with rusty pocket knives in early morning hours and hard charging on the ski mountain where a fall always results in a double ejection. His final words to those friends he made at the academy: "SMELL YA".

Andre Esquibel

USMC Ground

This is a man who can find himself at home in any environment. Anyone who wishes to view him in his natural habitat must come to the 9th Company Wardroom at 2300 on a Wednesday or Thursday night, where he regales the underclassmen with tails of weekday liberty. Once the audience leaves, he retires to his rack or, if too exhausted, the remarkably comfortable tile floor. He might just as easily be found enjoying himself on the parade deck, a usually hostile terrain for most Midshipmen, where he has been spotted multiple times smiling at the prospect of having to "go around a third time." The place he really excels is in company spaces on any given night after 0100, as this is the time he typically begins his work in earnest. He burns the midnight oil well into the night in order to complete his homework. However, this nocturnal existence does have its consequences. During sports period, Andre Esquibel can be found hibernating in a dark corner of his room, and he does not rise again until it is time to consume dinner. One would be wrong to think that due to this Midshipman's adaptations, he is unable to complete his job. On the contrary, many point to him as the next evolutionary step of the Midshipman, as he relishes the opportunity to crack open MIDREGs or one of the always informative Commandant Instructions for a good read. He salivates at the opportunity to conduct a room or uniform inspection, and he rejoices at reading emails that require the Brigade to attend a mandatory event. Mr. Esquibel is now poised to take the next evolutionary leap, where he will shed his coating of working blues and don the uniform of a U.S. Marine. He will no doubt excel there as he has here, or at the very least enjoy all of his weekend duty assignments

Christopher Fennell

Surface Warfare

Chris "No one loves Fennell like Fennell does" Fennell operates in the extremes. Either the overly mature well spoken Feenal who thinks himself a culinary expert and the only one on planet earth who can properly scramble an egg. Followed by late night Feenal, a man who has no filter and no shame, this Chris can easily be identified when he is seen forcing complete strangers into conversations about how many take away checks he had in a fall ball scrimmage in 2015. When Chris isn't talking about himself, he enjoys a couple beers and a good debate with his girlfriend.... Followed by a few more beers and frantic apologizing to his girlfriend. Chris was a great lacrosse player who will be missed amongst the Brigade, but not nearly as much as he thinks he will be missed amongst the Brigade.

Dustin Fuller

Surface Warfare Nuke

'Dustin Holzrichter is one of 9th company's best. Hailing from Sioux City Iowa, Dustin had the pick of the litter while choosing which professional football team to follow growing up. Always a fan of the underdogs (or possibly just a further indication of poor decision making) Dustin chose the Minnesota Vikings. Because of this, Dustin has suffered numerous heartaches in the recent pass. But don't worry, he was confident that Teddy Bridgewater would have the season of his life after Walsh missed the long 27 yarder in January of 2016. On the weekends when Dustin isn't hanging out with his far better half Becca, he enjoys going out to DTA, enjoying a couple drinks, and then coming back to the hall to take the longest showers known to man. As 2nd Battalion's conduct officer, Dustin gets a lot of MidAppn emails and ceaselessly lets out long sighs of relief when he knows they aren't for him. Moreover, his roommates never know exactly what the next conduct case Dustin has on his hands, they only know that this fearless conduct officer shows unwavering concern and empathy for whomever just got fried by muttering under his breath "stupid hurts doesn't it." Overall 9th company couldn't ask for a harder worker and better company-mate to cover a watch or lend out a helping hand. He has certainly left big shoes to fit into for next years leadership

Trey Fullilove

Surface Warfare Nuke

Trey Marcellius Fullilove, also affectionately known as the Whomping Willow, is a roommate with very few flaws. He'll always clean up after you and will kindly remind you to wipe down the sink after you shave, knowing full well that you are content to let him take care of it. He's a quiet fellow, and you almost don't notice he's in the room unless he's blasting music from his man crush, Justin Bieber, or his doppelganger, Drake on repeat. He's also a prodigy when it comes to cutting hair, and he'll give you a fresh fade whenever you need, unless of course you're his roommate. Wherever he may be, Trey is an easy man to find. All you have to do is talk to his girlfriend who keeps tabs on him 24/7. And if you ever find yourself out on the town with Trey, expect him to make frequent calls to her to give on the minute updates on his location and who he's with. Sadly, Trey's next assignment will take him to the bowels of an aircraft carrier where he will spend the rest of his days slaving over nuclear reactors. He may never see the light of day again, but that just means more girls for the rest of us.

Robert Geiger

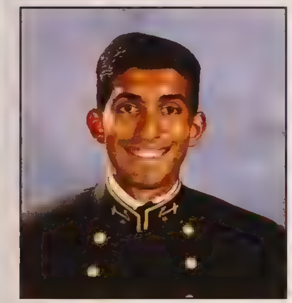
Navy Pilot

With the best bearing in Echo Company, Rob has eluded military excellence from day one. You won't find a tighter rack, a higher haircut, or a better friend anywhere on the Yard. An English major at heart, Geigs is happiest curled up with a Kerouac book while his roommates slave away at tedious engineering problems. Constantly in pursuit of his next adventure, be it of the forest or the female variety, Rob's charming smile and impeccably coiffed blonde hair made him a hit from the Shenandoah to the Severn. With his newfound quest for big arms and an aesthetic chest, Rob and his hair tonic will be shattering mirrors from here to Pensacola in no time.

Mitchell Gunter

USMC Ground

"To hear him tell it, you would think that Mitch had been ripped from the sunny valleys of Southern California and impressed into the service of the republic against his will. Once here however, Gunter soon developed Stockholm Syndrome and became a willing and active participant in the training and indoctrination of his peers and subordinates alike. Four years and forty pounds later, Gunter has become a true "company man" and has never missed an opportunity to perform at a level roughly commensurate with a 85-90% in all graded evolutions. Known for his ability to easily get 100 hours of sleep a week and still meet this high bar of mediocrity, it is unlikely that he will face any adversity in the Marines. A gentle recipient of years of abuse from roommates and friends alike, Gunter has become the even keel that keeps 5251 on course. Our Corps will be the better for his contributions, and our academy a less-interesting place for his absence."



Krishna Jana

Navy Pilot

This man hails from room 5302, and while many simply refer to him as Mr. Jana, he more frequently goes by "the Big Krish" after he consumes his favorite beverages. This is a man with only two speeds, "getting after it," and sleeping. The former often involves a pair of tasteful pastel shorts, and one of many outlandish tank tops, followed by an extremely captivating dance routine. This mode might also be engaged during any given off period during the work week. Mr. Jana can be found furiously chipping away at his homework while blaring the latest EDM hits. The latter speed setting occurs soon afterwards in both cases. Mr. Jana is one of the most talented and skilled ping pong players in company. This skill was put to use as a four year member of the Varsity Men's Tennis Team, where he managed to translate tennis successfully from the table to the court However, Mr Jana's greatest skill was for his final billet, the culmination of four years of work at the Academy where he proudly served as the 9th Company Alcohol and Drug Education Officer. As a plebe he knew he was destined for greatness, and under the tutelage of the other illustrious 9th Company ADEOs, earned the billet. Even the most exhausted Midshipman's ears perked up at morning quarters formation when Mr. Jana revealed the details of the beverage of the week. Mr. Jana has been selected for Navy Pilot, and the road to get to there will require a lot of "getting after it." However, Mr. Jana is equal to his task, and any outfit that receives him will be "vibing to some good tunes" as well

Austin Jomp

Navy Pilot

Austin "Triggered" Jomp is, as some would say, a living wonder. While his passion to become the best Flight Simulator pilot grows, he intends to do everything in his power to visit every single airport in the U.S. Austin hales from the small town of Elizabeth City, North Carolina where the fields are plenty and the chickens roam free. Austin can usually be found in his rack or deep into the dark places of YouTube. When he isn't looking for new Star Wars material to add to his collection, he is working on perfecting his diet habits and eating five ice creams every meal and trying to find a better way to inhale more vape then air. Austin is a man of many talents but his best is his vertical jump when a mouse runs out from under his desk. Austin is one of the hardest working Astronautical Engineers and is always trying to explain to his classmates that time is relative. After the Naval Academy he will start his career as a Navy Pilot, which is his lifelong dream. Austin will always be remembered for his mannerisms and his gracious efforts to volunteer room 5302 for a whole month of CDO.

"Traveling through hyperspace ain't like dusting crops, farm boy." - Han Solo

Nicholas King

USMC Ground

Nick King, needless to say, is the most interesting man in the Brigade. His unconditional love for plebes and his "2 to 3 casual beer nights" have one thing in common, they don't exist. Whether you see him pumping iron in MacD or witness his moves in the depths of Buddy's Crab House at 1:30 AM, he will never cease to impress you. He takes pride in a wide variety of things, ranging from his 78 hour Civil War documentary to the NKO training certificates he has posted all over his desk. If you ever ask him why he chose to be a Theoretical Math major, he will always respond with "cuz I wanted to haze myself". Nick is a lifting extraordinaire without ever saying the words "leg" and "day" in the same sentence. Extremely excited to become a future Marine Corps officer, you will often find him practicing sword manual in 5302 following a long night at the Federal House. With his music taste ranging from 1930's bluegrass to 21 Savage, and his haircut never being a millimeter passed "high and tight", his future Marines aren't going to know what hit 'em

Patrick Leech

SEALs

Are you from Pittsburgh? Do you know someone who lives there or has ever lived there in the past twenty years? If so, then odds are Patrick Leech knows them. A die-hard Steelers and Penguins fan, Pat will stand by his city's athletes regardless of their questionable behavior or character. When he isn't busy defending James Harrison's arrest or that cry baby Crosby, Pat can be found on team runs around the yard complaining about the absurdly fast pace. He is actually deflecting attention from the fact that he is one of the most athletic members of the Lightweight Crew Team. Pat's true passion outside of crew is spending hours reviewing drafts of his sweeping historical accounts of knights in shining armor or crafting the perfect cup of coffee. He has been known to refer to himself as "conventionally handsome," a trait that paired with his writing skills should lead to a combo book-movie deal after a few years in the "teams." He is the smartest person you know and any arguments to the contrary usually end in the opposition throwing their hands in despair, sobbing, or harboring deep-seated resentments. Ultimately, there is no better friend and you should pray that your kids end up to be half the man Patrick Leech is.

Caleb Legis

USMC Ground

Caleb "Cables" Legis is nothing short of an athletic specimen. You won't find him on deck too often because he is frequently training to cement his position as the star left-bench player for the fantasy football team. But the true secret to his training regiment hails back to his JROTC days, where Caleb would twirl rifles and do facing movements for long hours on the Silent Drill team, and has since taken his talents from South Beach to the cement platforms of Smoke Park. Caleb supplements this elite workout routine with his strict diet: a 50 gallon bag of grapes and the most confusing array of liquids one could possibly compile, including midnight Bloody Marys or a glass of pineapple juice when everyone else is ordering beers. Contrary to Caleb's slim diet, he likes his females thicc with more C's than you can find on his report card. Unfortunately, Caleb cannot rely on his singing skills to woo his mates, as his monotone a capella solos line up perfectly with the resonant frequency of his roommate's tear ducts. Instead, women flock to Caleb because of his steadfast desire to finish first in the Marine Corps Communications Officer program before his first duty assignment - installing printers in the Diego Garcia community center - and eventually returning to his home at the Naval Academy to finish his career as a Cyber 2 instructor teaching young midshipmen on the importance of preventing a buffer overflow attack. But even if his plans don't work out, Caleb will be a great asset to the Marine Corps, and to his fellow Marines, a true brother. Emphasis on the "Bruh".

Justin Robert Magallon

Navy Pilot

If you wake up in the middle of the night to the disturbing sight of a small, half-naked Asian boy crawling across your bedroom floor, do not be alarmed. It is not the Grudge, but rather a blackout Magallon's near lifeless body reaching for the last coconut water in the mini fridge to quench his unrelenting thirst after ruthlessly disposing of a lung in the six-man shower - an event so physically taxing that even the blood vessels in his face burst under the immense pressure. Despite Justin's late nights, he always elects to set a series of ambitious early-morning alarms that erupt sporadically throughout the 5-3 hallways causing midshipmen in earshot to confuse Justin's living area with a bomb disposal unit doing pre-deployment work-ups. Eventually the Magpie rises from hibernation, removes a training-bra-shaped sleep mask from his face, and lumbers toward a nearby food source to graze on. The Mag is an interesting creature, but this interest will soon turn to horror if you mistakenly uncover what lies within the confines of Magallon's insidious mind. What may begin as a harmless conversation with Justin could at any moment spiral uncontrollably into the abominable depths of your subconscious mind leaving you questioning the very nature of humanity. Justin employs this tactic with deadly effectiveness in situations ranging from friendly interactions to SARB interviews, where the full force of Magallon's inner demons petrified the ranking nuclear power admiral like Medusa to a Greek peasant. Now, Justin enjoys the life of a future naval aviator, and hopes to one day conquer the enemy just as he has conquered the company first sergeant.

William McMasters

Navy Pilot

Will "complain" McMasters is one of the best gents you'll have the pleasure of meeting inside Bancroft. He was a natural navy pilot selectee by virtue of his perfect vision and upbringing. Will was destined for the sky before he was heard practicing his war cry during plebe summer. When he's not talking about planes or complaining about Academy life, William will be spending his valuable free time living vicariously through a virtual block man who strips a natural utopia of all its resources and wildlife to further his agenda of doing whatever he feels like that day. William impresses the masses with the technological advances he's capable of making in this virtual world in spite of having the hardest major at the academy (Aero). He remains fueled for these physically demanding activities with a mandated quota of four naps per day in his singular set of spirit gear. Don't let how he prepares for the PRT fool you, Will is an active man. He has successfully climbed 36 state high-points, including all East of the Mississippi. William is a man of frugal taste, and if it mean's driving cross country for 24 hours in a day to save the money spent on hotel room, you can bet Will's gona' save that money. William has earned the respect of his classmates as the de facto lead platoon commander, and his commitment to setting the grooming standard is evident by him regularly shaping his hair into the popular "rhinoceros" hairstyle. Although his alcohol threshold is limited to two beers and a tequila shot, his future ready room surely won't be somber with Will McMasters in the room.

Spencer Nora

Surface Warfare

"When Hernan Cortes, Conquistador of the Marquis Valley Oaxaca discovered the Mexican mainland he discovered an unusual species of furred mammal. Physically superior but socially goofy, the Nora's soon became the workhorse of the developing world. When the USNA Blue and Gold officers found young Spencer hidden in a marsh in Sarasota, Florida, they had no choice but to bring him to the Academy. At the Academy he has specialized in Ocean Engineering but devotes his spare time to panini making and extreme carpentry. As an avid dinghy sailor and a loving roommate, he has truly made an impact on the friends he has made and the equipment he has broken. Spencer made everything an adventure. From playing nightcrawlers to accidentally spending a frigid night in an EOD screener, he conquered every moment with light hearted enthusiasm and a happy smile."

Allison Pavlansky

Surface Warfare

Jessica Ringer

USMC Ground

Jessica Nicole Ringer always introduced herself as Jessica, but was always called Jess without asking. This beaming, bright-smiled ray of sunshine grew up in Hartly, DE, and like the quirky weirdo she was, spent more time playing with cows on her farm and Roxy ROO than she did with other humans. Despite her plain home-state, there is nothing plain about Jess. She unicycles, plays flute, teaches herself Chinese in her free time, has an insatiable appetite for running, and has been known to assign her friends some wacky acronyms that are impossible to say, like her BFFLAEWTEOE (Best Friends For Life And Ever Who Tell Each Other Everything... pronounced Bif-la-wih-toe-e... shoutout to Thayra pronounced like Tyra... even her friends have to be weird). Although Jess did not start out in the 9th Company, she came to think of them as family while never quite breaking ties with the 10th Company, seeing that as for her dating life, being a member of 10th Company seemed a requirement. At the Academy, she dabbled in every club from the marathon team to the Chinese Culture Club to Swing Dance and made it her goal to try as many things as there were to try. Despite being one standard deviation from normal, anyone who knows Jess knows that she brings such a spark to life, that you wouldn't want her to be any other way. Here's to this Marine-Motivated, Caesar Rodney Riders (HS Alum), flute-pipin', smoothie-makin, travelin girl!

Megan Rosenberger

Intel

When she wasn't collecting cans of food, painting rain barrels, or saving the entire planet, Megan was shopping in the mid store. Megan was born and raised in the suburbs of Pittsburgh, PA. She was thrilled to attend the Naval Academy because she went to Catholic school for 13 years, so she got really good at putting on a uniform. One of Megan's favorite memories at the Naval Academy was being interviewed on national television, for which she managed to have the most perfect bun. In her free time, Megan enjoys meeting Presidents and planning for the 2040 election. Until then, her life will be Top Secret in Intel.

Sean Rundle

USMC Pilot

Sean "Dr. Scrote" Rundle really knows how to brighten your morning... or maybe that's just his Bonzai tree that lights up at 4 am. This event typically lines up with his usual bedtime after long YouTube study sessions to refine his extensive knowledge of cigars and beer. You can catch Sean on the mast of a tall sailboat or cruising the streets of Annapolis in his unmistakeable yellow FJ Cruiser before he returns safely to the yard and stretches a thousand-dollar blue tarp over it, stenciled with his name and alpha. Sean is a ferocious collector of all things except desk space. If you need a teaspoon of New Zealand honey, or an expensive piece of metal to tap your tobacco into a sherlock-holmes pipe, Sean's desk is sure to have it in stock. If not, his locker has most likely puked it onto the floor. Despite Sean's tenacious drive to join the medical community, the Academy has found his talents to align more with the the pilots of Marines Corps. Although not a master of medicine, Sean is a jack of all trades. So if you're interested in how to pour a thirty dollar beer, or which steep of tea to give to your enemies, sit down for a few hours with the Scrote. Just make sure to bring a notebook.

Christopher Sarao

Surface Warfare EDO

Born into the 1860's gold rush, CJ spent much of his life a gun slinging cowboy seeking out riches and fame on the frontier. These days he serves as a faithful member of 9th Company, but his sense of adventure has not left him. Known for his 1 versus nobody dance battle skills and insatiable desire to party, CJ is the life of every event. Perhaps most notable billet at the Naval Academy has been his leadership as 9th Company Tailgate Grillmaster -- a prestigious 1 Striper position he has provided innumerable hot dogs and beers to the hungry masses after football games. Without his conspicuous gallantry and devotion to the greater good, we would not all have been able to be best friends. CJ is a man among midshipmen, and the brigade wouldn't have been the same without him.

KEVIN SAXTON

USMC GROUND

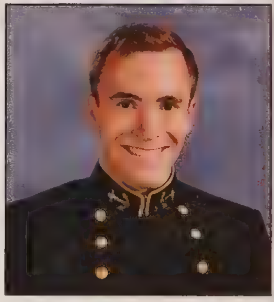
Born in his parents' room on Thursday August 2nd at 2:34pm, Kevin James Saxton was ready to take on the world. After being homeschooled for 2 years and being quite literally being "hooked on phonics" Kevin learned to read at the ripe age of 9. Middle school was rough for this ginger stud, but he fought through the name calling and became a legend in the lower realms of popularity. Kevin graduated in the middle of his class in the small farming community of Scottville Michigan and a few short weeks later he was in the Navy. Kevin heard the rumor about submarines...the one where 150 men go on deployment and 75 couples come back. It was at that point that he knew the sub life was for him. Kidding, but subs were good though. Then came the Academy. Multiple cases of sunburn and days of consistent heartburn were common battles for this old man. But he fought through and finally attained his dream 4 years later, to be selected for the Marines where he can finally carry a gun. Now on to bigger and better things. Czech Rahj.

ANDREW SNYDER

NAVY PILOT

Andy "Snyguy" Snyder is a self-proclaimed subject matter expert in all areas, and a hard-working individual who can often be found cranking out paperwork at his desk which now doubles as his company commander base of operations after he methodically planned and orchestrated the most effective leadership coup d'etat in 9th Company history. Andy supplements his work environment with a wide variety of screamo and death-metal music so spine-chilling that you can sense the growing presence of Cthulhu materializing in a dark corner of the bedroom. When Andy is not toppling regimes he is typically up in the Mac D penthouse curling 5-pound pink dumbbells or doing pec-flys on his home Bowflex machine in preparation for the Pensacola amateur bodybuilding competition. After his tough workouts, Andy prefers to hit the town to satisfy his uncanny thirst for red-headed women or simply unwind at a local DTA bar where his roommates can typically get a beer into him before he puts his happiness in timeout for the rest of the night, orders a late-night Jimmy John's sandwich, and retires to his hotel room originally purchased for two people. But Andy never fails to rise again the following day with an overcoming spirit that is sure to lead him to great success as a Naval Aviator.

RYAN SPEIR



NAVY PILOT

"Fresh off those dirty Chiraq streets, He hit the ground running in those fresh dad jeans. Doritos and mountain dew, prestiging in COD, Still to this day can't escape that dad bod. He's moved on from girls that look like his sister. But still Facetimes Randy because man does he miss her. What's that in the sky? No it's not Spire, Yeah it's his plane but just Jake can fly her. "Omaha!" -his jokes always making it weird, Back dancing killer past a couple of beers. King of the Nerds, homework's his fave toil, And you should see how he looks at a NACA airfoil. Backyard sports, Hawaiian shirts, jean shorts, His golf score's way higher than he ever reports. The hottest lamp on Tinder, yeah he's a winner, Appetizers, desserts and he'll eat half her dinner. Turned on to the bop by the corn cob shank, Now both his thumbs smelling permanently dank. Ryan we'll be nice, here, take some advice, Enjoy your new school, no jokes, keep it cool. ROBERT STEP

SUBMARINES

Rob came to the Naval Academy with a packed resume that consisted of sleeping through freshman year at Oklahoma State and whipping up triple, non-fat, caramel macchiatos as a barista at Starbucks. He was quick to let all his detailers know that he was destined for greatness as a Navy SEAL, but those dreams were cut short when he finally settled on EOD. Fifteen minutes into fulfilling that dream, he was left as a future submariner, handing off his nuclear bonus check to his fiancé, who, by the way, is a hundred times cooler than Rob could ever aspire to be. This is a hard feat to accomplish given the fact that Rob spent all of his personal time watching strangers play video games and complaining about how busy he wished he would have gotten on weekends. If all of this wasn't exciting enough, his professional life consisted of flipping off plebes and ripping their racks right before Battalion Officer room inspections. This man will live a humble life with his fiancé Grace, and as long as sailors in his division do their jobs perfectly, never make mistakes, and never talk to Rob, they'll have themselves a fantastic Div-O.

CARMEN STURDIFEN

SURFACE WARFARE

Carmen Maria Sturdifen, the Beyonce of 5-3, has been serving sass and class since I-Day. She's responsible for getting our classmates to actually hang out with each other at her holiday parties, and it was guaranteed she'd be the first one on the dance floor showing off her moves. She's a woman of many talents. Need to track someone down on social media? She's got you. Need a pep talk? She'll give it to you straight and have you feeling ready to run the world. When she's not writing History papers, she can be found being cute with her fiance, Morgan, or binge-watching only the best TV shows and movies. But after 2230, that eye mask is on and it's lights out for Carmen. The Marine blood runs deep in her family, but Carmen will find new adventures as a SWO on the high seas of the West Coast, fulfilling her childhood dream of becoming Carmen Sandiego. She's known for her fantastic style, clever wit, and a positive energy unlike any other. Follow her on Instagram (@luckyy_carmss) if you want to become insanely jealous of her life. The Fleet is gaining a good one, and we can't wait to see the amazing things she will do!

Kathryn Viado

Surface Warfare

A local of Maryland, this swotivator has been shaking it to the top since I-Day. She's a legacy midshipman as a second generation Black N letter winner. If you have a shady thought about something that was just said, look no further than to Kathryn's face to see your own feelings mirrored back. A stellar desk dancer and an even better friend, she can often be found watching the newest pop music videos or jamming (not so) quietly to hits of the 80s. RIP Whitney and George Michael. Gone too soon. A connoisseur of the delicacies the Mid Store such as Hot n' Spicy Ramen or Flaming Cheetos, Kathryn only enjoyed the finest things in life as a midshipmen. Always our CC—forever the lil homie.

John Walter

Surface Warfare (EDO)

Born in 1929, young JR Walter spent his formative years developing a keen sense of style from the failing business men crowding the streets. In his budding adulthood JR sailed the caribbean raiding innocent island villages, crimes for which he is still wanted in four countries. In his defense he claims "it was in the pursuit of scientific research". Recruited for his outstanding performance in evasive sailing, JR has spent the last four years at the Academy maintaining a 4.0 as well as a healthy denim on denim wardrobe. A known member of the freemasons and illuminati, JR can often be found whispering cryptic alliterations, "silent seahorses swim serendipitously". As a midshipman, a friend, and an engineer, JR has enjoyed immense success at the Naval Academy. Using only hangers, a piece of wood, and an old TV, he once provided cable television and Jeopardy night to room 5251 for a whole semester. Without him, the Naval Academy would have been a darker, more peaceful place.

Cameron Wegener

USMC Pilot

Cameron has spent his four years at the Academy with a smile on his baby face concealing the last vestiges of his youthful idealism and a crippling awareness of the international political economy. There is an idea of Cameron Wegener, but as a Midshipman, Cam's excellence in the classroom has been overshadowed by his prowess in extracurricular activities like intramural volleyball, tacos, and sarcasm. Cam is notorious for his ability to deliver insightful inquiries into Just War Theory and righteous critiques of the military profession. He has spent these past four years becoming the leader we need, and the friend everyone can rely on. Our Corps and our country are the better for men like him.

William Bloom

Navy Pilot

"If you want to have a long and drawn out conversation about stuff literally no one cares about, Will is your man. Will was the first member of our class on Restriction, and he's still scarred from those 10 long days. It's easy to trust a man who once freaked out about missing a restriction muster he just got back from. Despite every effort to make the Bloom family name into the next Kennedy, William has only successfully pioneered the art of warming up girls with sensitive conversation and name dropping. Without a doubt, there is no one more likely than Will to make Admiral."

Adrian Chinnery

ISC

"Chin was a different type of MIDN. For starters, he's not even in the Navy. Adrian ended up cross commissioning to the Air Force which continues down the trail of him being unique. From I day minus 1 to grad, this kid was on a path to be different. He has the special distinction to be part of the 5 year program and endure the winters in Newport, RI to loving mando summer school every year at the Academy. His most favorite times were playing on the baseball field (getting yelled at as walk on to being still yelled at as first team all patty league player) with his teammates and finding a way to break the mold in company. If you ever bump into Chin, he is probably saying, "what's up yo" and telling you if you are in or out (long story), talking about baseball or talking about Lily. Have fun playing your video game for a living or whatever you end up doing!"

Larissa Clarke

USMC Pilot

Larissa Clarke is not a morning person... unless she's PTing, striper sword-ing, or conducting formation for the company. She's a political scientist and Netflix aficionado. She can find a relevant Family Guy reference for any situation or topic, then turn around and give you a lesson in current events. Larissa can crush a Blue Moon in DTA with her friends with the same ease that she can kill Centralians in the undulating terrain of the Quantico highlands.

Anna Crutchfield

Submarines

Anna Crutchfield is a kind, loving starpig. You can find her in her natural habitat reading in bed with multiple stuffed animals, singing with her Glee girls, or knitting on the couch. Anna is a sweetheart with a knack for listening., and she'll probably offer you a cup of tea too. She is a soft spoken homebody that harnesses a fiery passion within. Her strong willed nature has allowed her to be early selected for submarine service with an English major. Anna's determination, genuine care for others, and content with silence will carry over well into her service in the fleet. But if you hear a soft angelic voice singing from the shower during a night op, it may surprise you and be Anna.

Laura Cruz

Surface Warfare

"This girl you see here is the sweetest, happiest , sassiest , person you will ever meet. She may seem harmless but catch her early enough in the morning and she will bite your head off with a snarky comment, or her death stare. You can more often than not see her surrounded by either Israel Varela or Monica Prioleau and sometimes both when smirking and giggling about something stupid, or catching up on the daily gossip in Bancroft Hall. Her childish heart drives her to watch Disney movie almost everyday, with a side meal that consist of a Godfather crepe and smores crepe, which she eats at the same time. With her fabulous roommate, Monica Prioleau, she is constantly quoting movies such as White Chicks, Storkes, Finding Nemo, and others. She is considered the mother of the company and many know her as Mama Cruz but to her close friends she is known as Cruzie. She will continue to do great things in the future and will continue to bring the extra sassiness to people's lives you interact with. Love ya BOO BOO Kitty!!

Nhat Do

Submarines

Nhat "Nhatty Lite" Do was born face down in a rice paddy in Vietnam. He came to the United States when he was 11 years old and the first thing he did was turn on the TV to watch an Eagles game. He has been their #2 fan ever since. Nhat learned to speak English from the finest institutions in Camden, NJ and was put in English for non-native speakers. Mr. Do makes the perfect noodle, always works out in PT gears, and is the most loyal friend a guy can have.

Collin Donahue

Cryptologic Warfare

Commonly known as "Donny," Collin Donahue is a native of the nation being the military brat he is, but claims his true home to be Florida. His tattoo can confirm this. GO GATORS! He really loves his 1's and 0's and loves it so much he decided to study the mysterious and ever elusive Cyber Operations. He even named his fluffy dog Zero. Collin is truly a smarticle as he actually enjoys doing cyber research. His position as Regimental Drill the past three semesters has kept him safe from the rifle and sword of parades on Worden Field and instead given him the job of "Body Snatcher". All else aside, Collin is a loyal and trustworthy friend and sticks by his own no matter what. Collin will no doubt make waves in the CW community after graduation and they will be lucky to have him!

Jonathan Drablos

USMC Pilot

Jon "Bjorn to be Wild" Drablos was a force to be reckoned with during his four years here by the bay. When he wasn't devotedly training the 4/C, you could find him flying high as a member of the Men's Varsity Track Team. His hard work and dedication drove him to be successful both on and off the track, where he became an inspiration to the underclass during his two-term career as a squad leader. Jon is a charismatic leader, always encouraging people to reach their potential and making them strive to be their very best. He is extremely outgoing, never shying away from an opportunity to meet new people and tell them all about his Norwegian heritage (asking questions like: "Did you know Norwegians invented cross-country skiing?" or, "Have you seen the new season of Vikings?"). This positive attitude served him well as a platoon commander at Leatherneck, where he first fell in love with the warrior ethos of the Corps. Ever since, he has been devoted to achieving his dream of becoming a true Devildog; spending long hours mastering the delivery of the five paragraph order, telling people his favorite movie is 300 (even though it's really Moana), and drinking Guinness exclusively out of a camelback. His passion for the Corps, along with his ability to relate to the people he works with, will serve him well as a member of the Marine Aviation community. A great friend, mentor, and midshipman, Jon will no doubt also become a great Marine!

Drew Dziwulski

USMC Ground

Drew "DZ" Dziwulski is an incredible guy unless you just beat him in anything. No one in the world hates losing as much as DZ. Famous for losing in Super Smash, returning to his desk, and putting on headphones to never be heard from again. There are two types of opinions in the world, DZ's opinions and wrong opinions. Known for loving dogs, leaving the Yard, and nothing else. DZ is going to continue logging vast amounts of miles on his care to return to Woodbine, MD to visit his pups. DZ will be a great Marine officer for 5 years and not a day more. It has been a blast living with him for the past three years.

Joseph Ellis

Surface Warfare

The meanest, the greenest, he's the young Joe P, oftentimes referred to as Joey Pistola. His hobbies include throwing water bottles at TVs, combing his hair, picking dead skin off his hands, and getting embarrassed at Madden. A professional instigator and escalator, Joe has spent his four years here finding the fastest ways to rile up his friends. A skillful investor, he's effectively saved and budgeted, only impulse splurging on the occasional assault rifle or power boat. His favorite experience at USNA was PROTRAMID, especially the time he got to spend in the air. A refined gentleman, Joe can often be found scouring Johnny Pistolas or Buddy's for older women. However, most Saturdays are spent pretending to be an athlete in Hubbard Hall (no one told him that crew wouldn't help his SWO OOM) or traveling to Virginia for driving lessons. Joe proved how much of a joke aerospace engineering is here by swindling a degree despite being unable to figure out how to preregister for classes. His beaming smile and late night antics will missed and he should expect plenty of visitors in San Diego. So get a pull out couch please thank YOU.

James England

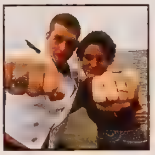
USMC Ground

James William Sorolis England: a man almost as pretentious as his name. An aficionado of bourbon, cigars, and blonde women who treat him poorly, Jimmy, as he is known to his friends, is one of the most passionate men you will ever meet. He is passionate about the Greeks being the true owners of Constantinople, Kentucky, and the dankest memes known to man. The thing he is most passionate about, however, is blaming the only time his jeep ever got stuck(in a snowy parking lot) on his lack of snow tires. The only thing more divided than his political stances is his chin. James is widely known, to himself, as the purveyor of the manliest things possible, and is sure to let you know. Some of his favorite things include shooting, Jeeps, and Alabama Football. The rest of the Breakfast Club still isn&#8217;t sure how a proud native of Louisville, Kentucky became such an avid fan, but we&#8217;re sure he has some sort of good reason. In all honestly, we could not ask for a better friend, and we are sure that if he desires it, Jimmy could be Commandant of the Marine Corps one day.

Benjamin Goodrich

Navy Pilot

Ben "calveless" Goodrich The only reason Ben went to USNA was that he heard he could fish on the yard. Truly resilient in all things, he stuck it out for the boys on the lacrosse field for four years. Humble. Goody drinks smart water cause he thinks it will make him smarter, needs to keep drinking, although it does help him exude brilliance on his writing assignments. Skilled on the sticks, but never the best, he will make a great pilot. More importantly, his time in Pensacola might mean he can finally properly prepare for his post-Navy career as a charter boat captain.

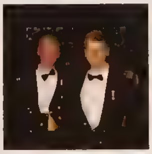


Thomas Groves

Submarines

"Thomas Byron Groves is a big, sweaty, steer of a man with a smell so pungent that he was disqualified from Mary Mary Beth Maryannes meatjudging contest. As one of the top economic students, Tom demonstrated his financial prowess as the wardroom's grand poobah and a shrewd MidTrader looking to make a quick buck. From rugby to trap and skeet, Tom tried out for a lot of teams at the Academy, but he gave these up for competitive Madden playing and Coors Light drinking. Should you find him going too hard in the paint, dont you dare laugh or he will mock you with his high-pitched screech. Luckily his fiance has always been there to rein him in. That she can handle his sweaty gym clothes assures us that she is a perfect match. As a self-proclaimed Colorado grill-master Wray-sed on Rocky Mountain oysters, submarines was a natural fit for him. His sharp intellect and generosity will serve him well in whichever Fortune 500 company he leads, especially when his friends come asking for money."

William Herbert



Submarines

Throughout Will's academy career, he has had one mission: to haze himself as much as possible. As a member of the lightweight crew team, Will has enjoyed numerous benefits including 3-6 hours of rowing a day, cutting weight he didn't have, and breaking his hip. Academically, Will chose to become an Electrical Engineer, which gave him the opportunity to watch his roommate fall asleep hours before himself every single night. Despite his lack of sleep, Will refused to take naps. In fact Will took a nap as often as he went out....which was never because he loves the Hall too much. He did, however, have an interesting 22nd birthday party where he messed up his room and a few other places on 5-4 (ask him about it sometime)! For his first semester of 2/C year, he found the Naval Academy lacking in discipline and motivation, so he decided to spend a semester with our brothers at West Point. When he returned, he was more fired up than ever and took on the roles of Company Training Officer and Battalion Commander so that he could thoroughly enjoy his last year at the Academy. In his free time, Will enjoys looking at photos of himself rowing, borrowing yogurt from King Hall, and commenting on his roommate taking numerous naps throughout the day. In all seriousness, you won't find a man more physically or mentally tough than Will Herbert. His exceptional competence and self-confidence will make him a remarkable officer. In fact, he already has the pale skin needed to become a fine Submariner.

Alexander Holloway

Navy Pilot

Alex "The Great Gatsby" Holloway comes from the gold-paved roads of Newport, RI. He is a gentleman of liberal education, refined manners, punctilious courtesy, and the nicest sense of personal honor. Except for that time he left one of his roommates to fail an alpha inspection. Alex knows almost every major celebrity that grew up in the United States including people like Taylor Swift, Lindsey Lohan, Tom Brady, and the Lilly Pulitzer herself... all through his grandfather's sister's daughter's twice removed cousin. A sub-par madden player, Alex can be found after hours in the football locker room handling sweaty jockstraps, in the hallway talking to his girlfriend, or in Georgetown where all his Pomfret friends currently go to school. The biggest question we all ask is whether the Academy diploma will go above the Pomfret diploma. Alex will be remembered as a great friend and loving father of a few potential children. So when he moves out to Pensacola, I hope he has a big place because that is where the wildest parties of your dreams will be

Katherine Kinnear

Intel

Katy Perry says that California girls are unforgettable, and in this case – she's right. Straight outta Newport Beach, CA, Katherine Kinnear has made a truly unforgettable legacy here at the USNA. From academics to sports, she just does it all. Whether she's fighting in a boxing ring or slugging it out on an English paper, one can't help but notice and admire the tenacity and heart she channels into her work. If you're looking for the next NY Times Best-Seller, keep an eye out for Katherine because as an English major, her passion for writing is undeniable. She might even illustrate a few pages using her largely unknown artistic skills. And despite her stint in aerodynamics during her 3 years on the Navy Cheer team, you won't find her in a cockpit. Instead, she is going the secret squirrel route with Intel. Her selfless desire to help others will surely be how she makes her mark in the fleet as she has done on the Yard. Everyone here knows she's a BRO. Her contributions to suicide prevention and mental health as the first Brigade Resilience Officer will leave a legacy of her fighting spirit to help others fight through their 4 years by the bay.

Dane Kozlosky

Surface Warfare

Dane Kozlosky was born in a slice of suburbia known as Mantua, New Jersey, although he will be quick to tell you of his so called "Philly" roots. During his spare time, he enjoys throwing bookshelves into hallways and spending time with upper-class in hotel rooms. A hopeless romantic, Dane can be seen dancing on the rooftops with his lovers, or riding jet skis with women who possess a motherly touch. Dane is a die-hard Philadelphia Eagles fan, and even possesses the beak like nose to prove it. Wherever Dane's Navy career takes him, you can find him dancing in his trusty fireman costume to the tune of "It's Raining Men". Through all the lackluster R&B renditions and times he's said "down the hatch", Dane's been the best roommate out there. Although our time in Bancroft has to end, the legacy of the Bada Bing lives on.

Hayden Lee

USMC Ground

Recruited for basketball, Hayden could dunk in his prime, which was 5 years ago. He is truly on the backside of his peak at this point. Nowadays he's training for fatherhood and already has the perfect car. Hayden has had some really suspect encounters with one roommate in particular, and has mastered the art of passing with minimum effort. He won't admit it if you ask him, but he's always there for his friends. The self-proclaimed saltiest future Marine, Hayden always finds a way to have a good time and will surely be successful in the years to come.

Phillip Lowry

Submarines

Jack Main

Surface Warfare

Jack Main is one of the most fascinating individuals that you will ever meet. If he is not doing some insane workout then he is likely either napping, playing darts or stuffing his face at Basmati's Indian Cuisine. A true foodie, Jack has spent the majority of his privileged weekday liberty cooking anything and everything he saw in Tasty videos, especially pancakes. Unfortunately, he never shared any with his roommate because he consistently only made enough for one person. However, everyone who knows Jack well can say that he is a juice weasel at heart (RIP Juice Main, 2014-2016). He has come a long way since the 10th day of Plebe Summer when he threw his classmate under the bus without any hesitation or regret (looking at you, Donahue). Dedicated to his principles Jack bends the knee to no man or woman. Indeed few "NARPS" can claim to have beaten a recruited Duke swimmer in a 500m swim. To describe Jack in one word would be a disservice. The most appropriate description of the man is the phrase "like a damn savage". You will rarely meet more of an impressive physical specimen and noble individual. Jack truly accomplished a lot in his midshipmen career. From Training Corporal all the way to Brigade PMO, Jack has shown that he is ready to lead his sailors on the USS Bunker Hill, even though he is prone to major sea sickness (RIP YP 688). It's been an honor, Jack, and remember that when in doubt, rack it out.

Stuart McDaniel

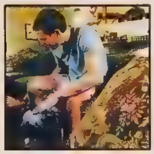
Naval Flight Officer

Raised in Leavenworth Prison and keen on secrecy, a five minute conversation with this robust Mid will reveal only one thing: he owns and drives the truck of the year. The only thing diesel about this gentle warrior is his beer, which lesser men would simply call Budweiser but not so with Mr. McDaniel. Despite his rough appearance and jailhouse upbringing, Stuart is even sweeter than the Honey Jim and Dr. Pepper concoction which he frequently sips in between bouts of porch hurling. He is sure to make a robust impact when he gets to the fleet.

Maurice Morris

Surface Warfare

Faith, Family, Friends, and Football. If you ask Mo, that's what's gotten him to this point in life and why he's accomplished what he has. Ambitious, persistent, responsible and reliable. Quiet to those that don't know him, but full of jokes to us who have the pleasure to know him personally. A Varsity football player all four years and AAC-2nd team senior year.



John Orchard

Surface Warfare

Jack Orchard also known as JOOOOR, Back Porchard, Sack Torchard or Scot Vineyard, is a man of few words. He has certainly embraced the moto of "suffering in silence" holding the record for the longest plank in plebe summer. This all changed once he was given his magical backpack. He cannot be seen frequenting the local watering holes without it. His magical powers of IPA's appearing out of thin air is an astonishing feat. Sleeping will remain one of his favorite past times. A man who, when you look deep into his eyes, you know...this man is haunted. It's always tough to get angry at a guy whose eyes kind of glow red at night. He might not win a fight he gets in but it's very clear that Jajo would not stop until he was actually dead, which would never happen due to his season pass to the "spirit world". Famous for making some kind of noise every time he enters the room, never an actual word. "No one" is nastier than him. As he always says it takes him a bit longer to do things than everyone else. There is no doubt in my mind he will accomplish anything he puts his mind to. Even if it is at his pace. He has supplied the room with a lot of laughs the past year and will continue to be successful in whatever he does. To the silent assassin keep on keepin on my man. Love you JOOOOR!

Monica Prioleau

Surface Warfare

When you first meet Monica you might think that she is a very quiet person, you might think she doesn't like to talk to people, and some might even say she is "a little off". But what you don't know is her love for sleeping with her heated blanket, the fact that she has her own personal Tabasco bottle that she takes with her to King Hall, her love of miniature pigs, and her love for milk so col it can freeze your esophagus! Do not be fooled by the pretty face, recall back to her early years in D&B where she pretended to play the baritone in order to get free trips to fun places, when her long legs would serve her well to succeed in every PRT even though she did not work out until the week before, and the fact that if she put as much work into school as she did to memorizing funny movie quotes she would have a 4.0! She is the Boo to my Kitty and her ship is about to have a hell of a SWO mama (I hope they don't sink!) Hah! Love you Boo Thang!

Alyssa Randell

Naval Flight Officer

Have you forgotten what the new Brigade instruction says? Are you in need of a little known fact? If either of these things have been irritating you, Alyssa Randell is your woman! From Fairfax, VA, Alyssa is one of the smartest people you'll find here at USNA. An Aeronautical Engineer (Astro side), she has soared above the rest academically. Her work in her major even carries over into the fleet where she will become a Naval Flight Officer. When she's not studying, you can find her outside enjoying the sun on an afternoon run or serving her classmates as a part of the Honor System. Alyssa really does do it all. There is no doubt she will excel as a naval officer, and if she ever needs an extra man on her pipe patching team, I'd be glad to lend a hand.

Kyle Ritterbeck

Submarines

Only one last name could unite a class in a chorus of Amazing Grace: Kyle Nicholas Ritterbeck. Coming to us from the Big Ten powerhouse of Ohio State, he quickly earned a reputation as the Brigade's preeminent peanut butter inspector. With a heart forged in the fires of zombie combat, this former Pacsun manager threw himself into training for Leatherneck and the SEAL Screener. But only the Submarine Community paid enough to pay off his student loans. Over the course of four years, Ritter managed to maintain a 4.0 CQPR, get accepted to graduate school, and spend 320 total hours talking to his fiance before bed. With his infectious sense of humor and devotion to those under his command, Kyle is sure to make a lasting impact on the world's best submarine force.

Dishan Romine

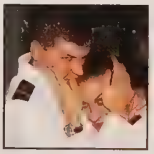
Surface Warfare

Dishan M. Romine, from Louisville, Kentucky, unknowingly melts females' hearts nationwide with his subtle Kentucky twang and down to earth personality. Dishan (or Young Savo) is a man of God and a quintessential Mama's Boy, prioritizing faith and family above all else. He is fast enough to give Usain Bolt a run for his money and excels in all sports with a vast appreciation for books, education, and making new connections. Whether it's in the classroom, on a field, or in a bar, you want Dishan on your team.

Harrison Samario

Surface Warfare

Harry is tall, dark, handsome, and surprisingly odorous. It almost seems as if he picked his major and sports simply to prevent himself from having any free time at all. He has worked harder than anyone else on the Yard and has been through the ringer. That being said, Harry has found ways to have a good time both in and out of Bancroft. He is quick to help out his friends and deserves to be here more than most. Harry has been a great friend and is going to make a great officer.



Erin Seiffert

Surface Warfare

Erin Seiffert is the epitome of New Jersey: loud, fake tanned and drives too dang fast. If you've ever heard a person's voice resonating through the stairwell, that would be Erin on the phone with her mom. She might have a 4.0 as a math major, but for some reason it took her until she was 19 to learn to pump her own gas. The most motivated person at Leatherneck, the ruckless ruck fairy always cheered up those around her. Erin service selected SWOmama, emphasis on the mama. She is extremely loyal, keeping her Yankees close to her heart as she heads to the USS New York. Erin is the most likely to pin first, because of both her brilliance and her determination to get on shore and start her own version of cheaper by the dozen. An original cross country Kat. Erin will smoke you in any distance from the 500m to the 6000m, especially if you tattle to your parents about her first. No matter how much she insists she's a sprinter, her retirement ended early since "we can't stop". Some would describe Erin as sweet and friendly, and those people clearly have never tried to wake her up or take a picture of her. If you ever have trouble finding Erin, check her rack. Or Eric's. Erin insists she has no emotions, until she won't see her Ric; then get ready for the waterworks. A loving, smart and strong woman, she impacts everyone she meetings with her dynamic and passionate personality. No matter how much she hates mushy gushy, she's hard not to love. While she might not be in the Navy for long, Erin's impact will be eternal. Erin's life has "miles to go", and you can bet no matter what she does, she's going to always have her family and friends by her side. Go get 'em Erin, you're gonna kill it!

Mary Stammer

Navy Pilot

A renowned Lego builder, and lover of anything in miniature form, Mary/Mary Kate/MK Stam Stam will be there for you during your worst of days and will never ask anything in return In fact, she is so selfless that people who know her well beg her to be a bit selfish at times. But this is MK: she cares about you and your needs, unless you are trying to interrupt her Spongebob marathon. After transitioning from a super fast track athlete to a super awkward ice skater, MK's personality and leadership shadowed her inability to shoot a puck and she was named Ass(istant)Cap She helped lead the team to their first Nationals. Her team relied on her for advice and guidance, as well as her PlayStation 2 during study period. MK will be taking the skies as a Naval Aviator, fulfilling her dreams of going fast and making the same jet noises that she makes in her sleep. Good thing she will be required to have eight hours of sleep since waking up for her is hard to do. Even though she's a Navy brat, her Cali blood runs deep and is apparent in her chillax demeanor that makes her the perfect fit for the chilliest community in the Navy. After her military career, expect to find MK cleaning tanks at the National Aquarium and becoming one with her spirit animal, the otter. If you want something done in a short amount of time and with limited resources, MK is your person. If you want to laugh at someone that gives all animals quirky and weirdly accurate voices, MK is your person. And if you want a solid friend that will be by your side no matter the circumstances, MK is your person

Luke Sullivan

USMC Ground

Luke Robert Sullivan, the only man in the Brigade with 2 college degrees, 4.0 Major CQPRs, and no standards. He has amassed more hours watching Netflix than he has ranting about the dominance of Boston sports teams. He divides his time on the weekend between drinking Sam Adams and charity work with diabetic patients. Although his diet consists of Taco Bell, Dunkin Donuts and Raisin Bran, he somehow manages to run marathons with little to no effort. At any point in the day he can be found with one of three Dropkick Murphy's songs stuck in his head. Because he has lost many wrestling matches with his roommates, he has devoted much of his free time to researching the proper technique for a blood choke and practices it on any willing patron. Luke is sure to brighten your day with his witty responses and the Marine Corps is lucky to have him as an officer.

Israel Varela

Surface Warfare

Doc!! Where's Doc! A prior corpsman, he's the saltiest mid around. When he's not eating Chinese-food or studying in the library... then he's probably eating Japanese-food and watching anime! An all-around great guy, Izzy always manages to make time for friends. If you ever need any help, all you have to do is just ask. A future SWO daddy, Izzy is California-bound and ready to hit the fleet—that is for a second time! Whether you call him grandpa, Izzy, Doc, or roommate, Izzy will always surprise you with his fun personality and caring heart. I'm going to miss our time together as roommates, even though you do chew with your mouth open, but I can honestly say I can't wait to visit you in San Diego! Fair winds and following seas brother!

Charles Webb

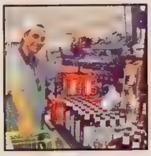
USMC Pilot

Chuck is known for his surprisingly short showers and stature. He's a man of character, but somehow has the most demerits out of all of his roommates. He only wants to date girls who wear their watch backwards, and hopes to have more luck in the future. Chuck would literally have your back in any situation, just hope that he is within yelling distance because he hasn't answered his phone in four years. His proudest accomplishment is winning the coveted "Most Improved Roommate" award in the 6-Man in a landslide victory. At the end of the day you couldn't ask for a better friend and roommate.

Christian White

Submarines

Christian Paul White, the esteemed (Glee) Club President. Your time at the Academy is slowly receding, as is your hairline. I implore you to enjoy both while you still can. His talents include singing and eating an entire jar of peanut butter in one sitting. He could clear an entire shopping mall by simply removing his loafers. Your love for your friends and family falls just short of your infatuation with hummus and curling up on a pair of your favorite bag of laundry. You looked the part of a smooth crooning Skiv, until that absurd Italian accent Backfired on you. But through it all, Christian is a fantastic roommate and someone who is always there through thick and thin. The Bada Bing will live on forever, because we did it our way.



Samuel Williams

Navy Pilot

Because there was no room left at the inn Sam was born in a place I can only assume the Navy uses for SERE school. If he ever tries to explain where he's from, just nod and smile (aspiring pilots, don't look directly at his forehead). A tough decision Sam chose to give up his right to the family's radish farm to attend the Naval Academy. Throughout his four years in Annapolis, Sam has worked relentlessly to improve all aspects of his life: his grades, his beer mile time, his bbq. During the week, you can always find Sam leading plebe workouts or taking accountability at formation. He usually spends his weekends with a group of girls in the satellite lab, stumbling over hurdles around Ingram after a regrettable night at Buddy's, or at church on Sunday mornings (see you there). Sam is a big sports guy - he's been the Patriots' biggest fan since 2014 In denial of his role as number two nerd in Al's herd, Peep will probably greet you with a "sup nerd" rather than hello. He's been over on the darkside for a little while, but he'll come back when he see's them at the the third mile. Resident bump expert, he's firmly in the "count" corner when it comes to the MO paradigm and can often be found handing out water cups with his number in the chute. In all seriousness, Sam is a great friend and will undoubtedly be missed by all who knew him I cannot wait to see what he accomplishes next. Four years as a swordfish in Wes B gone by, thanks for memories, Batt supply

Tina Alberts

Surface Warfare

When Tina Alberts isn't busy bullying her friends into running marathons, she's most likely mothering a member of fam11y. This lovely lady hails from the great state of New York, and in case you forget all you have to do is listen for the accent to shine through. Fluent in French, she has been known to spend copious amounts of time traveling Europe, all on the Academy's dime. Family and company are the most important things to Tina and on a Friday night she can usually be found taking care of her people. Tina is a lover of cheese and wine, and nothing is better than combining those with friends. With her excitement to lead people, it is no surprise that she is headed down to Mayport to the USS The Sullivans after graduation.

Lewis Aldridge

Naval Flight Officer

So you wanna know about Lewis Aldridge? There's a few things you have to understand. In a nutshell, he cares about: God, music, the University of North Carolina, and maintaining his status as ½ of Bancroft's #southernpowercouple, but not necessarily in that order. His friends will tell you that they lost track of him somewhere around a love chit during 2/C year, he still comes around company area from time to time, but certainly not for the boys. His endless love for her is only matched by his endless supply of needlepoint belts (handmade by Eva Jo of course). Picture this: a man wheezing and choking on air. Does he need medical attention? Or is it just Lewis laughing? No one is ever sure. His time at the Academy can only be described as an emotional roller coaster, not because of the Academy, but because of UNC basketball. As the Vice President of Men's Glee Club, you could say he assumed the highest ideals of duty, honor, and loyalty the musical world has to offer, but don't forget about that time they all got fried. The Grinch didn't steal Christmas that year, it was B.S. Caribou, you'll always be a member of Yeet Squad even if you're wearing the wrong uniform. You're going to be one of the greatest NFOs ever. We love you bud.

Ryan Bailey

Submarines

Ryan "Robo" Bailey was a true leader. He led his team in the pool and in the bars. He always made sure his mouth was never dry as a desert. Whenever he had a beer in his hand he always had a joke to tell. His taste buds changed almost weekly, Ryan always craved a different, sometimes fiery flavor after a few days. We will all miss you when you leave, but there's some beavers in Charleston that need huntin. As his time as Captain will go down in history, we could not and would not have had the season we had without Brother Ryan. NMSD proud.

Jared Balko

Explosive Ordance Disposal

Jared "Calves Are Genetic, Bro" Balko aka "Mystery Man" is the aftermath of when Zeus came down to earth and transformed to mate with a majestic Belgian Blue Cow. If he is not alone in his room late at night watching youtube videos, then he is in the gym fighting tooth and nail to pack on just a little more muscle. A very patient man, he has mastered the art of the semi-long distance relationship, but more importantly he has mastered the art of being the semi-drunk caretaker for his friends, usually seen shaking his head in frustration as one of them prepares to cause an international incident. He has lived in many places like West Virginia, Ohio, Saudi Arabia, the Lejeune pool and the northbound train to New Jersey, and met some interesting people like real-life Dora the Explorer. To the guy who did both a SEAL and EOD cruise because he thought it would be "fun", we wish you the best and hope you are not too busy saving the world to hangout.

Jacob Best

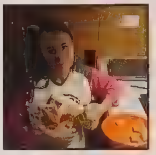
Navy Pilot

Old man Jake, Always quick with a joke and a light for your smoke, except he was neither. Most notable for passing out early and starting the process of becoming wolverine. He has only converted his left femur to adamantium so far, but has plans for the rest. If he wasn't at the drop zone jumping, then he had a beer in his hand singing drunken songs with anyone who would join in. Man did all the high schoolers think he was awesome.

Christina Blackburn

Supply Corps

Christina Marie Blackburn might just be the smallest, tannest, sassiest little Italian anyone has ever met. Coming in at five feet tall (add an inch if she is rocking the party pony), people are truly amazed at how much fun is packed into such a little human. On Saturday mornings you can find her running...in a pool, down a trail, or possibly even up a mountain, and by the evenings she can be found in ACME peer pressuring people into downing tequila shots with her. Once she has enough liquid courage you can find her on the dance floor. It is truly amazing how much those little legs and arms can move. And if you ever have the pleasure of walking Christina home after a fun night out do not be alarmed when she starts whining for carrots and celery as they are her go to drunk snack. While we might not share her love for cardio and low calorie foods, she is truly the greatest friend a girl could ever ask for. She never misses an opportunity to let the people around her know how much she cares for them. I couldn't have asked for a better best friend and I am jealous of everyone in the Supply community that gets to work with her in the future. Love you forever and always CB



Elizabeth Bostian

Navy Pilot

Elizabeth "Aloha" Bostian was born in Hawaii (yes, she is second cousins with Lilo in case you couldn't see the resemblance) but grew up in the equally scenic state of Arkansas. While in Arkansas, Liz learned the fine arts of sweet tea consumption, softball, and being a sloth. While she considered a career as a disc jockey or pizza roll chef, Liz ultimately decided to attend the Naval Academy because of the prospect of Firehook sandwiches and cheddar munchers. During her time in Annapolis, Liz has pursued excellence in all areas of the mission, particularly the physical mission as Liz is arguably the most well rested Midshipman in the Brigade. Devastated that she couldn't service select "professional chiller," after graduation Liz will attend flight school in Pensacola where she will select whichever platform lets her have the AUX cord.

Michael Bundas

SEALs

Michael "Ashtray" Bundas, the only man to escape off-season training all fours years on the swim team. His academic success can be accredited to his dedication to getting in a lot of EI throughout the day. He takes after his firefighter dad because he likes climbing roofs, putting out imaginary fires in fireplaces and being visited by the mysterious Fisher-man in bed at 2am. The blackout bandit will no longer terrorize the lands of the tri-state area. Although his future is still yet to be seen, we all know success will follow him wherever he goes. NMSD proud.

William Coffey

Supply Corps

Will Coffey aka bigwillylax is rapidly approaching the end of his coveted 6 year college tenure. As an alumnus of the prestigious academic institution that is Nassau Community College, Big Willy left Long Island for the first time in 21 years and showed up to NAPS eager to serve his country. Several horrendous jokes and feeble pre-game speech attempts later his military motivation subsided but he became an instant center piece among the lacrosse team. A majority of his plebe year by the Severn was spent power swiping right and accidentally falling asleep in the "locker room". Hmm. To everyone's amazement Big Willy had the innate and uncanny ability to woo Tinderellas with his signature courting ritual, the shirt over the face beer chug. These days were limited however as Coff came to the puzzling conclusion that he enjoyed arguing with his new girlfriend more than drinking with his friends and filtering his beer with his T-shirt. Big Willy can now be found in his own reclusive quiet corner of ACME in a crisp freshly pressed button down (carefully picked out for him by his girlfriend) enjoying a smooth glass of cabernet sauvignon while quietly and respectfully breaking every Photo Hunt record known to man-kind (which is an odd talent for someone who is "colorblind". Hmm.). Coff will be taking his talents back to Newport this summer and if he puts half the effort into his career that he put into the Photo Hunt machine he is certainly destined for greatness.

Bryan Colasacco

USMC Ground

Bryan (Bo Grizzard/The Owner of the Room) Colasacco has the unique ability to make the best out of bad situations. After waking up one morning in the third grade to discover that 90% of his hair had suddenly disappeared from his and head and appeared on his back, Bryan knew he had an issue. However, Bryan being a vintage Strong Islander (from Suffolk County of course, none of this Nassau garbage) did not let this unfortunate circumstance shake his unwavering (bordering on arrogant) self-confidence. In fact, when asked about it years later while shopping for a brand new pack of 128 Crayola Crayons (for some reason he loved mac and cheese yellow), sipping a Ripit, and wearing a "The Few The Proud The Marines" shirt, Bryan ecstatically exclaimed that he was actually happy about his thinning hair. In fact, the further his hairline receded, the more motivated Bryan became to become the best damn Marine around—an accomplishment he will assuredly attain. Not only does Bryan combat cynicism with his optimism, but he is a standard holder. He was always a stickler for the little details such as a sharp uniform or polished shoes and absolutely never missed a mandatory or non-mandatory event—attributes which will serve him well in the Corps. Based upon Bryan's optimism and shear love of the Corps, Bryan will undoubtedly make flag officer in the Corps through his shear amount of motivation. But in the end, the Marine Corps is beyond lucky to have gotten a guy like Bryan, because in a pinch, there is absolutely nobody else in the world anybody would want to depend on

Eric Collins

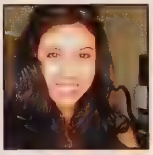
Erin, oh wait I mean Eric gives people business advice when he gets mad. I can only imagine the relief his commissioning will be on the laundry services here at the academy. Erin, shoot I mean Eric has always dreamt of becoming a submariner, though he would be great at being a point man clearing rooms. If you ever can't find him, just listen for the loudest man around. A true Forgotten Son, Eric will be remembered for his practice record and performing to the level of caffeine in his system. A true brother and bought into the team. NMSD PROJD



Luisandrea Diaz

Surface Warfare

Gentlemen, if you're looking for a Tex-Mex girl who was valedictorian of her high school but will passionately debate with you that mermaids exist and that hamburgers come from pigs because it has the word "ham" in it, then look no further! Lucy (or Looseleaf as her elfin friends call her) is the whole package- beauty, brawn, and occasionally- brains. When she's not watching her telemundos and animal documentaries while eating sardines, you can find her kicking butt in karate or checkmating someone in chess. If you want to get her number, all you have to say to her is "Hiciste caca hoy?" That's Spanish for "Can I have your number?" Take her out dancing, but you better know how to move your hips and smoothly transition from waltz to twerk. Also, be careful if you take her out to the movies. She gets nightmares from just watching scary movie trailers. The fact that she considers squirrels as her spirit animal should be enough to make you realize that she's the one for you. Bonus point- she considers her feet as her best asset and she takes extreme measures to ensure that they are well taken care of. Lucinda, you will forever be in our hearts- and our jokes. Know that when your roommates make fun of you, lock you out of the room, and take advantage of your gullibility, they do it out of love.

Richard Doktor

Surface Warfare

Richard Thomas Doktor Sr. started his Academy career by thinking Sr. meant what year he was in high school, instead of meaning he is the father to another Richard Doktor. He's come a long way since then, today Rich can even kinda get the area of where Minnesota is on a map. Needless to say academics have been an uphill battle. When Richie Dok wasn't the most drunk person in Annapolis bumming cigarettes, or bothering strangers, he was the most hungover person in Annapolis waking up at you know who's house. Richie is beyond his years in the fashion game not shy to bust out his $1000 Red Gucci Loafers or the latest Yeezy even when the rest of his group are sporting casual attire downtown, Rich is never shy to show off the latest fashion trend of the season. Another Richie pastime is reminding everyone how seriously tough he is, unless you visit him over the summer and get your teeth kicked in, then he will be "in the bathroom". He will be severely missed in Annapolis to most people, especially ACME bar & grill where he was nice enough to donate his entire USAA loan.

Troy Esaki

Submarines

SOBC! You will most likely find Troy playing with rocks or talking about that one time in Hawaii. Troy is the most optimistic and friendly person in the Brigade; he always welcomes his friends with harm hugs and witty compliments. Four years, one bottle of shampoo, and a hundred cans of gel later, Troy's hair still isn't that cool. Fortunately he always has some sweet shades and floral shoes to try to look better than all the hadlies. Easily triggered, this dude does not mess around. Or drink beers. Actually, he does drink beers. Team BL for life. But more likely you'll see him ordering a cranberry vodka about once a month. He may be the only midshipman in the Brigade to have been a member of three companies: 14, 11, and 13. Even if he is the sleepiest drunk you will ever meet, he is pretty tough and chill. But if your wardrobe consists of anything other than Lulu, Patagonia, or Hurley, turn around because you're a chump. He will probably make Admiral, unless he decides that he would rather sell his soul on Wall Street with Dirty. Either way, he's going to make it big. Troy, have fun making Subs great again.

Jonathan Freel

Submarines

Jonathan began his time at the academy earning the respect of all his classmates by standing up for them and for what he knew to be right. He was known among his friends for his hilarious impressions, great intelligence, and willingness to always lend his classmates a hand or at least a finger. It is no surprise to those that knew him that Johnny's attempts to woo a youngster were met with success, although we were all surprised at the attempts. Despite his best efforts, Jon will graduate alongside his friends this May, who are all supremely confident that he will be a great submariner and an even better leader.

Daniel Gilmore

Submarines

Back in Power School... Mr. Gilmore left South Haven, Michigan and began his Navy journey. He learned that the best tools take D batteries and that the reactor doesn't have a tranny. At the academy, Danny always followed the rules and put forth his best effort, even when it came to drill. He learned that Baltimore isn't the best town but Maryland was a pretty cool place. He always found the time to get his D&D fix, even after he left D&B. He likes Magic, especially the cards. He's a Cubby at heart, even though he's from Michigan, and was ecstatic when the draught was over. He always loved the Navy vs. Notre Dame football matchups and his favorite memory from his illustrious academy career was his 2/C Ring Dance.

Raymundo Hernandez

USMC Ground

Ray came to the Academy as locked on as any Plebe in the Class of 2017 and quickly rose to become the "Best Plebe in the Battalion". However, a combination of more laid-back Tigers as well as a heavy onset of taco withdrawal syndrome quickly lost him his number 1 ranking. Although he may try to fool you with fancy designs and stories of sleepless nights pursuing Mechanical Engineering, we all know that Ray is really just a "Glorified Art" major. Despite this, he still found the time to start dating his future wife and as a result spent the latter half of his Academy career with the door open at 90 degrees. An avid griller, Ray could often be seen sporting his Chubbies in sub-freezing weather while he cooked up delicious South Texas food for the Company. Ray has always had the ability to connect to others and is as hard of a worker as anyone and will undoubtedly carry these traits with him to become an outstanding officer to his future Marines. Here's to the best tailgater Navy-Marine Corps Memorial Stadium has ever seen. 8PM. CJT.

Brody Jones

Submarines

Cool. Tough. Chill. Just some words commonly used to describe Brody. The New Jersey native feeds off compliments, his instagram followers, and talking about his third string high school football days. But don't be fooled by his constant attempts at being an alpha, as Brody is deceptively a little bit of a motivator. As a four year member of the Dolphin Club, he was ecstatic about being chosen for the Submarine force and the opportunity to prowl the College of Charleston on a regular basis. His technical skills and abilities as a handyman will allow Brody to be a phenomenal submariner. However, what we'll remember about Brody isn't his smarts, it's how much he loved his fellow Mids. Brody is a loyal friend, a very kind, caring, and genuine person, and will make a great officer. Hooyah.

Iliyas Kameledenov

Some stand Main Office watch, some drink at Armadillos, only ONE can do both in the same night. This pull-up maniac hailing from Kazakhstan has a way with the ladies, except for the ones that he mistakes for guys. Whether he is telling off the upper class or watching movies online, the future marine does not stray too far from company area. Ultimately, Iliyas is one of the most fearless guys you'll meet. He displayed his distaste for loud noises by plugging his ears over plebe summer when the yelling got too loud. Whether he is a Russian spy or not, we couldn't have been more lucky having such an awesome guy and great friend in company. His resilience and tenacity was respected by all and Kazakhstan is lucky to have such an outstanding officer fighting for them.

Robert Kelso

Submarines

Whether it's falling on the ice, falling in DTA, or falling in love with strangers he offers to take to France, Robby ensures that his weekends are memorable for others. Before he redecorates bar bathrooms, breaks ceiling tiles with his head, or achieves his signature thousand yard stare, he ferociously competes for highest bar tab. Despite his weekend successes, people forget that during the week he's a mediocre smash player. But although smashing isn't his thing, this Bowman scholar gives his all in the academic realm, becoming one of the smartest people that I know. While his hard work and individual success is impressive, even more so is how he cares for his classmates. His loyalty and generosity are unmatched, and he consistently gives up his time to help others. He will make a great officer and the Submarine force is lucky that Robby will partake in God's Work.

Amos Mason

USMC Ground

If there is one truth about Amos, it's that he is an athlete. Whether it's football, wrestling, discus, hockey, golf, or swimming, he was always a star. In fact, he was really a star growing up, which is why he still watches his high school highlights. He came to the Naval Academy with big aspirations of jumping off the ten meter, majoring in chemistry, and selecting Med Corps. However, his knack for watching Teen Wolf, Dragon Ball Z, and Magic Mike took him along the route of the seven meter, Economics, and the Marine Corps. The Marine Corps is lucky, however, as Amos will truly make a great Marine. His smile, attitude, and Marine Corps motivation levels are incredible. He is remarkably genuine and caring, responsible and disciplined, and it's impossible to not love him. Rah.

Brian McGowan

Surface Warfare

Remember that time plebe year when Brian was a chiller? Neither do we. A chow call natural, Brian's capacity to belt out a menu in record time is rivaled only by his speed chopping through the plebe shaft. However, his days of running group #1 have long passed as he moves to embrace his future lifestyle as a true SWO daddy. Brian is well known for brightening the room with his jokes and quick wit. Surprisingly, Brian has a hidden environmental side: he takes wonderful care of Bancroft mice, and has been known to employ the 'reuse & recycle' method. As one who is truly For The Boys, we know he will make an exceptional officer out in the fleet. Here's to a fantastic roomie and wonderful friend! CJT

Jacob Melton

Submarines

When he's not binge watching tv shows off sketchy sites or working on his numerous independent research projects, you can find Jacob Melton traveling in search of the best casino in the world. So far, the Dominican Republic, the Virgins Islands, Eastern Europe, France, South Florida, and Maryland have come up short. His backup plan is playing the biggest casino of all, the stock market. Jake's whole motivation for Submarines is all the cash he'll have to win big. In five years, Jake will have more money than all of us and have the best job offers in the country. Maybe his escapades across the world will pay off?

Nathan Norden

Submarines

Nathan is a kind-hearted individual who looks out for others in a big time way. He is always looking for opportunities to brighten someone's day by shooting them a snap and a gun. Nathan has gained popularity and status around The Yard strictly because of his A-level jokes and dance moves. If you were lucky enough to have been graced with his choreographic masterpieces in downtown Annapolis, you are truly better off because of it. In Nathan's first couple of years as a Midshipman, he perfected the art of lady swooning. In his junior year, he had multiple contacts throughout the world. A video chat with a girl in Turkey was a daily occurrence. While Nathan may not be joining the Marine Corps, his pectoral muscles will surely go to good use as a submariner. The positive influence Nathan has had on the lives others while at the Naval Academy is inestimable. Even so, I am confident that Nathan will have a similar effect on those he leads as a naval officer.

James O'Halloran

Submarines

Hailing from the Windy City of Chicago, James O'Halloran successfully made it out of the projects of Elmhurst, Illinois. "Patches" was an all star athlete that was known in high school for his exceptionally defined legs and lower body strength. On an "academic" trip to the University of Maryland, it was rumored that he deadlifted two duty vans simultaneously. The fact that he breezed through the application process and was admitted with a nomination from six senators, a President, and a strong recommendation letter from Vladimir Putin, is a testament to his character and abilities. He stated that "the Academy was way too uptight and needs to be more chill" as a primary reason for coming. At the academy, he decided to try ice hockey for the first time, because he figured the time commitment would decrease his GPA and thus reduce his chances of joining the illustrious Submarine Corps. To both his and his hair's dismay, he was one of the chosen few. Jack's hair has evolved significantly over the course of four years. From greasy brown uncooked spaghetti to expertly manicured golden locks, Peaches was the inspiration for popular ABC show "Extreme Makeover." His aesthetic journey culminated with his presidential appointment to NHF's prestigious all hair team. As the real Prez. this blind sieve has been actively involved with responsibilities including hair consultant and model for USNA's second, lesser known on-yard barbershop. This world renowned storyteller can be found in the dormitories of Bancroft late at night, wandering the halls and wishing he chose Economics instead of Mechanical Engineering. BITFO Nuke school?

Daniel Robinson

Navy Pilot

Daniel Robinson will be commissioning into the navy to become a pilot. Luckily spent no time studying to get low enough grades to avoid the nuke draft. His classmates will forever remember him for his impressive tinder escapades, a lack of respect towards any officer, and never spending time with his classmates becajse he is too busy schmoozing with the latest tinderella. While on the snowboard team, he always found time to enjoy himself some mickey d's. We all wish him luck in Pensacola and with his fiancée.

Miranda Rossum

Surface Warfare

Miranda is from the Sunshine State, which is where she gets her sunny personality. She is the type of person that lights up the room when she trips into it. Although her sense of humor peaked in high school (DP's funniest), Miranda is well known for providing a good laugh to everyone around her, especially during mandatory briefs. She excels in academics, specifically in useless football knowledge and historical fiction shows on Netflix. When she is not working hard on her shows during study period, she can often be found viewing pies on Pinterest. There is nothing Miranda enjoys more than a good challenge. For example, she often takes on the challenge of seeing how long she can wear her cover at inappropriate times before someone yells at her. The things she will miss the most about the Academy are midstore snacks and the ability to wear blue & golds, her uniform of choice for every activity including sleeping. Miranda Rossum is many things, but one thing we know for sure is that no matter where she ends up, she will excel at anything she does and will walk slower than everyone else.

Stephen Santiago

USMC Ground

Skunky Stephen, The best at telling short stories that have no hook and provide no closure. He may not make it to class, but he is always present for last call. Loves to rub his Georgia charm on anything with a pulse, just ask the softball team. Stephen's best quality is his huge heart and can best be described as a drunk puppy. He has no boundaries on anything he can get his hands on, this goes for: alcohol, friend's sisters, plebes and crayons. He's got a GPA of a Marine Corps legend! While most people just buy souvenirs when they visit foreign countries, Stephen (the Queen of Hearts) Santiago collects local beer brands as tattoos. Stephen we love you and that's it. Also avoid getting drunk in Atlantic City and forgetting your pin number at the ATM.

Matthew Saunders

USMC Pilot

Matthew epitomizes naval tradition and good character. He respects the naval academy mascot by paying homage to its statue and other monuments at higher institutions around the country. He's an avid navy athletics supporter and receives autographs at all costs from its teams, but especially appreciates the football team. Matt frequently makes daily sacrifices to complete schoolwork or other predetermined tasks, making him miss out on many activities with friends. His capstone hustle made him one of the most dedicated Midshipmen in his class, only to have his robot not work on capstone day. Matt suffers from short term amnesia on weekends after he has too much fun in downtown Annapolis establishments. He has a six foot smile (ladies) and broad manly shoulders. He's a great classmate, teammate, and friend but will make an even better Marine in the future.

Surface Warfare

"Jeeeesss?" This is the likely response from Arielle (not Ariel from The Little Mermaid, but AAArielle, as in AAApple) if you call her name. Lovingly called Momma Shoap, she will never give up the opportunity

Travis Sims

Surface Warfare

Do unto others as you would have them do unto you. Love those who persecute you and look for the good in all things. Travis is a man from Alabama, and everyone knows it (RTR). While he may have lost some of his Southern drawl since plebe year, he remains a Southern gentleman who looks out for those around him. He prioritizes warding off all of his sister's suitors with his Instagram posts titled #WeDontLikeBoys. Because it can be colder up here than in Alabama, Travis wears a sweater year round. He sometimes even rocks the fedora to try to impress the local Midshipwomen. His disposition and hairiness have earned him the title "papa bear". Throughout Youngster and 2/C year, Travis spent much of his time in his room burning through Gossip Girl, ripping two chest workouts a week in Mac-D, and snacking to fuel his gains. Firstie year, Travis served as Company Commander and successfully lead from the front without letting his title get to his head. He is a true friend, and his ability to incorporate his good-natured personality into his relationships will serve him well as an officer. Watch out ladies of San Diego, because this SWO-daddy is about to take over the town.

Sarah Spain

Naval Flight Officer

Sarah Spain is a very proud English major. She claims that she is from someplace in Georgia, but she is really from Illinois. She has the impressive skills of berating the wrongness out of someone, being confused about whether she is an actor or a techie, and playing handbells. Somehow, someone said Sarah could be in a plane, so now she is very excited to be a Naval Flight Officer. When she is not drinking or encouraging others to drink, Sarah is painting, drawing, or fangirling about Sailor Venus -- one of her biggest inspirations second only to the feminist icon that is Elle Woods. To sum her up, Sarah is 10 lbs of drinking, feminism, and stories all in a 5 lb bag. She also really likes dogs.

Connor Tallman

Navy Pilot

The smartest submariner that never was, Connor made a quick impression in Annapolis as the only walk-on to the Golf Team his Plebe Year. Even though his roommates never knew his whereabouts Youngster and Second Class Year due to his various Golf tournaments, Connor still managed to have a GPA much higher than both of theirs combined. His Firstie Year was full of accomplishments, most notably Captaining the most diverse sports team at USNA, shaving for the first time, and wearing a pair of jeans out in public. Connor, despite his move from Oregon to Arizona while at USNA, maintains a love for the West Coast and especially the Pac-12. Connor will be the first to speak of the beauty of the West Coast even though he not so secretly would rather play Super Smash Brothers indoors. While he's still learning to eat more than just candy and drink more than just Gatorade, those who know Connor know he will make a great aviator and an even better Officer. Look out Pensacola, you're getting another one of those West Coast types who will still be ID'd until he's at least 30 years old. BPM. RH3.

Adrienne Vallancey-martinson

Naval Flight Officer

When Adrienne Vallancey-Martinson was born, she was wearing Birkenstocks. Adrienne joined the Navy on accident, she actually thought she was joining a hippie commune. When she's not binge watching obscure Netflix series at 3 o'clock in the morning, Adrienne enjoys biking, surfing, and hiking and has the tattoo to prove it. However, she has never forgotten her British roots (still not confirmed whether or not she is an international spy performing espionage) and spent a semester abroad in France where she definitely gained an appreciation for foreign culture ;) Adrienne is headed to Pensacola for flight school where we hope she will spend more time studying than surfing.

Ma Luzviminda Veloria

Surface Warfare

If you're looking for Marilu, there's a good chance she is sleeping in her rack. The only times she comes out is for class and food, so if you want to get a word in, plan accordingly, but that still may not guarantee she'll want to talk to you. If you can survive her scowling expression towards you, she really is quite adorable. Some of her pass times are, watching make-up tutorials on YouTube, listening to lou ghetto music, and creating her own face and hair masks. You can blame the 7th wing ant problem to her half eaten meals left on her desk. Her talents include: fitting into sea bags, doing homework while watching Netflix while doing her nails, and napping for 18 hours out of the day. Let's not forget about her hoarding problem. Due to her impeccable folding skills, she has three shelves in her con locker dedicated to civvies. Is that considered a fire hazard? As the fifth child to enter the Navy in her family, we are hopeful that she will one day rule the Philippines...and then the world. Possibly scarred from rooming with two glee clubbers for four years in a row, she's immune to loud voices and nonsense. However, we know that deep, deep, deep down there is a small three-man in heart. Fair winds, Ma.

Allen Wang

Submarines

Hailing from the great white north region of Vancouver, Allen unfortunately did not inherit his ancestors ability to drink beer or play hockey. Instead he found that his talent lied in the art of fencing. He led the academy's fencing team for 1 year before resigning due to not wanting to hang out with swordhandlers. On the average weekday/weekend, you can find him planted at his chair talking to his 12 year old friends on xbox. If you ever manage to reach him through his headphones, you will find him to be one of the kindest, loyalest and obnoxiously loudest friends you could ever want. His optimism and street smarts that he developed in Issaquah, Washington will surely benefit him in his career as a future submariner.

12TH COMPANY

Nicholas Abramson

Surface Warfare

This perpetual college freshman doesn't get the label for his nerdy appearance or repeat outfits, but for his never ending desire to chase the same experiences every weekend. Abe's dossier includes an impressive list of accomplishments and abilities: fluent in Russian (only while in the spirit realm), fits of epi-fueled rage and mood swings similar to that of a teenage girl, and loving the members of his frat a little too intimately. His passion for the Academy and upholding the standards of this fine institution are usually embodied with the declaration of "I'm not doing that," followed shortly by him doing that. Contrary to his appointment as the JV Lightweight Footba- excuse me, Sprint Football Team Defensive Captain, Nick has some of the smallest biceps in the Brigade. He is tough though. This little ball of fury and frustration will sucker punch you in the face whether you're the starting forward for the Penn State men's hockey team with wicked flow and a trust fund, or simply someone who wastes a slice of Mangia's pizza on a Friday night. Abe is the kind of guy that will say you can't make fun of him for anything, yet without fail will turn himself into an alcohol-fueled time bomb that detonates in an aggressive blackout three hours after his first sip of his favorite drink, Strawberitas. Perhaps Abe's greatest fear is not having something happen immediately. Time is one of Abe's greatest enemies and you can be sure this little lad can't wait to get started on an impressive career that awaits him.

Meghan Bennett

Surface Warfare

Benny, Eggs, MegsBennedict, Meegher, Meeg, MegHAHN: these are all alternative names for MIDN 1/C Bennett. Don't let her sparkly blue eyes and charming smile fool you: Meghan is no stranger to the Dark Side. Among her crowning achievements rests having illegally parked her car on the Yard for 90% of her Firstie year and never serving restriction despite her lack of adherence to the rules. Be careful not to make her laugh too hard, or you may find yourself concerned for her life as she hyperventilates and hysterically cries while occasionally erupting into fits of laughter that sound freakishly like Elmo. As a retired Lady Laxer, Meg rocks a single long sleeve blue rim for any and all PT. Meghan is no stranger to the dance floor in the downtown bars. She's not afraid to pursue the handsomest beau in the room while she drops it low on the dance floor with the best of them. Despite Meghan's questionable quirks, she is remarkably endearing, and the infectious smile and compassion she shares with others will undoubtedly bring happiness to those she leads in the fleet as a Surface Warfare Officer.

Robert Brown

Surface Warfare

The forgotten roommate of 7118 who is often lost in the back corner of the room.Heritage is the word which describes Rob. Whether it be the design of his ring, which matches that of his father, his service selection, or his red-headed Irish pride, Rob is driven by intentions to bring honor to his family name as well as demand respect through what will be an inspiring career. One of Rob's best skills is his ability to pick and choose what to care about. Whether it's the people, or the social interactions, or the assigned work, Rob is a pro at deciding what is worth his time, and what he should let go. For what Rob deems worthy, his dedication and loyalty runs deep. This dedication is clearly directed toward his country and a Naval Career.

Julie Candau

Submarines

Julie Candau: to a lucky few she is a friend, but to the rest of the Class of 2017 she is 4/C "Can-Do-It" and the original plebe commandant. Julie's wild side is brought out by a couple things: chocolate, wine, and cheese balls. Many can remember small Julie plummeting to her near death on the O-Course over plebe summer, and by her firstie year she still had not learned to stay away from any sport that requires coordination, so her varsity running career at the Academy started and ended the same way (with a sprained ankle); but, this Kat created a legacy on NWXC as the girl who can throw up from a misplaced cough and then still run an awesome race and as the queen of bread and cream sauce, AKA Karen's worst nightmare. The sub community was lucky to get Julie because she's not only smart, but one of the only humans who fits comfortably inside a torpedo tube. This girl has got "miles to go" in her life and we all look forward to seeing what she ends up doing in the fleet and beyond. Good luck Julie!

Richard Cavins

Navy Pilot

If he told you English was his first language you wouldn't believe him, Richard did not understand what it meant to "enunciate." His hick Southern accent perplexes everyone when he admits to being from Maryland. Hailing from Maryland's Eastern Shore where huntin', fishin', 'Merica aren't just words, they are a way of life. On a mission since day one to become jailhouse jacked, Rich is more likely to be found curling his cup of coffee while watching Duck Dynasty than an actual dumbbell. Nonetheless, if there is every anything that needs fixing, Richard is always the first to show up with a box of tools and a helping hand.

David Chun

Surface Warfare

David Chun (often pronounced Choon) comes from a small town in Missouri called Ellisville. David likes his muscles big and his cars tiny. I mean seriously, how can I guy that big fit into a car that small? To call David a gym rat would be an understatement, David looks like an Asian Michelin Man. As an unofficial model for Lululemon (yes they have outfits for men), you can always find David rocking the latest season's style in sportswear. And let's not forget, his Yeezys collection will put any NBA star to shame.

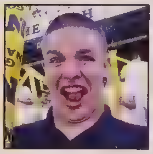
Timothy Colabrese

Explosive Ordance Disposal

Tim is tougher and cooler than literally every other dude on earth. His chill-to-pull ratio is easily a 5-to-5. He's not a new McCoy, he's AMRAP thrustering McCoy's old record on his EMOM until he lapped him in kipping pullups. By the way, if you didn't know, Tim went to college. Sea Wolves for life bro. If you couldn't tell, Tim's all about the snatch and hanging out around the box. He doesn't always chase women, but when he does he prefers sheila's from down unda with a lot of experience in the bush. Whether its dismantling bombs or dismantling women's hearts, Tough Timmy will make awkward self-deprecating comments the entire time he's doing it while still making everyone around look like a bunch of amateurs at the county fair. Tim is quick to reject any form of compliments, but if you ever mention you've done something tough, you can guarantee he'll tell you about how he did "something" tougher. Tim, without fail, will always try to be your hero, and his powers increase proportionally with his Blood Alcohol Content. His nose is always a strange hue of brown and if you ever need to feel like more of a deplorable human being for the spiteful things you think about other people. "Good Guy" Tim will always be there with a cheerful greeting and an over the top selfless action to reluctantly humble you. But, he's one of the most steadfast and loyal friends that will keep making us look like amateurs long after we've finished our service.

Zachary Coleman

USMC Ground



Zach Coleman hails from the mysterious land of Pennsylvania, or so he claims. Ever since he was born into this world, he always wanted to hold a rifle, defend the nation, and scream those famous words "Semper Fidelis". As a patriotic American, he has always been a lover of the three B's (Burgers, BBQs, and Beer). He enjoys a good "Rah" in the morning, rolling around in the dirt in the afternoons, and end the days with a nice relaxing 9 mile ruck. He is paired with a sweet woman back home whom he cares for dearly and deeply, but it is the Marine Corps who owns him now. He is a man who will fight through illness and pain to complete a task. He is also the room's vote of most likely to run out of ammo.

George Coughlin

Navy Pilot

George "Cheeks" Coughlin may be the finest future aviator ever produced by the United States Naval Academy. George is a true renaissance man. A varsity athlete who can properly use a comma (occasionally in his OOM), a man who can throw a baseball almost as well as he can make you laugh, a true friend to everyone he knows, and a true terror to anyone foolish enough to play him in Battlefield. George is a straight talking, fun loving, Infiniti driving, grade A, red blooded American with a heart of gold who will make friends everywhere he goes, and will never hesitate to "send it."

Amelia Davis

Surface Warfare

Oh the transformation this awkward, home-schooled weirdo has made. She's definitely not in Kansas anymore. This fiery redhead has a sense of sass that precedes her predictable and unwarranted acts of violence. Her uncanny ability to sneak attack with spastic movements is usually followed by blunder and clumsiness. Born on the crest of a wave, Amy retired as a D1 swimmer and found solace in bumbling around on land with those peasantly narps. Her seemingly pleasant smile is often accompanied by blushing. Or sunburn. It's hard to tell with a ginger of such fair complexion and constant irritation. Constantly battling the academic behemoth that is SATness, Amy nearly got to ring in the 2017 New Year aboard 9,200 displaced tons of American Freedom on her Youngster Cruise, but was saved by a shipmate. While an English major and a poet, she is far from Francis Scott Key--though she isn't afraid to dress like a dude in public. The adversity Amy Davis faced at school has undoubtedly prepared her to crush the SWO-mama life even harder than she crushes Jake when he acts out.

Ethan Doherty

Submarines

Ethan Doherty hails from the great apple orchards of Londonderry (pronounced London-berry), New Hampshire. Being a proud New Englander, there are few things Ethan enjoys more in life than cheering on his favorite sports cult, the New England Patriots. When he isn't worshipping the ground Tom Brady walks on, Ethan enjoys memorizing MidRegs, lecturing any poor bystander about how awesome the sailing team is, and taking a ruler to the youngsters' uniforms. Ethan's hobbies include mixing up his roommates' names, jamming to both Kanye West and Eminem, and learning how he can become more like "Sean." Being a Systems Engineer, Ethan never misses an opportunity to remind his Nuclear Engineering roommates that he, in fact, is an engineer as well. Medical professionals have prescribed daily naps to Ethan due to his pursuit of the futile task of making 12th Company great again. Convinced that one day malicious Russians will board his sub, Ethan can be found practicing his martial arts skills on unsuspecting individuals in the hall or the occasional door frame (the frame won the first fight, but Ethan intends to win the rematch). When Ethan retires from the Navy, he plans to become a world renowned ice cream critic, yet nothing he tastes will ever stand up to the "complex flavors" of Ben & Jerry's. In all seriousness.... When the going gets tough, there is no man you would rather have in your corner than Ethan Doherty. The submarine force gained one hell of a guy #LeadersLead #WinWars #BoysInTheHood #BBH

Jenna Fedors

Surface Warfare

Jenna Sue arrived at USNA from the great state of Wisconsin, don't cha know. She spent most of plebe year at D&B practice or crying under a desk (coincidence? no.) She's come a long way since then and is now the most winningest volleyball coach 12th company's intramural program has ever seen. Her midwestern palate shies away from all spicy foods ever, but moving to the east coast allowed her to discover Panera and Chick-fil-a and quickly move them to the base of her food pyramid. Like any good english major, she has many leather bound books, and her room smells of rich mahogany. She adopted the mantra "a nap a day keeps the doctor away" youngster year and hasn't missed one since. She is so busy reading and sleeping that she hardly has time for TV, but still pays for Netflix just to watch Supernatural on a constant loop. Jenna is one of the sweetest people you'll ever meet (unless it's dear santa season) and San Diego is lucky to have such a super SWO headed their way. xoxo, NAP

Ryan Gallagher

USMC Ground

Ryan Quinn Gallagher hails from the state of Ohio, a fact anyone who has ever talked to him surely knows. His unending love for all things Ohio is only surpassed by his love for irresponsible drinking and women with questionable morals. His favorite pastimes include asking obvious questions, practicing basketball with the Gallagher starting five, spending hours scrolling through memes, and maintaining the difference between the colors scarlet and red. Affectionately known as the King of Queen Bees, Ryan embodies the phrase "There's an app for that." He is as loyal a friend as any, and is always willing to go the extra mile for someone in need. With the joints and sense of humor of an 80 year-old man, he will make a great addition to the Corps.

Louis Gomez

USMC Ground

"Wait, is his name Louis or Isaac?" It's both. This Cali-bro can be found in one of five places: 1) In his coach's office recording his senile antics on Snapchat. 2) In the gym avoiding every leg machine possible. 3) In his room dousing something in Tapatio hot sauce while babysitting his roommate who lacks any sense of self-control. 4) At his girlfriend's house finding every way possible to annoy her. 5) At church practicing his parental skills by teaching Sunday school. All jokes aside, one trait this fine man has is his ability to get along with everyone... not one person can say "I don't absolutely admire Louis Isaac Gomez." Need to laugh? He's there. Need relationship advice? He's there. Want to hear someone rant about their roommate? He's definitely there. He lives life for others and the Marine Corps couldn't be a better fit. Life verse: "If anyone forces you to go one mile, go with them two."-Matthew 5:41

Stephen Gonzalez

Submarines

NAPSter extraordinaire (YES he went to NAPS), siesta aficionado, and ailurophile, Stephen "Gonzo" Gonzalez is a multi-faceted man with a peculiar proclivity for hard work. When he's not napping like a hibernating bear or running like a racehorse training for the Kentucky Derby, he can be seen in the library. There, he jumps engineering hurdles nose-deep in a pack of green engineering paper, providing an excellent example for the academically delinquent 12th Company. "Work hard, sleep hard" is what he likes to say. His fulfills the recommended daily dose of social interactions by greeting people with a catchy name he created and walking from room to room asking people to sign the weekend list. Gonzo fluently speaks 2 languages, English and cat (if you thought Spanish you're a racist bastard). He often uses them interchangeably, so much so that his friends needed to learn a bit of cat, too. For instance, "eeepeee" means "hello," and "IMMASHIPYOUTOCHINAKITTY" means "I love you, please stay." He has one of the most contagious laughs, second only to the Mech-E department's Professor Cowart. Although he plans to work for industry post minimum service commitment, he will be one of the few still married to the Navy in thirty years. Is it still considered drinking alone if your cat is there? Stay tuned.

CONNER GRAHAM

USMC Pilot

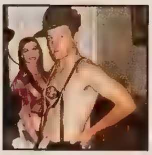
JAKE HITCHINGS

USMC Ground

This dip-loving goon is the scourge of dentists everywhere. Jake is an overgrown six-year old who can be found at Acme, Buddy's, Fleet, or anywhere in-between on any given weeknight, or at the local AA meetings with the rest of the Black N* Society at noon on Sundays. Analysts are still baffled by the spike of 6K/Major conduct offenses that occurred around the time of his 21st birthday. Questionable decisions are a trademark for Jake, including but not limited to his academic endeavors on Netflix and SuperChillin, drinking, or taste in women. A native of Podunk, Oklahoma, Jake was destined for greatness ever since he beat out his 5 classmates to become valedictorian of his high school. Despite spending most of his paychecks on cans of dip and six-packs of Bud Light Limes, he scraped together enough money and overpaid for a truck that he put in a garage for a year. He service selected Marin Crops Grownd, and will be living on a strict diet of crayons, budweiser, and glue for the rest of his career.

RYAN HOGAN

USMC Pilot



WILLIAM KRUGER

Navy Pilot

Though Paul "totally not Aryan" Kruger originated from the deepest of the southern depths in Mississippi, he chose a simpler life in the hot as hell desert deathland known as Arizona. It was there where he first found his love for Tom Cruise and grew the desire to have the same loving relationship that Mav and Goose had, without the ejection mishap (RIP Goose). During his four years where the Severn joins the tide he then drew closer to the Naval Aviators, an area where he could ensure his true German descent would never fully take hold. Paul has shown true devotion to multiple things during his time at the academy, Lord of The Rings, his fiancée, and most importantly, diet mountain dew. This "bruh" will be a fine naval aviator upon his arrival in Pensacola, and nothing, not even total engine failure, will keep him from flying the blue skies and dropping warheads on foreheads.

BRYAN LABOY

Submarines

What do we know about this Bryan "Ya Boy" Laboy? Is he Hispanic? Is he black? Is he really your boy? This fresh prince of The Bronx is so diverse and mysterious that his parents don't even know. You can find this Renaissance Man spending his glory days painting figurines, rolling dice, or playing any turn-by-turn game ever invented. This future warrior of the true Corps, the Submarine Corps, found his love of nuclear death tubes through his aspirations to be a complete nerd. Don't let his cargo pants fool you, this genius still knows how to have fun. Whether it's trekking a blizzard on his 21st just to get to Dillo's or taking friends to sex museums in New York City, Bryan "B.A." Laboy knows what it truly means to work hard and party harder. This future Admiral Rickover will spend his days underneath the waves, silently sending TLAMs to anyone in need.

Matthew Lee

USMC Ground

"The diddle king is a man of high moral principles, yet low principled actions. Chubs Buttersworth McGillicuddy is the embodiment of what the East Annapolis Fire Department stands for. He drinks excessively and chases women of all shapes and sizes. He enjoys the finer things in life like cheap whiskey and Welsh women. The origins of his nickname Dirty Bear seems to be a mystery only known by his one true love Ffion. It is no coincidence that Chubs' one true love has a name so similar to Fiona. Rugby broke his shoulders, his heels, and his face, but rugby never broke his drinking spirit. During Chubs' time at the Academy, he has taken charge of Navy Rugby's tavern every week. Some have said it is easy for him to lead discussion on life changing events each week because of the life changing events that happen to him over each weekend. The Marine Corps is lucky to have a Dirty Bear of such high physical stature and low personal hygiene. But seriously, there has been no better mentor and no more reliable friend than Matt Lee. You'll be missed Dad. Keep sending it and Enjoy A Fine Day, Chubs."

Jacqueline Loyola

Surface Warfare Nuke

After four years by the bay, each person can say that they have grown in some capacity, and jackie Loyola is no exception to that. Since the days of squaring corners and chow calls, Jackie has learned how to pump gas, properly take a pill, and safely navigate through the O-Course. Jackie also boasts one of the most competitive PRT times in the Wolfpack. We are all so proud of her. Candidly, she has struggled on physical growth which makes her difficult to spot in a crowd. But not to worry because you can always echo-locate your way to her reverberating laughter from anywhere in Bancroft. That is assuming Jackie s in Bancroft and not her house – I mean sponsors' house. There, she hosts some of the wildest weekends, every weekend. Whether it be laying on the couch watching TV or laying on the couch doing homework, if there's anything that Jackie has learned at the boating school, it's taking risks, getting out of her comfort zone, and having an exciting time. To sum it up, she's the life of the party. What she falls short in height, she makes up for in heart. Caring for others, being a patient and attentive ear, and speaking a voice of reason, Jackie is the support that her friends and shipmates can always count on. Annapolis will surely miss its party queen.

Alison Norris

Surface Warfare Nuke

Alison, better known as Angela from the Office, has been an instrumental member of 12th Company since the day she took the Eeyore ears off and decided she wanted to have fun. If you can't find Al cooking burnt dogs at the beach, you'll probably find her in Annapolis Ice Cream Factory or Panera with a huge bowl of mac n cheese. When Al isn't enjoying large quantities of food, she is looking up endless symptoms on WebMD and coming to the conclusion she probably has a case of the Black Plague. Big Al has hooked a brotha up on several occasions with her never ending supply of local friends from high school. If Al's having a bad day, then she probably looks like she is having a bad day. But, if Al is having a good day, then she still probably looks like she's having a bad day. The only thing greater than her sass is going to be her competency as an officer. Good luck in the fleet Al, your friends love ya.

Earl Pascua

Surface Warfare (Nuke)

This Mech E still wonders if he made the right decision for his major to this day. This lovable goof tends to second-guess many of his decisions. Will it be ice cream? Maybe Starbucks instead? Panda Express? Arizona State? Japan? Such an amalgamation of options. Luckily Earl is as harmless as a stuffed bear (his spirit animal), and any decision he makes is never a bad one. Somehow, this sweet-toothed Filipino perfected the art of homework + Netflix binging, which has allowed him to pursue his goal of finishing all 8 seasons of Vampire Diaries before commissioning (which he started after S82k17). His favorite resource for homework is Thesaurus.com. Though he was never chosen for any of the hundreds of actual billets he applied for, Earl is the president of the Tae Kwon Do team and led them in a not-so-valiant battle against Army. He possesses the voice of a god, constantly belting out new pop songs, old pop songs, and any song featured in the newest animated movies. His favorite artists include 10-year-old YouTube stars whose videos have only 20 views (15 are Earl's). His love for Surface Warfare was rekindled by Moana, and hopefully being a Nuke SWO toiling away in the depths of a carrier doesn't interfere with him being able to see the light as it shines on the sea. Earl has a wonderful heart and his division sure is lucky to have an officer like him

Raj Patel

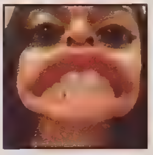
USMC Pilot

Throughout his time at the academy, the New Yorker-turned Midshipman went by a variety of different names including but not limited to Raj, Deven, Check Raj, but most famously "That Dude who Walks Funny with the Big Furry Hat." In an attempt to break all stereotypes associated with a name being the Indian version of "John Smith", Patel studied Political Science and traded his rifle and pants in for the bagpipes and a kilt. Encountering his fair share of struggles, all day, every day, he faked it until one day... he made it. Patel fulfilled his greatest achievement at the Academy by earning a commission as a Marine Aviator, followed by posing as a cover model for SHIPMATE Magazine, and followed then by pulling the fire alarm and fighting a trash fire plebe year in defense against the infamous Bancroft Burner. (#8thGeneralOrderofaSentry) As a Marine officer, Patel is excited for his most excellent adventure in The World's Greatest Gun Club and will forever continue to "Turn Down For Watch."

Nicole Pick

Naval Flight Officer

"Nicole Andre'e Pick comes from a set of badass parents (a Submarine-EOD-Mustang+an O-6-'85 grad), but when you meet this foreigner you would never know it. She's an avid member of the Big League Nappers Club, so much so that her initials spell out NAP. Because of her extreme dedication to this club, she constantly refuses offers to be featured on Hoarders: Buried Alive since they only film in the afternoons while she is fast asleep. When she's not napping, she's online shopping at Nordstrom or J. Crew while listening to either Kanye or Jack Johnson. The only other thing "Gunny" uses her computer for is sending evites or vacation planning (without inviting her "best friends"). Notice, homework was not mentioned. If Nicole ever misses a mandatory event, dont worry, this hummus-loving fiend is "at baseball". Nicole has a strong aversion to driving, and the one time she braved these Annapolis streets she received a parking violation and served a whole 7 days restriction. She's always up for a late night game of basketball, volleyball, or pretty much any tall girl sport. This jabroni is probably going to be the tallest NFO ever. Inshallah she makes it. All in all she's pretty much a day late and a dollar short, but we would not have it any other way. XOXO DMS JSF JMK"



Victoria Reyes

Navy Flight Officer

Born and raised just a stone's throw from a runaway and the Boat School itself, this bubbly, vivacious firecracker of a personality hails from Severna Park, MD. BOV we've been through so many adventures since we first crossed paths as Stoners and the rough four years at this place just brought us closer. From eating in Baltimore in our whites (still have no idea why), to going to WP to see the boys, to freezing at Army/Navy and our long "runs" during the week, the adventures will continue. If Vicky is not in her room studying, check the gym. If she is not in the gym, she is probably on the track. If she isnt there, she is probably singing her heart out. After picking the dark art of Systems Engineering as her major and sacrificing small furry mammals in the basement of Rickover for four years, she will enter the Surface Warfare community following graduation. You have faced your obstacles head on and have built a greater foundation for yourself that will take you back to your "California Dreamin" state and to the world! The Surface Warfare community has a competent JO on the way. but more importantly than that, a genuinely kind and down to earth person. Thanks for being a true friend all these years and I wish you all the best in the Fleet, SWO mama!

Major Ricke

Surface Warfare Nuke

Major (yes, that is his first name) Ricke hails from the high school basketball capital of the world, Indiana, or that might just be him exaggerating again. His love of sports is matched only by his propensity to get injured while playing them. Major's favorite pastime is cheering on his South Carolina Gamecocks, followed closely by spending time with his roommates. Many people can take pride in being considered a voice of reason but Major on the other hand, is a voice of disappointment, never shying away from calling out a shipmate when they are wrong. He will forever be a disappointment to the Marine selects of 12th Company for not pursuing a career in the Corps and potentially becoming "Major Major." But who were they kidding? In his heart, lies the real Corps...the reactor core. Despite his salty exterior, Major's been a tremendous friend and someone to have at your side.

Dominic Scott

USMC Pilot

Mr. Scott was born in England in the same hospital as Prince Edward and Harry. Unfortunately, he moved around a lot after that, ended up in Miami, and instead of speaking the Queen's English he's just fluent in Univision. Irregardless, he has a lot of love for the sunshine state but, in a surprising turn of events, he prefers climbing mountains over a day at the beach. That's what happens when you're #thankful4mountains. He is so thankful that he takes it upon himself to memorize every Patagonia product video ever released and aspires to live simply. Never challenge Dominic to a Disney song throwoown, because you will lose. He knows them all. In other news, Dominic is REALLY GOOD AT SWIMMING. In case you missed that, he can swim. He is a co-founder and proud member of the Big League Nappers club, an exclusive society of people whose endurance sport is sleeping. All in all you can't find a better friend than Dom. Someone who genuinely cares about you, is loyal, and isn't afraid to call you out on your B.S. He gets to follow in his dad's footsteps, and fulfill his childhood dreams - because if there is anything Dominic loves more than mountains, it's the Corps.

Max Smith

Surface Warfare

Max has been elected the Bad Boy of Annapolis for the fourth year in a row now. He can be found roaming the streets of Eastport late on Friday and Saturday nights looking for the next grandmother to bed. A man of many peculiar and specific talents, Max has a dirty laundry list of "achievements." He recently became a certified carpenter, an ordained minister (yes, really), he cuts salon-quality hair, and his most notable accomplishment, according to him, was his first place finish in the PE racquetball class. Congrats on the big win, man. In his time at the Academy he did manage to somehow find his other half, who everyone likes more than they like him, and someone who can run with the lions (we love you Rachael). He is one lucky dude for finding Rachael and must be some kind of con artist to get her to marry him. The USNA Underground was forged on the disobedience and debauchery of men like Max and will be a softer place for him being gone. Max is even tuffer than he is dumb which is really saying something. Though self-preservation may not be high on the priorities list in his mind, he makes up for it with willingness and fortitude to do anything his friends need. If you're stuck in Mexico on a Tuesday night, give Max a call and he'll drop everything he's doing and start driving. Probably the best dude I've ever met. Love you brother.

Susan Sorah

USMC Ground

Shortstack has dreaded her life ever since she was cast away from Lucky 13 to being a one woman wolf pack in 12. Some say it was for love, but really she just wasn't up to the challenge of living up to the expectations in 13. Susie quickly adjusted to her new life in 12, and actually found someone smaller than her, if you can believe it. Although similar in size, Susie's roommates do not share her affinity for wearing ungodly amounts of flannel and the same cowgirl boots day in and day out as she drinks unhealthy amounts of tea. She'll soon be replacing those boots with Lights and RATs though as she transitions to her next phase in life. You may just find her hiding in Jordan's ruck one day on a hike, doing what she does best, riding his back like Yoda on Luke. Whatever comes, Susie will embrace it and continue to thrive, midget kicking life in the shins.

Ethan Stanley

Navy Pilot

The man with two first names has many identities, but is most commonly known on the yard as the heavyweight that looks like he just jumped in a pool after walking down Stribling on a crisp 55 degree day. Leader of the Snake Farm, Ethan asserted his dominance over the hooligans in room 5151 through brute force and savvy political discourse. Indicative of his time served in the long line of restrictees, Ethan has made a lasting impression on every bartender he has ever met. Beware of this big guy's love for Jameson combined with his surprisingly weak tolerance; it's a recipe for disaster that mimics that of a bull in a china shop with less clothes. Some of his greatest accomplishments include javelin tossing another fully grown human into a wall during Air Force week Plebe year, being the first person to fake an ACL tear so hard he actually got surgery on it, and creating a desalination device that will turn his copious amounts of sweat into enough water to end the drought in South Sudan. But, if you ever need a soft-hearted father figure to give you a warm hug Ethan is the man that can make those dreams happen. He has a heart of gold, and will no doubt be a fantastic officer, leader, mentor, and coach--a role he has gained much practice through the tribulations of raising a caveman like Ryan Harman. Good luck down in Pensacola Stan. Hailing from SugarCities, New York, Ethan is a lover of all things cuisine. His refined palate manifests itself in everything from fine cuisine to the occasional drunk French Press. His ever expanding bald spot is a trademark of the wisdom he has garnered far ahead of his peers. His lumbering walk is indicative not of a man, but of a bear walking upright--fur and all. Having served his time in the long line of restrictees, EStan94 has made a lasting impression on every bartender he has ever met. If you have ever wondered, "How much whiskey can a human being possibly drink?" Ethan Stanley will blow whatever pitiful excuse of an educated guess you have out of the water. Some of his greatest accomplishments include javelin tossing another fully grown human being into a wall during Air Force week Plebe year, being the first person to fake an ACL tear so hard he actually got surgery on it, and creating a desalination device that will turn his copious amounts of sweat into enough water to end the drought in South Sudan. But, if you ever need a soft-hearted father figure to give you a warm hug, Ethan is the man that can make those dreams happen

Isaac Taylor

USMC Pilot

Isaac Y Taylor... No one really knows what the "Y" stands for, but the popular opinion is YUT!! West Philadelphia born and raised.... Well West Chester is really his hometown, but it's close enough. You've heard of a sneaker head? Well this killer is definitely a sticker head. Hide yo kids, hide yo wife, and hide any surface because he puts stickers on everything. NO SURFACE IS SAFE (except the surface warfare). This motivator been Marine Corps motivated since day one. He's the only guy I know that can knife hand a zero fade into his own head. Talk about Rah. Fun Fact: Isaac is the first Midshipman to ever be sponsored by Febreze. You know what they say... A can a day keeps the roommates in constant danger of suffocation. But really Isaac is the definition of dedicated. He loves his siblings like they're his own children (which they are commonly misunderstood as). He is a great friend, and it's an honor to be able to call him my brother in arms.

Jamir Tillman

USMC Ground

Jamir "Tilly2Fresh Greatest Wide Receiver in Naval Academy History" Tillman. Hailing from thee Las Vegas, Nevada where below 80 degrees is freezing, you will never find him without his trusted hoodie, wrapped around his waist of course. Jamir never ceases to amaze people whether it be with his spectacular catching ability, leatherneck standout performances, or his ability to become invisible to females when next to Shawn White. Along with his ability, Jamir was blessed with a huge heart. Jamir gives back to the community anytime he can and is willing to give up his time when someone is in need (especially when their training sergeant has made that day really rough for them). Jamir comes from a long line of success stories be his father who played in the NFL, his cousin Dat Dude who is the jack of all trades and master of them all, or his "Uncle Swamp Monster" who once beat Usain Bolt in a race after performing a 720 windmill dunk on Michael Jordan 2 days after shoulder surgery, Jamir has a lot to live up to and takes on the challenge each day. Mr. Espn top 10 plays has had an amazing 4 year career at the academy. On day 1, he looked like he wasn't going to make it. But since then, he has grown into a great leader and a great young man. Be it Spring Break, driving cross country, drinking a jar or just chillin, Jamar always finds a way to make the time and people around him better. The Secondary Corps will have to wait a bit for him, but honestly August is the best month in the year. YOTS forever... but we can use a bit of YOGO every now and then. My G. SDW

Shawn White

Supply Corps

Look! Up in the Sky! It's a Bird... It's a Plane.... No it's just Shawn with his shirt off. Because the only thing bigger than his heart, is that big  "birthmark" on his chest. Definition of a lightskin. If there was a lightskin squint off competition he would only come in second to Senior Chief McCray. And that's mad facts B. The Classic Timbs are a regular for this Long Island New Yorker. He make ya passenger seat lean back more than a terror Squad song #BattleRapBars But really worst long distance passenger ever. Shawn is the type of dude that is always right. Two things I've learned from Shawn: the sky is red, and Lebron James is Jesus. Over his years at the Academy he has become the lightskin Dr. Phil. As a friend I have to schedule appointments just to talk to him at night because all the people that come to him for advice. How bout dah? Definition of BIG TIME. He once scored 3 TDs in one game while gracefully hurdling over his own teammate. From red wigs and footlocker referee jerseys to spring breaking Florida for under $200, it's truly been a ride. Shawn White has literally left a lasting impression on everyone he has come in contact with. The real Corps ended up with a pretty good one. YOTS>YOGD – JCT

Savannah Wisdo

Surface Warfare

Neither a sun-kissed beauty queen nor a swamp redneck, Savannah Wisdo is a Tampa native with just the right balance of both. I've never met anyone who love reptiles more than her, and she plans to have a new buddy immediately after graduation. Unlike her cold-blooded reptilian friends, Savannah is one of the most warm-hearted people I know. When Savannah isn't hunting for Nessie in the Severn for an Oceanography Project, she's working with Barb on SHAPE related things. All those peer educator meetings and episodes of South Park helped her become the best SHAPE Commander this institution has ever seen. Savannah also volunteers for every MAG project she can. It's unclear whether she volunteers to make a difference in our community, or to avoid her roommates and sleep by staying out of the room. My money's on the latter. She is a friend like any other, amply finding a movie or TV show reference to make you smile. Her love of music is creepy, yet endearing. She's the only person I know who still collects CDs religiously. If you have the honor of attending a concert with her, just know she'll have one hard cider and she's good to go. She may not be able to drink to the foam, but she'll learn the ways as she heads out to get her SWO pin and soon thereafter become a METOC officer. If you want to know the weather, just give Savannah a call! She'll be reporting that its 68 degrees, and there's a 30% chance it's already raining!

SETH AMMONS

SUBMARINES

Lover of bullrings, thigh tats, gauges, dip, and cigarettes. "Honestly dude..." Interestingly enough, Seth doesn't like people, except the ones he likes. Likely inaudible in social settings and needs to get out of uncomfortable situations - usually escapes to the realm. If you can understand what he says, you'll probably end up liking him. When entering the realm, likes to consult with the 'Earth' and read people's inner souls. Once entered the jungle, promptly returned an indigenous deity. Don't bother inviting him anywhere because he will always have better plans or he will back out 15 minutes before. That said, we'll miss him greatly at our 5th, 10th, and every other reunion - but we'll know where to find him. He'll be the dread head teaching calculus and public speaking classes underneath a pier or in the back row of your wedding, hammered drunk. In all seriousness, "The Young Ensign" is an incredible friend, a true brother who is extremely loyal, generous, and cares about the people he cares about. For better or worse, Ensign Ammons left his mark on all of us and we are proud to call him our brother. We love you bro

PATRICK BRADY

USMC GROUND

'Iratus Hibernus' or the Angry Irishman, Pat is one of a kind. He is a master at spitting game. Striking out is not in this guy's vocabulary. Can be seen randomly yelling "BANDAIDS DON'T FIX BULLET HOLES." He is the utility guy, he is prepared for anything. Most importantly though, he is willing to try anywhere from a concert parking lot to a Cookout. After many failed attempts at being his roommates Sponsor, he has resorted to the motto "if you can't beat him, join him." Welcome to the table which resides in the realm. Patrick Brady is a heck of a friend and is more than willing to accept you as a brother if your family decides to leave the country. I will forever screen my potential wives through your family and the Marine Corps is lucky to have you. We love ya dude.

LILY BROSE

SUBMARINES

If you don't see Lily Brose running in the 2020 olympics you will definitely see her on CNN saving the world. She might be the best midshipman EVER (actually) but she can still have her all time lows, i.e. service selection night. If you come to 7236 at the right time you may have the honor of meeting her alter ego: the destructive roommate. Do not get on her bad side during this time because she won't talk to you for a week until you are her personal slave. Plus she'll be sure to let you know she can beat you up, unless you're at buddies and have a good shot at her eye, that has been proven a successful tactic in taking her down. Lily has a passion for handstands and golfing. Unfortunately she isn't very talented at handstands and has already gave up her adult hobby of golfing when she accidentally hit a car using her new expensive clubs. Her name might not start with an A but we will forever love the girl who thinks she is the queen of the room (world), keep being you ily. Semper deep! #cheetahgirlz

MARLIN BRUTKIEWICZ

SEALs

'Despite being one of the best swimmers on the team, Marlin is also by far the most humble. Not only is he named after a fish but he has also spent many a weekend frequenting fish market's, and locker rooms looking for only the finest of goods. He prefers the wares originating from the Western Pacific. He has become great at bumming mad heaters off of friendly people in the street. Did I mention he's humble? NMSD proud.'

CAMERON BRYANT

SUPPLY CORPS

Cameron Bryant, Cam, C-Bear, Daddy C, C-Money, Chauncy, Grandpa, but most certainly not "Trey Songz", a man with many names but even more women. A man who spent at least half his time at USNA in his rack.His nightly routine never deviated: climb into the rack by 8 and watch the Voice while powerswiping Tinder until falling asleep mid-swipe. A man of high standards always correcting his roommates uniforms gunney style while wearing blue and golds (recurring football injury, maybe his shoulder, or was it his knee? It changed on a daily basis). One of the most entertaining Mids and in the Brigade and a great roommate, it's been a great 4 years at the Academy, and it'll be even better to see Admiral C-Bear 30 years down the line.

Audrey Channell

Navy Pilot

"We always knew Audrey Channell was special. She started off excited to accept her appointment to the Naval Academy - that is until she realized that Plebe Summer wasn't optional. Don't worry, she got over that quickly and joined the rest of the Brigade for a fun filled summer of running around like idiots and sweating from the humidity. One team, one fight right Audj? Ask her about the humidity - actually, ask her hair about the humidity. From day one she was destined to do great things here at the Naval Academy, aka Brigade Training Corporal and Company Training Officer. Ask any plebe and maybe a 3/C or two and they will definitely tell you how train-on she can be. This North Carolina girl is spunky and fun, and is always down for a good time. Whether she is whipping or dabbing at Buddies on a Saturday night, slaying it on the tennis courts, or disproving theories in the Oceanography world, she always gives it 100%. Audrey is a very dedicated and caring individual, who will always have your back. Did I mention she's a HUGE rugby fan? Okay, bye. #cheetahgirlz"

Henry Dawson

Navy Pilot

"Riggs' Academy career had a humble begin at NAPS where he developed a liking for restriction and janitor closets. Since then, Riggs has been flying under the radar at the Academy. Some say it's his ability to scheme his way out of anything mandatory, others think it's because of his height. Most of your interactions with Riggs were probably him bumming a lip, asking for pre-workout, or looking for snacks. Riggs has been a three year member of the Men's Lacrosse team after taking a leave of absence his freshman year. This lacrosse player was part of the L.O.M and contributed to one of the best face-off units in Navy Lacrosse history. Riggs proudly assumed the role of "Cone-Mish" his senior year not because of his on-field talents, but because he is the one of the few seniors who didn't play. Riggs could often be found terrorizing downtown Saturday nights after a huge win by the boys only to be seen looking for his belongings the next morning. Riggs has accomplished a lot throughout his years at the Academy. Most notably: a string of missing CAC Cards, spending more time at home then at school, and the 2 for 1 croquet weekend. Riggs is soon to be a Navy Pilot and no doubt a great addition to the long list of Navy Lacrosse Old Goats cruising the skies.

Alexander Dinelli

Navy Pilot

Dinelli. A boy with no first name. When he is not watching movies with an IMDB rating of 4.0 or less, he can be found improvising another King Hall meal. One of his favorites is the tuna sandwich or the underappreciated clam chowder. His fine tastes in movies and food carry over to his love life. With his many dating profiles including: FarmersOnly, eHarmony, and ChristianMingle, we were surprised when this stud muffin scored using the forbidden Tinder. With his outdoor NOLS training (Siiiick Broo!!) he is ready to take on the challenges in Pensacola. Just remember "It's Okay."

Caroline Fender

USMC Ground

Caroline Fender is a savage. By savage, I mean she is a fine lady and unequalled friend, and this nation and world would be well-served by more of her like Caroline (KRLINE to her fellow voidseekers) never strays from the truth of a situation. Whether in the presence of a full classroom, in ranks, or over some brews with friends at an establishment in DTA, she'll spit the truth-of-the-universe out like a snake-charming preacher—unabashed, unashamed, unedited, and always at full volume. A future devil doggo, staunch Michigander, and connoisseur of flannel and Bud Light, she will effectively and with extreme prejudice lead whatever Platoon of Marines are blessed with her leadership to close with and destroy the enemy

In her Viking capstone class, Caroline excelled at intimidating the ever-living s out of her compatriots. At Leatherneck, she did the same, and so the ancient prophecy of her Marine Corps destiny came to pass. Cynical misfits questioned her over Marine-ness—her scalp-tight bun and impeccable bearing—the full visage of a shield-maiden in Woodland MARPAT! One intrepid Texan, though, saw Caroline for what she was—a woman of faith, devotion, and merciless humor They look forward to a long happy life together filled with letting friends sleep on their coach and making people play beer ball.

Jordan Figlioli

USMC Ground

He has a personal library that would make General Mattis jealous. He once brought only a mouth guard to a gunfight just to even the odds. His feet don't get blisters from rucking, but his RAT boots do. He is the most interesting Marine select on the yard. Jordan's generosity is surpassed by none, as he opened up his house weekend after weekend to our shenanigans. We are all so thankful for this, but none more thankful than Joe. A redneck by choice, Jordan fulfills all the redneck stereotypes (guns, the stereotypical loud lifted truck, country music, and a love of the outdoors) but falls short in one category: his tolerance. It has been said just the smell of anything more than Bud Light gets him tipsy. Which is fine with him because he would never spend money on anything more expensive (nicer) than Bud Light anyway. This, however, is the only visible flaw we have discovered in Jordan. He crushes everything: PFTs, his major, the innocent dreams of children. He will no doubt be a great Marine ground officer.

JOSEPH FITZGERALD

SUBMARINES

Broseph aka Triple Min is a disciple of Brodin and worships in the Temple of Gains, also known as MacD. He gives offerings of preworkout, protein, and an unnatural amount of sweat that is not healthy, but he'd have to actually work out for these things to work. If he isn't in his imaginary Temple of Gains you can probably find him out on a date with his best friend's sister, web chatting with his best friend's sister, in his rack sleeping, or enjoying his never ending Netflix binges. He does have some flaws... like being a weather-weenie from the "best state" of Cali, spending all his money on clothes or scotch or his wonderfully awesome girlfriend aka his best friends sister (yeah that's a deeper issue that can be saved for another time), or just putting so much effort into something he really cares about, increasing the chances that he'll get hurt. But that's the thing – he doesn't care about putting himself out there with that chance, because that's the kind of guy he is. Just as an iceberg has 90% of its mass beneath the waves, there is more than meets the eye to Joe. He is a connoisseur of all things high society: clothing, a glass of scotch, hair care products. He will need to limit the use of the last one though because the amount he uses is considered a fire hazard on submarines. His sailors will be lucky if even a shred of his sophisticated personality rubs off on them

PAUL FOGOLIN

SUPPLY CORPS

"Attention to citation: If there was ever a military man, it would be Midshipman Paul Jeremiah Fogolin. Often up early to sharpen his uniform and shave his face, PJ is a prompt man who could be seen waiting for formation to begin, or in class early before the bell rang. PJ went above and beyond the call of duty by forgoing showers to save water and sleeping in his clothes for the next day so he could be more prepared than his fellow shipmates. He worked diligently at homework before his strict bedtime of 2100, but often lent time to his classmates editing their paper for punctuation and citation errors. PJ capitalized on his USNA education, gaining skills such as a PhD in nutrition, excellent bladder control, and fine operation of motor vehicles. Being a popular guy, PJ delicately and selflessly balanced time between his two, three and sometimes four "special friends" at any given time. We're relieved you survived falling out of your rack a surprising amount of times, we're tired from the sleep we lost to your Silverback Gorilla snoring, and amazed you made it to CDO musters on time coming from College Park. But we're mostly grateful for having lived with an unwaveringly happy and supportive roommate. Fogolin Island forever, thanks for the snacks."

LOGAN FRASER

USMC PILOT

What's rarer than LT showing up for Morning Quarters? Logan talking to a girl. While he claims to be able to speak to the opposite sex, I don't know how he'd find the time between his Netflix habit and tilling the fields back home. While somehow always coming up with straight A's, Logan spends much of his free time seeking out pepper... or paprika... or something like that (we're not really sure). The only things broader than his smile are his chest and his tolerance for alcohol. It's speculated that he's actually an evolved version of humanity that can consume alcohol and turn it into pure gains. In between making Johnnie Walker and Jack Daniels proud, he's always willing to clean up and drag home us lesser humans. His future Marines will be lucky to have a man like Logan at the front of the pack.

RYAN GAFFNEY

USMC PILOT

Despite posing as a stunt-double for our favorite bread-based Marine, Capt. Rye, Ryan embodies all that is derpiness. From wiggling up the pullup bar to doing the "Stanky Leg" while squatting, he never fails to elicit the characteristics of his spirit animal, the husky. While not attempting to fight others when drinking moonshine, he likes to photograph everything with his Deadpool-like bag of never-ending camera accessories. In spite of his great affection for anti-gains, Ryan never fails to pull mad girls. Just as a husky can derpily bound across the wilderness with a sled in tow, Ryan will be sure to put the team on his back as he leaves his mark on the United States Marine Corps.

RYAN GRAY

NAVY PILOT

Ryan 'Venmo Me' Gray. A distinguished graduate of St. Mary's Ryken High School and self proclaimed accountant. If he isn't telling you about his 2005 Yamaha jet ski boat, he is probably telling you a legendary high school story... When he isn't waiting for that prime 3:15pm Sunday afternoon Instagram post time to maximize likes, he is probably falling asleep at Mangias or any bar for that matter. Ryan's hobbies include practicing his DJ skills, not responding to girl's texts, and cheering for the Giants, or whatever team OBJ plays for in the future. If you need a fashion tip or to know whether a guy is worth having a beer with, Ryan should be your point of contact. Over his Naval Academy career, he has faced some very difficult times like when he stood 60 days of restriction or when he didn't get a youngster on Fridays. Ryan's skater body, ahumm TALL HANDSOME skater body (excuse me), will soon arrive in Pensacola where he hopefully stays away from those redheads, and more importantly does some of that pilot crap. We're supposed to sice you at this point, but you already did that yourself!! Jkjk bro, but seriously best of luck, and venmo me for that beer

Nathaniel Guney

Surface Warfare

"""Nate Guney, 22, United States Naval Academy. 113 miles away. I am 6'3 for those that care about height. Being a single dad is tough, but I wouldn't know because that kid is my brother." And just like that you have learned the backstory to 63 separate love stories, 1 first night engagement, and a mysterious orange urine stream. Nate has nearly driven Hotels Tonight out of business with his innovative use of Tinder Plus. The random flashes from your camera at night have not gone unnoticed, in fact they have kept us up. Some tourists have been scared off the beach by the sight of a Grizzly bear, but no, that's just Nate rocking his home grown sweater all year round. Midshipman Guney uses his bottle fed masculinity to (attempt to) converse with sponsor moms and aunts, but had to slim back to normal human size when he could no longer fit into his uniforms. Before returning to normal human size however, Nate had to appease his animalistic instinct one last time by performing a front flip... in the nude. His birthday suit front flip was a fan favorite, and the best part was he could finally say he did something "cool in his life." """

Benjamin Harrison

Navy Pilot

Ben better, Ben worse. Don't let his uncanny resemblance to the North Korean dictator fool you, this red-blooded American enjoys three things: the flying, the whiskey, and the lifting. Ben was an official member of "Team No Sleep" at the Academy, spending his nights either doing his aerospace engineering homework or browsing Reddit. Although he might appear to be the smallest person lifting in 7th Wing gym, he spent many hours down there jerking heavy weight, or snatching things, to get any progress on his gains. Ben unfortunately was the victim of some bad luck during his time by the Severn. From several medical maladies to getting run over by someone's drone while working on his Capstone, luck tended to not be on his side. Despite this, Ben always managed to get back on top of things, and is sure to be a great officer when he hits the Fleet.

Michael Hoffman

Submarines

Michael Hoffman, better known throughout the Brigade and every East Coast police department as "Dirty Mike" (and that was before he got HFMD). He started his career as one of biggest joes the Brigade has ever seen, and remained one of the most "tolerant". This must be why he is welcomed with open arms on the Georgetown University campus! Michael truly is a walking contradiction. He is a fan of both the New England Patriots, yet also a fan of the New York Yankees. He will lecture others about morals, yet have no morals himself on the weekends. If lost he could be found swiping right to meet his GIRLFRIEND in DC, shopping for whole milk, sipping on Bud Lights and treating the world as his spitter. This ideal Midshipman will be remembered for the way he was, which is why we warned all of the O-6's to lock up their daughters, and all Soccer moms to keep him away from their daughters on the night before their Senior Day. We know you will Make Subs Chill Again, this place simply would have not been the same without you. We also hope that darn latex allergy doesn't come back to bite you. You will always be our brother and best friend, best of luck!

Allison Latham

Surface Warfare

This blonde-haired, blue eyed barbie hails from the great state of New Hampshire. Don't know much about New Hampshire? Well Allison (son) Latham does. She's so in love with the state that she fully convinced herself that a Wheat Thin was an exact replica of it. This New England gal is a diehard Patriots fan (but not for the bandwagon reasons), and attributes her amazing athletic prowess to her role model, Tom Brady. As Volleyball Captain, and general athletic stud, Allison bump-set-and-spiked her way into our hearts with that long blonde ponytail, dimples, and adorable smile. When not crushing faces in on the volleyball court, you might find Allison sitting at her desk eating a Snickers bar, or maybe jamming out to her newest favorite song - which she will no doubt know every single word to. Allison really has the whole package - not only is she smart and athletic, but she is by far the best dancer in 7236. Think you can hit a sick whip? Think again - Allison can and will unleash a huge whip with no warning - any time, any place. Good luck to the SWOest of Mommas in her San Diego adventures - don't forget about us peasants on the East Coast. We love being your rummates. #cheetahgirlz

Christopher Leonard

Navy Pilot

Every apple has its worm, and the worm of 13th Company was none other than Chris Leonard. He could be seen, but never heard, slithering around deck gathering any and all information about everyone. If you wanted to know who was doing who, who was failing what class, or what I had for dinner, Chris was the guy to go to. The man can also argue like it's his job. I think we once argued about wheat versus white bread for 20 minutes one time, but I know he does it because he loves to see my lips move. Chris is one of the most loyal and best friends I have ever had, the best Oceanographer to walk the seas, and soon to be best Osprey pilot in the Air Force.

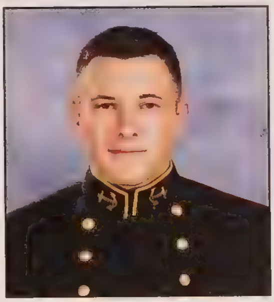
Kevin McGinty

USMC Pilot

If you're ever a few thousand words short on an essay word count just ask Kevin what he would say, because apparently he knows something about that random topic. That will for sure get you enough words. If you want to join his 13th MAG Program of the year, you can sponsor a plebe to King Hall for breakfast. Does not typically reside in the realm. The realm may be achieved by 1 beer. If you have the honor of drinking that 1 beer with Kevin, you are likely to have great conversation filled with life lessons, a weird love for Texas, and an inappropriate amount of "y'alls" accompanied with aggressive hand movements and shoulder grabs. Kev is a rugged man at heart, and is sure to always pick you up with a hearty handshake and warm smile. Kev is someone you can always count on, and is an example for all of us on dedication to faith.

Alec McMillan

Submarines



Big Mac is the slowest fast person you'll ever meet. Sometimes forgetful and scattered, but he will blow you out of the water as soon as you start running. Good luck trying to keep up on the track or the classroom. After spending four years in the Aerospace engineering department, he is acclimated to operating for days on end with no more than 2 hours of sleep and 8 hours of running. No doubt his sailors will hate him for the constant pounding sprinting 24 hours a day on the treadmill on the sub. He is just trying to make his sailors feel just like his roommates these past years--never getting any sleep due to his late night Hulu watching while working on his aero "homework." In addition to his physical prowess, Alec is an expert in finishing jobs left undone. There is no one better at picking things up right where you left off.

Daniel Mullen

Navy Pilot

To those who don't really know Dan, he appears to be an innocent, churchgoing gent that never talks, but don't let his outside demeanor fool you because those of us lucky enough to have earned a spot in his inner circle know the real truth. That rather than go to church on Sunday, Dan was at the casino blowing away his 2/C loan on Blackjack and beer. Behind the gambling and beer lies not only a former Navy basketball player, but quite the athlete. A freak of nature that is scary good at any sport, and was once able to max the PRT. Sadly for Dan, those days are long gone. What isn't gone though is his incredible need to keep everything in OCD order which has earned his room the "cleanest room in America." Though Dan is quite the pseudo-frat star, there is no one more dependable than him-especially in the darkest of times. His calm, and stoic nature will serve him well in the fleet, and will lead him to great success as a naval officer.

Connor Mulloy

SEALs

It Pays to Be a Winner. It seems that Connor has taken this phrase to heart since long before becoming a SEAL select. Whether it's standing on his tiptoes so that he can be 6 feet tall, or rooting for the Patriots without ever stepping foot in Massachusetts, this kid DOES NOT LOSE. PERIOD. He has apparently made a fortune in online sports gambling, and completes 6 mile runs each time he works out (despite his dumb GPS only recording 3!).When he's not busy winning (rare) you can usually spot him out in town sporting his black SEAL sweatshirt. We once heard him at the mall say "Guys would these chubbies work with my black SEAL sweatshirt?". The answer was no, and they were immediately returned If Connor has one weakness, it would be headphones. Constant hours of wearing ear protection on the range with his Combat Arms Special Chillers Only Squad has given him a phobia of having things in his ears. I have to give it to Connor though, his future as an operator is always on his mind. For example a conversation with Connor may go something like this "Hey Connor do you know what's for dinner?", to which he would reply "Yeah so after BUDs, Officers go to SQT but I'm just working on the screener for now." HARDO!!!!! In all reality, Connor will be a great addition to any team that he joins in the future (as long as they can stand the smell of urine in the shower). We are very fortunate to have had him as a roommate and as friends across the hall, and can't wait to see what he accomplishes in Coronado and beyond

Allison Murray

Surface Warfare

When Allie Murray isn't busy nerding out over boat designs, she's most likely watching adorable bunny videos on the internet. This beautiful blonde from Philly loves her coffee, just make sure she doesn't get her hands on any after 4pm or you'll have to deal with her crazy side. As both the best and worst player on the women's squash team she was so important that she got an entire locker room to herself. On the weekends you can find her dancing the night away with friends, only to come back and eat plain bread in her rack. With her extreme excitement over boat construction and hull designs it's no surprise that Allie is headed out to San Diego to a boat of her own, the USS Russell.

Sarah Peterson

Navy Pilot

Sarah is one of the most kind hearted people you will ever meet. On the rugby pitch, she can see a hole like no other but the tackling may come as a challenge on the big berthas. Her evasion techniques come from a deep seeded fear of tackling that was readily apparent plebe year. Off of the pitch, her baby face and love of dancing are what bring all the Asians to the yard. You can call her dance style a mix of maracas and a seizure, it's been featured on several Snapchat stories. When she's not eating Chipotle with her bare hands, Sarah can be found solving all of the world's problems with her strong will and love for others. Fly high, fly far and fly to San Diego. Love the Legacy.

Austin Sanabria

Navy Pilot

"Someone, somewhere out there must know the whereabouts of Austin, aka Rico Suave, aka Papi, aka Suhnabs, because we sure haven't seen our favorite, curly-haired, Colombian American at formation in ages. It's most likely because he considered himself a graduate after holding the billet of Training Sergeant and getting into Johns Hopkins for VGEP. Notorious for talking a game the size of his regularly sized friends when it comes to drinking, he'll be the first to quit and claim "I don't want to get fat." Despite his drinking setback, he is quite smart, and it's a shame that he hasn't used his intelligence to gain some height. Though short, he has a big heart, and it has never stopped him from going crazy to beat you in everything--even if it's not a competition. It's that competitive spirit that has earned him the reputation as everyone's favorite little person. A hard worker since his days pushing carts at Costco, there is no doubt that Austin will be an excellent naval officer."

Chase Sax

Navy Pilot

Chase 'Weh Weh' Sax received one athletic comment from his roommate on every semester rankings . During his free time he likes to spend time with Shelby, spend 10 hours a day in the car lab when not with Shelby, and sky dive when not with Shelby. Voted most likely to bail on guys night due to being put on a leash from his girlfriend. Tone deaf when it comes to his vocals, he aspires to be on the voice one day singing with his idol Trey Songz. One of the hardest working and genuinely good guys at the academy, it has been a privilege to be his roommate for four years.

Timothy Shutack

Navy Pilot

Chet Shutack, commonly known as Iceman and inventor of the 5 point stance, entered the Naval Academy as an idealistic Naviator wannabe who seemed destined to become a drone pilot. Plebe year Spring Break in PCB was an eye opening experience for him, and everyone suddenly realized he was both a lightweight and a frequent visitor of the dreaded friend zone. Iceman's friends did their best to remediate these flaws, and by Firstie year he had developed a love for Bud Light, margaritas, and climbing to the top of the leaderboard for in-company frat. Always enamored with intellectuals, Chet's significant others could be found reminiscing on "when they cried at that EDM concert" or attending "Harvard on the Bay" (GO RIVERHAWKS). Despite a stellar GPA in his fake Lego Playtime major, arguably his greatest accomplishment is proving Darwin's Theory of Evolution correct, as 2016 Chet evolved into 2017 Chet, a man who will rip heaters in front of your parents and leave women drowning in tears of jealousy outside of Buddies. In the fleet we anticipate that Chet will be a divisive figure in the jet community... some will say he's reckless, other's will say he's the best damn pilot they've ever seen. Chet, thank you for being the best wingman known to man and for being the sole responsible member of the crew... I truly doubt we all would have graduated without you.

Devin Terry

Navy Pilot

Some might know Devin Terry as that guy who spends the majority of his time looking up pictures of Aaron Rodgers or asking you "hey have you ever had that Wisconsin cheese though?" But most people know him because of his subtle Midwestern accent or the tunes he spins at Buddy's under his alter ego "DJ D-Terr." Not only does he love a good time, he's an animal lover too, that is, if they have an arrow in their skull. He hates dogs but he loves to bark, and nothing compares to a fine pilsner beer because apparently that's what Milwaukee is known for. The only thing better than spending time with Devin, is spending time with his sister. If you don't know the laugh you know the smile, watch out Pensacola here comes another annoying Packers fan. --GP

Malcolm White

USMC Pilot

Malcolm White, aka "ILL VIBE", aka @Veexeasy, has had an illustrious Naval Academy career. The long almost deer-like strides were hard to miss with the highest white tube socks 13th Company has ever seen. Malcolm quickly won the hearts of the company with his devilish smile that has gotten him into much more trouble than good. If you have ever had the pleasure of seeing Malcolm out of uniform you could not miss the diamond studded earrings paired up with the cleanest pair of "WHAT ARE THOOOOSEE!" you have ever seen. Never have I ever seen someone wear a pair of shoes once, just to clean them and put them back in the original packaging. That right there tells you about the type of person Malcolm is. Meticulous in everything he does, yet always adding a little style to anything he can. His unrivaled and rambunctious dance moves are a little insight to his athletic ability which he uses to excel on the track. A 4-year member of the Track and Field team as a hurdler, Malcolm can been seen racing with a fresh pair of spikes coupled with a flashy gold chain: his signature look. Not only is he an athlete, Malcolm is quite the student. Many late nights he has kept his roommates awake with ear numbing music while studying for his endless aero assignments. Malcolm has let nothing stop him from achieving his dreams of becoming a Marine Corps Pilot. He soon will take his red Vette and charismatic personality to TBS, where the Corps is gaining one of the best.

Richard Winter

USMC Pilot

When he's not busy being a southern gentleman, he is probably in MacD lifting weights to no avail. An avid hockey player, the only reason he didn't continue with it in college is because his brain couldn't handle it (too many concussions). Speaking of his brains, all it's good for is memorizing useless Detroit Red Wings facts and casanova-esque spanish songs that are sure to annoy his future Marines. Unfortunately for Richard, strike number one occurred shortly after birth, rendering him "vertically challenged". Perched atop this brain of limited use is a beautiful widow's peak, which he assures is not receding, but rather "attacking in a different direction." Despite his many setbacks, there is no finer or honorable man than good old Rick, and he will definitely make his friends proud. MORGANNNNNNNN!!!!!!!'

Amanda Zabolotny

Naval Flight Officer

"One of the funniest, fun loving girls to spend time with is the lovely Amanda (da) Zabolotny. She might not be the peppiest cheerleader on the squad but at least she can do a backflip (hasn't been confirmed). She will always be there to support you, or watch every show on netflix with you... twice. Amanda is driven and will "do homework" all night - literally. "All of a sudden" it's 3 am. Although she does have a black belt (also has not been confirmed) and is known around company as Zabolot-KNEE BREAKER, Amanda openly admitted over plebe summer to hating any and all physical activity - whether that be running, walking, or simply getting out of her desk chair to grab another Ensure. BUT - one thing Amanda does excel at? Experimental Dieting. She is always willing to try the next fancy diet, even if its $25 dollar tea that smells bad and tastes even worse (but she's still searching for the next big thing since none of them worked for some reason - standby). Always confident in herself, Amanda has no problem cursing out Master Chiefs and their families, or telling you how she really feels starting with the words "TBH...". Amanda will most definitely follow in the footsteps of her father and rule the skies as a killer Naval Aviator. Who knows - she may even be the next Statue of Liberty. #cheetahgirlz"

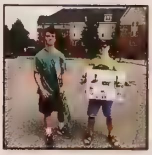
Ryan Adair

Navy Pilot

No matter where you are, I can always count on you to make it back to 8th wing. Sometimes it can be difficult for you to split an Uber, but as you have found smashing your phone on the ground works too. Never give this man a pizza box or a broom, because 1, maybe 2 drinks later he will probably end up trying to assault you with them. Ryan loves staying in 5 star accommodations, such as 8th wing closets, coat closets, and parking garages. All jokes aside, you can usually find Ryan rowing down the river or working hard in the basement of Rickover working on some engineering project. I wish you the best in the fleet and at flight school.



Taylor Adams

Navy Pilot

A proud native of the worst state in the union, Taylor Adams decided to trade Little Rock for Annapolis because he wasn't really sure what else to do. Thoroughly committed to giving others complete control over his life, Taylor joined a slave sport plebe year. Although the quality of a man is inversely proportional to his height, the crew team failed to see the merits of his stature. Intent on destroying his body, Taylor found the even less respected and more miserable sport of cycling to devote himself. After four years of perfecting the Nutella and wheat thin diet, he proved that one can possess a rock-solid body without eating real food. But his classmates didn't love him for his chiseled abs, for enduring screeners and countless bike crashes, or for being a top student. Mr. Adams gained the admiration of pretty much everyone he ever met due to his compassion, toughness, and most of all his authenticity. Taylor, make sure you learn how to fly while you are enjoying yourself down in P-Cola. And don't forget, we're basically halfway done.

-BNP CM

Carman Arnold

Navy Pilot

Whether he's chasing tornadoes across Oklahoma, preparing to fly Navy, or drooling over the newest Mustang, Carman was meant to go far and go fast. He even plays board games quickly, sometimes to the annoyance of his roommates. When he isn't doing what he's supposed to, he's either watching Street Outlaws or vines, or making a hedge maze in Minecraft. Beneath all this is a thoughtful and compassionate man, ready to lead sailors to a bright future, and if they're REALLY lucky, he'll tell them terrible puns all along the way.

Suzanne Bigley

Submarines

When you first meet her you may overlook her, but you'll soon realize there is a lot of personality packed in that little body. If you can't find Suzie in bed by 2000 then you can find her on the Buddy's dance floor in her Coachella....I mean croquet outfit. She spends most of her days participating in recreational speed dating with a handful of mids throughout the brigade. Those who know her intimately say she excels at extracurricular activities, but she is most well known for her calf workouts and intramural volleyball skills. Her most fond memories come from her short run as the star of the Navy Dance Team, but a close second is her time as 4/C Horton's roommate. She is a loyal friend who sets the example for those around her, and the Submarine community is lucky to have her. Ahooga!

Andrew Coen

Naval Flight Officer

When I'm talking too loud, I can always count on Andy to remind me to keep my voice down. Miami may not be a safe place for him anymore but at least he didn't get stitches that night. Whether he's breaking beer bottles, getting guns pulled on him, or calling "1-800" when he's bored, you can find always find Andy at the center of attention, usually with a little blood on his shirt. When he's not driving a cop car on the beach, you can find him in 7th wing gym with a smedium on and nursing a 15 pound dumbbell. Despite the recent scar to his eyebrow, this has not diminished his attractiveness whatsoever, especially to guitar-playing lesbians. Often seen sporting battle-wounds from his weekends, however the only thing he will ever tell you about them is "hella, hella, hella!" He is extremely close to the Italian side of his family and you can often see him attending their various wedding festivities. Somehow part of the 2% club, despite an "incident" at a movie theater involving hairgel, and also his best pick-up line being "do you wanna makeout?" When Bruce Banner gets mad, he turns into the hulk. When the Hulk gets mad, he turns into Andy Coen. Have we mentioned he's big yet? He lifts.

Brady Dove

SEALs

Brady is really good at a lot of things. He is really good at barging into your room when your just trying to chill and time with Brady is anything but chill. He is also really good at hiding your stuff that you find weeks later and he is the only one laughing. I can go on and on about all the pranks and meaningless tricks Brady has pulled over the years. But at the end of the day there is not a better guy out there. He is a great friend and is going to be successful in whatever he does.

Colin Flounlacker

USMC Ground

Chang Dae Hahm

Naval Flight Officer

He might try to kiss you, but just know he won class clown in high school. He will show you his business card. Oh, did he tell you he was a state champion... in ultimate frisbee? A frequenter of Amazon, Changdae is always down to try the new craze or even attempt to start his own. Even if a few of those fads turned into vices... but we won't mention any of those here for the sake of his mother. He will also never forget that time he decided to take a 3 year hiatus from drinking. Oh wait, he didn't choose to do that? Well, at least time that could have been spent in DTA was instead devoted to gaining 30 pounds in the basement of 7th wing. No half reps for those quads, sorry Andy. But now that he can go out, there are few people his friends would rather crush beers with. He's gunna love Pensacola, where he will surely excel. The times in Annapolis weren't always fun, but Changdae was always funny. Good luck Tro - I mean Changdae!

William Henderson

Surface Warfare

I didn't care about Ohio before I met Willie, and to be frank I still don't give two ships about it. But to their credit they managed to produce at least one valuable thing for this country: Willie Henderson. A member of God's List since his first semester here, it's no surprise he is an upright man, he gets more facetime with the Big Man than anyone in the Brigade. Willie loves to share his smile with the world. His roommates say he smiles in his sleep, in class, on runs, even when he was yelling at Plebes over the summer. We're going to miss this smiling, godly, SWOtivator. Here's to many years of not running your ship aground. -VVV

Kevin Jongeneel

Navy Pilot

Google translate? What's that? Who needs it when you have Kevin as a friend? Russian, Chinese, Japanese, Spanish, Korean, and even a little English are some of the languages he knows. He's a master of lore. Not quite Dumbledore, but surely better than a Baggins. Carrying on the Hobbit tradition of seeking trouble and never sitting still. Like Batman he is up all night awaiting an adventure. A regular ole trickster. Pranks and jokes fill all hours of the day and night. Work? What's that? You'll have to wake him for his next class. Need help? An extra hand? Kevin is once again your man. With no homework he has become a jack of trades. You better be careful though as he knows all the black holes for your time. Still just ask and you will find Kevin knows how to do it all. Four years by the bay. Four years of video games, movies, play fights, and hanging out. I truly cannot wait to see him flying with Naval Aviation as his route.

Cameron Keith

USMC Ground

We will never, ever forget DJ Killa Cam, but we may forget Cameron Keith by accident. He never leaves a shipmate behind, but when he does, he makes sure to check the Greyhound schedule. Is known to get emotional when talking about certain friends. His presence at Georgetown University will forever be remembered by all, except himself. Has brought great pride to the Keith family name on many occasions. Cam is the best Spring Break roommate a guy could ever ask for.

Christopher Lafrancois

Supply Corps

Wait, what color is that? Somehow convinced the Naval Academy that he was below the age limit when he came in. Whether he lures you in with his luscious hair, his pretty eyes, or his dad jokes, Chris is impossible to overlook. His interests include his girlfriend, fishing, Sawyer, sailing, Vermont, squash, and Sawyer. He is a man whose love for fishing could only be surpassed by his love of swearing. Four words: Visit, board, search, and seizure (VBSS). He is proof that the streets of Vermont can truly harden a man. If you hear him start a story with "Back in boot camp" then you should probably go the other way.

Kelsie Maxwell

USMC Ground

Kelsie Maxwell is a wonderful person from the hours of 0700 to 2300. From the time she wakes up at 0640 until about 0700, she transforms from an incoherent zombie into a model human being. The rest of her day is spent studying super hard for exams that she only gets a 95% on. From holding various leadership positions at USNA, her go-to question became: "Why can't people just do what they're told?" She believes it would be easier to run a drug cartel than a group of midshipmen (almost direct quote), and has the outfit to match. Rumor has it that Kelsie has a second stomach just for dessert, since dessert makes up about 85% of her diet (shout out to Mama Maxwell for all the delicious snacks). She doesn't need dessert to be happy though. Her best happiness cure is to lay on the floor with her feet on top of her fancy scooter and just laugh, which weirdly enough works surprisingly well and is ridiculously contagious. She's on her way to keeping up that happiness and optimism in the Marine Corps, because they definitely need it! With her hard working attitude and charisma, she'll be the best USMC officer the world has ever seen. XOXO, Holly and Jess

Zachary Michel

Navy Pilot

Thanks dad! Probably deserves an award for having to deal with Yanni's shenanigans for four years. YAAS. Prior to his engagement, was known to elicit certain responses in females such as "too hot no clothes". Speaking of clothing, this sharp dressed guy won't step into a store unless it sells Patagonia or North Face. When he's not with Mimi he's practicing with the hardest and chillest varsity team on the yard, offshore sailing. The guy chills hard. Pretty hard to roast this guy though, especially when he has had to deal with the Greek Hurrican for four years. He also successfully survived a year hearing about the soft, soft sands of Coronado every night before bed. Then again, we haven't seen him around much since he married Mimi. Wait, he's not married yet? They just got engaged? Where has he been all this time?! Anyway, he's going to love Pensacola, and we can't wait to hear stories about the "chaches" down at flight school. And maybe after he goes to Top Gun he can ask P-Rob for advice on writing his memoir.

Brent Niewoehner

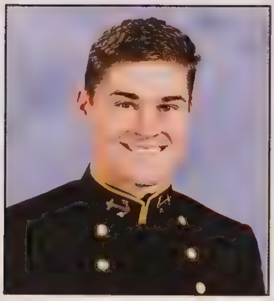
USMC Ground

hese direct quotes sum up Brent Niewoehner:
"Sawyer, I'm a grown man. Those are my lats, my lats are huge. Whenever I see a guy wearing pants and a collared shirt, I just think he is a huge douchebag. What's the matter with cargo shorts? Is WWE real fighting? I feel like if I had a sister, she would be pretty attractive. I didn't even know I was sore there. I thought you called furry boots that girls wear 'Uggs' because they're ugly. Who is Mariah Carey? What are Tims? Prison would be rough, I'm a good looking guy. I'm not interested in ____, but she's definitely into me. Do rice krispies expand in your stomach? Sawyer, are you going into MMA? Looks lit! I never actually tried to pour liquid in my chest bowl. I'm gonna try it. Looking at superlatives Best to bring home to mom and dad? That's definitely me, parents love me. I... am... Brent!"

Avery Nwokike

Navy Pilot

AKA Joekike. Half-Nigerian, Half-giant. He's got the runniest nose and the ashiest legs in the Brigade. His shirt collars might be chewed up and he might be twirling his hair, but he is a good dude, trust me. He is the epitome of "being in the wrong place at the wrong time." Most affectionately known to his associates as "Droopy-eyed" Avery. The best nights are when you get to meet "Noodly" Avery. He is the resident expert of all things movie and TV related. If he is not in his room watching Netflix, he may be attempting to get his 6-6 frame up on a kiteboard, which may or may not stretch the bounds of physics. Half the Brigade thinks that he is Ed Alade. How is he going to fit in a plane again?



Blake Papet

Submarines

Some call him the "Dad of 14th company", others call him a shark. He is known across the Brigade for having the best bearing and sharpest manual of arms. After dedicating four strenuous years to Sprint Football, Blake's hard work finally paid off when he was taken as a first round draft pick to the South Carolina Dolphins. As a Political Science major, Blake specialized in the East African region, particularly the economy and military of Djibouti. One of the pickiest eaters you'll ever meet, Blake sticks to the basics, protein bars, protein shakes, and peanut butter. If Blake lived in Middle Earth, he would identify as a dwarf, not because he is short, but because of his eating, drinking, and farting habits. Some of Blake's major pleasures in life include the study of zoology, reading (and telling people about it), pondering the difference between a fruit and a vegetable, and being right (especially when he's wrong). All jokes aside, Blake will be known by his friends for his unwavering friendship, rock-steady commitment to greatness, and for truly being a rock in a river.

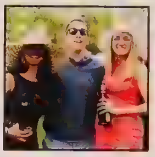
Katelyn Price



Intel

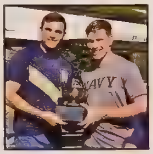
As the most mysterious midshipman in the Brigade, Katelyn Marie Price's four years at the Academy has left many people curious about her interests and the release of another biography besides her Tinder profile should bring them much joy. Starting out as a humble varsity athlete, she quickly realized the heavy time commitment got in the way of her "ballin on a budget." Katie P can often be found tearing up the dance floor at Buddy's or chowing down on some crab dip at McGarvey's. KP's only complaint about the Academy is that her daily nap was always interrupted by D&B practice on Farragut Field. Although this sweet southern girl eventually rose to be 14th Company Commander, she also dared to walk on the wild side a couple times. This included the 14th Company Graduation Party Scandal, a brief stint on restriction (for illegal parking), fraternization, and the shattering of countless hearts everywhere she went. Kate without a doubt lives life and has the brightest of futures whether that's as a professional tennis player or the next Intel Admiral. She gladly accepts chocolate, Chipotle, Chick-fil-A, and chicken crispitos as gifts

Patrick Roberts

Surface Warfare

When he's not found "guarding the gate," Pat Roberts is kicking down doors to all enemies foreign and domestic. The educational environment has been a real challenge for midshipmen Roberts, a place where he cannot impose himself physically on others. Pat makes up for this by spending the remaining 17 hours of his day in the Spartan temple of cross-fit buried deep within the bellows of MacD. Many concerned bystanders claim to have spotted Pat's patriotic tendencies, including digging fighting holes in Farragut while reciting Roosevelt's' own "Man in the Arena." What most people don't realize is that the man referred to in the arena is actually Pat Roberts. No really, Teddy Rose is a prophet. Although Pat has his quirks, he is a man of deep loyalty, integrity, intensity, and is a friend of the purest form. America is lucky to have him on the team.

Sawyer Rogers



SEALs

What can you say about this prep school educated, dime looking, silver tongued man, but that he is a loyal friend and member of Team BudLight. His number one opener and coincidentally closer with girls is "Hey, my name is Sawyer Rogers (hair flip), want to hear my 2K time?" Clearly it works, considering he found a date at Big Beer Wednesday three days before ring dance. Soon he will be released back into the wild of Pacific Beach where he will be attending Basically Unconditionally Dapper School. When he's not fending off the ladies or Chris LaFrancois, you'll probably find him in line at the barber shop, pretending to be an engineer, or sipping his ice coffee in Dunkin Donuts while sporting the newest "athletic fit" Lululemon product.

Robert Rosenthal

Submarines

It's no surprise that bow ties and watery skies are where this guy's future lies. "Semper Deep" is where he'll sleep. Running of course, he won't enforce and a glass of wine is always fine. Chess is the game and puns are his fame. His bed is his life, that's one thing for sure; his pillow his wife, so fluffy and pure. He's an ace of clubs for the leader of subs and works like a dog when friends are in the fog. Robert is known as a stand-up guy, just ask for a favor and find out why.

Charles Russell

USMC Pilot

When looking up "oxymoron" in the dictionary, you will first notice a picture of Charles Joseph Russell in a Marine Corps uniform. Although his generally soft-spoken attitude makes him an odd choice for the job, he will certainly prove a capable leader, as long as the front lines of Syria come with an abundance of Lay's potato chips, ketchup, and Pepsi. A seven-year veteran of Plebe Summer, he often spends more time with those that he trained instead of those he trained with, always being available for a pickup game of basketball (or his actual pickup truck), talking about the Catholic faith, a version of Guitar Hero that's way past its prime, or endless references to the greatness of the state of Kansas. I mean, what else is a math major going to do with his time? A renowned leader of the Catholic community, CJ is never afraid to stand up for what he believes, especially if the debate is whether "pop" is more correct than "soda." He embodies the spirit of his childhood hero, Captain America, looking to "avenge" all the times he's been asked to carry a sword for formation. Teddy Roosevelt may have chosen to "Speak softly, and carry a big stick," but CJ will be taking his dedicated will, kind heart, soft voice, and Mameluke Sword into the great unknown, and the world will surely be a better place for those that encounter him.

Holly Sandler

USMC Ground

Unable to escape the grand old state of crab dip and Terrapin Terps, Holly Sandler (or was it Ms. Maxwell?) ventured down the street to leave the world of sororities and Army ROTC behind (smart choice...or the right choice?). While she despised the Soup Sandwich over plebe summer, they are now inseparable and meant to go together like grilled cheese and tomato soup (or any of the other soups of which Holly can be seen carrying entire trays from King's Court). Although she originally claimed an interest in pursuing the study of dolphins and clouds, she discovered her true calling in Euclidean Geometry, the Fibonacci Sequence, and the Gaussian distribution. Even after writing her capstone, she still loves math. But...we never see her do her homework. Is it really math that she loves? Or is it John? Or Jacob? Or Jingleheimer Schmidt? Her poor roommates had to keep a list to keep track of them all. Once she needed a break from all the American boys, she spent a semester at an even darker, drearier place known as the Escuela Naval Militar, where she found a light to help escape from the darkness, since Holly Potter was still perfecting the "Lumos" spell. Upon her return, she found the need to expand her roommates' horizons with an endless supply of Spanish music. Literally all the time. Until it's time to go to bed. At 8 pm. If only we could all emulate Holly Sandler's life habits, smarts, athleticism, and caring attitude for everyone around her, the world would be a much better place. As it is, it's pretty great, since Holly Sandler was our roommate. XOXO, Kelsie and Jess

SAMUEL SHALOV

MEDICAL CORPS

Out of his entire friend group, Sam has the heaviest wallet because it is filled with various forms of identification to prove that he is old enough to get into bars and buy PG-13 movie tickets. The only Midshipman that has had the same desk setup since plebe year, Sam is probably the most organized individual in the Brigade. He may have single-handedly caused the loss to Army due to "comm difficulties," but he's a pretty cool guy. Dr. Shalov will finally become a reality and there is no one else I would want to prescribe me Motrin and write me a chit. Maybe when he's practicing he'll have more than two shirts that don't say NAVY FOOTBALL on them.

THOMAS SWANSON

USMC PILOT

Holy Huskeroni. For the folks who don't know Tom, his life in Annapolis has been the stuff of legends. Seaman "SmokeDecks" Swanson hails from the "heartland" - Nebraska. His ability to light up a room is the only quality that outweighs his indescribable misunderstanding of the English language. His notorious prowess as a weightlifter and ice cream eater were stricken only by his inability to finish a meal. Tom has earned the "Master of Movement Order;" San Diego, Atlanta... even Boston! His boulder shoulders proved to be a worthy foundation to carry the party. A passion for bow hunting, cat fishing (literal and figurative definition), throwing, and photosythesization has crossed Tom's path with us all here. With a sense of humor the size of a Tsunami, Tom's life has been an example of true love. His achievements as an athlete have been surpassed only by his achievements as a man and friend. Congrats on carrying out the family legacy of service and starting your own in the Corps. God bless you, and God bless Hanna. Semper Fi, Thomas.

YANNI VROTSOS

NAVY PILOT

Yanni the "Greek Hurricane" may have undergone the most profound transformation from Plebe Summer to Firstie year; from a frantic, math nerd named King Calculus to a Snapchat friend who is always telling girls (and guys) about his macro-balanced diet. His escapades have taken him all over the globe representing our nation's Navy: American University, Georgetown, Saint Mary's College of Maryland, University of Maryland and all the while single-handedly keeping Tinder up and running. If he's not with Andrew Coen or flexing in front of the mirror in 7th wing gym, he's running down the beaches still trying to figure out what happened that night. Yanni is the first midshipman to graduate with having done negative work during his time here at the academy. "I'm too lazy to watch Netflix" and "Fk It" sums up his dedication. The most work that he has done all semester is write other people's bios. Getting charged $300 in ubers, driving a muscle car that he can't keep in one piece, stealing girls from Sam Shalov and Ryan Adair, sleeping in a bush, and breaking his foot on purpose to attract females, it's a miracle he hasn't stood any restriction. When he is not getting sued by his crazy ex girlfriend, he's swiping right on a plebe. Or plebes. Or many plebes. If you ever wish to call the wild Yanni, learn this call very carefully: "YANN-YANN. chrip, chirp Skee-woop. Yip-yip, comeu here boy."

ANTHONY WHITE

USMC PILOT

Don't ever say Anthony isn't a trooper. He somehow defy all of his age-imposed hurdles by surviving spring break trips to Panama City Beach and Cancun (twice). A man of many names, each carrying their own personality, especially after a few libations. A-White has been through the thick on countless voyages out at sea. Like any respectable fisherman, A-White's catches grow exponentially in weight each time he tells the story. Don't let his many years or receding hairline fool you, Anthony is the type of friend that is willing to black-out with you at any given time. The only thing this meatball loves more than fireball shots is wearing skin tight latex and moving heavy things. Whether it's locating and saving a cold, lost Marine friend in a place unknown, or protecting you from the money snatching government birds in D.C., he always has your back. His favorite move, the left right double-double, has turned into a code that only a privileged few know. If you get out of line he will tell you his many lessons learned back in Boot Camp. Looking back, four years at The Academy wouldn't have been as enjoyable without you around, best of luck moving forward A-White. To the breezes.

NATHAN WILLIAMS

NAVAL FLIGHT OFFICER

Nathan Williams spent most of his time at the Naval Academy mastering the art of multitasking. Netflix and Signals homework at the same time on two different screens? Easy. Simultaneously shooting some of the highest scores on the Navy Pistol Team and finding time for friends, sleep, exercise, his position as Brigade SAPR GUIDE commander, and food? Nathan's done it. He consistently pursues opportunities to train and grow as a leader, which is reflected by his 3 consecutive blocks of leave per summer. His time as a prior Nuke made him determined to make drastic changes in his life, so he service selected Navy NFO. He is one of the most wise, patient, loyal, and dedicated midshipman at the Naval Academy, and he will truly make an exceptional officer. Those who are lucky enough to have met Nathan know they can expect great things from him

Jessica Yri

Navy Pilot

From soup sandwich to super star (thanks Alli Graf), Jessica Yri has been through more than you could imagine, but all that Plebe Summer/grad party/alcohol offense/LOI/restriction non-sense is in the past. What kept her going was that one day she would have her own apartment to fill with cats and make endless guacamole and pina coladas on the beaches of Pensacola. After going to bed for 21.5 years sober, she learned that sometimes after nights of drinking, climbing into bed is a bit more difficult. No one embodies the quote "when you fall down, you get back up" more than Jess does. She will make a great navy pilot one day because she gets at least 8 hours of sleep and takes at least one nap per day. Her favorite phase is "Ugh, I'm so tired, I don't know why I'm so tired." Yea, we can't figure it either. Jess is a great friend, the kind you would bring home for Thanksgiving, but don't get too close, or eventually she'll start going to lunch with your mom without you. In fact, your whole extended family will start to care more whether or not she will be at the next family event than if you will be. The best friend, most caring person, biggest comeback kid, props for Jess for never leaving and making it through!

Seth Adams

Surface Warfare

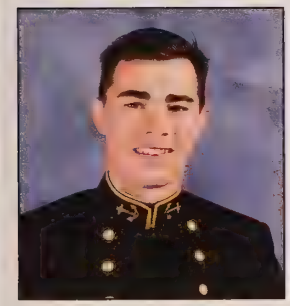
""Courage is not simply one of the virtues, but the form of every virtue at the testing point." - C.S. Lewis

It takes courage to go against the grain, to stand up for what you believe in, to do the hard thing, even the right thing. The single word to describe Seth Adams is Courageous. It takes courage to ask the Vice CNO for weekday liberty. It takes courage to stand before Brigade leadership to fight for the Silent Drill Team to perform before parades, because they are good enough. It takes courage to apologize to those you have wronged, even if they don't forgive you. It takes courage to own the mistakes you've made in the past and seek to grow from the failures. It takes courage to get up every day, even on those days that it seems impossible. It takes courage to ask the woman you love to marry you. No one displays courage the way Seth does every day, and I am blessed to be able to see each of his courageous moments. Seth will graduate the Naval Academy and become ENS and Husband (select) Adams. He will be remembered for his ability to make you smile and laugh, his caring heart, and passion for others. By grace, wherever he goes, he'll always be my husband.

Kyle Battle

USMC Ground

Look Kyle Battle up in the dictionary you will find words such as Motivation, Dedication, Perfection. "I didn't ask for this job. I wanted to be squad leader. Why do they always volunteer me for things?" Are some of Kyle's favorite phrases. He clearly states that he, Kyle Battle, doesn't have time to do anything.... However, Donnie, Enrique, and Kevin do. He has been with his girlfriend for almost 4 years, so you already know he's loyal to his soil... which is not Texas... it's New Jersey. Don't let him lie to you. He's studied Systems Engineering for 4 years, and the only thing harder than that is getting him to make a decision. But really Kyle is the kind of person you want to take back to your dad... not your mom. Trust me. All in all Kyle is one of the most put together people I've ever met. Becoming the Brigade Training Officer is a true testament to the amount of respect he's earned at the Academy. He challenged himself to be a leader on the football field, and a leader in the Hall. Both he was very successful at. We may have fought countless times over stupid things these past years, but hey... that's just what brothers do. It's an honor having a friend and a brother like him. Marine Corps got itself a good one. Rah. -JCT



David Borden

Navy Pilot

If you can't find Dave for a few days, check under his truck. He's probably been there for 18 hours straight. Also looks like the hulk. Really loves people. Hates and loves the realm, but when in the realm, owns the realm. Frequently steals your weights because his weren't enough. If you find a bunch of broken bars in the Wes B weight room, it was probably Dave. Dave is likely to be found recklessly dodging bulls in a 3rd world country.

Terry Brown

Naval Flight Officer

What does the Artic, a witch's heart, and that tasty wine cooler sitting on ice have in common? They are all half as chill as TJ Brown. Reverend Brown is man of many talents. He can walk the line between offensive and professional language better than Johnny Cash could ever describe in a song, blow your mind with a philosophical tornado so stimulating you'll seize, and rob the cradle so early he'll be teaching his wife the ABC's. Having received the description of "charismatic", in his aptitude for commissioning comments, more than any midshipman in USNA history there is no doubt he is going to tell you all about it, but that's all that can currently be deduced. TJ studied political science and treasure hunting, but will be graduating with a degree in Cyber Operations...he is confused too. TJ was selected to become an NFO, some would say that stands for "Naval Flight Officer", but for TJ it means "Not First Option". Ash Ketchum once said "I choose you Pikachu", well Pikachu isn't real but TJ is and he's the real shocker around here. Amen.

Colton Byers

USMC Pilot

Attention to Citation: Today we salute you Mr. Do it Yourself Real American Goat Man. Colton the warrior. The most interesting man in the world. A caged animal. TSA's advisory agent for pocket knife guidance. Known for strategically picking up "hobbies" for 2 weeks at a time.....wood burning, wood sculpting, sumo wrestling, DIY projects, guitar playing, golf, wifi extender building, drawing....while never mastering any of them. He is Prince Eugene, wearer of the wobbly boots. Corgis are addicted to him. Always hungry for action and adventure. He is a FEX. PT Stud. Mouth breathers need him to survive. Drone operator. Future cable TV weatherman. Chance of rain, he's your man. Greenland's Christopher Columbus. Guardian of the Cheeze-Its from which the Eskimo stole. Brick master of 15th Company's Legacy. I still don't understand why you gave us a brick, but it'll make a great decoration in my house one day.....for my driveway maybe? So crack open a nice cold bud light Mr. Valiant Leader of the pack, because without you Room 7419 would cease to exist. The Boys are Back. Pull Chocks.

PATRICK CARMODY

USMC GROUND

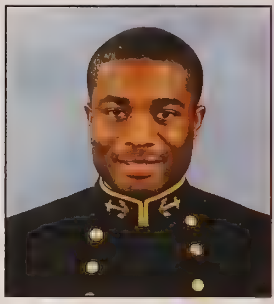
Patrick LEEEEM Carmody came into the academy with a certain sickness. Some may call it a fever. Once he defeated this illness he decided to regain his strength in the "dojo". After a heavy dose of strength and honor Pat fell in love with himself. Despite being the last in the line, after a memorable night in San Dingus he was ready to ride till dawn. No beating heart is safe in the greater Annapolis area. He may not be focused on the quality of his work but certainly the quantity.It seems he may again be catching the fever yet again. Only time will tell... His childish behavior can cause many to grow insane with his antics. Luckily for Garms MRE's come equipped with a sweet in the field and god help you if you have to sit next to him in the chow hall. Although his ego is large, his head is very small. Garms is an extremely dedicated individual and the Marine Corp is lucky to have him. He will do many great things for the Corps. We all "hate you" Patrick.

JAYNE COTTRELL

USMC PILOT

Jayno, G.I. Jayne, Jayne the untamed, whatever you call her, she's sure to impress you with her quick wit and comical come-backs. When she's not running PFT's or vigorously studying the five-paragraph order, you can usually find her in her rack fast asleep—dreaming about the Corps of course. If you're ever having a bad day, you can always count Jayne to cheer you up with a polite wave or hand gesture. One of the most laid-back people I've ever met, she loves heading to the beach and doing her favorite thing—sleeping. She is also one of the most competitive individuals I've ever met. Jayno is meant for greatness because I'm convinced she can't lose. Her classmates respect her. Her friends love her. The underclass strives to be like her. She is everything that is good about this great institution and a great role model. She'll always have your back and loves being around people. She is called to fly, and the Marines have gained a great soon-to-be pilot who accepts nothing but perfection. It's been a pleasure getting to know you and I can't wait to see what's in store for this stellar gal!

JACQUES DELICAT



His Excellency, Prince of Gabon, Field Marshal Jacques Eddy Serge Delicat, Lord of All the Beasts of the Earth and Fishes of the Seas and Soon to be Conqueror of Africa. Prince Eddy has graced us with his presence for four years, showing more class and teaching us more about the art of being a gentleman than we could have ever imagined. His perfumes are imported from around the world and are made only from the most sought after fragrances. His scent creates stampedes of hopeful women, all fighting for a chance to meet this man. His watches are hand crafted by the world's most skilled watchmakers, giving him a collection second(s) to none. Every morning he wakes up in a new Bugatti, but with the way his bank account is set up, it might take him a while to get you your money. Let's be honest, Africa needs him more than America but we sure as hell want him a lot more than they ever could. So what do you say Eddy? Ditch that cradle of civilization and rule the High Seas with the West.

ALEX DODANE

SURFACE WARFARE

The members of fifteenth company used to like Alex, but after he became CC, his dark inner side finally saw the light of day. Probably due to his nine years of military school (why would anyone want to be in military school that long?), he has a cynical sense of humor that most of us can't get enough of. Of course, this sense of humor is only revealed when he's not talking about Civil War History, which eliminates about ninety percent of his conversations. The heart of his passion for the Civil War, although it can be found in the fact that he can be occasionally found listening to Confederate music in his spare time, is really found in his major selection: Econ. All that said, despite his landlocked childhood, Alex has the passion and the knowledge to be a pretty remarkable surface warfare officer, before fulfilling his lifelong dream of being a trophy husband.

NATHAN FEWEL

SUBMARINES

"Nathan James Fewel upon graduation will join the elite few who leave the Academy with student debt. However, this feat pales in comparison to the 4,819,606 views his Navy Gangnam Style video currently has on Youtube. Young Nathan impulsively joined the renowned Drum and Bugle Corps, although soon he realized he did not actually have any musical talents, and was demoted to the guide on. Nathan has since bought a guitar and plays James Blunt covers in an attempt to prove Gunny Jordan wrong. Nathan excelled at mediocre tasks, almost always maxing the PRT and graduating at the top of his group three major. His most impressive feat was swiping his way into a ring dance date the week before. His political studies and Trump impressions will carry him far in his political career. After all he is always game for a good political debate and has a bright future in politics or work office arguments Good luck next year finding out what a HOYA is and giving advice to Patrick Ewing. The Submarine Force really lucked out by winning the Nathan Fewel lottery. Nathan Fewel a great Midshipman, a better friend.'

Jessika Ford

Navy Pilot

From her humble beginnings of being the Plebe who on I-Day couldn't get her combat shoe laces untied (while her roommates stood in complete shock and awe :O), 1/C Ford did not turn out the way her roommates expected her to be. Rather, over the course of Plebe Summer and the past four years, 1/C Ford proved to be a highly capable and impressive woman with a striking sense of ambition, dedication, resilience, and reliability, supplemented by her wicked sense of humor. Through writing, Jessi expresses her deep insights on the world around her (#EnglishMajorsRock); through reading and watching movies, she expresses her most peculiar choices of literature and film; and through dance (especially Zumba at the BSC and on Service Selection Night), Jessi expresses her inner funk. The Aviation Community is lucky to receive such a deeply thoughtful and highly humorous individual. Don't forget, Jessi, when you hit the squadron, to continue your Plebe Summer legacy by replying to your superior officer with a bold "Señor, si, Señor!"

Ross Gilchriest

USMC Ground

From the day Ross won the Plebe Summer Rates Competition, we all knew he was destined for greatness. Always the hard worker, Ross has succeeded in everything he put his mind to. Whether it's getting huge underneath the squat rack, or learning LITERALLY EVERYTHING, Ross excels. But the people who knew Ross well won't remember him most for his work ethic, but his friendship. Whether it was showing us the perfect lifting program, or lecturing us for an hour on the philosophies of Nietzsche, Ross's spirit was infectious, and he desired to share his success with all his friends. We will remember him as a great man and leader, and we expect to be reading of his successes for years to come.

Johnathan Hathaway

Navy Pilot

John Hathaway falls in a special category at the Naval Academy--a Guinness-obsessed redneck farm boy. At one point in his life he probably said: "And on the third day, God created the Remington bolt-action rifle, so that Man could fight the dinosaurs....Amen" (watch Mean Girls if you don't get it). His family is probably the most American out of all the midshipmen, with a military lineage dating back to even before the American Revolution. And don't even get him started about who won the Civil War or question the 2nd Amendment (unless you want to sit there and be lectured by a hot-headed southerner). But once you get passed his Rick&Morty impressions and his monologues of how the South will rise again, you'll realize that he's actually a genuine guy. Sure he goes Donkey Kong mode whenever he gets a little too drunk, but he will always have your back and will always put other people's needs before his own without hesitation. He is self-less, patient, and a joy to be around. He has a heart of gold and exhibits true loyalty that knows no bounds. However, if a real-life purge were ever to happen, I would personally stay clear of both him and his family (they'll show no mercy). But besides that, he's great!

Jonathan Hawkins

Navy Pilot

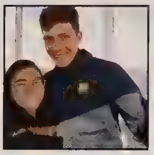
Jon "JAHN" Hawkins knows no true home. Hailing from wherever a successful sports team can be found, he claims to be a San Antonio Spurs, Alabama Crimson Tide, Washington Nationals, and Nashville Predators fan. During his time at the Academy, Jon spent his days as an Operations Research major attempting to find the optimal solution to never graduating; to infiltrate the ranks of his subordinates, ultimately failing. This shrimp wouldn't let anything stop him from achieving his lifelong dream of becoming a pilot. Jon's headed down to Pensacola where he'll learn to pull 6 G's, while continuing to pull 0 girls. Jon's tremendous success as a Midshipman will surely extend to his life as an aviator, and beyond. If nothing else, he's the same height as Tom Cruise. -7356

Susanna Heidt

Surface Warfare

"Susanna Heidt is one of the most kind-hearted human beings at the Academy and she can be a feisty little thing. She always kept busy whether it's doing school work... actually mostly school work... or kicking some poor soul's butt in judo. She is on top of her game! Even though she can be busy she always makes time for her friends whenever they need her help or just want to enjoy her company. Susanna lives for puns and loves to use them with her friends and roommates. She is a great friend to have because she is very loyal and cares about others rather than herself. She always has jokes, so if you're ever down go ask her! If you ever want to see something amusing, just sneak up behind Susanna when she is working at her desk and scare her... it will make you laugh."

Jonson Henry



Surface Warfare

Up until firstie year, the kid who never wore shoes to high school could most often be found in the comfort of his own bed--the tile floor of his room in Bancroft Hall. Although, his sleeping on the floor may be the reason for his insistence on personally stripping and waxing the floor by hand, something his roommates do not challenge him on. You will not find a Midshipman with a kinder heart. No matter the circumstance, Jonson Henry is there to help. As an English major, Jonson reads all the books that no one else wants to and gets excited about them. On any given day, Jonson can be found watching enough TV for his entire room and procrastinating his papers until the very last minute, no matter how long they may be. While initially torn on his service selection, Jonson knew he wanted to be a SWO the minute he slept through his Marine PFT, and the Surface community could not be luckier. Fair winds and following seas.

Hannah Hughes

Navy Pilot

Hannah Hughes is hands down the most enthusiastic/loudest person in the room. She is the all-time winner of the paper plate award for "most likely to compromise a mission due to the sound of her voice" as well as the "most likely to lose her voice at a football game". Hannah hails from Houston, Texas and if for some reason she didn't let you know that herself, you will figure it out from all of her Texas themed clothing. If Intercollegiate Sailing at the academy wasn't enough for her here, Hannah plans to live on a boat throughout flight school. In her free time Hannah enjoys listening to the Wicked soundtrack and cheering on the Astros. On Tuesdays she can be found with her roommate, Katie, celebrating Tequila Tuesday. With short term memory similar to Dory, Hannah never strays too far from the room before coming back to retrieve another needed item. Hannah is always willing to give a helping hand and the people that will have the chance to work with her will be lucky to have her around! Go NADS!

Alexander Hunley

Submarines

Alexander Hunley is an enigmatic figure. He left the University of Arizona for the Boat School for reasons unknown. He chose to major in Systems Engineering, and even he can't remember why. He is widely liked, despite his best efforts, and he can't understand what he's doing wrong. As soon as he realizes that firearms and fast food do not make good investments, he will be assured a lucrative career (he is a submariner after all). For the sake of the American people, we hope that Alex chooses to extend his career as a Submariner rather than pursue his childhood dream of becoming a rural hermit. Men like him are hard to find.

Katherine Lazzeri

Surface Warfare

Katherine Leilani, a native of Fallston, MD, can often be found with her hairy lover D-train under the hood of their child Brutus, a 1989 Chevy G20 Van. Some may think it's weird to go to the movies alone, or eat an entire family sized bag of Doritos and jumbo pizza slice in one sitting, but for Katie that's just another day. This sloth obsessed spazzy-lazzy ball of weirdness marches to the beat of her own drum. Although she spends most of her time tripping over her long appendages, she is one of few to be awarded with stank booty, which may have been her proudest moment to date. Katie's obsession with her three poodles can be seen weekly on her snapstory, where you may also find drunk selfies with random pieces of food in her long locks. Although she dreams of living in the Yukon, for now she can be found in the center of the dance floor making absurd facial expressions and crushing dance moves. If you need someone to NOT workout with, Katie is your girl...yet she somehow maintains the perfect beach bod. She'll drop everything to make sure every single memory is fully captured and she'll be the first I call when I need a pun. The East Coast goats will truly miss Katie but she's sure to have an impressive future ahead filled with adventure, laughter, and mustaches.

Daniel Leitch

KEEP CALM AND

USMC Ground

The Academy has been quite a challenge and an adventure. I've had to improvise, adapt, and overcome to prepare myself to lead Marines into harm's way and have taken trainings and had experiences beyond what I could hope or dream for; and the fun is just getting started. It hasn't been easy nor do I expect my future to be easy, but I wouldn't have it any other way. In a world that is ever-changing, the best we can hope for is that changes in our favor. Instead of leaving these changes up to chance, fate, or destiny, I choose to use my skills, training, and experiences to inspire my Marines, peers, and superiors to go out and make those changes; to shape the world in favor of our nation.

Ryan McCoy

USMC Ground

"Born in the land of cheese and snow, Ryan Mee Coy is a boy you've got to know. Silver B in one hand, lotto tic in the other, That forehead makes you wonder is that Robocop's brother? Nah, it's Big Red, first on the beachhead Al always asking him "how much bread?"Push ups in Wes B, every spot you can see, Prepping himself for that CFT. We'll always thank you for taking us dancing,
And save you a place - in thugz mansion"

Phillip Metcalfe

Submarines

"Phillip, as he prefers, or Phil as he is known is as proud a Texan as can be. He may be small in stature, but he has the voice of an angel, and a massive truck. Phil started his career as an aeronautical engineer, sailing to be an aviator of appropriate stature, but after a boom and bludgeoning from fate was forced to reconsider. He soon traded planes for the lions and baby lambs of the political sciences and the fly-by-wire submarines of the deep. A critical member of 15th Company and Room 7419, Phil can often be found swimming like a fish in his rack or dancing through the hall. In his free time, Phil dabbles in marathons.Despite suffering from amnesia and heart burn, Phil(lip) is amazingly bright, resilient and compassionate. It is difficult to find a man(child) with more love and spirit than Phil. Without a doubt, Phil is one of the most selfless individuals around. He does everything in his power to help others and refuses to give anything but his best. He will certainly succeed at anything that comes his way and will bring a contagious enthusiasm wherever he goes. His heart truly shows that apparently "Everything is bigger in Texas" after all.

Chace Miller

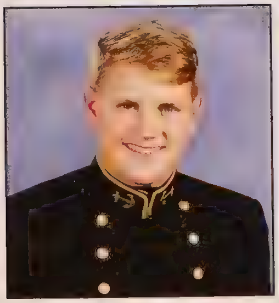
Navy Pilot

Chace Miller, a resident of Disney World, who will not let you forget about it. Quick to take the Honor Concept to Trivia night at ACME, still a little salty about not getting that gift card. Whenever it was that a tailgate was needed, the wannabe SEC boy could sure find his YETI. A former darksider, who again found the light, it really is better when she's literally just across the wall. But let it be known that up until the end his knee still needs replacing from I-Day minus one. Now a toast all those around, its MILLER TIME man, don't forget that y'all. Best of luck in P-Cola, you're finally going back to a place where the snow won't find you.

Ryan Mui

Submarines

'Ryan G-Money Mui, if he was in the room, you'd never know it. Embracing the nickname of Bok Choy, this guy explores the new frontier of both cyber studies and economics. Yes, this man could actually hack into someone's account in order to help him better handle his stock portfolio. Smart enough to know how to play the long game, this man invests time and money into what matters: stocks, retirement, engagement rings, and creepy vans. If his plans for the next few years come true, he will be the richest married man with a campground as his Home of Record. Though he is the only guy from his California high school dumb enough to go to the Naval Academy, he can finally catch back up with them since he'll be going to Stanford for the next year. Make that two firsts, most likely the first guy to get a Masters in Computer Science at Stanford while living in a van. Ultimately, if there is one guy that all of us could trust to "Run silent, run deep" it is Bok Choy. He truly understands that caring means doing things for others when it is not convenient. He has the highest form of character as well as the deepest sense of integrity.'



Kyle O'Connor

USMC Pilot

"Kyle is a permanent resident of North Carolina, or Alabama, or Texas, or pretty much wherever his audience is from. He will undoubtedly hang out with you if you are willing to make the trip to ECU. If Kyle isn't somewhere spilling something on himself that means he is probably dead, or just hitting a new PR on an Oly lift in Wes B. Don't worry though, he made sure to crush a WOD before lifting heavy. There really isn't a better person to complain about everyday life with. Kyle is the premium filter for when your emotions decide they want to start talking instead of steady logic. The ability to gracefully shut someone up is something I will rely on for the rest of my life. You've made the list for me, you'll be hearing from me. "

JONATHAN PULLUM

SURFACE WARFARE

I am a Rocket Scientist "1/C Pullum is infamous across the brigade as the eternal guide-on or that mid on rollerblades. He is known for being a loud talker, eater, breather, complainer, and sleeper. Just a really loud midshipman with the luck of a man stuck by lightning every month for a year. He is a master at his craft... the YP and a hard worker often seen with a monster in hand and desk light on until his roommate wakes up for practice the next morning. However with his faults he is one of the most compassionate midshipman around because he has been through just about every bad scenario. He is respected by his squad even if they poke fun at him and always shows that he cares more about their development than their affection. He will make a fine officer even if it takes him a little longer to refine some of his rougher edges."

WILSON RYDALCH

SUBMARINES

"Young Wilson Rydalch (a.k.a. El wilson, or the Dalch) wasn't the first Rydalch to come through the academy but he might be the first to leave with no hair. He meticulously followed the plan his mother made for him and his brothers when they were young- academy, bowman, subs, NPS. The only thinking Wilson had to do for himself was how to get out of responsibility and avoid texting back attractive women. His NARP naps helped him recover from the life threatening Ecoli he brought back from Argentina. His chill attitude and laiz faire leadership style lead 15th company to success in operations spring semester as well as the brigade intramural dodge ball championship. A man who is always down for anything, Wilson is eagerly looking forward to being a yes-man to the Captain of his first sub. Best of luck in Monteray and beyond, we know you will kill it. "

JOSEPH SIMPSON

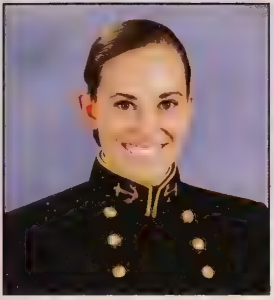
SURFACE WARFARE NUKE

Although Joe is often pictured as anti-social, there are three topics that will open the door for a 3 hour conversation with Mr Simpson: Trident scholar project, Arizona and Mexico. But don't get fooled by this smart kid with big ears, he still doesn't understand that under International Law, Arizona is not a country. But Joe's daily routine is not limited to some boring topics. His beloved wife to be is one his biggest accomplishments. His love for the bros tremendously decreased over the last three years. Good thing he is marrying that lady. But I can only wish him an outstanding career and hope that he makes it to Admiral.

GABRIELLE SMITH

SURFACE WARFARE

By far the biggest motivator on 7-3, you can catch Gaby frowning almost 24-7. If you happen to see her in DTA, I heard she went once last year, don't expect to see her dancing. More than likely, you will see her hanging out in the corner with a nice tall water. If you can't find her after those two places, I heard she frequents Wesley Brown too. Be sure to bring a penny if you go to visit her there though because word on the street is that she can jump over 1, maybe 2 on a good day, but we don't want to set the bar too high. Just kidding! Gaby spent her 4 years by the Severn and 1 in Ripley Hall making everyone else better. Always the life of the party, she sets the bar higher than the rest (excluding Dorothy...LOL). The 7th wing crew will never be the same, but neither will the fleet. Good luck out there Gaby! We love you and can't wait to see what SWO life does for you. #NAVYVEEBS #BICO #WhatsReallyGood #GabyIsReallyGood #7



Morgan Speight

Surface Warfare

Morgan charmed her way into all of our hearts over plebe summer when she came in with her sweet southern accent, pixie cut, and beautiful smile. Along with randomly bellowing into song, Morgan enjoys participating in Gospel Choir, YP Squadron, CRU, and stopping to chat with almost every person she passes in King Hall. Don't let the sweet smile and gentle disposition fool you, however; Morgan is one of the most fearless and hardworking people you will be fortunate to meet. The only mid I know who can limit herself to a 10-15 minute nap, Morgan is a diligent go-getter and succeeds in everything she sets her mind to. Her love of learning can only be outmatched by her love of a good night's sleep. Morgan will always be remembered as a caring and reliable friend as well as an inspiring role model to those around her.

Scott Swegle

Navy Pilot

Scott has never been around as much as we hoped he would be. He was always here, but he has been busy studying for his Aero classes for four straight years. When he does get out, it is quite clear that his mind is still focused on schoolwork and as a result, Scott really isn't much for the party scene. The one exception to that rule is his obsession with his home state. Show Scott an ear of corn or whisper the word "Iowa" in a room at the end of a hall, half a mile away, and Scott is guaranteed to light up with a huge smile. We're glad he's had something to be happy about the last four years. We are sure that Scott will take his focus in determination and excel at flight school, but who knows the party animal inside him could wake up with the bars in Pensacola. Seriously though, it has been our honor to room with Scott and keep up with his engineering obsession. He never did fit in with our room of humanities majors. Best of luck Scott, see you down the road.

Jeremy Valero

USMC Pilot

"A well meaning man with an abnormally shaped head. Jeremy often walks away from the barber looking like a palm tree or a tumble weed. Affectionately called the Alaskan Bear, JearbearValer sleeps hard (often on his face) as if in a perpetual state of hibernation. Daily, he wakes from his slumber gasping for air before hastily leaving his den to study outer space, in a tube of course, but you wouldnt want to do that. When not contemplating the physics of the universe, Jeremy can be found consumed in a couch fighting terrorists. In fact, he has a bionic knee, which gives him a mean push kick, but only providing the stability of a baby giraffe. Other times, however, he disappears all together as if taken by Albanian gangsters. But at the call of ""JEREMEEEEYY!"" he returns, rescued by Liam Nesson. Despite the number of times Liam has saved the day, Liam has yet to teach Jeremy how to plan, clean his room, or drive a car. Good thing they say ""flying is intuitive."" Maybe in the future his long hours of video games will serve him well as a (drone) Marine pilot. Nevertheless, its harder to find a nicer guy than Jeremy. Nor is it any easier to find a guy more willing to sacrifice his body for the greater good Always with good intentions Jeremy is not afraid to do what is right, even at the risk of personal harm. While his hair will remain a point of contingency throughout his career, his persistence and determination will inevitably overcome the challenge of his head

Jonathan Wabeke

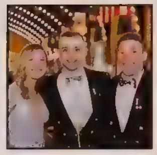
Submarines

Jonathan Wabeke is the kind of guy who you hate at every instance. Not because he's a bad guy but simply because he's doing so well at life you can't not hate him. The crew team loves him even though the team is comprised of people who thought it was a good idea to take up competitive row boating. His grades are so good and he stresses so little about him you'd think he didn't really care at all. His personality is that of a grizzly bear or maybe a mountain lion after five shots of express. By and large he is a person anyone would want to have their back in any and every situation.

Ethan White

Navy Pilot

Ethan White loved the Naval Academy so much that he choose to make it a seven-year experience. Originally a member of the Class of 2014, Ethan embarked on a three-year-long Mormon mission trip that placed him in the Great Class of 2017. Ethan returned from his sabbatical in rural Argentina fluent in Spanish, allowing us to convince all visitors to our room that Ethan was a Spanish exchange student. He is a man of grand schemes and little preparation. Thankfully, what Ethan lacks in preparation he makes up for in boyish charm and sheer force of will. From screeners to Ironmans (to flight school?), Ethan can wing any challenge. Even his Ring Dance date was found two weeks in advance by sending a Facebook message to a stranger in Utah. Nevertheless, it has been a pleasure rooming with Ethan. I enjoyed wetting the sheets of plebes as Training Sergeants, of running 22 miles as our "one-day marathon training plan," and of our Friday afternoons exploring junk yards and pawn shops together. Ethan is a man of quick wit, and can be found either napping, guzzling hot chocolate ("Mormon coffee"), or planning his next international adventure. He is sure to become an excellent pilot and an even better friend and father



Andrew Woitena

Submarines

Andrew Dalton Woitena was the first-born son of an Infantry Marine and a school teacher. It was his father's platoon that decided upon the middle name of Dalton for the dual reasons that the movie Roadhouse was quite popular at the time and that "chicks will dig it." As a continual disappointment to his father, Andrew has chosen the Submarine community to be his new home. He hails from the mean streets of Pasadena, Texas, and, if given the hint of an opportunity, he will regale you with unwarranted stories from his days in the Fightin' Texas Aggie Corps of Cadets at Texas A&M University. He excelled in the "Sport of Standing Still" as a member of the Pistol Team for three years. As long as there is an ample supply of peanut butter, chicken tenders, and pizza there is no doubt that Drew will make a superb submarine officer.

Robert Young

Medical Corps

Rob William Charles Young was born in a hospital and will most likely be spending the rest of his life in one as well.

An avid lifelong runner until he could no longer list it on his resume, Robert excels at all he does. When not studying he can be found offering well-intentioned yet still un-qualified medical advice to all who ask. Rob is the definition of a renaissance boy, I mean man. He dabbles in woodworking, drowns in coffee, and even qualified for the Boston Marathon on his first and only attempt.

A below average swimmer and exhausting his dating options in the U.S., Rob signed up to study abroad in Turkey where he joined the Olympic swimming team and had a girlfriend within a week. Never one to pass up an opportunity or lend a helping hand, he is one of the few with many more friends than stripes. Good luck next year hanging out with Johnny Hop. Cheers to a man known for his work ethic, morals, and dad wardrobe. Your compassionate nature will make you the best doctor in the Navy. At least one of us will be an operator."

PAUL ALVARADO

NAVY PILOT

Paul Alvarado was quieter man, never one to brag about his own merit, but if you watch him long enough you realize he's an impressive individual. An aerospace engineer, well-versed country-dancer, gymnast able to fly a plane, it is entirely feasible he will fly to class reunions in a plane he built, do a back-flip out, and teach us all to two-step.

MARTIN ARROYO

USMC GROUND

Martin Arroyo clearly missed the casting calls for Mad Men. Not to say that he is a classy gentlemen at all, but he loves to act and dress like one. Besides Don Draper impressions, however, he is a good friend to have and is always adventurous. The creator of the SCUBA Steve Group, and the reluctant patrician ring-knocker that he is, the fleet will benefit from his love of life, competitiveness, fake cynicism and secret Marine Corps motivation.It is a great experience living with him as his company mate and we will definitely miss his classiness and fun. As he is heading to be a proud Marine, we are sure he will do great stuff in Marine Corps.

MACKLIN BLACKADAR

SURFACE WARFARE

Macklin Blackadar. There's no one who compares. Of all the folks I've ever known, who've ever been, he probably loves boats the most. Sailing, crew, YPRON, NARC. There's nothing this man hasn't done to prove that, and now he's chosen SWO.

Honestly though, Max is a magnificent human, with Navy in his blood. He's lived in far flung places, from Guam to... Anacortes. His most ardent pursuit was rowing, where he competed on a level much... larger than his own, and performed excellently. At the Academy he found his passion on the Yard Patrol Craft, fulfilling his goal of being Commodore, and then leading the Squadron further, to a years-long goal of being part of the parade backdrop. He will do amazingly in the fleet.

ALEXANDER BRANCHFIELD

USMC GROUND

Alex is one of the funniest person, especially at the fleet and dinner nights. He is well known as Seal Team Branch which was due to his passion for being Navy Seal during Plebe Year but later on, it was converted to be YUT YUT. He is a creative person as we were able to catch the mouse with his hand made mouse trap during plebe year with water bucket and ships and aircraft book. I will never forget the random texts in Urdu as he tried to learn my language. He also learned a lot about other cultures and I always enjoyed conversations with him. We will miss his jokes, creativity and his marine skills. It is pleasure to know you and live with you for four years.We are sure that he will be a great Marine and will make us proud.

JACOB DARRAH

SURFACE WARFARE

Jake is the modern Renaissance man, he plays five instruments, doesn't eat anything green, has worse FOMO than a middle school girl, and has no preference in women. It is no surprise he gets paid to donate his seed to all of the women who want their sons to be like him. He hails from the mediocre state of Georgia where he rose to the top of his game as the bad boy of tennis. But the Academy is where he truly became a man, sophomore year. Since then it has been a bountiful harvest, his farming ground mainly being Acme, the bowels of Washington DC, or the Bethesda Naval Hospital. He is the Emperor of Tinder and the Prince of Bumble. While an avid dog lover, Jake has the attention span of a goldfish and it shows in his pricey monthly impulsive habits like skydiving and spearfishing. It is no surprise he is a direct descendant of Wild Bill; he jumps out of planes, sells pianos, reclaims what belongs to the bank, and hunts fugitives on the run. Of all of the things this guy does during his busy life at any moment you can bet he will drop anything and everything if you need is help or just want to hang out. He has no qualms of going days without sleep and cooks mac-n-cheese like Rachel Ray. After buying a new pair of Whites pants Jake Darrah will be prepared to take on the real world, but the world has no idea the storm that is coming.

Dennis Devey

Surface Warfare

Those who have met Dennis could be forgiven for thinking that his numerous concussions have had a negative impact on his brain function; those who know Dennis well are positive that they have. All the same, Dennis's memory issues, general inability to concentrate and constant state of disorganization have not held him back from doing cool things with computers that only he and the NSA understand. His sartorial tastes are unmatched –literally—and largely consist of a non-rotating cast of Hawaiian shirts and the finest white Birkenstocks. Dennis came to the Academy in order to pursue his life-long dream of being a pirate, something which he seems well on his way to achieving. His enthusiasm for swords and boats (and most things) is unrivaled. Just as at the Academy, he'll make a name for himself in the fleet with his surprisingly high level of competence and ability to sit in front of a computer for hours. Stay happy and stay hydrated.

Benjamin Felhofer

USMC Pilot

Felly is a rarity hailing from what might as well be the southern parts of Canada but is commonly accepted among true Americans. With his spirit animal a mix between a jackal and one of those Costa Rican monkeys that carry around white potatoes, he has a way of just making your day better. Frequently seen trying to impersonate former white-NBA basketball legend Jason Williams, he is lovingly reminded of his more Nate Robinson-like stature anytime he challenges you to one-on-one. Reaching a peak level of manhood while shredding the surf in Tamarindo partially in the Silver Realm, he has recently been brought down with his newest purchase of a mostly-driven-by-moms Ford. It is difficult to tell if there is blood or coffee in his veins but he relaxes with overpriced craft beer after a long caffeinated week. Stud on the soccer field. Stud at life. Best man of character you can ever find. If we had more Fellys in the world, the only tears that would ever flow from anybody would be tears of joy. This is the man you want to bring home to your parents, and if you're lucky, he'll hook you up with some cheese curds.

Sam Forristall

Navy Pilot

Sam, also known as Mugsy Bogues or Young Bull, is a man of many interests. He's as happy sipping some brews with the boys (wishing he was with girls) as he is completing his 57th different Netflix series. However, a majority of his free time is either spent power-swiping or shredding some air in the wild blue yonder. An avid skydiver, Sam is an adrenaline junkie always looking for the next adventure, but is still an engineering nerd at heart and owns the world's loudest keyboard. A kind soul and thoughtful young lad, Sam is always looking for ways to help out others, which will help him succeed in his future endeavors.

Thomas Gorman

Naval Flight Officer

Tom Aloyicious Gorman is the funniest guy he's ever met, just ask him. In case you didn't know, he hails from some dumpy area outside of a below average state. When he was young, he dreamed he would grow up to be big and strong like his father, "Big Jim." Instead, he barely passes the six foot mark and has the shoulders of an adolescent girl. He has been known to "quit" dipping every couple weeks, cruise around in his Audi A5 his daddy leases for him, sleep for 24 hour periods, and occasionally throw up on dinner tables. Don't ask Tom to be your camping buddy because he doesn't quite have the mental fortitude to step within six feet of a cockroach, let alone stay in the wild for a night. However, if you mention the word golf he gets fully torqued and itches to get inside his hot collection of Callaway gear. Tom's crowning accomplishment of his four years culminates with his Intramural Volleyball Championship his final semester. Tom has been leading from the front in ruining Peacher's life a few, witty comments at a time. He's not only the funniest guy he knows, but probably the funniest guy we all know. From his fratting days at the all-inclusive SAE at Richmond to his underwhelming performance dislocating his shoulder at his first rugby scrimmage plebe year, Tom has always been there for us. We can't wait for this guy to buy us all five star dinners in 10 years because let's be real, he's the success of the group.

Rozel Hernandez

Surface Warfare

Rozel Hernandez, better known as Roz by her friends and Mia by cashiers when buying food, is always seen with a smile on her face. When she is not hitting on the run lefty forehands or jumping backhands or fearlessly leading the charge as Gen Sci Queen in her classes, she can be caught daydreaming about In-N-Out or B-Dubs nachos. She is a Cali-girl tried and true, as seen by her numerous surfer stickers and love for California Burritos. She goes above and beyond in everything she does; for example, for every step you take, she takes two. She is a role model, and someone to look up to, or should I say down. Although we're going to miss you as our fearless team captain, you've done your time here and it's time to send you back home to the beaches of San Diego, and let you live with your messy rooms in peace. Just like the lyrics of the theme song to the O.C., "California here we come!" #BeThere

Shannon Johnson

USMC Ground

Shannon Johnson...or should we say Queen Bee of Bancroft Hall. If you don't know Shannon just search for the hottest cheerleader on the football field, the best dressed girl in town, or that random girl lighting up the dance floor at ACME on your friends' MyStory. Dont let her petite stature fool you. Shannon still managed to be picked as the back-up Spirit Commander...eventually getting the starting job after a booze-cruise gone wrong. Don't make the mistake of asking how the team is though, or you'll get the earful of drama you never really asked for. Fascinating stuff. Shannon decided to go up for 4th Batt commander under the mounting fear that her younger sister's (former plebe of the semester) accomplishments would overshadow her own She proved her worth as a leader, and her shrill commands at NMF led to the creation of our favorite game "Guess Who: Shannon or a Mouse." Outside of the professional environment, Shan's favorite hobbies include hanging out in "The Boys' Room," watching the World's Worst TV shows, puking after Reg Runs and capsizing canoes. As much as we make fun of her, this devil pup is not afraid to tell you what she thinks. If she didnt choose a career in the Marine Corps, she could most definitely succeed with her own personal podcast. Shan has proven to be a Navy Cheer Survivor and a truly loyal, caring, and generous friend. The rucks might weigh more than her at TBS, but we all know that won't stop Shan from leaving her mark on the Marine Corps and everyone who's lucky enough to meet her.

Susumu Jones

Submarines

Being Jones roommate we definitely made some good memories from our rave days and jumping over the wall to sneak back onto the academy to the scuba trips with the Scuba Steves in Florida. Jones is a character to say the least, his obsession with shoving bread into his noise and making random noise at random times is something you have to get used to when being friends with Jones. Not to mention he loves to instigate situations while providing just enough background noise to get a reaction out of people. I am positive that I am will not meet another person like Jones. He is one of a kind and it seriously has been a pleasure getting to know him. The submarine community is going to gain a great officer in just a short amount of time.

Muhammad Kamran

Surface Warfare

As one of the friendliest and most easy-going people at the entire Naval Academy, you might be surprised to hear that Shahid is also one of the midshipmen most corrupted by his time at the Naval Academy. No amount of Pakistani military training could have prepared him for the rigorous academics, leadership development, and westernization that he would experience during his four years here, both in the hall, in DTA, in New York City, and wherever we decided to drag him to. Yet, as he makes his return to the other side of the world, we have the utmost confidence that he will bring with him the vast array of new foods, new culture, and new experiences that we provided him with during his time here. It's been an honor getting to know him, and we look forward to visiting!

Stephanie Lee

USMC Ground

Ms. Ye...Ms. Lee, ma'am, is one of the sweetest, most kind-hearted people you will ever meet (when's she's not hungry). She has a big smile and an even bigger heart. If you're wondering where she is, she is likely working out to the Gladiator soundtrack, singing in the shower, or deploying to Rackistan. Endeavoring always to bring a warm, positive spirit everywhere she goes, this future Tiger mom and "company crack dealer", will make sure to continue her weekly trip to McDonald's for chicken nuggets during her time in the Corps.

Ashley Luchtenberg

Surface Warfare

Luckten—Luch—Loock— Ashley is a very nice, quiet and reserved person, until you break a prop (or get to know her). A four year member of The Helen Squad, Ash has been working her fingers to the bone for every Musical and Halloween concert for the past four years. Seriously, she could build "The Wall" out of papier-mâché, by herself in like two weeks. Upon completion she will christen her creation by dancing whatever choreography she's learning that week. Not even kidding, she truly isn't capable of walking anymore, it's just dancing. All. The. Time. You've probably seen her in the Halloween Concert wearing a black morph suit or at I-Ball breaking hearts. Ash credits her survival throughout this onslaught of extra curriculars to consuming coffee and Hot Cheetos like they're going out of style. No, like seriously, it isn't safe to approach her until she has drank at least 3 cups of coffee since waking up. At least this means she's already 80% of the way to getting her SWO pin. Let's hope her division likes hyperactive musical references....

Jason Mapa

Navy Pilot

From humble beginnings as a little island boy, Jason's meteoric rise to 2 stripes has been nothing short of magical. Born with chiefly blood flowing through his veins, he was groomed for naval officership, and has turned down the Filipino Chief's Mess (mafia) in favor of the aviation ready room. Not only is he the prodigal son of the 2017 cyber operators, he also holds the distinction of club b letterwinner (but he's still waiting on the sweater). On the court, he can sing the national anthem and re-injure his lower back all in the same day. Some of his favorite activities include lamenting his (very short) lacrosse career, having long talks with his favorite barber Dave, watching videos of other people playing video games, and listening to John Mayer's new album in its entirety at least once per day. Jason spends a lot of his free time searching for parts that will actually fit on his Volvo and waiting for Olivia to get ready. Walking anywhere with Jason, you'll realize how many people know him, from the plebe who once stood MOM phones under his watch, to the King Hall staff, who make him special food and invite him to secret parties. This phenomena is explained by the fact that Jason is a genuine, caring, and likeable guy. His friends are lucky to know him and he will be the best pilot this side of Manila.

Nicholas Morris

Navy Pilot

When this proud Scottish man isn't serenading you with his bagpipes, you can find him finishing his homework in record time, going to sleep way earlier than you, and generally being better at life than you are. However, you can't possibly begrudge him because he is one of the most genuine and caring quasi-trilinguals (mediocre Chinese and Spanish) you'll ever meet. Some of his favorite activities include attempting to compliment girls, abiding by strict diets but still allowing himself to consume any type of alcohol, and never utilizing his Maryland boater's license. As a former high school track star with questionable hair (and romantic) choices, he somehow still manages to perform reasonably well at the physical mission by rarely exercising and relying on his base fitness. This stylish man often turns heads with his wardrobe, but don't be fooled! Nick Morris is a true bargain hunter as 99.9% of his clothes are from Goodwill where he prides himself on purchasing $5 pants and $2 shirts. His style has truly come a long way, after a brief catastrophe following the SDS ("Service Dress Salmon") incident his plebe year. Despite this incident, Nick has thrived at the Naval Academy, whose experience can be defined by the life-long friends he has made, the countless hours spent helping people with their homework, and the absolute hell of being the Brigade Operations Officer.

Born to be a big, domineering Marine, Jin Soo practically emerged from the womb with a blood stripe already stitched in followed by his own theme music, The Marine Corps Hymn, that progressively gets louder the more he chews out unyielding underclass. However, don't be intimidated by this unusually tall Asian, known for his grunts and mispronunciation of communicable words when directing Mids at formation. He's been known to have a soft spot for puppies and may even crack a smile now and again when thinking about food or the possibility of a long nap. You may even be surprised to know that his vocabulary extends far past the stereotypical "rah, yut, kill". His competence will blow you away and his foresight has saved many Brigade staff heads from being lopped right off.

Thomas Peacher

SEALs

Tommy Peacher or as he's known in DTA, the local vampire, can stink out a room for hours. His life ambitions include eating zero calories a day and reading every comment ever posted on Barstool Sports. You can usually find him trying to beat out Tom Gorman for best body in the brigade, or hanging out in the "lab" with his only real friends, the Honors Systems majors. Be careful because one comment about the "Sea of Trash" he lives in and he'll go full Captain Insano. If you're ever looking for someone to get blacked out in 15 minutes or have violent fits of irrational anger then he's your man. Don't get him started on Deflategate either, he will endlessly tell you about how Tom Brady is the GOAT, when in actuality he's trying to cover for Brady being the only player he can name on the entire team. All jokes aside he will give you a ride to the airport if you really need it, or just buy you a bag of Cheez-its at the vending machine... Tommy's one of the tuffest dudes we've ever seen, and his brother stands no chance in beating him out there. He's been an unbelievable roommate for four years and we will all miss this kid every day. You're going to crush the teams brother, make us proud.

Eric Perry

USMC Ground

Eric Perry, or just plain Reek, is a good 'ole Midwestern boy without the charm. He loves him some Indiana Pacers, so much so he will attempt to fight his best friends defending their honor or the honor of a certain member of the Colgate women's volleyball team. On the rare occasions that Eric over serves himself, you may find yourself in the presence of the World's Most Annoying Drunk according to the Guinness Book of World Records (or just his roommates, you didn't hear that from us though). Eric's academic standing is much more of product of his effort than any God-given intelligence, a perfect example is when he watched 45 minutes of Planet of the Apes without subtitles before realizing he had no idea what was going on and that something was wrong. If you're ever around Eric you may find yourself being pulled into a gravitational orbit by his massive booty, but he'll tell you that girls talk to him because he used to rock out in a band in high school. Eric takes pride in being a middle-class mid, but truly is an exemplary person and friend who will make a great Marin Crops officer.

Jeremiah Robbins

USMC Ground

Jeremiah is a stunning example of where determination and a good attitude can get you, despite where you start. Although he may have had a hard time getting to the Academy, once he arrived, Jer thrived. While at first impressions it would seem his skills are limited to the football field, deeper examination shows that Jeremiah's real strengths lie in curiosity of the world around him and in a selfless devotion to those close to him. He is happiest when there's a beer in his hand and engines are in the conversation, and is far wiser and far more creative than he looks. The impact he has had on those around him is profound, and he has many times shown his friends new things about themselves that would go on to change their lives for the better. Fiercely loyal, Jeremiah's only fault may be his habit of over-zealously defending those he cares for. However, he has found a place where these traits benefit him, and he will always make a fine leader wherever life may take him.

Mary Robertson

Surface Warfare EDO

If you have ever had a question in your life, any question ever, from ship design to how to talk to girls, you may want to go ask Molly Morob" Robertson. She's got the info on everyone and everything and probably knows more about you than you do. She can tell you anything you want to know at a price, normally a beer, glass of wine, or painkiller(preferably homemade), or you could just stick her in the front of a boat where she seems to love to gossip the most. As a sailing phenom she can make any boat lightning fast as is recognized by her peers but first you have to entertain her story of the day. Molly speaks the truth whether you want to hear it or not, but will be quick to remind you that she'll always be your friend. Grab a drink with Morob and all of the sudden you're on a day and night long bender ending with you jumping off the Eastport bridge in the middle of December with some pretty strange friends. A great friend and teammate, the IC sailing team is lucky Molly never jumped ship and abandoned them after seemingly endless hours of torture from their coach. Fair winds and following seas in the land of rainbows and sandy beaches. Go NADS!

Sean Steil

Cryptologic Warfare

Sean "Ron Swanson" Steil is a man from humble beginnings. Raised in the inconsequential town of Fairbank, Iowa Sean is characteristic of the mundane cornfields that occupy the entirety of the town. Accepting an invitation to attend the Naval Academy Preparatory School in Newport, Rhode Island not only marked the start of Sean's naval career but symbolized his transition beyond the obscurity of the Midwest into the real world. After graduating from NAPS Sean became a member of 16th Company at the Naval Academy where his reputation and social life can be likened to a scarecrow living in the endless corn rows of his native land. While at the Academy Sean chose to embrace his inner geek and become a Cyber Operations major. Due to his major Sean has lost approximately three years of his life from typing irrelevant computer code that will have no beneficial impact on mankind. In his spare time Sean can be found wasting more of his life away playing the imbecilic game Skyrim or watching peculiar cat videos on the internet. Sean's physical talents can best be described as tentative and uncoordinated. He specialized as a utility player for company intramurals where he made no impact beyond serving as a shield in dodgeball to absorb the impact of flying objects for his teammates. Upon commissioning Sean will serve as a Cryptologic Warfare Officer in Hawaii where he will continue to squander his youthfulness in front of a computer screen. If one so wishes to communicate with Sean after graduation it shall be easy to find him. He is most likely sitting in a corn field attempting to write code to enhance the production of corn.

Kaden Steingruber

Navy Pilot

Steingruber. German for 'mover of rocks'. Kaden is a man whose head is as hard as his biceps, which are just as hard as the rocks his ancestors used to move. Hailing from the fertile lands of Boise, Idaho, he spent his formative years honing his skills in combat. Physically, he trained under the disciplines of wrestling and various other martial sports. Mentally, he trained his combat skills by arguing all the god damn time. He has won arguments, while being wrong, just by arguing until all opposing parties were exhausted. He came to the Academy to put his combat skills to use in the defense of lady liberty, a leader even among his siblings, who all followed his footsteps and joined the Navy. He is a rare breed of midshipman- a 2 percenter, a Scuba Steve, an aviator who originally wanted submarines, and a wrestler turned rugby player. Naval aviation is lucky to have him; he will surely make 16th company, the Naval Academy, and Idaho proud.

Robert Stephenson

USMC Pilot

Early in his Naval Academy career, Robbie lost himself in the bottom of a slightly crushed, two day old opened can of Pabst Blue Ribbon.Robbie continues to search for his dignity at the bottom of every beer he can get his hands on, and he has rightfully claimed the titles: ROUS King, South Carolina Trash Rat, and The Man who Beat Boggs. Legend has it Robbie was conceived at a Skynrd concert to the chorus of "Simple Man." But don't let this mans simple exterior fool you, underneath his wardrobe full of skin colored and mossy oak clothing is a true professional. On the yard he can be found instilling the fear of God in plebes with his deep southern accent that carries the sweet sweet tune of Dixie along with it. Sober or drunk, Robbie is one of the most loyal friends you can have. Keep doing great things and we can't wait to see you in the Fleet. Enjoy A Fine Day, Degenerate.

Gus is a truly unique individual. Fueled by a combination of caffeine, hatred, and Rock N Roll, he would rather spend his days curled up with a nice string of code than interact with people; computers are the perfect beings after all. An avid gamer and a good shot, Gus also won't hesitate to make well-aimed, friendly jokes at the soft points in your psyche. Stubborn as a tree, Gus is impossible to argue with but also undeniably reliable. Never one for extraneous conversation, he prefers to sit in silence while you're right and pile on the knowledge when you're in need of correction. Although Gus can seem aggressive in conversation, just offer a beer or a chocolate bar and he'll calm right down. Don't ever confuse his logic for emotion, but also never forget that if he tolerates you, you're better off than the rest of the population. A good leader and a great friend, Gus Uecker will go far.

Madison Vachris

Surface Warfare Nuke

Maddie "Maddog" Vachris is a force to be reckoned with -- especially when she's hangry. She knows every word to every Disney song, can make even the Superintendent cry with how deeply committed she is to her team, will destroy anything trying to attack her people, dances aggressively to any song, and can run from practice to King Hall to a brief in Alumni in about two minutes (like during her famous mustard run of Sea Trials 2014). Her hair may be as blonde as Queen Elsa's but don't be fooled. Disguised behind those Frozen sunglasses she's got the mouth of a sailor and a brain that runs on negative hours of sleep each night plus a minimum of 3 workouts a day completed at the boathouse, her room, or the squash courts in the wee hours of the morning. And that's on top of being Dr. Phil for her entire team, company, and roommates in the Orion P. Howe room. When not fueled by hatefire, Maddie is one of the kindest and most caring people to ever have graced the Naval Academy Yard, and absolutely radiates the most beautiful soul that you'll encounter on a daily basis. No matter what Maddog comes across, she'll run towards it head first with a huge smile on her face and a never-surrender mentality that can't be missed. To know Maddie Vachris is to love her, and the Class of 2017 is lucky to count her as one of our own.

Jordan Wilhelm-Wenzel

Surface Warfare CW

Those who know him know him by many names: Wenzel, The Wenzel, Wilhelm, Kaiser, Wilhelm-Wenzel, or whatever Staff Sergeant tries to say when she reads his name off, but never Jordan. Plebe year none of us believed in his girlfriend's existence, and even now, many of us remain in shock that she is his fiancee. He transitioned from the crew team to the cyber crew without looking back. He's happiest at 3 AM of an all-nighter with four screens glowing back at him and music blasting from his headphones. Wilhelm is off to Japan to drive ships for the next few years, but we'll be seeing him back at the Fort in no time.

Sonya Ye

Medical Corps

Hailing from the PNW, and way too proud of it, Sonya brings light into everybody's life. With the strength of a coursing river, she earned a coveted med corps billet, which has given her the opportunity to attend little med school known as Harvard, though everyone knows Johns Hopkins is better. With all the force of a great typhoon, she uses her excessive knowledge of biology to educate her roommate on random facts. With all the strength of a raging fire, she managed to clean and jerk 45lbs, just shy of her weight class's world record of 304. In case you have forgotten already, she got med corps. Though her list of accomplishments is long and impressive, her greatest achievement is being one of the best friends anybody could ask for. When she rejoins us in the fleet, we can be confident in her ability to save lives by using WebMD. 16th company has been lucky to have Sonya around for the past four years and the Navy is even more lucky to have her saving lives for the next (however many years a doctor ends up owing) years.

Daniel Ziebell

Surface Warfare Nuke

Torn from his cozy, picturesque home of Milford, Connecticut and tossed into the daily turmoil of midshipman life Daniel Wolfgang Ziebell wasted no time revealing his true colors to the members of 16th company. During plebe year Dan started down a path to success by joining the Sprint Football team After valiantly serving one year on the team, and putting a check mark in the physical box of Naval Academy mission, he made the smart choice to shift his focus to the academic mission by majoring in the rigorous field of Political Science. Dan was so devoted to his studies that he found ways to supplement his academic studies with countless hours of Netflix, practically earning both his J.D. and M.D. through the binging of Law & Order and Grey's Anatomy Like so many other mids before him, Dan suffered a rough night at the infamous second level of Dillo's, where he earned himself a coveted spot as a member of the Black N Society. He subsequently spent the Dark Ages locked in the belly of Mother B, and reemerged as a hard charging Training Officer. His lonely Netflix dates soon turned into organized meetings where Dan was forced to implement a strategy to take charge of the truly unruly class of 2020. After his formal midshipmen retirement ceremony Dan will make his way to Everett, Washington, a journey which will certainly take him through the great state of Iowa, where he will begin his first tour onboard USS Momsen. Luckily for the Navy, ships' internet do not often support Netflix, there is no Armadillo's in Washington, and most sailors will not tolerate the sort of asinine treatment Dan showed his plebes as Train-O.

Joe Alvarez

Surface Warfare

Joe "Go Spurs Go" Alvarez started his Naval career at the Naval Academy Preparatory School in Rhode Island, where he proudly served as the star outfielder for the baseball team. Upon arrival to the Naval Academy, he moved hard and fast to drop organized-sports and join the NARP life. In between frequent naps, Joe can be found playing basketball, watching freestyle rap videos on YouTube, reminiscing of the days that he was 17th Company Commander, or getting blitzed in DTA with A$AP. Whether it's 6th Street, the Riverwalk, or downtown Annapolis, Joe is the king of the dance floor. However the only thing more predictable than his dance-moves is his choice of clothes: basketball shorts, Nike crew socks, and his Fezzy's. Honestly, if there was an award for underdressing, you can bet that Joe would win it. After graduation, Joe will be taking his dance-moves to Yokosuka, Japan aboard the USS Shiloh. The crew of the Shiloh is lucky to have such a dedicated leader, who will surely serve with character and distinction.

Ashimsanjeet Bajwa

Submarines

Hailing from the mean streets of Naperville IL, Baj decided to forgo the Subway for an actual submarine. Earning the title Jawab while dropping it low out in DTA, he made sure to steer clear of the crocodiles, I mean ducks. But if you can trust anyone with a reactor, it's probably this guy. His resistance to Cabin Fever is impressive, even when imprisoned with two people who aren't quite as clean as him (see 02.06). A fearless slayer of minions and champs alike, Turban Myth is the jungle you want tilting and clicking at your side. Semper deep Gold V, semper deep.

Andrew Benn

USMC Ground

A late addition to 17th Company, the one they call Andrew Benn can often be found ordering the legions of Rome into battle from the comfort of his leather throne. A native of "not Detroit or Flint" Michigan, this Renaissance man is a great guy, capable of talking to anyone about anything, except sports. On the weekends, he is either out with that "Decent?" girl, or is out with the 17th Company crew. As a cyber-operator he often stays up into the dark hours of the night coding, while enjoying a ginger ale to keep from launching his computer out the window. After graduation, this guy has chosen to become a United States Marine.

Mitch Bond is a good-natured and loyal guy, as well as a former fat kid. If he asks you to hold the wheel while he is driving, don't do it. He lives for rowing, Snapchat (during every waking hour), and 10-hour drives from San Diego to Vegas in a rental car. He'll make a great Devil Dog through his grit and bad haircuts, but doesn't even pack lips so it cancels out to mediocrity. I've spent the last four years of my life making poor decisions with this pocket monster, and it simultaneously saddens and gladdens me to see him step off into his glorious destiny of working parties and liberty hazards. I'd give the floor from under my feet for this guy, and I know his Marines will feel the same way. 'Rah dude, bring back Fat Mitch.

Next in line from the Ferguson family to carry the torch of distinguished service to our great nation, John "White Chocolate" Ferguson and his Air Max 92's have certainly left a footprint larger than a size 15 on the hallowed grounds of Annapolis over the last four years. Relentlessly pursuing a valuable education in the liberal art that is Economics, Mr. Ferguson's performance is that of a man who truly embodies the highest degree of B.S. Believe it or not, John still found time to have a couple Coronas. Whether it be harmonizing with Andre 3000 from the dance floors of DTA, getting rat-faced in the parking lot at a (Women's) lacrosse game, or ghost-riding from Rex's to Cunna's, the almost State Champ from the North side of Dallas, but the South side of Denton always managed to find the right balance of business and pleasure. Nobly volunteering himself for Delta Company, the most immediate training opportunity offered by the Corps, 2nd Lt. Ferguson will thrive at The Basic School because of the same generational mantra that led him to his great successes in his earliest days in Newport: "Don't Sweat the Small Stuff."

Joseph Gentile

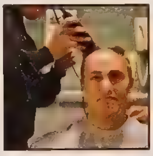
Submarines

The name is Joey Gentile (pronounced JEN-TILL-AYY). He was tired of hanging out with all of his cousins in the hills of West Virginia so he decided to do something else. He read in one of his 5289 comic books that by hanging around a nuclear reactor he could turn into a superhero, like Dr. Manhattan. So naturally, he had to come to USNA to be a Submariner. You can often times find him posing in his poopy suit in front of the mirror. He has his own multimeter and soldering iron and is very fond of his typewriter from one or two centuries ago. He grinds coffee like mids grind on civilians in Acme. He enjoys staying up to the brilliant hour of 8pm and waking up as early as 6:45am. All this sleep is necessary to process the gazigabytes of random information that he keeps in his brain. You may think he is 75 based on his taste in music, movies and style but the ladies know otherwise. Don't get too close or he'll propose to you like he did to his cousin Maddy "Crawdaddy" Crawford. But don't get too far or you won't hear his horribly timed dad jokes.

Christy Green

Navy Pilot

When Christy isn't staring intensely at her computer screen trying to write code or taking a quick power nap on her desk, she's out in the hallway making new friends (trust me, you can hear her). Christy's natural warmth and openness made her a fantastic Navy cheerleader (Retired) and makes her an even better friend. Normally having no filter would be a turn-off, but Christy can't contain her refreshingly genuine insights. Christy's rare authenticity is a breath of fresh air in a place that tends to breed competition and the masking of vulnerabilities. It's impossible not to fall along with her infectious laughter and you can always find yourself in a better mood after a conversation with her. It's worth it to train your ears to keep up with how fast she talks. Christy will no doubt bring her almost unparallelework ethic and authentic leadership to the Naval Aviation community,where she will certainly find a way to bring laughter and cheer to the cockpit.



Nicholas Halbach

USMC Pilot

This blonde-haired, blue-eyed lad was recruited from Texas to run cross country for Navy. At the end of plebe year, he decided that the two pounds per inch life wasn't for him, retired from cross country, and made going to the gym his new hobby. Over time, not only were his clothes too small for him, but other people began to notice his sports magazine-worthy body and charming personality, including the in-company, blonde-haired, blue-eyed Summer Ralston. By second semester firstie year, if you couldn't find him, you could be sure he was with Summer, either camping, tearing up DTA, or passing out from croquet festivities. Even though this physical stud is going to be a devil dog, he's a true softie. He can't say no, and gives a listening ear to anyone's complaints, no matter how stupid they may seem. Whether it's maxing the PRT or PFT, or avoiding love chitting to another company, Nick can accomplish whatever he puts his mind to. He's a good guy, a better friend, and the Corps is lucky to have him.

Sierra Knoch can best be best described as an oracle. She knows anything and everything about anything and everything. If she wanted to crush those joes' dreams of being a striper she just has to snap her fingers. If she wanted to fry someone for existing she just has to wiggle her nose (which of course is brown). She could ruin your life with an iPhone and a pencil and steal yo man with a hair flip. Don't let her sweet smile, fire red hair, tiny waist, and deep blue eyes fool you. Her soul thrives on fake people that didn't call her a female dog "this time" and scandalous gossip that could cripple the Hulk. In short Sierra is like a diamond. Valuable, very much sought after and fun to look at and yet she could cut right through you like butter cuz she's real and been through some shit.

I have never known a serial monogamist who was so much fun to throw down with, nor have I ever encountered a brother who vibed as hard with Def Leppard and Empire of the Sun as I do. Truly—our friendship is a bond forged in the fires of Asgard. Thocdogg has spent a life hanging ten off the silver strand and crushing—yes—crushing burritos at Don Panchos'. The call of a warrior life brought him to Maryland, where crabcakes and football reign, and the weather is s, but through our commitment to our Scottish heritage and love of things like book, we established the group that would span the continent, wreck countless downtowns in two countries, and conduct at least one successful amphibious boarding and party crashing in American coastal waters. The man excels not only as a wordsmith, but as a bard of the bars, a collector of all the stories, and even "an ambassador of the human peoples" [rips American Spirit] When he's not Shazam-ing tunes or putting away Moscow Mules. Thocdogg enjoys cartwheels, lime juice, guacamole, and calling Julia. When he's not doing these things, he's simultaneously attracting hordes of women and being quite offended when the throngs of fair maidens can hardly contain their disappointment at his being spoken for. (Ya did well, Julia)

In DTA this lady-killer's favorite pastimes include: being the life of the party, meeting new people, dancing, and using his southern charm to sweet talk all the ladies. After graduation, Trev will be heading down to Charleston, South Carolina to continue the legacy that his father began as a submariner. Years later, we will all sleep soundly at night knowing that America's nuclear deterrent is stewarded by such a stoic leader.

While he is not a complicated man his simplicity should not be mistaken for ineptitude. Besides being the best wardroom officer 17th Company has ever seen, he is an avid reader, deep philosopher, and Netflix connoisseur. In incredible feats of strength, he has survived PRK and has also qualified all four years for Powerlifting Nationals. Such success has come with the unfortunate side effect of loathing running and all other forms of cardio. Nonetheless, this guy is going places, because his personality and career choice indicate he is destined for space. Vince, shoot for the Moon!

However, over his four years at the academy he has overcome this backwoods upbringing. He mastered the meme game early on in plebe year. He's gone from his plebe year self, in which he hit on girls who were a bit too young, to a man with a beautiful Brazilian fiancé. He has defied twisted death and become intimately familiar with three Spanish words: no mas cervezas. He's begun to travel the world and is preparing for his future adventures playing in the dirt with the Corps. Caleb has a bright future full of formations and uniform inspections, his favorite! We wish him luck with whatever route he decides to take in the Corps and know that he will experience great success.

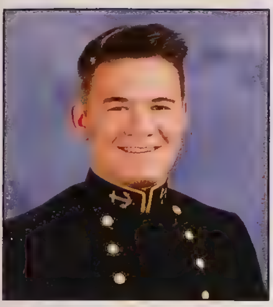
From aqua rock to aqua man, Victor Truong is one who knows how to "GRIND!" This Judo master overcame challenges such as losing in FIFA on a low-quality gaming system, finishing a capstone project, listening to sensei rants, and having his candles stolen. Even though he's lactose intolerant, he didn't let that get in the way of filling the fridge with plain yogurt and other food to share with the room. When he was audited, he was able to tell the IRS they owed him money, and when he was SARBed, he was able to prove to the submarine community that he deserved to go to dive school. Victor's passion for life and others may sometimes cause him heartache, but it is that same passion that leads to his greatest achievements. You can bet your whole nuke bonus and 2/C loan that this Sriracha-loving, shirtless-gloving, iron-pumping Asian is going to take on whatever you throw at him... as soon as he watches just one more episode of The Office.

Adam West

USMC Ground

Adam West will long be remembered as the meat head and scholar that he is. His days in Annapolis consisted primarily of his contemplation of both economic and philosophical theory, with the occasional trip out on the town for an adult beverage, or two. He is widely considered to be the best center to ever come through the Naval Academy Prep School. To this day, NAPS fans around the country will tell you that he was robbed out of the Heisman Trophy. However, all great careers must come to an end. Following his football days, he became a weekly columnist/model for the South Beach Diet. He gained an impressive following across the nation after he hung up the high top cleats and lost 60 pounds in just under 4 months. In addition to his inspiring physical accomplishments, he has made contributions in the academic realm that could potentially be revered for generations. His research in macroeconomic theory gained recognition from respected economists across the globe, who subsequently referred to Adam as "the Keynes of our generation." His contributions have earned him a spot in the top 90% of the class of 2017. In short, Adam has left his mark on the greater Annapolis area, and we are all better for it



Alexander Williams

Cryptologic Warfare

Known for switching his ethnicity whenever it was most convenient. Nearly incapable of social drinking, Alex "Call Me Beijing" Williams' favorite drink, Captain Morgan and Sprite, is a fixture of his libation repertoire. He was once motivated to do things, but now would rather lift, nap, and drink beer every weekend. Thinks he dresses better than his entire friend group, yet no one wonders why. During the week, in the 30 seconds he actually spends at school, Turban Khan can be found napping, admiring himself in the mirror, trying to be non-commissionable in the gym, or fighting for glory in the Rift. We wish him the best of luck in the true League of Legends, the United States Marines.

Grant Young

Submarines

The self proclaimed homework messiah, Grant Kapono Young, or GKY as his boys call him, values all that life has to offer. From his HOKA platform shoes to a nice button down shirt, you can ensure Grant is dressed for success every time he ventures into DTA for a Jimmy John's sandwich. The native Hawaiian islander has a thirst for knowledge and strength that makes dried fruit look well-hydrated. Constantly educating himself through YouTube, Grant also ensures his roommates are up to date on that knowledge whether they want to be or not. Grant is constantly doing pull-ups in MacD, then coming back to the room to crank out a few more on the shower bar. He likes to keep life real by guaranteeing that not everyone is able to enjoy Thanksgiving, because not all things in life are free. On a serious note, you won't find a more willing and able Submariner than Grant. He will make a positive impact wherever he decides to go in life and everyone will be grateful to have him. "Hit the lights, boys, it's bed-time!"

Nina Yu

Surface Warfare

Where's Nina right now? Probably watching Mulan. Or Parks and Rec. Again. If you ever have any questions about anything that has ever been captured on film, she's your gal. However, when she's not channeling her inner April Ludgate, she's actually a pretty outgoing person. Unless she hasnt had her daily liter of coffee, then she'll bite your head off. She'll show up at the door of your room 30 minutes early so she can ask if you want to walk to a brief that's a 5 minute walk away. She has become so conditioned to the phrase, "WHAT DO YOU WANT NINA?!" that it no longer registers as English in her mind. Really it's just amazing that this doesn't happen more often. Her English is surprisingly good considering she's actually a Chinese spy. Her whole mission here has been to gather intelligence about the Naval Academy, which is probably how she picked her roommate. Although she only held the title of Chairwoman Yu for a brief amount of time, her reign was glorious and oppressive. After she was deposed and lost all of her power, she settled for incessant nagging as a method to get what she needed. Despite this she has acquired a spectacular group of friends who put up with her on a daily basis. However, this isn't hard as Nina is one of the most devoted friends you could ask for. She always has time for those around her and will make sure that you are taken care of before she even begins to think about herself. She might even delay her homework, if you're lucky! She's incredibly smart and will be the model of an exemplary Naval Officer no matter where the Navy drops her. She's gonna kill it in Japan, and she better be ready to host some visitors. Thanks for being you, Nina, cause we couldn't ask for a better friend.

McKenzie Bailey

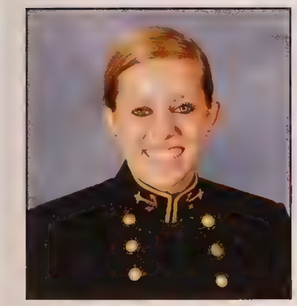
USMC Ground

When she's not throwing weights around with SSgt in the gym, she's actually throwing back margs at Chevy's or allocating hundreds and hundreds of (Dad's) dollars towards new Nikes that she doesn't need or a shade of eye shadow she already has. How many Naked palettes is too many? She doesn't know. No really, she has a suitcase for her makeup and a separate one for hair gel. She is sure to be a great 2nd Lt because of her sparkling personality (literally) and slicked back hair, right? You might recall her volleyball career mainly because of how she rocked the spandex shorts, so it comes as no surprise that when she left the team she went to the only other tight-uniformed-team on the Yard. She has an eye for relationships she cant have, be it an unforgivable romance day one plebe year, the same romance the year later, or the same romance 2 years later. Though her love life has taken her through some rough patches, she's always had the unconditional support of her credit card to fall back on...shout out to Papa Bailey. She's the master of coercion so be careful or you could be ripping shots of tequila before you know it. She might have a shopping addiction and bad taste in men, but she is the most loyal and caring friend a person could ask for.

Maxwell Bevill

Navy Pilot

Max Bevill, or @baxmevill, as you might know him from Instagram, is one heck of a talented guy. His skills range from membership in 'The Skivs' to colossal camera-nerdom. On I-day Max was reported to have read the mission of the Naval Academy as "To develop midshipmen spiritually, vocally, and artistically..." Max spends most of his time in one of three places at the academy: Glee Club practice, BCM, or in his room figuring out what camera he should get next. Despite his many commitments, Max is somehow always around when you need him. He is everyone's big brother and can help you out in just about any situation (so long as no equation sheets are involved). Throughout his time at the Academy, Max has managed to procrastinate on every paper he has ever been assigned. 6 pages due in 3 periods? Done. Max even waited until 11:56 to decide his service assignment preferences and finished the submission by 11:59. It doesn't matter how insurmountable the task is, Max will get it done. He is going to succeed wherever he goes in his career.



Alana Brady

Navy Pilot

She is the closest thing to Texas Royalty, and perfect "wifey material" that you can find at the Naval Academy. Pink and sparkly is the name of the game with Alana, but don't be fooled, she will kick your butt if she needs to. When she doesn't have the boys swooning over her, she's busy beating all the boys on the PRT and building houses for the poor. You will find her raging on the weekends at Barnes and Noble or shopping at any place that offers cute Pinterest outfits. She's the master of all trades, keeping her nerdy side on the down low unless you catch her in her large framed nerd glasses. Or if you're lucky, you will catch a glimpse of her in her sexy teacher glasses instead. She spends her free time tutoring all the boys who claim they all "need her help"...sure they do. If you're feeling the need to be a bit healthier, come to her for all the hipster, gluten-free tricks, she's got your back.

Jack Brodowicz

SEALs

Jackie Legs, WolfPack Jack, the guy that has played every varsity sport at the academy... A modern day mix between Pablo Sanchez and the Old Spice swagger model. Jack is the type of person that can be thrown into any clique and become their best friend and leader within the hour. Girls swoon at him, guys want to be him. When Jack was not busy crushing NARPs in every intramural sport there is, Jack was studiously earning two degrees, his own and Ted's. His loyalty to his friends and family is beyond reproach and he is the type of man you want your daughter to date; not because he is such a good dude and has superior genes, but because as soon as she gets too close to him, he will toss her the best Heisman stiff arm you have ever seen. Try your luck ladies, there isn't a Siren Song out there that can distract this future operator from achieving his destiny. Any enlisted will be lucky to have him as an O. Good luck brother.

Prachum Chanman

-"Get Rich or Die Trying." Gazz Chanman came to the United States with two goals: to date a beautiful blonde woman and make a whole lotta money. Neither of his goals have been realized, but what he has done is make friendships that will last a lifetime. Despite spending four years at USNA Gazz still claims he doesn't know English, a statement often made after a particularly wicked burn. All jokes aside, Gazz is a selfless dependable individual who will cancel all weekend plans of talking to his girlfriend of five years to take your duty. Chanman will be returning to Thailand to become a Company Officer at their Naval Academy and start his future multi-billion dollar business "To get Rich". One day, he will become the King of Thailand and be feared by anyone who has ever looked down on him He won't be sweating the small stuff, farewell until next time brother

Daniel Chmura

SEALs

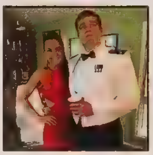
When Danny P. Chmores is not in the gym getting a good chest pump in or fixing his flow in the mirror, he can be found procrastinating on his computer watching Bill O'Reilly news videos, pouring over World Star street fights, and watching his guilty pleasure: Pixar animated movies. Although he can be blunt at times, his closest friends know he is a real softy at heart which can be displayed by his numerous hand drawn Hallmark-esk cards he sends to his high school sweetheart. Be this as it may, he is no doubt one tough S.O.B. In fact, this hardo tried to walk off a bout of appendicitis when his own body tried to kill him last year. He gives a new meaning to the phrase "what doesn't kill you makes you stronger." In all, Dan is one of the good ol' boys who will surely be a great officer and operator--as long as his off-color comments don't get him kicked out of the Navy. Best of luck Dan.

Ted Colburn

USMC Ground

Ted's life can be described in one word: helmet. Helmet- "an individual who is in need of a helmet, for their mental capacity is so small that thoughts floating around can hurt their head, causing their brow to furrow. a slight tilting of the head is also common." -Urban Dictionary

if you want to really know Ted all you need to do is open a coloring book, because he really is not that complex. Whether it's botching a date with Ms. Alabama in high school, or not knowing how to use an ATM until youngster year, Ted is full of soft shell surprises. Ted really didn't have much of a dating life until he turned 21 and then well.. liquid courage really helped the kid out. People ask how he got a 4.0 in high school but cruised at a 2.0 throughout his academy career... The answer is what Ted likes to call stingers on the football field. Though Ted has lost many brain cells from not having any regard for his body in sports, he has come a long way since I-Day. Yut Rut Attend- Hut.



Gabriel Collins

Surface Warfare

Boys, boys! If you hear this beckoning from down the P-way, then you are probably 15 minutes late to something, and Gabe is FINALLY dressed. Of course, it is a rare sighting to see the bear out of the cave, for every season is hibernation season. Should you be lucky to find him wandering the halls of Bancroft, he is probably returning from a long night of "studying" with one of the many women in his life. Don't get the wrong idea for he is most comfortable around a woman when she's telling him what to do. Or if he's lounging unclothed in his USNA robe, of course. If you need him for anything, enter the Gabe cave at own risk! Watch your step as the cave has several obstructions preventing safe passage. A patron of all things obscure and unnecessary, if you dare to open his closet it will be bursting with the discarded and unwanted items formerly belonging to Alumni long since graduated. If rudely awoken, tickle Gabe as viciously as possible. Always living on the edge, Gabe is proud of his most notable accomplishment of only having been separated from the Academy once, and subsequently being re-admitted by his PE board. Gabe is an easy-going, kind-hearted individual, who holds family and faith close to heart. To demonstrate his devotion to his faith, he is often heard shouting: "To Hell With the Devil!"

Brian Daughtry

Morgan De Jong

Submarines

Morgan DeJong (it's pronounced DEE-YOUNG), or the eternally-hungry, bespectacled midshipman that we all met in June of '13, is still trying to find a pair of pants that fits his calves. When not studying the physics of subatomic particles, or eating again, Morgan is on the quest to find and master the most obscure hobbies. Take, for example, that time he crafted a full-size hammock and a functioning bull whip out of paracord. Or the time that he just decided casually, the week of the race, to run a Half-Ironman. Morgan initially took to the Academy like a duck to water, but found that swimming was not the only thing he wanted to do. After retiring from varsity athletics, he courageously led 18th Company as XO, but more importantly he coached the greatest and most dedicated volleyball team that the Yarddogs have ever fielded. EVER. A straight-talker by nature, Morgan is truthfully one of the most dependable and honest people around. He'll tell you what he's thinking, and it would behoove you to listen! Though he may not believe in God, Morgan had a miraculous meeting in 2/C Leadership, and decided to put a ring on a lovely lady from 9th Company. Succumbing to years of positively spun sea stories and cool science talks, he decided to join the Corps. THE REACTOR CORPS. The Submarine community will be lucky to have a man as dedicated to this country and to the work in front of him among them.

Nicholas Deterding

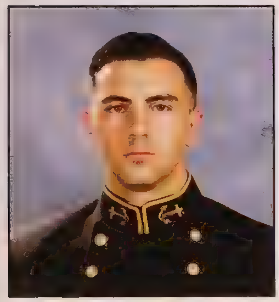
SEALs

Nick is known for his athletic prowess and leadership on the sprint football field and his not so subtle way of skipping mandatory formations and events. Although he officially majored in systems engineering at the Academy, his degree might as well have been hitting on the trainers in Wes-B during his daily regimen of stretching and massages. Over the course of his four years by the bay, this young strapping boy from no one knows, Kansas, obtained a special knack for attracting girls with his chiseled chin, which was only matched by his undeniable ability to scare those same girls off. Megan, Jess, Karie, Molly and Cassy are just a few on the endless list of potential wives for this helpless romantic. Nick is currently auditioning for the Bachelor season 22 in hopes of finding the future Mrs. Deterding. Good luck in Cali brother.

Daniel Fohey

Navy Pilot

Known as a real shooter throughout his time at boat school, Daniel hopes to reach for the stars down in P Cola. Hailing from the heart of Dairy Country, not much satisfies this man more than a good Leiny and a Brick of Cheddar; or a greasy late night at Buddy's; or a good Tinderella now that I come to think of it, and when it comes to the ladies, that's where Daniel's always shined. Whether it's dumping them after a day of mini golf in Ocean City or breaking hearts at the bars, he sure knows how to make it with the fairer sex. Having been put in the extremely coveted position of Reg Honor, he officially proved that, yes, you can have more stripes than friends. But, to those few that were lucky enough to have called him a friend, he was second to none...as long as you caught him before the clock struck 2300. We wish nothing but the best for this Cheese Head, and we'll all be watching as you climb the ranks of the brass.



Anthony Gallozzi

USMC Ground

No one really knows the origins of this salty seaman. Did he drop out of the Merchant Marine Academy? Was he once an enlisted Man? No one truly knows and I doubt they ever will. Whatever long, convoluted journey Anthony took to getting here, he spent no time getting acclimated and becoming the saltiest dog on the yard. He outwardly expressed this cynicism by making sure he was always early and in the proper uniform to all events. Anthony used to be a pretty fun guy to drink away the woes of 3rd and 2nd class year, but we all felt a shift going into Firstie Year (thanks Hannah-Kate). I guess he just found something better than drinking with us in DTA. As you pack up all your Camis and EGAs headed down to Quantico, just know you've got a whole company cheering you on every step of the way. Fair Winds and Following Seas Grandpa, Rise.

Dylan Globerman

USMC Ground

Uncommonly known as the most interesting mid in the world, Dylan's hallmark is his mysterious cash flow that he pours into his top of the line Mustang. This, along with his habit of draining his wiper fluid reservoir before a big race keeps his quarter mile time at a blistering 22.4 seconds. Be sure to avoid mentioning this in person, or he may just bring up your dead grandma or spray you in the face with a dangerous chemical. These 'roid rage esque episodes demonstrate his natural inclination towards USNA's favorite orange fanatics. His time on the bodybuilding team was marked by daily spray tans, clogging the shower with his body hair, and causing his roommates to seek refuge from his chemical weapon grade protein induced farts. At least we can all find solace in the fact that it ended while doing what he loves most. All joking aside, Dylan is a truly great friend who never hesitates to drop what he's doing to help anyone in need. We've all enjoyed spending the last 4 years with you and can't wait to see where you go from here.

Andrew Grant

Navy Pilot

Historian, Philosopher, Pilot. Hailing from South Carolina Andrew grew up to become a fine Southern gentleman...So long as you don't give him more than two beers. Grant has spent his last few years skydiving, perfecting the art of bagpiping (they bring the girls to the yard), and trying to develop a taste for whiskey. Following his Aviation career, AJ plans to peacefully retire on his own farm in Ireland, tend to his sheep, and join the clergy. Always up for something spontaneous, you can either find Andrew on 5th Deck, passed out in a snow bank, or somewhere in Canada. A Tiger at heart, Andrew is a man that never fails to show us what true passion is, and never balks from a challenge.

Micah Gustafson

Submarines

Gus is a southern redneck hipster. He is the only man alive who is able to play dueling banjo while chugging a beer you've never heard of. His loves in his life include his fiancé, one of 3 Geo's ever made, breweries, and his job as adjutant. He isn't afraid to ask the hard hitting questions such as "what is the meaning of life?" and "Can you get this garbage off the mate's desk?" If he's not in his room, he's on a run. He'll be back in 1-6 hours. Narrowly avoiding the SARB, Gus early selected Submarines quoting "The peace and quiet away from my roommates is a blessing." Gus has been a shining, N-star sweater, starting, JV squash member for 4 years. Although he's older than most SEL's, Gus continues to be a great friend and person to everyone he comes in contact with.

Jacob Hastings

Adam Johnson

USMC Pilot

Welp, we've gotta be honest, we didn't expect you'd make it as far as you did. Let's take this year by year. To say that you were the comeback kid is the understatement of a lifetime. Historically known as the 'kid with a GPA less than 1" and the "kid who could have not shown up to the Chem final and received a better grade" has never failed to impress anyone. What was better than this? Your sophomore year... although you wouldn't remember considering you spent half of your classes sleeping in your room high with your good friend percocet. Junior year was about the same but instead of percocet it was the famous SIR excuse. However, Firstie year you turned it all around and became the hardest company training officer in the brigade while still missing almost every mandatory event. You're definitely proven and ready for the Marine Corps but let's hope it's ready for you. On a real note, you may have changed a lot in your 4 years here, but we've always loved every Adam we've ever known. Love you brother and best of luck.

Ashanti Kennedy

Surface Warfare

Ashanti is a silent beast in all areas of her Academy career. Her strong work ethic boasts an amazing performance out on the basketball courts. She may keep to herself in the hallways, but her heart does not. She shows her love for the Lord through creative raps. Her heart is always ready to give an answer full of God's mercy to someone who is struggling, wherever it may be Ashanti is the hardest worker I know, but I don't struggle to realize why—she does everything to the glory of Him who provided her with these amazing gifts! After 4 years at the Academy and 1 year setting basketball records at NAPS, she is headed to show everyone on her LCS in Mayport, FL what it means to work hard and love the Lord. 2 Corinthians 12:9- "But He said to me, 'My grace is sufficient for you, for my power is made perfect in weakness.' Therefore I will boast all the more gladly about my weaknesses, so that Christ's power may rest on me."

Michael Kenyon

USMC Pilot

Out of the red corner we have Jimmy "No Breaks" Kenyon towering at a staggering 6ft 4, dressed to impress in his J Crew and Patagonia garb, like always regardless if he's headed to the river for some fly fishing or to his favorite nightlife spots to dance his troubles away. Hailing from the Lobster strewn waters of Maine, this man is out to prove the world that he is as tough as they come. To prove it, he will probably ask to ground fight (although a prerequisite is that you must be smaller than him). Even if you don't care to engage in his taunt, he will probably make a move anyways to prove his prowess. Fear not, for he is truly soft at heart and fiercely loyal to his friends. If you're lucky enough to count him as a friend, you'll have someone who will be there for you on the best and worst of days. As he heads down to Quantico and later Pensacola, we have no doubt he'll bring his compassion and dedication along with his extensive collection of J Crew shirts. Good luck Jimmy, the last four years wouldn't have been the same without ya.
Rise.

Michael Koppel

Surface Warfare CW

The Yard Dog Commander, more commonly known as the Cyber Warrior, has done it all. From leading a helpless group of cyber misfits up a cryptologic K2 to snowboarding the hobacks of Jackson Hole . Mike "Papito" Koppel's talents know no limits. A real Stein if there ever was one, if you ask him, this year will always be the Jags' year. Aside from his bad habit of disappearing in the middle of the night without a word, the faint glow of the tail lights of his Tiburon in the distance being the only sign that he was ever here, Papito has the heart and strength of a lion and the mind of Jordan Belfort. Chosen for CW, he is gonna be the best Navy Nerd this country has ever seen. Just don't bother inviting him for a weekend trip to George Washington University for the next 18 months. Good luck brother.

Alan Lee

Navy Pilot

Alan? Who's Alan? Oh....right, OG Lee, my bad. Don't let this numba one mixtapin' Asian fool you into thinking he drops beats and moves for a living, he is just another resident of Mother B. His wardrobe is the freshest thing since filtered water; it's as if you got punched with preppy in the right hand and all business in the left. He takes his style seriously. What does he also take seriously? Leadership. He holds his people and MIDREGS close to his heart. So close, he decided to lead by example and join all the plebes in daily tours for about 45 days. It was a true act of love. While this charismatic student isn't learning about political interactions and reading every book there is, he praising the Lord and petting puppies. But really, if you need a puppy fix, he is a fur magnet. Alan is willing to have the deepest of conversations and sacrifice his time for anyone's well-being, a true model of selflessness and moral character. He is a true representative of the servant life that Jesus modeled and he show's unconditional love each and every day. In the near future, OG Lee is excited to explore the world of aviation and see how much volume he can add to his hair going 500 knots!

Yixuan Liu

Navy Pilot

The typical Naval Academy Midshipman has three stages of evolution. 1) Plebe Summer 2)Plebe Year 3)The rest of your time at the Academy. Yixuan "Ben" Liu has had five. 1)Plebe Summer 2)Plebe Year 3)Before going semester abroad 4)After his semester abroad but before meeting his special someone 5) After meeting his special someone. His life truly changed during the fifth stage and it's not just because he was assigned Naval Aviation. When not busy challenging people to basketball, developing his singing skills, and telling people he's a whole 180 pounds, he spends his time developing his Chinese skills.

Madison Mansberger

Naval Flight Officer

When God created Madi, He created an incredible athlete, a studious scholar, a dependable friend, a caring sister, and a loving daughter, but most importantly, a servant of Christ. Her faith has never led her astray, and it never will; Naval Aviation is blessed to have Madi and her heart serve the nation. "Let no one despise you for your youth, but set the believers an example in speech, in conduct, in love, in faith, in purity." 1 Timothy 4:12

Roberto Marroquin

Navy Pilot

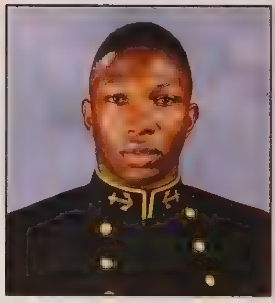
Known as either "Handsome Rob" or "Honest Rob" the name says it all. You'll normally find Rob whispering sweet nothings into his Bose headphones to his longtime girlfriend, Angela, whom he is soon due to marry. And who ever said meeting someone through Facebook wasn't a recipe for happiness? Though he tends to embody his SoCal roots in the way he dresses, he normally pulls it off by being the best dressed guy around, or at the very least he's guaranteed to have the most expensive shoes and the most interestingly dyed hair. From his car to his colognes, the man knows the meaning of premium. Try to catch Rob in the basketball courts of MacD or asking directions to the nearest shopping mall, because he's the kind of person you want in your life. He's always down to share a Limon Pepino Gatorade, never holds a grudge, and is truly the most genuine man in company.

Courtney Mason

Navy Pilot

Don't be fooled with this soccer Barbie, because she will crush your soul if you step on her toes. This hard charging, prior VMI Keydet (whatever that means), that let everyone know it, finally converted to be a Navy pilot. While kicking butt and taking names and starting as a walk on, this soccer babe also crushes it in the classroom. Working hard from dinner until bedtime, this scholar manages to hold a boyfriend and a high GPA. If she isn't doing an outer or at the Farragut pullup bars, you can find her with her beautiful blue-eyed, burly boyfriend. Not only is she beautiful, blonde, sassy and athletic, but she is the most loyal friend a girl could have. She may be moto in the hall, but don't let her fool you, she's one of the most fun girls in company. Known for distributing Valentine's Day cards to everyone in company, she is a sure pick-me-up for anyone feeling down.

Johni Meeks



USMC Pilot

A mysterious character forged from the fires of MCRD Parris Island, can be heard bellowing "Err-rah!" and "Kill!" before he descends upon you in a Code-Red Mountain Dew (tools of the trade for any true Cyber warrior) fueled double leg takedown followed by slightly questionable Jiu Jitsu moves. Don't let the fact that he often forgets that he came up with his own nickname fool you, he has taken to heart that "Education is important, but big biceps are importanter" and is sure to best anyone in a battle of wits or arm strength. The self proclaimed "Pepperoni Meeks" will head to Quantico after graduation before taking to the skies to bring Freedom and Democracy to the world through barrages of Hellfire rockets. Wherever the Corps takes him, any grunt on the ground can rest easy knowing they've got Peppy Meeks just a Close Air Support request away. Johni is as loyal as they come and a true friend you can always count on, we all count ourselves lucky we can call him a fellow Yard Dog.

Kristofer Misch

Surface Warfare EDO

Kris Misch, or "Christmas" is a quiet creature. However don't let that quiet demeanor fool you, he has one of the quickest wits you've ever seen. Many do not know this about Kris but he is in-fact a two percenter with a unique goal; to produce children taller than he is. Whether he is burning one of his three roommates, playing minecraft or his newest hobby, Civ V he can often be found tucked away in the dark corners of his cave waiting to pounce. Upon graduating, he will go to Japan where he can watch all the anime and sing all the Japanese songs his heart desires.

Makoto Morita

USMC Pilot

The greatest part about living with Mo was making it to the end of the semester without his dark humor becoming a reality. Though any casual conversation could suddenly become concerning, he was really quite harmless. Mo could be the life, or absence of life, at any party, passing out in peculiar locations from Lake Keowee to the town houses of downtown Annapolis. 2nd Wing will always remember the day that Mo took his EE final. What a fiery day it was. Let's hope he never hears the dangerous allure of a Siren again. Unless the Marine Corps requires him to safely jump over a fire pit, he is sure to make his own unique contribution to the defense of our nation.

Samantha Pankow

Naval Flight Officer

The Diva Queen, the nerd, and the only girl you know who puts in more hours in Nimitz than the librarians. She still manages to keep up her crazy social life which consists mostly of happy hour at Red Red Wine. She's one of the few girls at the Academy who earned her bachelor's degree and her M.R.S. degree. Your one and only company mum who'll give you a tissue, chocolate and whatever you need to get over yourself. You will catch her in the gym doing the bare minimum, biking, to prepare for the PRT. If you want to get on her good side you will have to bribe her with some Ferrero Rocher or Godiva. Her hobbies consist of crying over videos of puppies,making spreadsheets and lists. You can find her going on dates with "the one" -Zach Michel and their foreign adopted child, Jo. She is a wonderful friend you can always depend on, and the 18th Company Class of 2017 will be eternally grateful that thanks to her we will always remember to "Just say Meatloaf!"

Dustin Pavlick

USMC Ground

Dusty is most notoriously known as the man with tree trunks for legs, and as closed as a book in social interactions. Although he may never admit it, he is currently in pursuit to be the very best, like no one ever was. To be in the top 10 of the class is his real test, to train is his cause. The plethora of knowledge that exists in his pumpkin of a head, is a gift from the Naval Academy High School, more formerly known as MAST. From observation, he learned how to hone his knowledge in three different ways: watch big sweaty dudes lift weights, Shark Tank, and Minesweeper.

Jovana Perosevic

Montenegro

The biggest comeback story of the Class of 2017. She managed to fail in every area of the mission plebe year, but now she's the girl you can expect to see crushing classes, getting gains in the gym, and doing it all while smelling as fresh as the perfume counter in Macy's. She's a Montenegrin princess, and she's the girl to look for when you can't remember every single word to the song. On weekends, she can be found in the center of the dance circle at Buddy's rocking her Armani sneakers. The boys of USNA are lucky that her father does not visit more often, because if he did, they'd all be on his hit list. Her mesmerizing foreign accent is sure to attract all the boys...or make you think she's plotting against America. No really, is she Russian? I honestly can't tell. You can also say she looks like Sandra Bullock. Don't ever mess with this girl, she's really good at proving you wrong. Tell her that she can't run a marathon...she'll do it. True story, Jo signed up for the USMC marathon with only 2 weeks to prepare and she fing finished it. All in all, Jovana is an incredible friend who will stick up for anyone, ask any one of her girlfriends. Taylor Swift's squad has nothing on Jo's squad.

Aislinn Probst

Surface Warfare

Aislinn Probst (aka Ice Cube/Ice Pop/Ice/Svetlana) is truly the best example of a well-rounded midshipman. Not only is she a Cyber Operations major, but she minored in several subjects including: Whatever iPhone App the Kids Are Playing These Days (#ballztothewallz), Recovering From Traumatic Injuries, Imgur, Chicken Nugs, Foosball, and Weird German Music. She also decided to live life on the edge and date her lab partner so there's that (lets guess who did all the work). Hailing from Arnold, MD, Ais decided early on that having your mom do your laundry was pretty cool and decided to go to school within delivery range. Sometime after she got to double digit wine glasses on service assignment night Ais decided she could do her own damn laundry and proceeded to pick a ship further away than even Janky (what she describes as a Jeep and everyone else describes as a tin can on wheels) could reach. This proud SWO mamma is going to enjoy the fun and sun of San Diego and hopefully achieve a skin color darker than Bancroft marble. Endless burritos await.

Erick Schwering

Navy Pilot

Bearing our national ensign, Terry finds joy in the little things such as being loud, being right, being annoying, and his girlfriend. He will start an argument because his voice is louder, justify it based of something he read, and continue after discovering he is wrong because. why not. But that is ok, because it probably means he likes you and is simply trying to force educate you. All jokes aside, and trust me, he has tons that are lengthy, hard to comprehend, and will leave your wit a bit drier than when he started, he means well. His interest in everyone's opinions may only be outshone by his desire to tell you his, but once you bite the bullet and engage him, you will find that his passion for people is the only thing that rivals his passion for Frisbee. Three cheers for naps, color guard, and excusals!

George Swenka

Navy Pilot

Jake aka 'Swenk the Tank' has a love for farming that is surpassed only by his love of Iowa Hawkeye Football, showing off his legs, and entering his roomates into the conduct system. After a valiant year on the Men's crew team, he decided he had had enough with the slavery that was erging and dieting. He instead chose to relive the glory days of playing high school football through intramural fieldball. After getting his mom to mail him his lucky cleats and sweat bands, Georgy wreaked havoc out on hospital point. A self proclaimed modern day Rudy, Jake often took these games a little too seriously, getting in nearly as many confrontations on the field as he did back in the hall when he ruled with an Iron Fist as XO. Jake embodied the motto "loyalty above all except honor" and was not afraid to lead by example or hold everyone else to that standard which is why we know he will make a fantastic Naval Pilot. Unfortunately for Swenk, he did not get his ideal service selection of Iowa Farmer because he was overqualified. Have no worries, I'm sure the family bull breeding business will have an opening once he's done flying and made admiral.

Robert Winning

SEALs

Golden retriever's always have impeccable judgement.... NOT THIS GUY. From afar this man looks to make it through the day seamlessly, however, he is plagued by bad judgement and unsettling psoriasis. It's a miracle he can fit into any set of pants due to those meat sticks he was fortunate enough to be blessed with. Of course, there is nothing Rob likes better than being able to grapple with several sweaty dudes on the same mat day in and day out. When he is not taking shirtless selfies for his teammates, he tends to take that hot bod into DTA. There hasn't been a bachelorette party in Annapolis since 2014 that doesn't know Robert Winning. In his early years at the Academy he was better known as Jenny from the block, the California girl. He frequents Spencers to make sure he is up on the latest mullet wig and banana hammock fashion and will not be seen in public unless he has a half a tin of product in his hair. He reminds most people of their sisters because of his loyalty, sensitivity, and because he has never been on time to anything in his life. That said Robert is one of the most hardworking and loyal people I know. Always there to lend an ear and give a shoulder to cry on, he will serve his community well. Keep poundin out there in San Diego and never change.

19TH COMPANY

Timothy Abruzzo

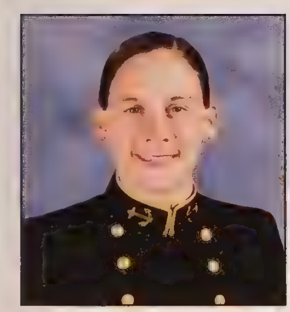
Surface Warfare

Coming off an ACL injury for three straight years, Tim "T-Shirt" Abruzzo was known for mild accomplishments off the court. When he's not napping or watching One Tree Hill or playing Candy Crush, you can find him awake at 2AM starting a 10 page paper. When you look at his report card, you'll notice he never got an A, which is his proudest accomplishment at the Naval Academy. Tim prefers beer to water, Good and Plenty's to meat, and spray deodorant to showers. Knowing this, Tim will surely be selected for early command during his long, successful career in the fleet.

Nicholas Arnold

Naval Flight Officer

If you've traveled anywhere within a 5 mile radius of his room, you've no doubt heard Nick when he's losing in Super Smash Bros. The most fragile man in the brigade also happens to be the most athletic out on the Intramural Frisbee field, even if he usually ends up in a boot afterwards. "God, Country, and Texas," Phat Arnold is a true Texan and patriot and will make sure you know it. If you plan on going out with him though make sure you're on time because the 4th Batt XO is a true believer in "Leave every man behind that isn't ready 5 minutes early." One of the best dudes overall at the Academy, he is going to do big things as an Aviator.



Julia Arthur

USMC Pilot

When Julia first arrived in 4349, she was not very keen on adhering to the neutral zone and could often be found launching entire jello cubes into her roommate's' side of the room. Julia, on any given day, could be found in one of two places: in the boat house as a dedicated "crouton" on the Navy Women's Crew Team or in King Hall looking for more garlic bread. A local Northern Virginian, she can be found on the weekends in her pastels and chevrons, racing through DTA in her red Prius, blasting either Adele, T-Swift, or Lana Del Ray on repeat. Everyone, from day one, knew Julia would be a Marine except for Julia. We as roommates can affirm that as far as the Academy goes, she crushed it.

Christine Baltezore

Surface Warfare

Born in a rural whaling village just south of the North Pole, Christine Baltezore first heard of the Naval Academy when her oddly sized parents regaled her with the story about when the USS Nautilus surfaced outside their home in 1958. The Baltezores later told her of officers reminiscing in their glorious memories of football games, protocol briefs, and morning formations, and Christine immediately decided it was for her. Her Arctic Congressman gave his seal of approval, and she caught a series of snowmobiles from one town to the next, arriving at USNA in the summer of 2013. Christine spent four years working as hard as she could, and her dedication eventually landed her a spot as 19th Company XO in spring semester of Firstie year. Her dedicated spirit would also allow her to pass the rigorous testing process to graduate in the class of 2017 with the recognition of Wife (select). Christine overcame the initial linguistic barriers between her culture and that of the rest of America (except for the South), and she now speaks four languages: English, Spanish, pig-latin, and quality time. Christine will always be one of the kindest people you know, loyal to a fault, and sweeter than the sunshine. By grace, wherever she goes, she'll always be my wife.

Tahler Bandarra

Medical Corps

Destined from birth to attend USNA, Tahler Bandarra (pronounced Tall-er Band-are-ah) was the most squared away midshipman of all time. Her extremely sincere countenance displayed all sense of admiration and awe at the superior abilities of her detailers, despite the stories that her father, her mother, her aunt, her other aunt, her aunt's best friend the Dant's wife, her other aunt's-third-friend-twice-removed had told her about USNA in the 80s. Whether she was anxiously awaiting her test results to see if she received a 93 or a 97, spending her entire night wrapped up in the same episode of Grey's Anatomy, or constructing the perfect USNA family tree, Tahler was a Midshipman who could always be counted on for a good laugh and some pointed advice. The perfect blend of witty and honest, Tahler prided herself on her moments of blunt hilarity, straight sarcasm, and legit #truth. The fleet is getting a good one in Taller Bandarhah (after 17 more years of school because she obviously isn't sick of the whole academics thing yet), and we hope they're ready for it!

DREW BRENN

SUBMARINES

Hailing from the most irrelevant part of New Jersey, Drew Brenn aka "Drouchebag" aka "Mr. Steal Yo Girl" has established himself as the midshipman hero we all want and need. With erotic escapades that extend from Maryland schools to D.C. universities, Drewsef is a man of eclectic and refined taste. But beware, if none of B-Swerve's former lovers are present, Drouchebag will do whatever it takes to satiate his appetite including getting animalistic with your roommate's cherished friend. Although no club member knew of this fact during his reign, Drew apparently served as the President of ANS. Drew's hobbies include hitting on and staying in touch with summer seminar participants and drags alike. Along with his keen ability to maintain a 4.0 in Nuclear Engineering while receiving a B in youngster year Lit, Drew boasts an impressive 10:1 bicep to calf ratio. Always going to MacD at the optimal time to see 4349's mutual love interest, G.G., Drew can be seen curling ungodly amounts of weight when he isn't peering over to check on G.G.'s squat depth. Overall, Drew is a good dude. He works hard, plays hard, and will no doubt be an amazing officer and an even more amazing father of two daughters named Maria and Sophie.

DANIEL CRAWLEY

USMC PILOT

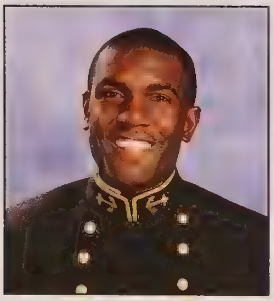
Midshipmen are told three things on I-Day: keep your room in bravo, stay SAT, and don't have any kids. This guy has accomplished literally none of those things. Dan Crawley, otherwise known as Dringus Lebowski or Chesty Puller's great great grandson twice removed, came to the Academy to become a Marine and pick up girls... and well at least he became a Marine. He hails from Cheraw, South Carolina, but don't let his charming southern drawl disguise his controversial (and experimental) ways. When he isn't busy rucking, planning his next amphibious assault, or "leading the way," Dan sends child support to his two accidental families: the Ashcrafts and the Kales. Everyone knows the Shipmate van is a great service for all drunk midshipmen in DTA, but did you know Dan has been serviced in the Shipmate van? This young Marin even tried to make Chesty proud by completing a beer marathon, but sadly still did not validate TBS. Don't be fooled by his hipster wardrobe, this Devil Pup is the undisputed ground fighting champion if the need arises. A creature of habit, Dan is infamous for his late night cravings and can often be found between the vending machines or catching midnight appointments at optometry ;)

With all that being said, Dan is one of the best dudes around. There is not another guy at the Academy that I'd rather have on my team when the going gets tough. Butt srsly guiz, dan is guo dood n will b bst marin evur.

BRIAN CULLY

SUBMARINES

Brian Cully, aka B-Swerve, aka Lil Bri Bri, as he's known on the streets of Orange County, CA, is a legend up on 4-3 sporting his sun-kissed hair. B-Swerve is infamous for being the the intelligent idiot, his fire raps, and referring to himself in the third person. As an advocate for "Big is Beautiful," Swerve Papi is eternally comfortable in his birthday suit. A trend setter at heart, Swerve has the world record for most days of class missed for legitimate reasons. Bri has lofty aspirations for himself as an Uber driver that stems from his excellent Uber passenger ratings and so he can't leave anymore phones in the car. Not known for his stamina, Swerve sticks to the pool where he shows off his incredible latissimus dorsi and jaw-droppingly small speedo. Your favorite drinking buddy, Brian is the easiest to take to the bars because you know you'll only have to buy him one drink before he's up dancing on the table. No one would ever believe that this kid is a Trident Scholar, but when you realize his whole project was on Tip Velocity and based off of humpback whales, it all makes sense. Honestly though, Brian has big things in store and there's no doubt he's going to make it big either as an Admiral someday or as a future Fortune 500 CEO.



RIXON FLETCHER

CIVIL ENGINEER CORPS

The trying fire of an institution that prides itself on the daily obliteration of contentment through the relentless pursuit of excellence in the form of maniacal mandatory events thrust full force in the face of unsuspecting midshipmen, this individual has made it out alive. He was kept alive as a gift to others. It was not by any account of what he did, but for a commission to show others the way to life. He has found joy in the love God has for him and tried his utmost to make that love visible to others. He lived in such a way that he without God is an ocean without water, a shadow without darkness, a forest without trees, a sky without air.

PATRICK FORRESTAL

USMC GROUND

The great poet Field Mob once said "My small city's called Albany, Georgia." Little did they know Patty F Baby would put the city on the Naval Academy map. Pat's excessive need to maintain control of the aux is only topped by his overcoming of three and a half years of sleep apnea. Pat's Naval Academy highlights include: five tackles against Notre Dame, becoming a co-owner of Dock Street Bar & Grill, being politely escorted out of the Super Bowl party once and forcibly removed a second time. We look forward to the accomplishments that Coach's "Gung-Ho" attitude will bring to the Marine Corps.

Julia Foust

Intel

Julia Foust, better known as Turbo Jay after midnight in DTA, can usually be found anywhere but Bancroft Hall. First, look at the Toomey's, then check her purchased hotel room, but if not there she's probably dropping bills on another room at the Omni. When you do find her, she will probably be hard to catch running away in her platform tennis shoes or surrounded by 10 crew guys twice her size. But if you are lucky enough to get a hold of her, you would know that Julia is the definition of a true friend. Compassionate, dependable, and always the life of the party, Julia has left a positive impact everywhere she's been. A hell of a coxswain, an incredible friend, and a better person, you better hope you cross paths with her again in the Fleet... or Acme.

Danielle Given

Explosive Ordance Disposal

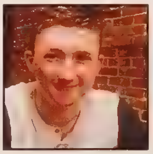
Dani Momo Given has been the guiding voice of reason since 4349 formed up in the summer of 2013. Much to the entertainment of detailers, classmates, and gate guards, she was notorious for a plebe haircut that made her look like Asian Justin Bieber. She is a jack of all trades, having mastered the violin, plebe chem, rice, naps, and squat racks. If Momo had a dollar for every date she got asked out on while she was "just trying to finish my lift!", she'd be a millionaire by now. Four years of living with Momo as 4349's token asian came with the very best Japanese mom impersonations, a daily post-it note encouragement to be better than the day before, and the assurance that one of 2017's greatest midshipmen always had our backs. Sayonara, Momo.

Christopher Goodale

USMC Ground

MIDN CDR Goodale (ret.) loves soup...and he loves you too! From elderly wisdom to maple syrup, Chris certainly brings a lot to the table. He is the undisputed winner of the 'Most Amiable Guy at USNA" title for a record four years. It doesn't hurt that he speaks Spanish, Chinese, English, and Canadian. Chris has done just about everything there is to do at the Academy, and...well, college in general. When he is not crunching numbers for Ops Research, leading the BEST Reg to victory, or spending a semester in China chatting up the locals, he will doubtless be found in the 19th Company wardroom socializing or cooking up a trusty microwave meal. While it took Chris two times to get his fill of this college thing, we have no doubt that he is going to make a great Marine Officer. The care, energy, and love that made every day spent with Chris a great one will keep serving him well into the future. Good luck out there, Chris, and keep doing big things!

Kenneth Hicks



Submarines

Like a newborn separated from his real family at birth only to be reunited with them years later, Kenny joined his true 19th company Pac Fam later in his academy career. While his loyalty was once questioned, he has proved himself a fierce member of Free 19, especially on the intramural frisbee fields as a member of the feared Chuchi's squad. Sports aren't the only thing Kenny takes seriously, however. Whether it's studying the quantum field theory of gravitational relativity waves through an up-quark discharge field in the physics labs, or tossing back a long island in the watering holes of DTA, Kenny will always bring his A game. Often mistaken for the good, quiet guy, Kenny has a wild side few have witnessed. A founding member of the Scuba Steves, he has led the group from afar for years. He has much bigger things to come, however, and Americans across the country can rest easy knowing the submarine force will have Kenny in its ranks. As 19's frisbee team always said, "Thank god he's on our side."

Megan Howard

Navy Pilot

Megan is known around 4349 for aggressively identifying USNA's "horrible, terrible, useless piece of midshipmen", even though she's been to, like, three total NMFs. We always knew Megan would never go Med Corps due to her overpowering aversion to even the smallest puncture wounds (cap your pens!), or Marine Corps because there is no uniform regulation in the world that allows shorts to be "comfortably" worn above the belly button. Unfortunately, during Megan's time at the Academy, her family has slowly forgotten about her -- her father wears all the uniforms himself, and her mom is obsessed with posting glamour shots of her dog Daisy on insta. It'll be a few years down the road, but the Navy should take into account that Megan has been to Hawaii way too many times when they assign her duty station. Some make fun of Megan for having to have the corset removed from her plebe year debutante dress because her shoulders got so swole, but she'd prefer if you'd just mock her words. Although USA Triathlon may not know how to rank her, she's always been #1 in our hearts. Pensacola is lucky to be getting you, Meggles.

Michael Kelly

USMC Ground

Hailing from the football hotbed of West Chester Ohio, "Mad" Mike Kelly came to Annapolis to change the face of Navy Football and commission as a Marine Corps officer. Even though Mike hates naps (pride thing), he's been known to pass out in his chair for hours after a long day (not a pride thing). Mike may not be able to tell you why exactly this is going to be "the worst week at the Naval Academy", but he can tell you all about the best YouTube videos that have fewer than 50 views. All jokes aside, Mike always had his boys' back, which we know will benefit his Marines as well.

Juni Kim

Surface Warfare EDO

Juni "Insert Middle Name Here" Kim is renowned as the second to twelfth most attractive Asian in the brigade. His friends can easily pick him out by his hooves for hands, and his bow legged, tip toe walking style. You can't argue with the results though, because his block calves are comparable with that of a large beached whale. You might think that would make him a speedster, but JuneBug consistently spills over the finish at 10:30 despite his patented (Lose 20 lbs in 3 days) diet. By diet of course I mean he stopped eating 4 types of ice cream each meal. His love life, much like his middle name, is non existent. Juni, being the civil servant that he is, truly abides by the saying, "One man's (bodily) waste is another (wo)man's treasure," and so he prides himself in leaving gifts to be found under his host's couch cushion. On a serious note, Juni's going to crush it as a submarine officer. Oh sorry. The only man to ever get the same question wrong in two separate interviews, the Navy thought he was better suited for EOD. Nope wrong again. He's actually going to be an EDO, assuming he can pass grad school. Joking aside, Juni's one of the best all around guys out there who would do anything for a buddy. Chances are he'll end up an Admiral or a CEO someday and you don't want to be the one in his way on his way up

Isabel Krause

Submarines

sabel "World Traveler" Krause...boy has she come a long way from the miraculously silent, lost puppy looking for her parents out of the window on I-day. From the plebe who thought she was too cool to be American, to the Brigade Commander who never fails to remind you how many countries she has visited, so many things have changed! Youngster year into second class summer 'just happened' but hey, seems like by firstie year she finally got it right. No one knows how she is graduating seeing as she never went to class, but nuke power school should be a breeze, right? Semper Deep! You can't ask for a better friend. Hooyah.

Walter Lacroix

Submarines

Walter LaCroix is a little blond fluffy ball of hate. When you see him in the hallway, he'll greet you with a wide smile and a cheery hello that may lead the innocent to believe that he's a happy, friendly fellow. But underneath that alabaster surface burns the fires of animosity fueled by the anguish of three years studying physics. If you aren't as smart as him, and you're probably not, you almost certainly annoy him. Something that will forever doom you to his bad side is invoking your commitment to the navy, especially in reference to drill practice or uniform inspections. He is a card carrying, Stockholm syndrome suffering masochist who has augmented his education in Statistical mechanics and nuclear physics with research in quantum field theory. When he is not studying he is surfing Imgur or watching the greatest show on Netflix, Trailer Park Boys. A certified meme expert, Walter will send you reddit dumps that will be sure to brighten your day as long as you are ready to embrace your dark side of humor. It will be a great shock if he doesn't one day command the US submarine community.

Matthew Lembo

Navy Pilot

The stone cold ginger is at it again. If Matt isn't sitting quietly in his corner, he can often be found scouring the seven seas for new ocean samples to analyze. This New Jersey native doesn't just spend his free time in the labs of Chauvenet however. He must balance that with his seasoned practice of "sending rounds downrange" as some might say. This fearless war fighter led the Navy Pistol Team to the National Pistol Championship this semester while serving as their (Oh) Captain (My Captain!). As one of the most reliable individuals in the company, it goes without saying that Matt will truly have a positive effect of the lives of his sailors out in the fleet. I am inspired by Matt and his relentless positivity and commitment to the team. Matt is truly humble as he puts others success above his own. He was never petty when another team member was more successful than him, only genuinely supportive and congratulatory. Matt also went out of his way to support team members in their other interests and endeavors. He was completely selfless with his time, dedicating himself to helping others on and off the range and concentrating on how to make the team better. He organized the team to support each other and he showed up in full force, rather than a fleeting presence. I can't describe how meaningful it was to see Matt in the audience, knowing that you had a true friend and supporter in him. Matt can also be credited in full with turning around the culture of the pistol team - back to that of a team, in and past the range. Thank you, Matt, for your friendship and leadership!

Brandon Maas

Submarines

Brandon Maas, also known as Bmaas, the Fighting Farmer, or most famously Baymax, is truly a gentle soul at heart. As a seasoned system engineer, he claims to actually have work to do all the time, when in reality he's playing Battlefield, planning his next gun refurbishment, or sending puppy gifs in his corner of the room. If you ever encounter Brandon in the wild, please note that his diet consists mainly of steak, popcorn, Dr. Pepper, and PopTarts, and he should be fed accordingly. Your Personal Healthcare Companion is the most easily fascinated out of all of us; known as a simple man, shiny objects, seashells, and bright lights have been known to frequently distract him. In fact, rumor has it he finally learned how to tie his own shoe the other day, and that he couldn't be more excited. In all seriousness, Brandon is a truly loyal friend and wise beyond his years. Whoever has the privilege of serving with him in the submarine community can rest assured they've got a hard working Texan to depend on. Scan complete.

Joseph Maranto

Navy Pilot

19th Company

An above average friend with below average looks from Shrewsbury, MA (but he claims to be from Boston to sound cooler). When he isn't studying for school he can be found sleeping in his rack which he lovingly refers to as "the cube". After his daily nap, Evan gets up and plays frisbee with his company intramural team. In his best efforts to emulate Nick Arnold, he flings his body in the air for every catch even when the pass is at chest level. Being rejected from Hogwarts twice, this Muggle wishes he was a superhero, spending his nights doing Harry Potter trivia and watching the Flash religiously. Jokes aside, Evan will go the extra mile for a friend in any situation. He is bound to have a great career in the Navy and you can bet that if you are lucky enough to be stationed with him, you will have something (and someone) to laugh at everyday.

Jake Martin

USMC Ground

During second class year Jake was sent on a top secret reconnaissance mission to West Point. In preparation he dropped all muscle mass to create an unthreatening appearance and earn the trust of the cadets. Due to an unfortunate hormonal condition the muscle could never be recovered. But, fortunately for Jake this physical anomaly left his body extremely dexterous and able to withstand blunt forces that would cripple the common man. Not only did Jake undergo a physical but also a mental transformation, pretending to be one of the "cool" kids, earning the trust and gaining valuable secrets of the army rugby team, while also acquiring the infamous title "The Legend," the origins of which Jake would gladly recall over a beer. Jake returned a changed man and has been leading the rugby team on and off the pitch ever since. Jake has a magnetic personality and his positivity is contagious to everyone he meets. He is truly one of the most genuine people around and the Marine corps is lucky to have him. Enjoy a fine day, Jake.

Carl McKay

Submarines

This bright eyed and bushy tailed young Alabamian came from the Enlisted Navy and said to himself, 'You know what would go great with my background in Nuclear Power? Hip-Hop dancing". And so began the tale of how Carl McKay would become the first ever male dancer on the US Naval Academy Dance Team. He has otherwise adhered to the code of the NARP, relentlessly pursuing normalcy in his everyday life and always venturing to remain a phantom in the eyes of the establishment. He will one-day return to this fine institution to reflect on the endless days he spent trying to find meaning in mandatory events, assuming he hasnt utterly thrown his potential away playing his Playstation.

Jackson Peplow

Navy Pilot

If you're looking for a good time, then look no further than Jackson Peplow. There's never a dull moment when Pep Sauce and his alter ego Scotti Bugatti hit the scene. Looking for an intramural frisbee warrior? JPep's got your back. Need someone to watch Russian documentaries with? . Trying to find your spouse on Tinder? Jackson is an award winning expert on the matter. With his only flaws being that he grew up befriending corn stalks and avidly supports University of Iowa Football, you will be hard-pressed to find a more down to earth guy who will drop everything he's doing to come help support you. To hell and back, through thick and thin, Jackson will be there with you every step of the way. The Aviation community is lucky to have him among their ranks and he has without a doubt earned the right to lead as a future Naval Aviator.

Brandon Pullig

Navy Pilot

When you ask, "Where's the craziest, most lit place in DTA?" you might think of places like ACME, Dillos, or even Buddy's, but those are all wrong. The number one place to be is in Mother8, Room 4301 because you know that's where the Smashing is happening. Super Smash Bros that is. If no gaming is going on then you can be sure one of three things has happened: BPull is asleep, BPull went to steerage, or BPull no longer has a pulse. Known for never having to wear sunscreen because you can't get burnt where the sun don't shine, BPull has even won a hairy chest competition and brings an extra sweater wherever he goes. His magic tricks are legendary, and as the one and only coach of the 19th Company Chuchi frisbee team, Brandon Pullig banded together the company misfits and led 19 to the championship looking to his former room mouse for inspiration. While his commitment was later questioned, BPull has proven he will literally lay down his body (and collar bone) for his team. You can be sure he will bring that same commitment and lead from the front in his future career as a Naval Aviator.

Joseph Puza

Surface Warfare EDO

Joseph was born and raised in New Egypt, NJ where he went to high school and was a three sport athlete, playing football, wrestling, and lacrosse. He studied Nuclear Engineering at the Naval Academy and service selected SWO EDO, where he will attach to his first ship, the USS William Lawrence (DDG-110), out of Pearl Harbor, HI. He is looking forward to spending his time there with his significant other, Luvin Sical of Odenton, MD.

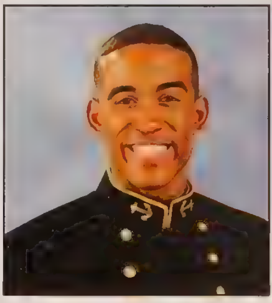
Rifat Rahman

Civil Engineer Corps

Nicholas Ramzi

Naval Flight Officer

What he thinks is a bragging right is actually the biggest hindrance to his personality. Hailing from the weakest state in America, Rhode Island, Nick will never shut up about the great comeback, 28-3, and won't let you forget where his loyalties lie. With calves the size of tanks, Nick is a madman out on the ultimate frisbee field. Whether competing with his true friends, the 19th company intramural team, or with his groupies, Navy's club ultimate team, Nick leads the charge on any field. This thundering giant has a soft side however. When he's not training Plebes or harassing Evan, Nick finds pleasure in googling images of teacup pigs, listening to soft classical music, and binge watching episodes of Gilmore Girls. An aviator by trade (and course of study), Nick will surely excel down in flight school and undoubtedly rise to the occasion when he enters the fleet.



Jarred Reid-Dixon

Supply Officer

I was born in Suffolk Brandon, England as the youngest of 3 ! I moved over to the US permanently around 2006, and always traveled back in forth visiting my parents ! I was a heavy weight wrestler and a football player before I ever considered to start cheerleading. In high school I modeled in New York City and also landed a role on the back up cast for Bring it On the Musical before it started touring. I competed in the International Cheerleading and Dance Worlds in 2011,and 2012. My parents are both prior Air-Force and my sister was an instructot USNA and graduated 2008, my brother is in the Marine Corps. While at the Academy I planned the craziest Service Selection party that the Academy has ever seen and planned Firstie club every Thursday first semester! I also helped with ship selection which was a total success and am in charge of the Graduation ball. I like to refer to myself as the "fierce fun coordinator of 2017" ;)

Jalen Robinson

Surface Warfare

Jalen Robinson has an eccentric personality. Whether it be snagging some picks in the company turkey bowl game like Richard Sherman or preparing fresh duck at his home in Puyallup, whenever you hangout with Jalen you've got to be ready for anything. He is the king of thrift shop shopping and puts Macklemore to shame with the type of things he s able to find at the many thrift shops he frequents. Jalen is one of those guys who genuinely cares about others. The value he places on meaningful relationships is evident through his "no phone zone" policy at the dinner table, which he uses to lecture family, friends, and squad members about the importance of sitting down and enjoying a meal together. Jalen always walks around with an infectious smile on his face, which can make anyone's day instantly better. Jalen is known to give invaluable pieces of advice to members of his squad, especially the "schemin'" plebes: "Don't buy 10, $1 drinks...even though it's only $10, it's not worth it (It totally is worth it)." or "Don't go to Steerage - King Hall has the same food that you already paid for 100 meters away." or "Hand sanitizer will create super bugs to wipe out mankind." One more fun fact about Jalen is that he claims to know the colors of all the ships in the Navy, which he believes will aid in his commissioning as a Surface Warfare Officer on USS Coronado.

Thomas Rooney

SEALs

Tommy "Spoon" Rooney, a.k.a. what you might get if a thumb and a tomato were to consummate their love, is your typical Chicago/SoCal Florida/Chicago/Georgia/St Louis/NorCal/Florida native. Irish in all ways imaginable, Tommy has never turned down the opportunity to scar a fellow brethren's forehead by smashing them with his thick skull while out in DTA. Fear not though, his quick apology is sure to come in the form of a 32 oz beer shower. If you ever have a secret you need kept under wraps, be sure to ONLY tell Tommy – don't worry, he'll only tell half of 2nd Reg before you sign TAPS that night! A top-tier workout partner, Spoon is never shy to inform you of his superiority as he runs 5-miles just to workout at the SOT Shed. Having stealthily escaped federal charges, Tommy is clearly destined for a clandestine life in the Teams. In all seriousness, Tommy is one of the all-around best guys you'll ever come across, and the dude will make a great addition to the NSW community. I'd say I can't wait to hear about all of his success in the Fleet, but that ish will be classified. Pro-tip...don't talk about his sisters.

James Shadow

Submarines

Cynical prior enlisted out of Nuke school. That defined my first couple of years here. While the cynicism remained relatively constant, I learned throughout the time here that some of the 'pomp and circumstance' has a valid purpose. The way I see the academy is that they take in younger individuals to mold them into the shape needed for success in the USN; then they sprinkle in the prior enlisted to add a little salt' to the mix.

Dustin Soto

USMC Ground

Dustin hails from Los Angeles, California but I'm sure he's already told you. He convinced everyone he was Company Commander first semester, yet there is no evidence to prove it. Dustin managed to break every promise he made to himself before coming to the East Coast, including but not limited to: drinking coffee, dating Mids, and wearing pastels. In his room, you can find Dustin watching war documentaries and plotting how to antagonize Mike next. In preparation for the Marine Corps, Dustin refuses common comforts and has never owned a privacy curtain or blanket. Instead he field trains" by swaddling himself in his crusty sleeping bag. Anyone who knows Dustin knows he is destined for a successful career in the Marine Corps.

Todor Stoev

Surface Warfare

"It is by no means enough that an officer of the Navy should be a capable mariner. He must be that, of course, but also a great deal more. He should be as well a gentleman of liberal education, refined manners, punctilious courtesy, and the nicest sense of personal honor. He should be the soul of tact, patience, justice, firmness, kindness, and charity. No meritorious act of a subordinate should escape his attention or be left to pass without its reward, even if the reward is only a word of approval.

Conversely, he should not be blind to a single fault in any subordinate, though at the same time, he should be quick and unfailing to distinguish error from malice, thoughtlessness from incompetency, and well meant shortcomings from heedless or stupid blunder. In one word, every commander should keep constantly before him the great truth, that to be well obeyed, he must be perfectly esteemed.

Daniel Vegel

Submarines

Daniel Anton Vegel. Has a nice ring to it, right? While Danny is not slaving away on a ship design in the basement of Rickover, he can often be found singing in the shower to his roommates. As the legal father of Tex, his room's plant, Danny has grown to understand what parenthood really consists of and let me tell you, it's not easy. A Texan native in heart and spirit, Danny decided to study the most southern language known to man....Chinese. As a result, he spent more time his Second Class year in China than in America and came back a changed and better dressed man. Known for his ability to function properly on only 3 to 4 hours of sleep a night, Danny never fails to get the job done. He is a great friend and his humility and kindness will take him a long way in his future. Good luck out there Danny. Semper Deep.

Dayton Wetherby

USMC Ground

Dayton "yeah I STILL use the snapchat puppy filter" Wetherby is a soccer major with a passion for political science. Dayton dabbles in servant leadership and fatherhood. This goat hails from somewhere in Florida. Definitely not Tampa. Growing up an only child, Dayton's longing for brothers led her to The Naval Academy, where she found the Boys of Fall. Day is most commonly known as the most classic goat in all the land and when not busy standing around in the goal at the goat pasture, exhibiting little athletic ability or promoting Bud Light as part of her sponsorship deal, she can be found in DTA. She'll probably be wearing sweats because she's an #athlete. We can't wait to see this devil pup crush The Marine Corps.

TANVIR AHMED

Is he 25 or 30? We will never know but we still love the irascible little fellow from Bangladesh. An excellent roommate, a staunch friend and a rabid Arsenal fan, Tanvir will always be remembered for his passionate love of Basmati and Yeezy's. We're glad that we turned him into a sneakerhead. No weekend is started or completed without getting Tanvir to come along, regardless of his willingness to do so. However when we do manage to drag him out to DTA, he is definitely the life of the party. Whether he admits it or not, we know he'll miss the US and the rather odd people of the Naval Academy. We wish him well on his arranged marriage to the wonderful Mrs. Ahmed. We hope we're invited to the wedding and we hope he remembers us when he becomes the CNO of Bangladesh Navy. And most importantly, we hope his fortunes in life fare better than his fortunes in FIFA.

IAN ARBUCKLE

NAVY PILOT

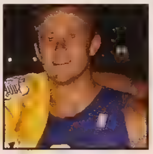
No one dare question the authoritay of the Petit Prince. Just when you think you've managed to trump Ian in a game of mental capacity, he'll stack up 5 arrogant comments in front of you, climb to the top, and talk down to you in the most condescending of tones. He does it in such a manner as to send your confidence to the shadow realm with the rest of his emotions and feelings. It's a shame he didn't join the Marine Corps, because he as the ability to clear rooms with one quick fart. With that being said, Ian has been the most physically affectionate guy in his friend group. You can always count on a hug from Ian whether you want it or not. He has a contagious happy go lucky personality that will be truly missed. Keep an eye out for his gremlin powered airplane, because we all know that his cocky butt will be buzzing towers for the entirety of his Naval career.

CHARLOTTE ASDAL

SURFACE WARFARE

Charlotte Asdal, the classic "she does it all" kind of girl. Shes not your typical 'Jersey Girl', with hobbies ranging from shooting eyelashes off flies, to playing with other dangerous toys like ATV's. Luckily, she wasnt alone in her adventurous New Jersey world, she has 4 other sisters who shared in her entrepreneurial, independent spirit, and she followed 3 of them here to USNA. She might be a complete genius and current event know-it-all, but her street smarts do not extend to the reaches of the galaxy (aka Star Wars), or the outfield for that matter. She is a woman of more refined tastes, like tapas, and fine wine, and The Office. When she isn't studying, she can be found in one of two places, napping, or out on the town with "teammate Scotty Davids. In all honesty, she is pretty much the embodiment of the ideal midshipman. She puts forth an admirable amount of effort to not only her own education, but also the education of the brigade in events like the Naval Academy Foreign Affairs Conference (of which she was the Director), and monthly salon discussions designed to bridge the gap between mids (us regular, still clumsy mids) and high ranking officers and civilians. We all know she is destined to great things, and she is going to make a great officer, if Oxford ever lets her go back to the fleet.

RUSSELL ATKINSON



USMC GROUND

Russ "Coot" Atkinson loves a nice tower at the Bar and Grille. Don't expect him to pull out his wallet when the check comes though as this kid is the nicest mooch in the game. Although the surgery reduced their size, his patties will forever be branded in the memory of his friends. Russ has been working hard to become a senior partner at the Dino Investment Group but his unreal day trades will never be good enough for Mr. Dino. His theme song will always be Sunday Bloody Sunday. Sacre bleu Mr. Atkinson, sacre bleu.

MATTHEW BENDER

USMC PILOT

Matt is finally going to join the Marine Corps, which is what he's always wanted to do. Wait, or was it Navy Pilot? EOD? At this point, not even he knows. Regardless, Matt's service selection of Marine Corps Pilot is well suited to his personality, as he shuns literacy, rational arguments, and believes the hallmark of success is a body worth staring at (except for the calves). Furthermore, he takes the Marine Corps' "it's always been like this" attitude to new levels with his hairline. This is, however, a financial benefit as he will likely get Senior Discounts at the barber for the foreseeable future. When not convincing others that he's always wanted to be a Marine, Matt enjoys spending his time slumped in his chair, simultaneously browsing Reddit, watching people play Uno on Youtube "for the commentary", and binge watching Marvel. While his internet traffic is at best questionable, Matt's large heart and love for his country and friends are unrivaled. He may be an easy target for jokes, but no man or woman who has stood by his side can joke about his dedication to those around him. We look forward to seeing the growth of his career accelerate and are jealous of the men and women who will soon call him their leader

Michelle Browning

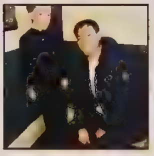
Surface Warfare

The Queen of petty, Michelle "Brown-Noser" Browning enjoys starting stalemates, ignoring people in association with those she is mad at, and actively hating individuals based on first impressions alone. If there was an award for flirting with young, hot strangers, not only would Michelle win it hands down, she would actually be the only candidate. If with Michelle, avoid any place that serves food buffet style- she has been known to get overly anxious on the portions, fearing that there will never be enough when it is her turn to eat, causing her to do a little jig in her seat and lose focus on the conversations around her. And don't even think about asking her to share... WARNING: If you ever encounter Michelle when she is sick, it is best to run in the opposite direction. She has been known to lash out, over-medicate, and speaks of weird fantasies that involve her curling up in the fetal position and slowly letting a stuffy nose destroy her. If you poke her, she might actually fall apart. Aside from this, Michelle is a compassionate and loyal friend that is always willing to listen and give great advice. She is truly one of a kind and the SWO community is lucky to have her. Love the Legacy.

Zhuoying Chen

Surface Warfare

Woojin Chung



Surface Warfare

Woojin, the most fashion forward man in the company. He will always be remembered for his enthusiastic use of hot sauce and consumption of ramen. He not only enjoyed the fiery taste of hot sauce by himself but also showed his comradery by forcing everyone else try them. He would always be found lying on his rack taking one of those sumptuous naps but never refused to wake up when called for one more 'friendly' game of FIFA. His enormous knowledge about the party life of other prestigious colleges all over the country and his immense connections with their dwellers would definitely make him the most sought after wall street personnel in the future. When he's CEO of Goldman-sachs he'd better share the love with us. No one is ever sure of whether or not Swooj is in a drunken state. It's either, "You can't tell I'm drunk right now!? I'm wasted?!," or "I can't believe I'm so sober right now?!" We also all look forward to meeting Mrs. Chung, she'll certainly have a lot to live up to. Although Swooj can be intimidating, don't worry, he has a soft side. It can be discovered by sending him videos of cute animals or by purchasing poop emoji pillows.

Christopher Cowen

Navy Pilot

Chris "Cowon Sauce" Cowen has and always will pay cover at acme. During his spare time, he enjoys sucking at golf and playing video games against the computer. He also went fake SIQ before a PRT. That about sums him up. His life is boring. He was also voted most likely to get the first divorce within the company so that's pretty neat.

Vincent Gardella

Navy Pilot

Vince has two loves in his life: his cheese collection and Peggy Sue. To be clear, Peggy Sue is his car, not a female companion (out of the question). He came into Plebe year with a complete lack of emotions and the decisive inability to tell a good story. These characteristics are common among self-appointed alpha-males, but thanks to us - his buddies on 4-4 - his social grace has advanced tenfold since then. He can now occasionally tell us if he is "feeling happy" or perhaps "a bit sad," and can even fight his way through an entire story in a somewhat compelling fashion. Perhaps he would have benefited from the free time associated with other majors, because any time he could have spent developing social skills was instead poured into countless hours of CAD modeling and redoing CAPT Carr's thermo exams. Despite his emotional absence, Vince is an integral part of all of our lives and we'll be terribly sad to watch him disappear into a training pipeline and never talk to us again. He has a contagious sense of humor and charm that attracts people from all walks of life (and all age brackets) and makes him a blast to be around. We're excited to see him conquer flight training and show the world it's possible to fit a 6'6" frame into whatever air-frame he wants.

Reilly Klein

Surface Warfare

If Reilly "BP" Klein starred in a movie, he would without a doubt crush the role of Grumpy in Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs. Don't even try to wake this sleeping beauty or interrupt his studying either. Also, just assume he isn't in a good mood anytime during the school week. We wouldn't know what mood he's in over the weekend because he always runs as far away from Annapolis as he can. He loves chocolate sauce and will forever have a crimp in his neck from his killer desk naps. If you ever need to meet someone, he knows everyone, especially Russell Wilson. Best of luck to this kid in Cali and congrats on surviving 4 years with the softest roommates.

Anthony Kloszewski

Surface Warfare

Robert Leddy

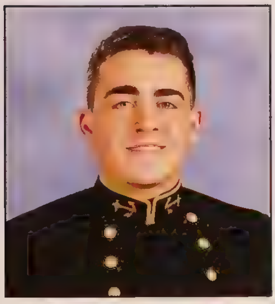
Submarines

Robert Leddy hails from Omaha, Nebraska (aka the middle of nowhere) and will always do his best to tell you that Omaha is actually a respectable city (it's not). He achieved his dream of choosing a service selectection where he could spend endless months deep underwater in a long metal tube, otherwhise known as a submarine. His paper writing skills from being a Political Science major and a writing tutor certainly will NOT serve him well as he stands maneuvering watch on a nuclear reactor deep beneath the sea. But he sure did have a lot of fun while at the Academy. Whether it was out in DTA, in DC, or anywhere else, he was always seen with a smile on his face having a great time with friends. He's someone who you could always go to for a good book recommendation, even if its a nerdy one about submarines.

Lucia Lee

Naval Flight Officer

Korean glam goddess frequently spotted in classy outfits, or wearing the latest Korean beauty products #sokoglam. A cheese and (not wine) connoisseur cause let's be real, a glass of wine will knock her out #serviceassignmentdinner. She has a "must watch movie list" that will probably take the rest of her lifetime to actually finish watching. This girl can beat you with a field hockey stick, or stab you with a fencing blade. Many nights of her academy career were spent hopelessly coding in the 3rd deck of Michelson, shamelessly harassing MGSP leaders until they gave us the answers #systems. Lucia Lee is best known for her legendary pose – the leaned back in the office chair with mouth wide open and covered in her quilt pose which is often confused with her other popular pose, the face down on desk pose #cashmeinmahbed #howbowdah. Many of her classmates are puzzled by how her neck does not snap in half when falling asleep – I suppose we will never know. And although she's a little Asian firecracker, she's secretly a big softie. 4 year roommate #veteran, friend, and sister #inlaw #kidding. Thanks for never saying anything when I eat all your oranges in the fridge over the weekend and forget to replace them. You're gonna be a pretty cool NFO and I can't wait to see what the Navy has in store for you #loveyou.



Alberto Mestre

Surface Warfare

Alberto doesn't care what his friends write for his bio, nor will he ever likely read it. To his mom, Letty, who we know has taken a photo of this and posted it on Facebook with a paragraph caption, we give you an authentic Cuban "hola!". Your generosity over the last four years has warmed our hearts and stomachs (i.e. the heralded succulent but savory guava pastries (not for consumption in vehicles)), filling the holes that your son regularly leaves when he refuses to join us on social outings. Alberto effectively found the minimum standard with which to graduate here and set himself on cruise control for four years. While his friends rarely managed to pull Alberto away from the pile of dirty clothes he called his floor, the elusive KQ was always someone who could pull this future "Iron Man on a Wooden Ship" out for something other than a Brunch Burger. He would never admit his love for her, but it was arguably greater than that for his beloved "Diet Coke with Bacardi Limon" at Middleton's piano bar. However, his romance with Barcardi will surely retake 1st place at his next duty station, for it will be top among the very limited list of things to do for fun. When he's not checking his boat for termites, scouring Netflix for the second most obscure show to watch, or explaining to skeptics how a tree in a desert is considered a legitimate tourist destination, we're sure that Berto will show the Minesweeper world what genuine leadership looks like - and for that, his crew will be thankful that someone actually volunteered as tribute to be their Div-O. Cheers

KYLE MILCHUCK

SURFACE WARFARE

A native of Chesapeake, VA - yet always making sure to inform you he is from the islands of vowels, the shaka, and Lilo - Kyle labored most days in a dark room commanding his countless FIFA dynasties and perusing the depths of youtube for the next bootleg Chelsea commentary or Marvel conspiracy theory all while undertaking a crusade against the glare on his screens from open blinds. Even more contemptible to him is any form of homework that dare interrupt his nightly ritual of video games. When he is out and interacting with us, we were always cognizant of the golden rule: if you are arguing with Kyle about anything on this fine, verdant world...you are wrong. I mean, even if Kyle may not be at fault for spilling crumbs in the backseat of Peggy Sue, or may not be responsible for dropping a bag of m&m's, or may not be at fault for rear-ending another car, or...anything at all, he no doubt is the "brightest star" of our entourage. Whether it's pillow talk, playing catch in the p-way to taps, getting over a break-up with a certain roommate, a run to Pip's, watching 20 minute cat vines or Pewdie Pie over cup ramen, or lamenting over the end of the Ram's Head beer card, Kyle will always have your back and never ceases to follow his heart. As he heads to Everett he will be leaving a wake of pine scented Yankee candles and more than a fair share of good times behind him. Pmaikai, lad.

OLIVIA MORRELL

SURFACE WARFARE OCEANOGRAPHY

Four years ago, Olivia escaped from the barren deserts of the Southwest (from some state she's inexplicably proud of) to come swim at the Naval Academy. We're all very glad she made it out to the east coast, or else plebe summer would have been hard for everyone and not just her. Luckily, getting yelled at for sighing incessantly was a short phase of Olivia's naval career. Nowadays, if Olivia isn't to be found in the water or studying water, she can be found presiding over her subjects as the Queen of Dillos and Buddy's. If you have the time, I definitely recommend getting to know Olivia better. She's a wonderful woman of refined taste - ask her for an espresso! - and cares deeply about those around her. She'll make a great addition to the USS Cole, where she'll be leading... what's an E-4 again? A Colonel?

MACKENZIE OLDFIELD

NAVY PILOT

Mackenzie Oldfield hails from the windy city and loves nothing more than letting you know how Maryland weather isn't actually cold. Nothing gets Mackie more riled up than watching DA Bulls or DA Bears continually squander, and having to let everyone know who the real Sox are. When Mac isn't watching hometown sports, he's either getting yolked at the gym or pretending to be hard at work in the library. Mac has no notion of normal sleeping hours and, back in the dark days of youngster year, would blow off any attempt of a productive Tuesday and would dream of his oh so elusive personal life. This fiery Irishman is known for mysteriously attracting the attention of countless women without ever speaking, for having a wardrobe straight out of a GQ magazine, and for a contagious laugh that's unlike anything you've ever heard. While his impressive wardrobe and dashing looks did not help his cause, his only real reason to go out was to grab a brew with a friend and spread that head-turning, air-piercing laugh that is distinctly his own. While there was never a doubt that he would make a good pilot and an even better officer, he really and truly is a Leader of Men. Love you brother and be safe out there.

STEVEN PANTUSO

SURFACE WARFARE

Over his four years at the Naval Academy, Steven questioned and explored himself until he grew into a man he was proud of. When he's not trying to flirt with the underclass, he either spends his time trying to gain favor with LT or attempting to culture himself into a pseudo-intellectual, gleaning most of his knowledge off of YouTube videos until he decides he can once again assert that he is the smartest person in the room. Despite this, Steven always brings a unique and often humorous perspective to every conversation, and 20th company would be a much more boring place to live if it weren't for him. Through our four years together on 4-4, he's proven to be an incredibly loyal friend, compassionate leader, and in many ways a model Midshipman. As he heads off to Everett to sleep through being a SWO and let his Chief run the division, we know for sure that the KIDD will be blessed to have him as an officer... until he retires in five years and uses his father's name to get a job.

SIJING QIU

SURFACE WARFARE NUKE

Sijing Qiu (aka "Sij", "Qiu-bacca", "Qiu-Qiu train", "Big-League Qiu", or "Qiu-tatoes") came from the island of Oahu and quickly realized how much she hated the humidity and snow. Once she realized that people didn't wear flip flops and tank tops all time, she swiftly adapted and became one of the premier fashionistas on the east coast. Her semester abroad in China and suspicious lack of fingerprints may support the theory that she's a Chinese spy, but she somehow convinced the Navy to give her a Top Secret clearance and future access to nuclear weapons anyway. From those regretful days in D&B to that one time she tried out for cheerleading to her brief stint on the Women's Rugby team, Sij is not one to shy away from new experiences. She spends her days watching Korean dramas and searching for the next great food adventure. Nothing equals her love of mushrooms, potatoes, and bread, and she can frequently be seen stocking up at the local Fresh Market. Sij can always be counted on to have Asian snacks and people always seem to ask her for soy sauce (I wonder why). Beyond having food, Sij is one of the most reliable people you will ever meet. Though she may not have found a club to stick to, her greatest impact at the Academy has to be her relationships with her friends and the dedication she puts into them. Her constant support at our chess tournaments and field hockey games waving embarrassing, punny posters and gifting us with lame keychains was enough for a bunch of non-Catholics to sit through a 3 hour mass for her. Ever the social butterfly, she never fails to ask how you've been or what you're doing. A SWO mama through and through, the Navy will soon see how lucky it is to have her. Love you Sij and good luck in the fleet'

KATHRYN QUANDT

USMC GROUND

Stone-Cold Quandt is the orphan child of 20th company, originally beginning her Academy career as a member of 2016 before departing to grace the less-privileged with the Word of God. She has never forgotten her roots - and makes sure you haven't either - as she constantly wears her the 2016 class ring that her team gave her as a pity gift for having to bear through USNA for another year. She was very socially active, making many friends in 19th company, Batt Staff, former classmates, and upperclassmen in company. Her small stature and mouse-like barking of commands will strike fear into the hearts of any Marine that has the pleasure of being commanded by her. Just make sure to always remember the four things KQ will never do: smile during drill, admit she's wrong, be late to a formation, and admit her heart will always be with the class of 2017. She's made a great impact on our class and we're all very excited to watch her make a similar impact on her Marines in the Fleet. Yut!

CHOSNEL RAYMOND

USMC GROUND

Chosnel Raymond (aka Sir, MIDN Raymond, Kilo Company, 20th Platoon) will always blow your mind with his never ending multi-part philosophical questions. As a Science major, he enjoys studying homo sapiens in their natural habitat and jotting down notes in his signature red notebook. His proud achievements include passing the semi-annual alpha inspection, being present at restriction, and maintaining a satisfactory QPR with just enough gravy. We are certain that Chosnel's inquisitive mind and thirst for moral debates and discussions will take him far in the Marine Corps.

KATHERINE REYNOLDS

SUBMARINES

Katherine (Kate) Reynolds hails from the greatest state in the union, New Jersey. She enjoys boasting about her driving skills and criticizing all Midwestern corn. She prefers the company of dogs to people, and can be found cuddling with her beloved German Shepard-Pitbull. If she isn't with her pup she's either at Shooters bar or running away to gate 8. Robotics has always been a passion of Kate's. Maybe one day she will invent a top of the line prosthetic, or perhaps just a boyfriend (probably named Jake). This nerd will excel in the submarine force, as long as she can talk to her Mom on the daily. Good luck Love!
-From your heterosexual life partner

KATHERINE RYALL

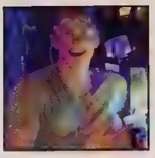
SURFACE WARFARE

Katherine (Katie) Ryall is one of a kind. She can be easily recognized due to her lanky figure, snow white complexion, and "ginger" hair. When she gets out of the chemistry lab, you can find her carving the slopes of Colorado or swing dancing with her people in the geriatric ward. Katie is an old soul and just recently stepped into the 21st century by learning how to use a smart phone. Despite her seemingly quiet demeanor and ability to fly under the radar, her nose-blowing is almost as deafening as an elephant's call. Over the last four years, she has proved herself to be one of the most genuine leaders and will definitely take care of the sailors on her ship, and maybe one day the patients in her hospital. I'll miss you Babe!
-From the roommate you don't love anymore

BRANDON SCHULTZ

SEALs

Brandon "BJ Spike" Schultz will be forever remembered as the guy whose friend Jack shit his pants in an Uber coming back from Buddy's. From a kid who never crushed in high school, he has tried to step up a significant amount by packing a lip one time. Brandon peaked sitting at a tiki bar in Punta Cana, throwing back kamikazes and attempting to seduce a resort maid in broken spanish. Don't let him fool you girls, his sweet talk game is a trap but if you are looking for a husband he will probably propose on the 4th date. Keep up the fake hardo persona and you will have great success wherever you go.



Philip Schwarting

USMC Pilot

Phil "Phyllis" Schwarting loves a good gin and tonic. He knows everything there is to know about RKOs and has a sick jersey game. He only becomes fun to be around come weekend time. Before that, don't approach this motivator during the week. Phil is always down for an awesome time at Virginia Tech, but you will only hear about it when he gets back. Good luck getting an actual invite. The Peach SWO will always feel most at home on spring break and will likely be spotted on life support in Cancun at the age of 40. Keep chasing the great white buffaloes that reside in fancy restaurants in Vermont and your life will not go astray.

Thomas Shaw

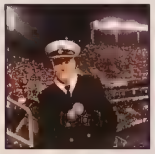
Submarines

Tommy Shaw will be featured on an ESPN 30for30 2-Hour Special "The Ballad of Poor Tommy Shaw." Known for drinking copious amounts of Natty Boh at Acme and McGarvey's, he finds solace confiding in the bartenders Bill and Beans. Very little went this man's way during his tenure at the Academy but he always finds room for hope. Keep chasing your dreams kid, maybe one day.

Mario Smaldino

Naval Flight Officer

Mario Smaldino is known as the founder and CEO of Dino Investment Group and was voted by his classmates as most likely to start a ponzi scheme. This animal enjoys to grunt and makes loud noises in response to questions and won't hesitate to assert his dominance. Will voluntarily take anyone's duty without a complaint. After falling in love with the stock market, this legend loves crushing beers, packing sub-par chaws and making money. We will never forget Dino and his ability to have fun and stay positive. He loves his country and his family and we look forward to servicing a long side him to help protect the United States.



Ryan Stellhorn

USMC Pilot

Ryan Stellhorn "Qui Adora", latin for the Smelly One, will always be remembered for being able to clear a room after every meal. Smelly's admirers will fondly recall his unreal thigh to torso ratio and toad-like grin. Smellwin once threw up out of the window of a Prius on I-10 which about sums up his crushing ability. His inability to drink beer probably stems from the fact that he refuses to touch alcohol 6/7 days of the week. For some reason he has a strange obsession with Kentucky Women's Soccer and will often sit alone in his room streaming games. He was never much of an athlete although he did manage to become president of the Skeet team where his fearless leadership lead to missing the national championship. Smelly's ability to wear cowboy boots, specifically his New Tony Llamas, for every occasion will never be forgotten.

Justice Swett

Surface Warfare

Justice Swett is a master at defending leading scorers on the basketball court and typing up papers in record-time fashion due to her notorious procrastination. She is a finesse queen who can smooth talk her way out of any situation and is in the running for the "most low-key Midshipmen." She is a Tennessee native who has become a food critic—especially when it comes to BBQ—and can milly rock on any block. Justice will be most remembered by her quick Defensive-Player-of-the-Year hands and her kind offerings to give people rides in her unregistered, broken-down Nissan. Her hard work ethic, determination, and genuineness are what will guide her to the highest peaks of success in the future.

Austin Tamez

Submarines

Loves to laugh. Hailing from the great country of Texas, Austin is so proud to be Texan that he named himself after the capitol and is planning on naming his son Dallas. While normally it's rude to stereotype people, Austin makes it easy by embodying every single one, even ones people don't know about. When he's not out in town drinking copious amounts of tequila, Austin is in his room mastering the art of watching Netflix and doing HW (aka nothing) at the same time. He is a great roommate and a friend until he starts playing one of his many unnamed instruments he bought online. A proud conservative, Austin has always championed justice and will easily fit in his namesake city when he finishes his career in the proud "Silent Service" as a 4-star admiral.

We sincerely hope he will grow better taste in cowboy boots and reading materials in the future days to come, guns aren't everything in life bro.

Wyley Taylor

USMC Ground

Wyley A thumb thumb of a man, Wyley the Coyote wears his lucky, never washed, jock strap on "no-friends" Tuesday just to make him more angry. His complete disregard for his body and hatred for all breathing creatures will make him a perfect Marine Officer. However, for Wyley's sake we hope that no physical evolution at TBS lasts more than 20 minutes. During those 20 minutes, Wyley will give you the best damn performance you've ever seen but soon after he will be hobbling around the field chin first. One of the biggest boys on the team, yet he never worked out. Unless you consider running into the goal post over and over again before practice a workout. Regardless, the Marine Corps will be glad to know that when shit goes down, we are thankful to have Wyley on our side. He is one hell of a brother. Enjoy A Fine Day, Wyley.

Connor Wade

Surface Warfare Nuke

D1 Wade's most infamous words, "yeah those are mine," will live forever. Known for being extremely competitive on the lacrosse field, you don't want to get in between this red barron and his drink. Beware of the 10:30 appointment. We can't wait for his wedding with Sarah.

Thomas Wilson

Navy Pilot

After 18 years of being homeschooled, Thomas Jedidiah Wilson finally emerged from beneath the rock he called home, threw on some jorts, and bravely stepped on a plane to arrive at USNA. He probably would have preferred to run, but he's made up the mileage between daily long runs and a much-talked-about stint on the Ultimate Frisbee team. When he isn't rating plebes on the mission of the United States Naval Academy or nerding out over Systems Engineering, you can probably find TJ being the guardian angel of his friend group. Don't let him fool you: TJ is a man of refined taste, refusing to drink anything besides Coke, chocolate milk, or eggnog. We can't decide which is more of a miracle: that our favorite nerd became a Trident Scholar or that he finally realized he should date that girl back in California. We heard that they may even take the big leap and hold hands soon. This compassionate but locked-on flyboy will certainly make a difference not only in the aviation community, but in the lives of everyone he meets.

Muzaffar Abdul Halim

Muzaffar, or Muz, hails from the great foreign country of Malaysia. Muz is a jack of all trades, and master of them all, too. (No seriously) If you ever find yourself lost in a cave, trying to fix your headphones or computer with duct tape and string, or if you need to create a makeshift stove with hand sanitizer and the bottom of a coke can, Muz is your guy. He's an Ocean Engineering major, captain of our great 21st company Fieldball team loves fishing, camping, and traveling. You can find Muz in Prague, in Spain, in America, in Malaysia, and any corner of the world you might be able to think of. The Malaysian Navy isn't ready.

Caitlin Anson

USMC Ground

For someone with an unhealthy obsession with pugs, Caitlin is all but innocent. Her crimes have included cutting in the front of the raffle ticket line (and winning an Ipad), fratting with the dawgs and moving to 22nd Company. You won't meet anyone harder. Caitlin is extremely fun to be with, incredibly caring, and would drop anything the minute you needed her. She also goes home on weekends and always brings back food that Jackie made, so that is what really solidifies her as a keeper.

Akbar Arsiwala

Explosive Ordance Disposal

Known to his parents as Akbar Arsiwala, known to most as AJ, and known to some who have been lucky enough to have gotten to know him for the true American he is as Blackbody, Snake Charmer, Captain Hook, Darkbar, Toaster Strudel, or Turk. To us, he is known as brother. He first showed us his true character when he entered (and won) a public booty-shaking contest in Fort Myers plebe year. Now, he bounces up and down on the dance floor like a buoy in the ocean. He's known to be the best dancer in the bar....and will most likely need knee replacements by the time he's thirty. He hunts in the deep dark sea. He lets nothing stand between him and a nap and has even fallen asleep at a Waka Flocka concert. When he is not working out, checking himself out in the mirror, fixing his hair, getting scared by sneky, or creating a super slick playlist for the next party, you can find him in one room or another in Mother B creating conversation and cheering people up. Even though he loves Indian food, smoothies, and yoga, he is trapped in a never ending war on carbs. But, no matter who you are, where you are, or what you need...he will always be there for you. Sometimes known as the Godfather, Akbar will always go out of his way to take care of his friends. Allahu. AST.

Travis Blue

Navy Pilot

Travis Blue: Travis is from Southern California and plays baseball. Like really, plays baseball. If you knew him you would not think he did anything else except play baseball. If you find him in any clothes that do not say Navy Baseball you my friend have found yourself a rare moment. If you can find anything that Travis likes more than baseball and California Pizza Kitchen you obviously know him better than I do. That being said, Travis is one of the most passionate people in the world and will do anything for you if ask no matter how crazy it may seem. Trustworthy to the core and never afraid to tell you the truth, Travis will back you up and then set you straight immediately following any form of mishap. He is the friend you want by your side at all times and I envy whoever becomes his wing man in the near future.

Gregory Boyer

Surface Warfare Nuke

Experience? Yes, Greg has it. Sailor of the year? Yes, Greg wins it. An aviator at heart, a nuke by experience, and a SWO-N by career. Greg always volunteers his time and resources and is a great friend to anyone who needs it. He truly cares for people, and is a great listener if you need to get something off of your chest. If there is a problem that needs to be solved, Greg is the one who will have the passion and knowledge to solve it. Always true to what he believes, Greg will speak his mind and stand up for what he thinks is right. He truly is a man of conviction, not swayed by public opinion. If you ever need to find him, just look for the badger hat. On Wisconsin!

Michael Brunoforte

Minh Chau

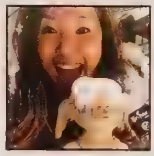
Naval Flight Officer

While not a hipster, Minh Bao Chau is from the city of (Rich-What?) Richmond, VA and will take any and every opportunity to make sure you know that. He is an incredibly charismatic, quirky, and nerdy individual. His love for witty banter is trumped only by his love for the fantastic, cultish TV show "Community." He can bring out the best in people, or the worst in the case of his roommates (which often leads to some intensely awkward and hilarious encounters), at any time and is invaluable to have on your side if you ever get into a heated argument with someone. Being short doesn't stop Minh from reaching for the stars though, as he has demonstrated many times when crushing his friends in Super Smash Bros., Pokemon Showdown, or - er, actually he sucks at any other video game. He loves to run marathons and take naps, but also has a love/hate relationship with the weight room that he's still trying to figure out (it's complicated). At the end of the day Minh is a fierce friend who will be there for you through the good times and the bad - the NFO community is lucky to have him.

Yongsung Cho

Navy Pilot

Descending from a great line of Korean warriors, he has the most successful face of anyone that I have ever met. A true friend and a hard worker, you can always count on Andrew to be true to himself and to you. Yongsung will succeed at most tasks put his way and is one of the most competent people in our class. Andrew dreams of reuniting the Korean peninsula, and if there was a man who could, it would be him. Andrew can also be counted on to motivate any group with a pow-wow. Andrew has one of the most diverse talent sets and is probably the most interesting man alive. "As iron sharpens iron, so one man sharpens another." In his spare time you will either find him reading the bible or watching Chinese pottery documentaries.



Kendall Dang

USMC Pilot

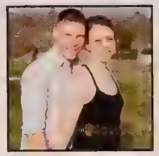
The definition of MoTard (can I say that??) Every week: "Does anyone want to go run to the E course, then the O course, then do 34 minutes of ab work, then ground fight with me?" Responses: Abi: "Yes! I'm in!" Everyone else: "Absolutely not". She's the tougher and more-sane half of the PerDang Gang. Always trying to pick a fight with someone to prove she's not as short as she looks - and trust me, you will lose that fight! Once she was told she was too short to fly, so she added 3 inches to her butt by squatting - true fact! The PerDang Gang, which consisted of just her and Abi, had a tendency to alienate everyone around them with their ability to take a joke and drag it on for far too long after everyone else stopped thinking it was funny.

Kendall also currently serves as the 21st Company Combat Corgi Commander, fearlessly leading a unit of the only people in the company who are as short as she is.

Gabrielle De Leon

Surface Warfare

You may know her as the spicy Latina in 6-0 with a pixie cut who lives by her personal motto: "I'm fun but I like to uphold the standard". You can often find Gabi buying books that she will never read. Her talents include fitting 15 minutes of life into 5 minutes, keeping up with the "hip lingo" of the young folk, and helping and caring for anybody but herself. Twenty years from now, when people look in Gabi's home, they'll probably find a lifetime supply of avocado art, tea, and stacks of books that she still hasn't read. She's a fierce and loyal friend with a ton of quirks... and we love that she STILL can't twerk.



Brian Evertson

Navy Pilot

Hailing from the great corn fields of Nebraska, Brian is a man born to serve. Learning from a young age how to till the ground and harvest corn, Brian naturally grew into a man of great service for his family and country. Also be careful when you eat peanut butter around him, his body needs it more than water. A very competent individual, this man's heart has no bounds. He is the epitome of a servant leader. There is no doubt that his followers will know that ENS Evertson cares for them. Brian has all the traits to make him the recipient of the "best dad of the year award;" no wonder he is getting married as soon as possible. In a world of specialized training and expertise Brian Evertson breaks from the pack. One of the most well-rounded individuals you will ever meet Brian excels in fitness, intelligence and kindness. Truly an officer and a gentleman.

Ryan Gettinger

USMC Pilot

The Sheldon Cooper of 21st Company, Ryan Gettinger is superior to the rest of the human race. With a genius level IQ, it's no wonder he relates to technology about as well as actual human beings. When he's not busy tinkering with gadgets or building useless plastic toys in his room, he can be found playing volleyball far better than his friends, drafting the next crazy new policy for the company, or watching how-to videos in preparation for his takeover of the world. Known for his unwavering commitment to high standards and lack of tolerance for under performance, Ryan may appear like a total robot, however, deep, deep down, he can be a total softie. Unfortunately ladies, he's off the market as he's already married to the Marine Corps. Ryan is an aggressive and intelligent midshipman who we expect to have a tremendously successful career leading Marines in what he refers to as "the finest fighting force the world has ever known."

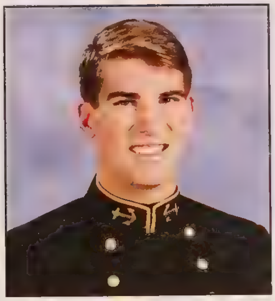
Daniel Gomez

Navy Pilot

A man or grizzly bear? Solely by looking at his chest hair, no one could tell. If manliness was defined by one's hairiness, then no one could be more of a man than Dan. Born in Colombia but hailing from the sunny state of Florida, Daniel is the epitome of a white Hispanic. Probably one of the most selfless people in the brigade, Daniel is never slow to help you with a problem whenever you need it. Dan is very loyal and the sailors under his charge will be very lucky to have someone who will fight for his people. Dan will spice up any wardroom he ends up in with Shakira and salsa. He is very determined and will solve any problem that is posed to him, including that of riding a unicycle.

Patrick Gough

Naval Flight Officer



Despite standing 6'7 and weighing in at 215 pounds, Patrick Gough still may be the biggest lightweight at the Naval Academy. 1 and a half Coronas will have him twirlin around the dance floor, wondering why he hasn't heard a single Miley Cyrus song all night long. When Pat isn't too busy "Partying in the USA", he enjoys winning National Championships on the Club Lacrosse team, planning and coordinating the nations largest round of undergraduate speed dating (NAFAC), being constantly disappointed by the Washington Capitals lackluster playoff runs, making his bimonthly visit to MacD to "lift", trying to convince his friends (and himself) that P-8s are cool and sacrificing hours of sleep to FaceTime with his future wife who only keeps him around because... well I'm still not exactly sure, but hey theyre happy. Pat Gough is the type of friend your mama always wanted you to have. He goes out of his way to make others happier, he is always there for you when you need someone to talk to, he can make you laugh even when you're having the worst of days and he doesn't give up on his friends even when they give up on themselves. So I guess in hindsight, I do see why she keeps him around, he's a really great guy. This August, NAS Pensacola won't just be getting another NFO student, they'll be gaining an amazing person and an even better friend

Nicole Hadler

Medical Corps

Have you ever met someone on God's list? ...Have you met Nicole?! By far the most underrated Midshipman in 21st Company, Nicole worked from behind the scenes and between Chemistry problem sets to change the world. She's kind, caring... and athletic. Also, has anyone mentioned that her sass could burn a house down? Wait, did they ever catch the Bancroft Burner of 2013? Maybe she just served up some truth and the closest flammable objects were literally all of the trashcans in all of the heads all over the yard. After watching Nicole run you would never know that she is also a tennis aficionado Most runners can't handle ball sports (like Caitlin!), but Nicole is cool and calm on the court. That measured demeanor is definitely a skill that she mastered as one of 6 children. So many siblings! So hard to keep track
No Midshipman has ever worked as hard or sustained the war effort against Academics as long as Nicole Hadler. When she attacks and succeeds at Michigan Medical School, she will be the first doctor anyone who knows her will come to. Even for shots! If she pursues pediatrics, which seems a strong possibility, I know where my kids will be going. Probably the Midwest. Definitely to Nicole
The class of '20 will forever be scared of "Ms. Hadler"- by far the meanest detailer, she will be remembered for making them wear quadruple name tags carry triple covers, double canteens, and Ships and Aircraft! And after the plebers went to bed she enjoyed her first legal drink- a can of O'Douls'
Stay strong, warrior of Hippocrates
Go Blue? No. OH-IO!

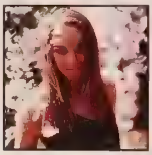
Bryan Harvey

Naval Flight Officer

Bryan journeyed to USNA from Tampa, Florida with great attitude and motivation. He made himself known throughout the whole company by disappearing on the second day of plebe summer by following the wrong company back to Bancroft Hall. His questionable choices continued as he chose to major in Computer Engineering, as well as picking up a minor in Chinese. Bryan is a true intramural warrior in the field, playing sports ranging from dodgeball to fieldball. He is also the true embodiment of a Naval academy leader. His leadership role ranges range from squad leader to the president of the chess club. As the founder of the Naval Academy Chess Club, one should not be surprised by the absurd number of chess books that this man owns. The naval service will be better any so many ways with the addition of this fine young man. Bryan is the man that you want to be on your team.



Kimberley Heller

USMC Ground

Affectionately known as Kimmy, she's famous for her amazing ability to recount a story, making her version last longer than the actual event itself. It was her dream to hold every billet the Academy has to offer, but she fell just short at three stripes and 26 different jobs. When she isn't chowing down on Mission BBQ Mac and Cheese, she's talking about Mission BBQ Mac and Cheese. Always one to take care of others, Kim isn't afraid to hold her fellow Midshipmen to the standard. Her care and honesty has earned her the trust and respect of her peers, who know they can turn to her when a task needs doing. If the slick, crisp hair didn't give it away, Kim will be taking her talents to Quantico upon graduation to bring a bit of fashion sense back to the Corps. She is most looking forward to filling her Camelbak with monster and staying up late for no apparent reason. She's a hard charging and exceptional midshipman who will no doubt serve an influential and distinguished career in the Marine Corps. Take us to the mountain, Miss Heller.

Benedict Immanuel

Surface Warfare

Hailing from the great state of Texas, Ben came to the Academy with the aspirations of making it big. His main activities at the academy include serving as the XO for the Silent Drill Team, as a director in Masqueraders, and studying Japanese. His most popular hobby involved coming up with new ways to test the patience of his roommates, often teaming up with Muzaffar to see Bryan's reaction to provocations. Ben's qualities include an uncommon level of humility and humbleness, a quickness to laugh, and a disarming sense of humor. Whether it's for 5 years or 30, Ben will make a positive impact in the Navy and will represent his country well.

Anlon McGuigan

USMC Ground

"Your Island? You mean Ireland? Yeah, its mine." A true marine by trade and an Irishman at heart. He will grab the necks of his enemies and tear their skin off. A career in the Marine Corps will probably not occur however, due to plans for a massive knife and cobbler shop selling handmade goods. A true servant leader, he isn't afraid of getting down and dirty, whether it's in a dirty recycling bin or a portapotty. If you ever want to be entertained, just have Anlon start rambling. Topics will range from youtube quotes to how he feels about Protestants (he loves them?). Anlon is one of the best friends a guy could ask for, and his young Marines will be lucky to have such a fine officer leading the charge.

Duncan Mollner

Explosive Ordance Disposal

At first glance, Duncan is an adorable man-child with a baby face (ladies love his pearls) and flow that resembles a crashing wave. But, once you get to know him, you realize that a banshee lives behind his two-tooth grin. Be careful, he's liable to emit high pitched noises capable of shattering glass and erupting ear drums. These noises occur when he is irritated, and especially when he loses in FIFA, which is often. If you hear the phrase, "I will rage" or "You tryin to catch these fins?" you should stop whatever you are doing and pray his alter ego D-Mo remains contained within Duncan's body. D-Mo is known to be the best wingman a guy could EVER ask for, just ask his brothers. Sometimes also known as D-lama, Duncan is known for his episodes of profound wisdom. Despite this wealth of knowledge, he still hasn't figured out how to safely combat roll or climb over fences. He's forever on the search for a girl who climbs and has a healthy dose of nutrients. Through everything, Duncan has been a rock in our lives. We can always anchor ourselves to him and never question that he's got our back. We love you brother. AST.

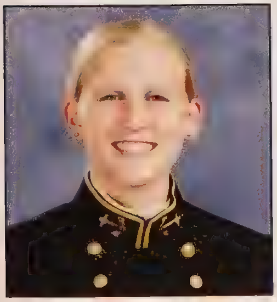
Benjamin Olson

USMC Pilot

Benjamin Wolfe Olson took a deep breath as he yodeled his way down the private ski slopes at the Suisse School for the Affluent, surrounded by happy trust fund babies and royalty of various countries. Ben would seek something a little different than his aloof peers. He hit the jump at the bottom of the slope, expecting to land at Cal Berkeley or another liberal bastion of thought, instead he screwed up the landing and yardsailed (get it?) into the halls of Bancroft, sweeping an unsuspecting Minh off his feet. Despite spending the working days discussing the finer points of political sciences, Ben seemingly could not stop himself involved with the ladies. No matter where he looked, the hall, the sailing team, the Naval Academy Leadership Conference, this star crossed lover was never reciprocated except in his crunchy granola hipster music, As his good friend Carl Trampenau recalls one of his favorite Ben quotes: "It's really hard to have a happy vibe when all I have is sad music." When he wasn't taking a well-deserved nap during his fifth consecutive semester of an unprecedented nine credits, Ben was sailing away from his responsibilities until he eventually ran aground in Chile. Did you know Ben went to Chile? In all seriousness, when Ben wasn't asleep or being generally soft, he was sharing his King Cake, making a sick gumbo as a statement of his questionable Louisiana-ness, or being one of the best damn friends you can be. We love you Ben.



Abigail Perdew

USMC Ground

First Lima Girl, then Company Commander, THEN Batt XO. Who knew? ALL OF US BECAUSE SHE OOZES GREATNESS. Her motivation never ceases to amaze anyone and everyone she meets. She's the kind of woman who could probably get away with doing less... but instead chooses to: listen to audiobooks (romance novels??), use her outside voice AT ALL TIMES, run an obscene amount of marathons, watch Hallmark movies, improve her dodgeball skills (she caught a ball once!!), volunteer for all of the things, prepare for TBS, and make everyone's day a little brighter. Although her distaste for chocolate is highly suspicious and her obsession with babies is a little concerning, you will have to search far and wide to find a more selfless and caring friend. If you are among the fortunate who have her trust and love, she will be there for you through it all, thick and thin. All who are lucky enough to know her and call her a friend are better for it.

JACOB PRICKETT

Navy Pilot

Go Blue. To most people, this small phrase does not mean much at all, but to Jake Prickett it is a lifestyle. We still don't know where Jake is from, although we've narrowed it down to Michigan, Texas, Arizona, Utah, Nevada, California, or maybe Maryland now. Even though he thinks he is a desert cowboy from the Great Lakes, you will never find a dull moment in any conversation, as Jake could get along with anyone, especially the womenfolk. Jake is a notorious ladies' man and could always be counted on to make the girls go wild, whether it was at the ski slopes or the frat parties at the University of Virginia. In addition to his superb social skills, Jake knew how to ski and fly a plane before he could even walk, and he was a born leader, juggling more leadership positions than Kim Heller in his time at the Academy. Jake was born for Pensacola, but there is no way Pensacola is ready to handle this member of the Frat Pack. Whatever Jake ends up doing in life, there is no doubt that he will excel in it.

TERRY RENFRO-PIHUT

Navy Pilot

Terry Alexander Terrence Renfro-Pihut hails from the humble city of Austin, TX. Whoever said that things are bigger in Texas was right, and thankfully Terry almost has a perfect balance of quantity and quality. When Terry isn't screaming unnecessarily at everything in the room (probably why he got moved to 2-0 Firstie year) you can find him at the boat house erging a PR, maintaining his 4.0 QPR in class, or in his rack by 8PM every night. His roommates wish he would stay awake long enough to brush his teeth to maintain good dental health, as it rapidly declined after the Houston game Firstie year. He has been taking care of his hair though, in preparation of becoming a chiller Navy Pilot. It's changed from a little boy's crew cut to the almost out-of-regs mess it is now. With hair worthy of the community, Naval Aviation is blessed to have Terry join its ranks. I'd be your Goose any day, buddy. MBC.

TYLER RIDGEWAY

USMC Ground

A man who believes in the soul, the true facets of love, the hanging curve, high fiber, good scotch, that the novels of Susan Sontag are self-indulgent, overrated crap. He believes Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone. He believes there ought to be a constitutional amendment outlawing AstroTurf and the designated hitter. He believes in the sweet spot, true love's first kiss, opening his presents Christmas morning rather than Christmas Eve and he believes in long, slow, deep, wet hikes in Quantico that last three days. Albeit the only reason he doesn't like the DH is cause, he's a pitcher and they stole all his ABs. Growing up a baseball player Tyler loved fresh cut grass and dirt. In order to keep his close ties with dirt and foliage Tyler is going to Quantico to serve as a Marine until he can get out and relive his glory days by coaching high school baseball. While not your typical Academy dream retirement, his friends can't wait to meet back up and tailgate those small town high school baseball games.

PAIGE RUTKOSKE

Navy Pilot

Paige Rutkoske hails from Beacon NY, aptly named as a beacon of hope across the water from the dark place known as West Point. Her friends at West Point appreciate her family's loose liquor laws, spacious parking lot and their exotic pets (Geckos, Ducks and Bud). While on her semester at USMA she quickly became a big fan of Army boxing. Back at USNA Paige is known or rather not known for her ability to dodge, duck, dip and dive her way around more than just intramurals. When not on the Yard, Paige can be found either behind the wheel or working out. She likes to see how much pain she can withstand by getting up to Shenanigans the night before half Ironmans or not bringing water on 30 milers. Her physical prowess is only surpassed by her ravishing looks and kind and caring personality. She is a mediocre Mid, above average athlete and a phenomenal person. Best of luck in your future.

GEORGE SAKER

Navy Pilot

Have you ever played UNO and had a Draw 4 Wild-Card in your hand? That is George Saker. He's always two steps ahead, keeping track of everything and everyone. This is only possible due to the fact that he sleeps approximately 3 hours a week, tops. George is a complex creature of questionable good looks, great personality, and even better dance moves. His ability to ignite a room with his energy is uncanny and leads to outrageous fun. Just make sure he doesn't trip and 'break' his foot in the process. George is an absolute force of nature. His attitude and laugh are contagious and even intoxicating when this man starts whipping his grand total of 4 hairs around. Despite his incredible intelligence, George has been unable to conquer his archnemesis, spicy food. He knows what it does to him, but he'll never back down. Sneky Saker makes any good story into a great one and is the brother you look for when the going gets tough. His ability to influence those around him is unmatched. We all strive to live with half as much passion as you have. Whaat?! Wuh? AST.

Ryan Waterman

USMC Pilot

Wildcard. This just might be the only word to fully embody just who Ryan Waterman is. A Virginia Beach Lifeguard by trade, Wildcard Waterman took to the snowy hills of the Allegheny Collegiate Ski Conference his firstie year and became a Conference legend. However to us, he had reached legend status far before that. Plebe year he showed us that you can know every rate and still be fun to hang out with, a task the Academy has yet to see duplicated. As a member of the ski team, ultimate frisbee team, a surfer, a freediver, a self-taught guitarist, and an owner of great flow, Ryan had a knack for making the girls go wild and thus was a perfect fit for the Frat Pack. From weekend adventures to UVA to spring break trips to Florida and to countless places in between, he truly has proved time and time again to be a great friend. After struggling with him through four years here, it is hard to think we won't be together in Pensacola, as despite our best efforts we couldn't convince him to abandon his love for eating dirt and forgoing the pit stop at TBS on his way to Pensacola. A friend and a brother, Ryan is gonna do great things regardless of where he ends up in life, both in the Marine Corps and beyond.

Samuel Weaver

Navy Pilot

Sam Weaver, everyone's best guy friend, is amongst the Academy's most competent. His hobbies include leading the most misunderstood team on the yard, "it's a disc, not a Frisbee"; fighting for a less than stellar 3.0 average in our most group 3 engineering major, Ocean Easy; and rooting for the national hockey league's worst playoff team, the Capitals. When he isn't complaining about how sore he is from his last tournament and talking using ultimate frisbee lingo, he can be found in his room working on his hair to look more like his one true love, Luke Bryan. Sam's skinny build and gelled back locks undoubtedly have him set up for great success as a Naval Pilot. He's an intelligent and creative midshipman who has great potential for a long and impactful career in the Navy.

Morgan Young

Surface Warfare

The biggest (self proclaimed) diva to ever walk the halls of Bancroft is finally leaving all of us peasants behind and heading to the land of sun, palm trees, and the brand new USS Omaha. This Baltimore bred, Chipotle loving, Tory Burch wearing queen is ready for all of the new adventures that await her. During the day you'll see her strolling around with a lulu bag in one hand and a Dunkin iced coffee in the other. At night, if you're lucky (aka before her strict midnight bedtime), you can spot her in a booth at ACME Bar and Grille, casually sipping on a skinny alcoholic beverage, surveying all of the drunken bar-goers. For those who wish to see her bust out her trademark shimmy dance move... just buy her a shot or two. Morgan (better known as Moyo) has matured and grown so much throughout her time at the Academy. Both on the lacrosse field and in the hall, she has truly transformed over the years. From a depressed plebe wearing dark nail polish and flirting with youngsters while on watch, to becoming a big bad three striper, this girl has turned into one heck of a midshipman. She has always been there for us and is going to make an amazing officer. We will miss our tiny five foot human and know she is going to kill it in San Diego. No more fake tans for this goat!!! Just call her SWOYO from now on. We all we got.

Adam Carnahan

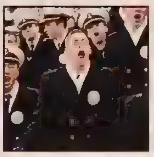
USMC Pilot

While some of you may recognize Adam "Asadahan" Carnahan from his numerous wise guy remarks, all of you know that he is a proud Texan native of Lubbock, TX. If not don't worry, he'll tell you all about it. When he's not crying or screaming over the fate of the Cowboys, he can be found deep in thought between watching anime cartoons and episodes of Breaking Bad. He's an avid meme reader and Facebook surfer with a sense of humor that may be an acquired taste. Adam is also well know for his passion for video games. No not playing video games, but instead watching YouTube videos of grown men playing video games and revealing super cool glitches and up to date news on the latest releases. While some of you may remember Adam as a super laid back company mate, the members of 4th squad will never forget just how much of a JOE Adam was over plebe summer. Thank God he got better....well sort of. At the end of the day however, it can most definitely be said that Adam is a genuine guy, driven by his friends and determined to give 110% in everything he does, and that the U.S. Marine Corps will gain an excellent officer this May. Enjoy A Fine Day, brother.

Nicholas Co

Cryptologic Warfare

When asked for the submission for this bio, Nick declined to respond due to the sensitive nature and PII that would inevitably be contained in a biography. Therefore, out of respect for his wishes, I aim to keep this appropriately vague. Nick is best known in company for being the most motivated non-Marine, for being the guy you go to when you can't figure out how to get the wardroom WiFi to work, and for giving himself nicknames like "one-beer Co." To the people who sought his mature advice, he acted as: financial advisor, ethical leadership advisor, time-management specialist, fitness guru (especially endurance training), someone you'd go to for recommendation of a good book, but NEVER as someone you'd go to for dating advice. He loves the outdoors, loves to travel, loves his job, and above all loves his family and his people. Nick, you're going to continue to excel everywhere you go. I'd say that we'll keep in touch, but that's not really up to me since I know you're going to be intentionally hard to find. So I just ask that you find us every once in a while, we'll have a couplea bevvies.



Samuel Coons

Submarines

Ask Sam to come out with you and he'll probably tell you he will "after this raid." He can often be found browsing Reddit, or playing RuneScape on one screen while watching people play SmashBros on the other. One of the few nocturnal mammals in Annapolis, his mornings often began with "I don't wanna get up" and his evenings were punctuated with "Yeah I should probably do some work"; he had a brief window of productivity between 0100 and 0300. One of USNA's greatest mysteries is how he found time to pass his classes. Originally hoping to be a Navy Pilot, he took the news of going Subs well... his bonus is in constant depletion as he puts the owner of Fleet's kids through college. His honor comes first, and was his tragic flaw youngster year when he almost missed Spring Break for an illicit tattoo. You can't get him to clean his goddamn desk, or to put his clothes in his closet, but ask him to scan you through gate 3 and he's your man. He may or may not be remembered in 22nd company, but he will certainly be remembered in 19th, where he spent a majority of his time. Semper deep.

Olivia Czerewko

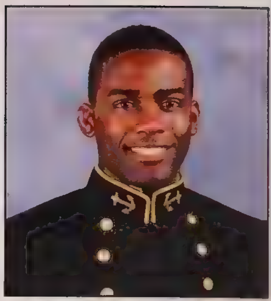
Navy Pilot

The sassy yet fabulous Olivia Czerewko has a presence that is impossible to ignore. She is involved on the Women's Crew Team, Catholic Choir, and Labyrinth. In 6125, she is known as mom. She is also known for forgetting her train of thought every 30 seconds and waking her roommates up from naps because she forgets they are sleeping. But seriously, where would they be without her bringing food and medicine when they are sick, or telling them to brush their hair to stop crying? Seriously, Liv is one of the most compassionate and kind people you will ever meet. And her boyfriend Jason, who can be seen frequently roaming around 6-1, waiting for Olivia to finally be ready, shares her kindness and compassion. Olivia's never ending sassiness over Plebe Summer is also something to note. Her admiration for Margaret Gilroy is something everyone in the company will always remember, in fact she followed right in her footsteps to become Lima Company Commander over Plebe Summer! Whenever Olivia gets knocked down, no matter how big the person is, she always stands right back up. (Watch out for the David Smith's out there). Olivia is going to be a Navy Pilot, where she is no doubt going to succeed, and bring her own perseverance, and artsy-hipster spin to the community. Keep ballerina twirling through life Liv, we love you!

Ariadna Dang

USMC Ground

Aria Dang is a California girl, but NOT a Cali girl because there is a difference. Aria hails from Golden State, and, like her hometown of Livermore (yes, the National Lab), enjoys a nice combination of science and wine in her life. When she's not strumming away at her gorgeous cello, rowing (aka crying because of) crew on the Severn, or getting annoyingly good grades, you'll likely find her chowing down on food or sleeping because that's all she has left to do with her extra time! Although she makes it look easy, Aria is a very hard worker and is as tough as nails. She's one of those friends who you know will always have your back (no matter the crime) and, on most days, is very non-judgmental. Aria is a rock, but not the kind that sinks your boat; she's the kind that you hold on to. We couldn't ask for a better friend. Semper Fi.



Aaron Dupree

USMC Ground

While his smile and gleeful gallop of a walk may fool you, Aaron "Durpee/Kevin Hart/Frozone/A-Aron" DuPree is no sugar cookie. He currently leads the company in amount of missed formations and hours spent in front of a mirror checking himself out. Much to his dismay, he still can't get any waves in his hair. Aaron is a big fan of driving cars, but only if they are not his and belong to underclass. Taking a quick nap on a long day? Forget about it. You can count on him to be the Alarm you never wanted. The Flint, Michigan native can be spotted wearing khaki joggers and his infamous fake Jordans. They are plastic, we checked. A-aron's below par rapping abilities, constant tardiness, inability to check his emails, and countless effort to wake his roommates and neighbors up from naps, will surely be missed. Aaron will fulfill his destiny of being a Marine Corps officer where just like at home in flint, he will have another opportunity to drink dirty water in the field. The Marine Corps is lucky to have such a physical beast, whose physical work ethic is second to none. Can honestly say he has made our time here awesome and is man of true character. Best of luck in your career A-aron, hopefully you'll have enough money saved to buy real Jordans in the near future.

Christian Forbush

Navy Pilot

Sith Lord" Forbush is the embodiment of a lover, a mediocre fighter, and the guy who will "try anything once as long as cool/expensive gear goes with it." He'll swoon you with his deep, melodic Russian, especially when he pairs it with a guitar. Watch out though, he stings. Yoga guru, downward dog master, and bar-tender charmer, Chris' love for people, all forms of physics, fellow mids, and grooming products is unrivaled. This well-dressed philosophic legend would give anything, including his car, to anyone. His days of immediately sitting up in the morning are over as he transitions to that glorious 8-hour of pilot rest. The understanding of quarks, gravity, and time-space is sure to keep him afloat in the sky as he heads to P-Cola. If you can't find him in a cockpit, he is sure to have grown a hippy, peace-loving beard complete with pony tail.

Jacob Gesling

USMC Ground

How's the cow? One will never receive a more detailed answer than if they ask Jacob Otis, yes OTIS, Gesling. As a farming man, Gesling began his academy career with social abilities built for cows, then began his love life.Though some see him as a "brute", Jake is a man of many talents including but not limited to: guitar, singing, and Walter-Whiting his own pre-workout. If you ever need advice or help Jake will be there for you, just like the youngster girls are ALWAYS there for him. His skill in the weight room is unmatched, but his home, Kansas, is a flat land, which explains the plateau Jake has hit since youngster year. Despite all these talents, Jake remains ever humble. He is, in every way, a good man, and I have no doubt he will go on to find great success in the Marine Corps

Scott Gibson

Surface Warfare

Scott is a hard working, intelligent, handsome, and gentle young man. He has a very active mind that is constantly spinning it's wheels and is always trying to make the world around him a better place. We know this by what he tells us while he is sleeping. Scott enjoys perfect haircuts and sunny afternoons of tennis. Scott also spent large amounts of time splashing around at the boathouse, where he was able to be the team captain despite losing the team vote. He has managed to spill more drinks on himself as an adult than as a child. He also is a recent subscriber to Rosetta Stone in order to continue to woo the women in Rota, Spain. Scott was ranked number one after plebe summer but the detailers forgot to realize that Scott was breaking the uniform code by having extreme amounts of dark chest hair protruding from his uniform. Scott rarely runs but somehow manages to run sub-9 on each PRT that he takes. He is highly gifted academically and looks wise.

Kassandra Harriott

Surface Warfare

Kassi's got heads turning everywhere she goes, whether she's singing her heart out with the Gospel Choir, dancing with AfroBeats and Navy Dance, or painting the town out in DTA. This NAPster likes to channel her inner Picasso at Wine and Paint and has a painting for every season of the year—and an empty wine bottle to match! A pioneer of the second floor of Buddy's nightclub, this bombshell is the life of the party. It is rumored that she once had perfect weekend attendance for an entire semester at Dillos! During the day, Kassi enjoys brunch, bottomless mimosas, and getting her nails done. Don't be fooled though, she takes her dedication to the military very seriously and is going to crush it as a littoral combat ship officer down in sunny Florida. Fair winds Kassi...don't forget about your day one chicas!

Michael Hur

USMC Pilot

"He's seen you around, and he's not impressed." Not afraid to tell people how it really is, Mike is always ready to deflate the egos of "30-year old" women at Middleton Tavern. You know how his week is going to go based on the Packers game on Sunday. Olivia Munn doesn't even love Aaron Rodgers as much. As the resident company garbage disposal technician, he has a remarkable ability to relocate trash into the back of Paul's Tahoe; not his car, not his problem. "Cars don't hit people" but then again, "not my car." He's not a "little bitch boy," you are. The only guy proud to 3rd wheel because of all the perks with none of the arguments, he may throw you under the bus just to see the show. Even though he's never flown a plane, he'll excel as a Marine Pilot and somehow find himself in the fam biz of being doctor.

Dane Hurley

Submarines

Dane Johnathan Hurley was born and raised in the south of Indiana. He grew up as the eldest sibling of his sister Drayton and brother Dawson, mentoring them both in the realm of school and sports. Dane is easy-going, a fan of classic rock bands Pearl Jam and RHCP, and enjoys travel and German beer. He has been selected to serve as a Submariner and has no remorse about leaving the sun behind for a couple months at a time. Dane hopes to grow out his lettuce, wear his favorite Adidas running shoes, and perhaps even procure some painfully mediocre facial hair on his first deployment. His convictions to serve underwater stem mainly from the desire to wear coveralls, the closest uniform the Navy has to sweatpants. Today, Dane can be seen reading a good book, ordering a beer at Middleton Tavern, and often enjoying a nice piece of cheesecake.

Ryan Kelly

USMC Ground

What Ryan Kelly lacks in speed, endurance, sense of humor, good looks, and athletic ability... he makes up for in meatheadedness. There have been many nights that he was directly responsible for my procrastination, but I would not trade any of those nights for anything in the world. He has been an incredible team mate to me, as well as company mate. Next year during the lacrosse season there will be a small part of me missing when he is off at TBS training to lead Marines. He will be sorely missed, and not forgotten. Farwell to "Jelly" Kelly.

Bridget Kennedy

Surface Warfare

When this hippie sun child isn't chilling next to her cats and eating sponge candy at home on her shrinking island in Buffalo, NY, she's chilling with her girls at Bob and Barb's and sharing the latest gossip about Blake Lively. Our beloved Upstate New Yorker (practically Canadian) has a (fake) mane of gold and a heart larger than a glass of cab at Red Red Wine Bar. Bridget's favorite pastimes include laughing at pictures of her gay cats, enjoying company dining outs, and talking (crying) on the phone with her bff Steph Kennedy. Before she went on a semester abroad to Australia in the fall of her firstie year, BK had a strict bedtime of 10 pm every night and could write a flawless 13 page lab report in approximately two and a half minutes while simultaneously binge watching both Criminal Minds and The Office. When our Bridget Bell returned from the Land Down Under, her wild side was unleashed and the 10 pm lights-out time existed no longer, and we found out that she had a new love of bungee-jumping and kidnapping koalas. Bridget is our ray of sunshine...and when she isn't, her closet definitely is! We can't imagine anyone else who could put up with Olivia-squared and we love you as a roommate, friend, and sister. Have fun in Rota ya little daredevil!

Gabriel Larios

Navy Pilot

Go out and do great things, Gabe. Never stop trolling uring his time at the Naval Academy, Gabriel Larios was the resident 22nd Company troll. From his humorous antics to his eclectic desk ornamentation (including objects such as Navy SEAL paraphernalia and a miniature baby doll), Gabe was capable of making everyone around him laugh. His greatest accomplishments include qualifying for the Boston Marathon (which he ran three times), completing a deployment in Chile during a semester abroad, remaining loyal to the Washington Redskins, and almost winning the Intramural Dodgeball Championship. Unfortunately, Gabe was not impeccable in one specific area, as he miserably failed in his efforts to conceal his affection for one particular company-mate. As the OG dark-sider, he proudly demonstrated that you can, in fact, find love in a hopeless place. However, his greatest contribution to the Naval Academy was his revolutionary approach to school work, which he encapsulated in his motto, "Quit trollin', it's study time!" I am confident that Gabe will adopt this approach during Flight School, enabling him to excel as a Naval Aviator.

Go out and do great things, Gabe. Never stop trolling!

Derek Mann

Naval Flight Officer

D.Mann, the great pioneer of the General Science major for the class of 2017, came to the Naval Academy via San Antonio, Texas. Known by the drags as the "fine ass black man". Derek can always be found in Jimmy's chair every Wednesday down at the barber shop getting an edge up the shape of the McDonald's arches. On the bright side, his classmates who are going SWO would love to drive their ships right through Derek's luscious waves. You can either expect Derek to be pursuing excellence or relationship advice from his peers. Derek played football his plebe year, but decided to stop to focus on trailblazing through the Naval Academy's rigorous remedial academic programs. However, with his great decision making and work ethic, Derek should be at Top Gun in no time after he commissions as a Naval Flight Officer and heads to Pensacola, FL. Derek played an instrumental role as CDO. Witnesses say he brandished a cake knife at a hairless CMOD when he wasn't fulfilling his duties and subsequently caused the death of an innocent ping pong paddle. Derek will always be remembered for his compassion for others, willingness to lend a hand at any time, and the inspiration that he stirred in many underclass midshipmen.

Molly McAuliffe

Surface Warfare

Dorothy...I'm sorry...I meant to say Molly McAuliffe is a genuine soul. Anyone fortunate enough to get to know her is truly blessed. Molly hails from Kansas and believes that there is no place like home. When having a bad day, she prays for a tornado to take the evil witch away (parades). Unlike the Wizard of Oz, instead of ruby red slippers, she wears cowboy boots and holds a membership card for the NRA. She has a great sense of humor (her roommates know this well). She gives off a smile at every moment, but one needs to watch out for the smile before she puts someone in a choke-hold or faces her in boxing. She'll knock you out. Truly, she is a genuine soul and would be greatly missed. The USS Princeton is lucky to take on such a gal. The USS Princeton will be her new Kansas. There is no place like home.

Kevin McKelvey

Navy Pilot

Kevin McKelvey is the worlds luckiest man. He has snaked his way out of more trouble than any other mid to religiously frequent DTA. He could have successfully completed his time in the Annapolis Penitentiary System without any demerits but he decided to uphold the standard and turn himself in for his stupid moto tattoo. Kevin is such a lucky bastard that he even weaseled himself out of being sub drafted and returned to Navy Pilot. He is every girlfriend's favorite friend, he is a Hong Kong born Filipino with an Irish last name, he is luck'er than the rest of us put together.... May it never run out Kev.

Olivia McQuade

Naval Flight Officer

"So, what do you want to talk about?!" Olivia McQuade loves to chat! If she's not FaceTiming one of her sisters with her otherwise non-existent New York accent, then she's probably offering a listening ear to a friend. While she may be from New York, Olivia loves to get in touch with her native roots. She believes that she's equal parts Irish, Spanish and Arab, and she has the language skills to prove it! Olivia is a big fan of Chick-fil-a! You can find her every weekend eating a salad (she likes to be healthy), fries and a milkshake. An avid reader, Olivia always has a copy of her Bible with her. She even leads her own Bible study and is a great mentor to so many. Olivia's love and compassion represent her love and faith in God. She can't go to the mall without stopping in at Papyrus and buying a new set of stationery. She loves to get new paper so she can share encouraging messages and Bible verses with others. Her compassion is also matched by her stinging sarcasm and sass. Everyone who meets Olivia loves her. This is evident by the line of suitors that are always outside her door. Whoever wins her over will be the luckiest guy in the world. But until then the Naval Aviation community has her heart!

Logan McQuerry

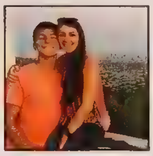
USMC Ground

He's easily the best looking guy in the class of 2017. Logues, Logueeee, Loagy, Loagy bear, and Queer-dog are all names that he will respond to. If you haven't found a pint of Jim Beam in your car somewhere is he really your friend? The only person to ever run a better PFT than PRT, if you look down and see a trail of puke on the track you should probably run faster. If you ever find him saying something mean, you'll be sure to find him apologizing the next second. If it weren't for his UK hat you'd think the guy was from Canada. Sorry. Don't ask him what he did with his 2nd class loan, the man of many words only says ecodiesel. Sorry. He has a documented history of leaving girls stranded on the dance floor; known for E.T.'ing, if he tells you he's going to the bathroom at a bar, he's probably already in Bancroft. See you in the treeline brother.

Charlotte Meyer

Surface Warfare

Charlotte Meyer, known as Charlie to the lucky few, "the fish" to those who swim against her, and plain-ole Champion to everyone. Born in the potato state of Idaho, she is a potato enthusiast who longs for the day when potatoes become Paleo. She is a world class swimmer, and with her gills she can free Willy (you know, the whale) any day of the week. There are no obstacles that can stop her from reaching her goals, such as going to the Olympic Trials or winning multiple Patriot League Championships. Just like her motto "just keep swimming" her contagious laugh lights up a room and never fades away. Known for creating themed days of the week, she can be seen wearing a hat every Wednesday, or teaching everyone French on Fridays. A true people person, she is genuine and kind to everyone she meets. When not working on her minimal Operations Research homework, she can be found singing in her room or watching cute cat videos. A true nerd who wears mom jeans, she is a hippie at heart. She selected the John Paul Jones out of Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, and the SWO community could not be luckier to get an officer like her.



Miguel Nava

USMC Pilot

Miguel Nava is a native of the second best state that borders Lake Michigan. He says he is a Michigan fan but can be seen at all times wearing a Michigan State polo. In June of 2013 he reported to USNA half asleep. When he's not trolling around the golf course, there's a good chance you'll find him in his rack. In fact, he once slept 21 hours in a 24 hour period. When he's not in his natural habitat of Hisrackistan, he can be found in his chair, half undressed, distracted by something on Facebook. No one will ever understand how someone who gets ready so quickly can take so long to get ready. There's only really one thing left to say... Nava Nava, Nava Nava, hey hey hey. Navaaaaaa . And that's why it's called Euchre. Your infectious smile and luscious locks will be missed. Catch ya on the flip side brother.

Oliver Ni

Navy Pilot

From start to finish, the most disciplined, clean Midshipman you will see in this century. You'll know he's around when the settings in your car get screwed with, or he slams everything but a female as he walks in the room. Want help on your engineering homework, you'll get help, at max volume. Already having memorized the Blue Angels routine word for word and the ability to remember your mom's social, this guy will no doubt make it far as a squared away pilot. He has an uncanny ability to eat the amount of five people, and lose weight. He once visited the temple of MacD, but realized it was a futile battle. Some find the fact that he is a one beer queer a curse, but in reality it's a blessing.

John Ohear

Surface Warfare

Jack "I wish I was on Red Army" O'Hear hails from New England in a small town called Walpole, Massachusetts. Due to his calm, disguised demeanor relating to sports, most people do not know that Jack is an avid Pats and Bruins fan. You can tell how good of a hockey player he is by the number of NHL players he claims to have played with. Upon induction day, Jack "Garden Gnome" O'Hear arrived completely naked just so he could make some "at my house" jokes to his detailers. He began playing Navy Hockey his freshman year, and obviously lit up the league. He battled a "shoulder injury" his senior year and made frequent visits to the athletic trainer, but he prevailed and led the team to a successful season...NOT. He can often be found standing stationary in gardens, he really enjoys being next to the poinsettias. He is a model Midshipman and had an active role in his company as squad leader, student-athlete, and three year SAPR Guide. We wish Jack-O the best on the USS Comstock. BITFO San Diego!

William Purdom

Surface Warfare

Hunting Bigfoot? Looking for the missing link? Look no further. With similar abilities to an opossum, Billy Purdom is able to pass out on command when faced with adversity. If ever in need of a job, he is a shoe-in for the next Discovery Channel mascot. On a similar note, some may believe his shower was once clogged from chest hairs, but others know what really happened. Looking for Billy? Two good places to check are BMU and Captain's Row. With many abilities like an innate capacity for critical thinking, logical argument, and three semesters of martial arts he is sure to succeed as a future SWO and husband. Yes that's right, by the time you read this, Billy Purdom himself will in fact be the first one of us to get hitched. A lucky girl and a fuzzy man

Kevin Reinemund

USMC Ground

My name is Kevin Reinemund and I have always wanted to serve. When I am not hunting I am probably skiing, playing basketball or playing ping pong. I also greatly enjoy taking long naps in the afternoons and playing video games with my roommates. I feel bad for my roommates because in a few weeks they will have to move away from my highly organized, hygienic, and quiet mannered self. I have loved my time here at the Academy and am proud to graduate with everyone else in the class of 2017 and serve this great country.

Christina Rine

Surface Warfare

Christina Rine has one of the kindest hearts that the world has ever known. No matter her plans or schedule, she will perpetually have time to stop and talk with her friends. Always ready with open ears and an open heart, there is absolutely no one better to talk out a problem with than Christina. She is simply a joy to be around. Christina's laughs have often disrupted studious midshipmen in the library, but it's no problem, they need to lighten up anyway. Of her 26 years of life, Christina spent 3 in the Navy as an ET before she was accepted to USNA. She loved all that time in the Navy so much that she'll be graduating as a civilian and attending grad school instead of BDOC. Christina begins her mornings with approximately 10 Cubanos because at that age, you need all the help you can get. An undercover rebel, Christina once DOR'd + returned within a month, never completely read a book for her capstone class, and she served restriction for her inability to park. But it's ok, she needed the street cred. If Christina isn't volunteering or praying in the chapel, she can be found staring off into the distance pondering life's mysteries. Or maybe she just forgot where she was headed because of her old age. No one's ever quite sure. Wherever life takes this lady, she will be one heck of a goofy blessing.

Drake Sadler

Naval Flight Officer

Where is he going in that nice car? To steal your girl, that's where. Despite his skill at creating awkward situations with his roommates (see above), Drake Sadler has been an excellent addition to 22nd Company. People come to USNA to make an impact, and no one has made as much of an impact as Drake Sadler has on either the buttons of his xbox controller or his pillow. From his comedic timing and snarky sense of humor, to the immense work ethic displayed while working on his capstone project (and no where else) he has been a valuable member of our company. People forget lots of the moments that happen over the four years at USNA, and though Drake may have forgotten it already, his friends will never forget the legendary Virginia Beach trip, or him.

Grant Schuster

Surface Warfare

A late addition to room 6108 ("The Hunk Cave"), Grant might be the best free agency pick up in all of Naval Academy history. In his past life, Grant enjoyed listening to Dave while de-twigging the Crease Crankers in Vineyard Vines or LuLu Lemon attire. Grant is from a beautiful part of Atlanta but seems to relate more with the ATL that we hear about in rap music. The self-proclaimed George Clooney look-a-like now dabbles in the stock market and prepares himself for life on the West Coast. His dream is to drive an Audi A4, blasting Future with a Californian instagram model in the passenger seat with her hair blowing in the wind staring at him while he leans back and drives the fast car with one arm. He has set the standard for room noise levels as it is best not to even open a door while this hunk is struggling to complete his daily four hour nap. Although he competed in the Heavyweight division following Christmas Break of first class year, Grant is "back and better than ever" as he sets new PR's every time he graces the Yard with a 3-mile jog, in a journey to obtain the abdominal "V."

Cade Warlick

Navy Pilot

Cade Warlick has wanted to be a pilot since the time he could say "weugfeliybvejbvkejr". As a child Cade often ran around the house with his arms outstretched making plane noises. When asked what he wanted to be he would respond with "I wanna be a plane". It only took until senior year of high school for him to realize he wanted to be a pilot...not a plane. Now he can fulfill his dream of becoming a pilot as he journeys down to Pensacola for flight school. Cade is a nice guy (most of the time), he is always willing to listen (sometimes), and is always willing to be somewhere without hesitation, back talk, or compromising (never). Cade is deeply loved by his brothers in Christ and will be sincerely missed. If you don't know Cade, just look for the guy who always has a smile on his face. That's not Cade. Look for the guy beside him with his arms crossed, making fun of the first guy for how much he smiles. That's Cade.

Paul Weatherford

USMC Pilot

22nd Company's resident grandpa. Rumor has it that Clint Eastwood based his character on Paul when he filmed Gran Torino. Hates Christmas, birthdays, and the Easter Bunny, and thinks that most enjoyable activities are stupid, but as soon as he gets 2.3 beers in him he's all smiles. Fiscally responsible, he is always on the hunt for good deals in the alcohol section of the NEX. Has an uncanny ability to sleep anywhere and everywhere after a night on the town, and is most famous for utilizing Fleet as a personal hostel. Known for starting homework assignments a semester early, he always "has shit to do" until he calls his friends 30 minutes later asking where they went. Probably the only mid from Arkansas to ever make it onto God's list, despite being an ESL student. Paul was always destined for submarines, but settled for the Marine Corps instead. Likely to be the shortest flag officer since Napoleon. Once woke his roommate up at 0200 by producing some of the most vile farts that rival the lethality of VX gas... stay away from 1% milk in the field, Grandpa.

Daniel Wild

USMC Pilot

Daniel Robert Wild, who goes by Dewey Finn, entered the Naval Academy with 32 real teeth and will leave with 27 real teeth. Dan grew up in a Navy family and has lived all over the US of A. Choosing a life of military service was an easy one for Dan as he follows in the footsteps of his father and older brother. Throughout his four years at the Academy, he could consistently be found in DTA at the Fox's Den with Tinder dates, in his room scrubbing the skid marks out of his underwear, or at the BSC working on his one rep bench press max. Dan is a big fan of Franzia white wine, lagers, and skin-tight pants. He will drive his super-glued BMW down to Quantico after graduation. After completing his six months fighting heat exhaustion in the forest, he will head to Pensacola with 200 SPF sunscreen and avoid the sun, which he calls, "el Diablo."

Jacob Wirz

Surface Warfare

Jacob Wirz (2013 to Present) was and always will be a Naval Academy legend. A number of his outstanding traits include, but are not limited to: his semiprofessional agility during intramural dodgeball, his superhuman strength and coordination in the squash courts, his ability to keep a girlfriend for three years despite refusing to ever buy her flowers, and his capacity for taking 23 credits in order to complete the entire Economics major in one semester while somehow still pulling a civilian once a week. Some would say Jacob is strictly an academic, but I respectfully disagree. Notorious for training only the Tuesday before the Marine Corps Marathon and then tapering for the rest of the week, Jacob has rightfully earned the respect of fellow runners. Some would say that Jacob Wirz is on track to be the CNO, but as a roommate, I can confidently say Jacob is instead on track to saving the world. According to Jacob, "We are on the brink of disaster," but I am certain that he has the solution. Jacob's work ethic and dedication are unmatched; however, don't let his Southern charm and million dollar smile fool you. J-Money is confident that if his time as a Surface Warfare Officer does not work out, the release of his original smash hit, "Straight out of Navy," will guarantee him a luxurious life of fame and fortune in the Hamptons.

William Worth

USMC Ground

Born on February 1st, 1995, William Thomas Worth, Jr. had been quietly preparing to fulfill his destiny his entire life until his first class year. Will finally got his chance and rose to the occasion in a fantastic fashion as QB1 for the mids. Previous to his spotlight and highlight reel of a firstie year, Will threw a 100% completion rating through his 2/C year, but the one completion was to the other team. Although William has proved himself on the football field and in the classroom, he still internally struggles with being known as "Joe Worth's Little Brother." Despite this downfall, we are confident that he will be make a phenomenal Marine Corps Officer as Will plans to bring his perfected, beast-mode stiff arm to the fight against global terrorism.

Irma Aganovic

USMC Ground

Irma Aganovic can be most accurately described as a motherly, old soul trapped in a 24 year old's body. Infused with the power of her spirit animal, a Bosnian Babushka, Irma's healing powers put your mother's to shame. Her ability to perform feats such as curing a headache with a lemon have earned her the title of "Mother Irma." As someone who almost always takes on too much responsibility, Irma is often the go-to adult in a group. Though she has a soft spot, (reserved mostly for horses), Irma is a very passionate, fiery individual. Her friends know that no matter how bad things get, Irma will ALWAYS HAVE SOMETHING TO SAY ABOUT BOSNIA. She is a loyal friend and probably the best, most resourceful person to have on your side in a time of need. Just remember, hell hath no fury like an Irma scorned.

Samuel Bascom

Surface Warfare

1st round draft pick in the ladies' hearts, the Sam Bascom is an offensive powerhouse - on the field of soccer and in the field of love. In the latter field, Sam's defense falls inexplicably short. Sam mimics his favorite show, The Bachelor, by falling in love in 1 short week. Some may call him a romantic, others a starry-eyed, pre-teen girl. However weak his defense is, all competitors fall short of his love for his mother, his hair, and online shopping. He has put his economics major to good use by filling two closets with compulsive, albeit stylish, online purchases. Other examples of Sam's economically savvy habits include selling online buys second-hand to his roommates at higher than retail price, mooching food from literally everyone, and buying chick's boots. Unfortunately for Sam, he may need that Econ major now that professional soccer isn't panning out. We really hope that Sam doesn't read this, he's known for not being able to take a joke. We are excited for Sam to take his game out to the west coast – San Diego isn't ready for him.

Randall Beck

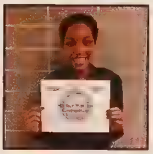
Naval Flight Officer

Randy is a quiet leader born on the streets and hardened by a life in the quaint suburbs of Philadelphia. Known to internalize, he strategically calculates all of his moves in DTA. A national champion, Radon has cemented his legacy in Halsey field house. With true heart on the court, his body will give up before he does. Along with his illustrious squash (not a veg) career he is an accomplished golfer and tennis player. Through his future career in the Navy, his true calling will begin upon retirement and commissioning to the nearest country club.

Eric Boynton

Explosive Ordance Disposal

Born on the crest of a wave and rocked in the cradle of Zeus, this Greek god is known for having the best pecs in the west built from breast feeding through his teenage years. Able to diffuse any situation, Eric's childish smile will take him really far in the EOD community... After skating through the academy with pristine grades, Eric also always looked as though he was on skates after two beers out in town. Eric is ready to dive into his next training in Panama City, but we're still worried he's too sheltered for the PCB spring break crowd. While struggling to juggle failing romantic pursuits, Eric can be found binge watching TV shows on questionable websites, wrestling Kevin, soaking in self-glory/pity (depends on his cycle), or attempting to rival Tony as guest lecturer. As an avid member of the online bumble dating community, his lack of success could be contributed towards his nonchalant attitude, OR the settings may just be set to the wrong gender. With not quite the fashion sense of his trendy younger brother, not quite the intelligence of his older brother, the work ethic of all his roommates combined, and a membership in the exclusive super frog club Eric probably won't go far in whatever he pursues.



Alexis Brown

Surface Warfare

Alexis Brown is an energetic and loving person when you get to know her. Her smile and personality fills up the room making everyone comfortable in any situation. Her work ethic is unmatched when given a task to complete. She is always willing to help any and every one that she possibly can. Alexis is possibly the most thoughtful and caring person I know at the academy as she puts her class mates and others first. You can always trust her judgment and word in every situation she is thrown into. I have no doubt that her reliable and caring personality will make her a successful SWO!

Anthony Burns

USMC Ground

Tony will remember the Naval Academy fondly from on top of his unmerited high horse; a horse only brought down a size or two by mares, young(st)er phillies, and even a stallion or two - all among a laundry list of others. Beside these "equestrian" pursuits, Tony will be remembered for his absurd amount of eye-contact and the more refined version of himself that Skypes with his parents. Tony always persevered and tried harder in the face of adversity or when the answer was "No". For example, an unreciprocated L-word can take a lot of a man, but only 10 pounds out of Tony. In the wake of these struggles, Tony was desperate for companions. Thus, he persevered through 3 long years on the triathlon team without every practicing, racing, or being on the team. Tony also persevered through bouts of sickness, fighting through yellow fever (plus fevers of all races). This perseverance may be tested as his disposition to share just how much more cultured and worldly he is than you meets the 'merica of the Marine Corps. Although we've tried to oppress it, Tony has let his inner yut-yut escape and we know that he'll meet with much success bringing some class to the Corps.

Claire Clark

Navy Pilot

Born in Seattle, raised to be Minnesota nice and making a pit-stop at Greystone before attending the Academy, Claire "Bear" Clark exhibits many talents. She is an avid hockey player, coffee connoisseur, and bird whistler. Claire's raised eyebrows made her aware on the ice; some might view her expression as looking perpetually surprised. She found the secret to performing well in physical evolutions was minimal sleep the night before. Claire's outstanding fitness is attributed to Whole Foods and Ceremony Coffee's excellent lattes and toast. On the road, Claire is a devoted Yelp user. Her support for locally owned businesses is a small indication of the caring character Claire embodies. As you venture to new heights, your friends and family will continue to love and encourage you, while your faith allows you to run and not grow weary. You whistle to the birds of the sky, now go fly with them.

Michael Cummings

Supply

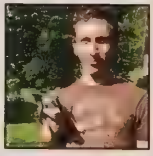
Scott Davids

Navy Pilot

Cloned from his older brother Eric, Scott Bradley Davids was raised in Colorado where he still roams the streets in his mom's Subaru Impreza. Despite his liberal background growing up in Boulder, Scotty joined the military to kill people and break things. He followed in his brother's footsteps by attending the US Naval Academy. Upon arriving in Annapolis, Scotty did not just drink the Kool-Aid, he chugged it. He is an active member of 23rd company and an outstanding student-athlete (ultimate frisbee, if you were wondering). He is a top performer in his major of Mechanical Engineering and even shares his academic prowess as a tutor -- Scotty always finishes everyone else's homework before starting his own. Although his Academy career was spent mostly on training plebes in the hallway, he managed to get away once or twice to pursue his longtime passions of knitting and drinking beer. After completing Leatherneck and a surface cruise, Scotty has decided to pursue Naval Aviation as his first preference for service selection, a community where hopefully he plans to grow out his hair and stop trying so hard. Don't be fooled by his contagious smile or his God-approved relationship with his girlfriend, Scotty's niceties and formalities are just his way of showing you that his life is better than yours.

Justin Dotson

Surface Warfare



Hailing from Black Mountain, North Carolina, Justin William Dotson came to the Academy after spending two years at community college. Instead of using his clear academic advantage to get ahead in his school work, he decided to focus his academics on becoming a proud member of the comma club and pursuing the coveted title of Anchorman. From a small town in the middle of nowhere, Justin had few chances to see the outside world aside from attempting to star in an episode of "Moonshiners". It seems it wasn't meant to be, although rumor has it, he is waiting for a remake of Forrest Gump where his voluptuous lips and knowledge of good ole southern food make him a shoe-in for the role of Bubba. Justin's unique understanding of random facts and trivia is a testament to the fact that he is quite possibly the smartest midshipman you've never heard of. Justin has never been one to let school get in the way of his education. It seems that Netflix has instead done the trick as Justin can always be found watching episodes of Game of Thrones vicariously through his roommate. Justin's love for Cheerwine, his slowing metabolism, and entrance into the SWO community led to his landslide victory as Most Likely to be Unrecognizable at the 10 year Reunion.

Christopher Evans

Navy Pilot

King of the stanky jams, Chris "Rickover Rat" Evans only dodged the sub draft by proving that he was not strong enough to open the hatches on a submarine. He could usually be found practicing his knifehands in the mirror or getting his weekly cut at the barber shop. An unofficial brand ambassador of tie-dye and whatever sweatshop made those elephant pants, Chris serves as a trend-setter for most middle school girls. As a member of the men's squash, football, and water polo teams, he still somehow received perfect scores on his capstone projects: "Following all the Rules in Thailand... I Mean Singapore" and "No Seriously We Worked Super Hard on This Satellite." Chris has never lacked confidence, as evidenced by his rolling tray dinner portions, recent backflip attempts, and assertion that Nutella is a dessert. Anyone who knows Chris will miss watching him dry off with a towel, counting his PRT pushups, and teaching him how to run in a straight line. Chris, please never lose your sense of humor, crazy ideas, and passion for living life at full volume. Good luck at TBS, we're rooting for you!

Daniel Grantjohnson

Navy Pilot

Boof, the crippled Hawaiian whose knee kept him from a promising career. The best Hawaiian Quarterback since Colt Brennan, a poor mans Jared Lorenzen if you will, showed up at Navy to kick and ensure that he wouldn't have to exert too much effort. The plan went swimmingly, as his five years (almost 6) were concentrated more on getting nice rather than getting after it in the classroom or weight room. He always did what he believed REX would do and consequently that's what got him through this place. Now off to Pensacola or potentially Destin round 2, to find a sink to lay his hat. Aloha brother.

This one's for you Rex, miss you dawg!

Grant Hanley

USMC Ground

Monica Herrera

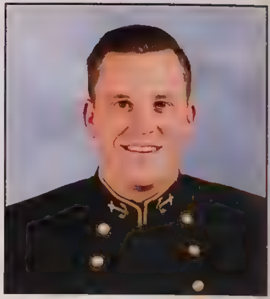
Surface Warfare

Monica Herrera is the least decisive person I have ever met, and that's saying something. Though being stubbornly unwilling to make choices, she is somehow always calling the shots. Whether she is acting as a fitness or fashion conscience, she is no doubt being utterly infuriating in her mission to better you. She doesn't care if you don't want to buy those shoes, run another mile, or change your outfit again, by golly, you will bend to her will. Monica defies the laws of mathematics by being 25% white, 75% ethnic, but 100% basic white girl. It doesn't add up, but make no mistake, her Starbucks game is strong. Most importantly, she is the doting mother of a corgi with whom she is bonded to through their mutual squeak-fluffiness.

Kevin Holder

SEALs

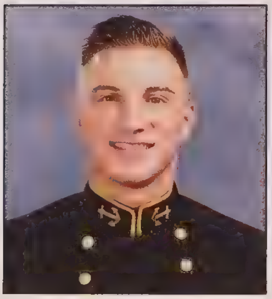
Inspired by Einstein's theory on the relativity of time, Kevin has supplemented his own on the relativity of timeliness. Further scientific endeavors include the reversal of one Big Bang for theories on banging big ones, but that's not where his achievements end. Beyond academic, Kevin will be remembered as the only man to be faster on crutches than his own two feet and eating his dinner so slowly that it technically qualifies as tomorrow's breakfast. While this may be how Kevin is remembered at the academy, Kevin will remember the academy primarily through the back of his eyelids. Some hypothesize that Kevin's slow-moving tendencies are part of the Conservation of Energy; an effort to conserve speed for his fast-paced sports and hobbies, as well as quick-changes moments before formations and meals. The latter is still shrouded in mystery. Kevin intends to test his theories under conditions at BUD/S, where his peers are curious to see which breaks first: Kevin's untimeliness or BUD/S. Although his mother may miss his weekly visits, we are confident that Kevin will thrive on the west coast. #WOHO



David Huber

Surface Warfare

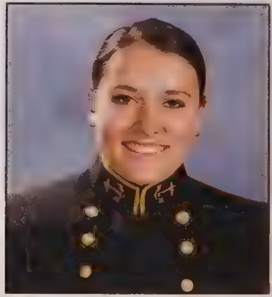
David "Big Wave" "Sweet Elk" "What is that Hanging out of your JORTS?" Huber aka the 215 APhilliate is a man amongst boys and a giant amongst all. He certainly enjoys the libations and has stacked cups at the Fleet Reserve miles high. His gyrating hips and dark rhythm have been enjoyed and envied throughout the land. He is every girl's "wish I could" but luckily for the boys he's given us all a team mom that we love so dearly. His faithful sidekick Neefe is always nipping at his heels and helping please the crowd. Against all odds, David found his long lost twin here at the Academy, Stupid Pat. His impressions are second to none, and seeing David crushing beers like STONE COLD is like witnessing a second coming of the messiah. David is a popular guy with many here on the Severn, most notably with the staff of both the officers club and the head coach of Navy Water Polo team. San Dingus has a storm coming, why fly when you can have a tail.



Hamilton Jones

USMC Ground

Hamilton Jones, aka Sir Napsalot, aka "I wrestled in high school" aka Panda lover aka "I did plebe summer" aka Tinder god aka live rap video god is the middle of three siblings, both of whom, much like his roommates, dwarf him in size. Given his middle name, "McCoy," Hamilton spent most of his time trying to improve his chill to pull ratio. Despite numerous successes, these attempts were made insignificant following the great nap debacle of Dining Out 2017. Unlike his chill to pull ratio his extensive experience in the fleet was beneficial, which coupled with a lucrative contract helped Hamilton decide to take his talents to Quantico. An avid drinker (and vomitter) of bottom shelf vodka, and a veteran of the shores of both South Beach and Panama City Beach, he should be well prepared for the swamps and swampdonkeys of Virginia. Hamilton plans to bring his hipster style to his Marines, leading them into the unknown in the tightest overalls money can buy



Jessica Lois

Navy Pilot

I often get asked, "What is it like being an identical twin?" in which I respond "I don't know what it's like to not grow up with a twin." Let me tell you, I have truly been blessed to have Miss Jessica Lois not only be in my life but be my twin sister. This relationship is different and unique, but beyond special. The telepathy is real (and no, it's not physic) and a phenomena I cannot explain but certainly feel. We laugh and cry at the same exact things and we know what each other is thinking without saying a word so clearly it still freaks me out sometimes. We've gone through every stage of life together, and I know for certain I would not be where I am without her continuous support, honesty and love. She pushes me every day to better myself and others. The world is a better place with her in it. I have never met someone so naturally talented, smart, athletic or compassionate. I cannot even fathom how she managed to major in chemistry. She is the whole package and I get to claim her half mine! The naval aviation community is blessed to add Jessica to their unit. She is as motivated and dedicated as they come. I love you so much Jessica and am so proud of all your accomplishments. We've succeeded thus far in staying together. Let's try and keep it that way!

Corey Maier

Naval Flight Officer

Corey Maier is a stationary being. His dream day is sitting down scrolling through reddit, while watching a show, and listening to music. Unclear if it is due to his many naps or just his desire to achieve his dreams, most days he does just that. Perpetually dirty, Corey loves taking showers and keeps his roommates wondering if he slipped and fell. He has found love multiple times in this hopeless place. The only bad time he ever had was in the Times Square Applebee's. When not buried in his phone 1/C Maier is a fun loving guy. A loyal friend always having your back, Corey is beyond prepared for his career as an NFO. He destined for a wonderful career if he finally learns to study. Peace and blessings shipmate!

Matthew Meltzer

Surface Warfare

Matthew Meltzer has a passion for leadership, and makes sure that everyone knows it. He is an outgoing man, always engaging others in conversation by telling them about his girlfriend, his current job in the Brigade, and how he has fried and adjudicated more people than the Dep-Dant. Every day he ensures all areas of Bancroft are up to standards, especially the spaces of Steerage and the pizza that they make. He sets the standard for everyone around him by being the only upper-class in the entire Brigade to sleep under his bed sheets. Never satisfied with the time at sea the Academy his given him, he immerses himself in seafaring life by constantly planning and going on many Carnival Cruises. His job as treasurer for the Midshipman Jewish Club will set him up for a prosperous and well-funded future. Sadly, he will be the only Jewish Midshipman not to become a doctor or lawyer. With his intense desire for standards and his love of the Navy, Matt will go on to make a great dicta-Naval officer.

Kendrick Mouton

USMC Ground

Kaitlan Moynihan

Naval Flight Officer

Kaitlan Moynihan started her midshipman career known for her barely-audible sounding-off voice and the fact that she was the only girl to run in group one. After a few more months we quickly realized she is the sweetest girl you will ever meet and the only person that can spend hours talking about Disney characters without ever getting bored. There is nothing Kaitlan loves more than her tiny dogs with huge personalities and vacations to Disney World. When she sets her mind on something, whether its doing a muscle up or passing Aero exams or running marathons faster than her boyfriend, she will not stop until she does it. Her determination and work ethic are superhuman and will no doubt serve her well in Pensacola and out in the fleet.

Matthew Nason

Navy Pilot

There was once a prophecy of a man who would take to the air and claim it for his own. He was born on the crest of a wave, rocked in the cradle of the deep, and raised in Buffalo. This warrior of the skies was meant to traverse the globe and fight the good fight with his magnanimous personality. He is known to many as Matt Nason, but to few, he is known as a friend. Whether he is skiing, working on the next new Boeing aircraft, or hanging with the boys, this Sea Stallion is someone that you can always trust to have your back. Wherever the Aviation community takes him, he will overcome the challenges ahead with a smile and a look of determination. Success will always be in his sights. So until he reaches the skies of Naval Aviation, fair winds and following seas.

Ryan Ochoa

Navy Pilot

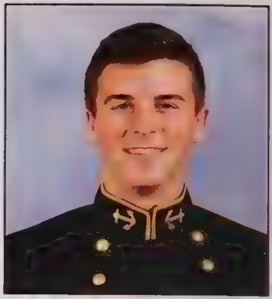
Ryan Ochoa wants to be in a world filled with anime, video games, and better tech.

As a systems engineer and avid rock climber form Front Royal, VA, he's worked hard to get where he is today: surrounded by friends with pilot as his service selection.

When he's not busy working hard to meet deadlines, you can find him on joint dates with his friends (as a welcome third wheel), chilling in his room on one of many gaming systems, or hidden in his rack wrapped in blankets.

After the academy, he'll go kick ass at flight school and be an awesome officer. Not many people enjoy doing their job but he does and he's shown how well he can fly by finishing powered flight 3 flights early.

He's been one hell of a roommate and friend during his stay here.



Samuel Pershall

Navy Pilot

Ah where to begin with this sweet, dark, charming little butterfly. Some call him Sam, others call him Persh, but most know him as a true warfighter. He truly motivates all those around him, attending all brigade and company events, making the Supe's list, maxing his PRT, owning the shiniest pair of those darn leathers you'll ever see and sporting the eternally cool and stylish high and tight. From his amazing lax career that never was but 'should have been,' trust me, just ask him, to his crowd gathering dance moves, again, just ask him, and even to his famous neck MOs, Sam is always at the forefront of cool and tough. If you're one of his true friends, I'm sure he's invited you out on his boat, because let me tell you, he has a boat and he knows how to use it. But how does he transport his boat? Well folks, he drives a big truck so he can tow it, and I'm sure there are a bunch of other manly and necessary things as to why he has a truck. Did I say that he drives a truck, yeah that's right boys and girls, a true man's man. Sam is also the president of the international relations club, a connoisseur of all things foreign one might say. Sometimes, his tastes are so exotic you might question if he really is American, or if he actually hails from Chile or the Philippines. While his life has been one of love, lust, and excitement, he has only more to look forward to as he enters the world as a fully blossomed grown man, but he is well prepared. He will truly be missed here along the beautiful Severn that he sails, but he will never be forgotten because as the saying goes, Legends Never Die, and Sam Pershall is a legend. The legend that this school needed, but didn't deserve. The corps will be lucky to have a pilot as gifted as thee. Persh, may your career be as fruitful as your as your time in company

Thomas Phillips

USMC Flight Officer

Thomas Phillips (AKA yams),(AKA heart-breaker),(AKA NHF),(AKA Tokyo Tom),(AKA Tard Taunter),(AKA Punxsutawney Phil),(AKA Snake Eyes), (AKA Manners) was born in America's hat (Canada). His parents finally came to their senses and moved to the United States when he was 5. Tom quickly became infatuated with the movie Top Gun and decided that the navy life would be the only way he could wheel chicks. He wasn't always as sculpted as a Greek God as he is now, but through hard work with the extracurricular club B hockey team, Tom became the "Mr steal-yo-girl" frat star want-to-be that he is today. Thomas spends his days at the academy watching "quality" TV shows like Smallville and Arrow. The combination of driving his mom's BMW and watching the entirety of the show Top Gear qualify him as a bona fide car-guy. It has been difficult for him to assimilate to American culture, but he has settled himself into being a bandwagon Patriots fan. He has been serviced assigned to the United States Marine Corps. Thank goodness he has an air contract because he may find some difficulty being successful ground Marine because he is so damn loud. He may, however, do a great job of warding off the fierce bears in Quantico with his screeching, animal-like nose blowing. HIS FEET ARE GROSS.

Jacob Rose

Oceanography

Jacob "Magic Hands" Rose spends his time using his dexterity for a number of his own personal interests. He climbs, works on his computer, plays instruments, and plays video games to name just a few. Seemingly good at everything he touches, he is going to be successful no matter what he does. He has been known to say "The human body has everything the human body needs" (take that as you will). No one really knows why but he once tried buying clothes at the soup store. He is a proponent of using the back door for entry and playing with toys though he really isn't a kid anymore. Rose enjoys real Mexican food and if you want to know how terrible his hometown of El Centro is, HE WILL BE HAPPY TO TELL YOU. His friends will remember him as a loving friend who was always a pleasure to be around and hang out with.

Gabriel Samaniego

Navy Pilot

A loyal friend and lifelong mamma's boy, Gabe (or more commonly known as Princess, a nickname he earned because he is always the last ready and the first to tap out on the weekends) is a native of San Francisco, California. Princess developed a misplaced sense of identity early on in life, and can often be seen sporting cowboy boots while packing a can of long cut dip even though he's never been within 10 feet of a cow. He is under the impression that he's some sort of athlete, but the rugby team really just needed a groundskeeper… he even managed to squeak by with the smart crowd and graduated with an engineering degree and a minor in gender studies. Known for his dad-bod, lovable personality, and ability to to break even the most expensive parts of rental homes, the academy will be a lesser place when he departs. Having evaded immigration and customs police for the last five years, he will be heading off to Pensacola, Florida to become a Navy Pilot

Daniel Savella

USMC Pilot

If you've never seen what an oxymoron would be in physical form, look no further. Daniel "doesn't make sense" Savella will gladly serve as a model for this. Where ELse can you find a physics wiz that can explain the intricacies of quantum molecular Newtonian theory but still incapable of safely pumping gas into a car? This is just one of the many mystERies that surround DaniEL. While his brains might not amaze you, his cornucopia of hobbies may. To the dismay of his roommates, they have had to survive 4 years of the onslaught of each of Dan's hobbies that he has spontaneously picked up over the years. Surfing. Snowboarding. Volleyball. Swing dancing. Underwater basket weaving. You name it. Dang Daniel is a jack-of- all-trade at worst, master at none at best. His room may just be a physical manifestation of his thoughts. Despite having an electric personality and mannerisms to say the least, DJ's loyalty is unwavering and incomparable. You would be hard-pressed to find someone so dedicated to his friends, his family, and his shipmates. Just make sure he's not getting too friendly with hostel guests.

Eric Stockwood

USMC Ground

Eric Lyman Wyman hales from tha Haahbah (AKA Boston) (AKA the greatest city on Earth). You can find him wearing the same musty Timberland boots on a cold Friday evening be it lurking in Tom Brady's back yard, taking a snooze on the side of I-695 in Towson or also taking a snooze at his favorite artist's concert: Flume. He was a recruited for crew, but he decided after a year and a half of slave-labor, that he would rather take his nautical talents to Panama City Beach, Florida. He enjoys spending his weekend with his "girlfriend" (wife) Rachel Wyman in various cities across the Eastern seaboard. If he is not mooching off of his roommates/friends cars to travel on the weekends you can find him in the "rum" (that's Bostonian for room) eating "pupcorn" (that's Bostonian for popcorn) with his feet up permeating stank wherever his musty towel did not already contaminate. Eric had a long and difficult academic career at the Naval Academy where his most challenging classes were on clouds and shipwrecks. His academic issues were exacerbated by the fact that he spent all of his time studying zesty memes while tearing through 52 Scooby-Doo episodes in one week. He, alongside his best friend and fourth roommate, Herbert, and his pet goose, Gary, will be schwasseeing down to Quantico Virginia to lead Marins. He is gunna do gweat!

Danielle Turner

Surface Warfare

Dani Turner is one of the sweetest and most considerate people we have ever known. And somehow, at the same time, one of the most sarcastic. You know not to piss her off or a stray karate chop or kick might come your way (courtesy of her black belt). Whether she has tons of homework or not, she always manages to stay up later than everyone else. You'd think she's busy doing work into all those wee hours of the night, but no, her time is being equally divided between Facebook, Youtube and Netflix. On the weekends, don't expect to see her awake before noon. If you manage to wake her up before then, she easily ignores you and goes right back to sleep. She loves a challenge, from climbing to the top of a glacier in Alaska to white water rafting in West Virginia. She is one with the outdoors. Getting anywhere in DTA with her is next to to impossible because she'll make a beeline to the closest puppy she sees. No matter what, she's the shortest and best friend anyone could ask for.

Nicholas Weinhardt

Naval Flight Officer

Some people are born to fly. Nick was born with his head already in the clouds. Even with his new pilot eyes he still cant find his wallet or his CAC card, but he always pulls through when someone needs his help. A native of Pennsylvania, Nick is more at home in the snow than anyone you'll meet. You would think it was Christmas every time it snows with the way he acts. Though he won't find much snow down in Florida, the beach life will suit him well.No matter where life takes him, Nick will always become the center of the party when the DJ plays the Macarena.

Paul Whalen

Submarines

Paul "8M1 Bovitz" Whalen should have been part of the greatest generation. He is an old soul in a middle age body. Quick with a joke he is always there for embarrassment, roasting, and poor trash talk. Bovitz is surely the 23rd company dad. Whatever the weather, Bovitz will be wearing his under armour. His sweater is loved by those with similar refined tastes. Whether a cyber friend or fellow airport traveler. Never failing to tell you about his glory days on the diamond Bovitz can still display his athletic prowess on the soccer and spike ball fields. With a true work hard play hard attitude brings Bovitz out on just one night a weekend. He is an extremely dedicated and hardworking individual. He is destined for success in the deep blue sea. Semper Deep my friend!

Sean Williamson

Navy Pilot

A last minute addition to 23rd Company hailing from Cleveland, Ohio, Sean came to the Naval Academy with high expectations. Blessed with a forgettable face and a knack for plebe rates, Sean remained practically invisible throughout plebe summer, some question if he was even there at all. Never satisfied, Sean sought out other ways to haze himself and joined the USNA Lightweight Crew team. While most people come to their senses and quit, Sean, like so many other poor souls, developed a rare form of Stockholm Syndrome and enjoys punishments ranging from multiple practices a day, starving himself to make weight, and has even gone so far as to bring an erg home with him on leave. It should be noted, however, that for a man who starves himself on a regular basis, he somehow manages to singlehandedly keep Annapolis Ice Cream in business. A Naval Architecture major, Sean works harder than his peers or his major requires. Anyone in 23rd Company can attest that he is the most reliable person who's never around. After graduation, Sean will be joining the Naval Aviation community where his body hopes it will finally be given a chance to rest. Sean's endless work ethic and impeccable genes prove that the effort required for someone to achieve his level of success probably isn't worth it.

Jacob Woolman

Submarines

Jacob Woolman is a true masochist. He never misses an opportunity to do the things in life that nobody else wants to do. This behavior dates back to Plebe Year when he selected Chemistry as his major. Jacob thoroughly enjoys the long hours spent in lab for the Academy's hardest classes learning material that will have absolutely no use to him after graduation. When not in class, Jacob enjoys being poked by others with a big medal stick as part of the Academy's fencing team. He has spent his summers cramming himself and 9 others into sailboats that are only designed to hold four and heading out to sea for weeks at a time as part of the Offshore Sailing Training Squadron. Following graduation, Jacob will continue the trend of inflicting displeasure on himself as he heads to Nuclear Power School to become a Submarine Officer.

Samantha Young

Surface Warfare

Samantha Young might be one of the cutest little things you'll ever come across in your life. If you're around her enough eventually you'll hear the most adorable sneeze. It's so freakin cute it puts puppy videos to shame. That in combination with how tiny she is makes you go "omg I need to carry you around all day in my pocket." Be careful, though, because as soon as you let your guard down she says, "Let's get LIT LIT LIT." Next thing you know you're four Redbull Vodkas deep at ACME and she's barely got a buzz going. When you finally sober up in the morning and realize that a girl out drank you last night, you begin to reevaluate your life. Soon you come to the realization that behind all the cuteness, she's way tougher than you. Fighting back tears from your hurt pride you tell yourself that you're probably smarter and way more athletic than her until you find out that she basically has a 4.0 and has .0005% body fat from how much she works out. Finally, after the denial and anger phase, you accept that she'll always be the coolest person in the room and you're going to need her to tutor you for the remainder of the semester if you don't want to be UNSAT. All jokes aside, Samantha Young is one of the most caring and generous people you'll find at the Academy. No matter when or where, if you need her help, she's got your back. Her intentions are always good and stem from a core that is truly selfless. She's someone you strive to be like and absolutely want to surround yourself with. If you've ever met Samantha Young, consider yourself lucky.

Teresa Anderson

Surface Warfare Nuke

Teresa "Train-On" Anderson hails from South Korea and came to the Naval Academy via New Orleans, Louisiana. Her motivated attitude was cultivated during her time as Supreme Commander of her high school's Marine Corps JROTC program where she ruled with a steel fist. During Teresa's tenure as a Midshipman, she could most often be found at her desk eating some kind of foreign snack food, getting swole in MacD, or perfecting the art of absorbing knowledge through textbook osmosis or hiding under her bed sheets studying with a flashlight. She can be found eating Korean BBQ, popcorn, Belvita bars or chocolate just as often as she will stick up for her friends and protect them in any given situation. Given the outstanding U.S.-South Korean relations, Teresa breezed throjgh her top secret clearance interviews and will serve as the most Marine Corps motivated Nuclear Surface Warfare to ever hit the fleet. Teresa is SWO-tivated now and gives no rucks. YUT!

William Fenton

Explosive Ordance Disposal

Bill "Billbo Baggins' "Costigan" Fenton is a self proclaimed proud South Bostonian, from North Carolina. He is quite the character, as we the rest of his friends can attest. Born circa 1880, Bill was affectionately and officially known as Boiler Tech 3rd Class (BT3) Baggins, an "old as dust sailor" serving honorably aboard the USS Maine. Whilst on an underway from Puerto Rico to Cuba, he made his notable port call to Havana, similar to every Spring Break and port calls anywhere Bill actually went, he could be seen stumbling around town in dingy summer whites, perpetually coated with soot from shoveling coal all day long, a cover slightly askew, and bonding with his comrade Jack Daniel. A lover of his battle call "Ralllllly!," Bill took the "puke" portion of "Puke & Rally" to heart, affectionately earning him the nickname "Pukey Baggins." A lover at heart, Bill's ability to woo the ladies with his only dance move and blue eyes, was almost as great as his ability to call every lady that he met "Darlin'." Independent of his love for random motivational videos, this closet Marine and fratstar will always be able to motivate those around him in any event, bar, or party he is at. Provided he doesn't hurl while RSPing live ordnance, he will be a tremendous asset for the Navy EOD community. Cheers Brother.

Lucinda Ford

Submarines

Lucy "Grace" Ford is best known as always actually having another place to be. The most hardworking personal secretary in the Brigade, she not only pens her own schedule, but also answers the 2330 knock on the door for her roommate and takes notes. When Lucy is not recovering from her most recent self-incurred injury, she can be found out-running everyone, on the elliptical in the cardio room, adjudicating teenagers, visiting every brunch place in Annapolis, or getting her fifth cup of coffee and a pumpkin muffin from the Coffee Mess. Since becoming a Rhodes Scholar, her next achievement has been figuring out how to 'zen' as she listens to waves (all for academic Ocean Engineering reasons of course). However, her most impressive achievement is her unparalleled mastery of the sword, invoking Gunny Abbott's constant bewilderment.

Sean Foster

SEALs

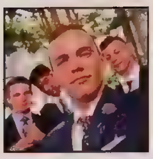
Benzwah, Bean, Zol, Rocky? What do we call him? Better yet, how can I explain him?! Well, I cant, but I'll try. Imagine a man with the athletic prowess of a neaderthal, the mental grit of John Wayne, and the athletic motivation of a brick. The old man is South Central PA bred and buttered, and his love of energy drinks and dip is surpassed only by his talents in sports trivia. Sean is hard to explain - back like a billboard, chest like a barrel and a towhead like a young Clint Eastwood. Unfortunately, Sean's personality and dance moves are a bit lacking. "It's not the youngsters you have, it's the youngsters you take!" he would often scream. That explained his narcolepsy, but never his sadism. Sean is headed West to pursue his lifelong dream, and we couldn't be more proud of him. Lord knows his Pap would be too. God bless Sean, and best of luck.

Blake Franklin

Surface Warfare Nuke

After being a teacher's pet for the first 16 years of his life, Blake "The Lummox" Franklin left the nest and the umbilical cord at home when he came to the Academy. Also known famously as "The Lad", this Irish marching cadence singing cousin of Bigfoot is believed to have 50% Guinness and 50% Baileys coursing through his veins. He can often be spotted in his home swamp, "McGarvey's," eating hot wings and replenishing his quota of Guinness. Although intending to swim at the Academy, he graced the 24th Company Ultimate Frisbee team with his presence. He quickly became known for his athletic prowess on the ultimate frisbee field; Blake was a force to be reckoned with. Just kidding, Blake was visited by the Muses of Greek Mythology opposed to Hercules. He takes great pride in being in the running for having the dirtiest room in the Brigade and will bet anyone $20 dollars that they can't spend more than 10 minutes inside. Although his dreams of flying high in naval aviation were shot down, he will take the Nuke-SWO community by storm and show them how to have a good time

Tristan Freeburger



Submarines

What can be said about Tristan Freeburger? During his four years at the academy, Tristan has put himself through the academic and spiritual agony of being a cyber major. This may be the reason why he is balding. When he isnt hyped up on caffeine and studying for class or his nuke interview, Tristan enjoys spending his free time watching bloopers from The Office, getting fried for underage drinking with his Men's Glee Club brothers, listening to musical soundtracks, and getting in a good sob session while watching The Fault in Our Stars. The involuntarily elected "Mom" of every bar crawl he has ever embarked on, Tristan has saved those close to him from treacherous fates on countless instances. One could easily mistake him for an Eagle Scout as he seems to always be prepared for the unlikely with his portable phone chargers and over-the-counter meds. His useless collection of things he bought from Amazon include: NATO watch straps, coffee brewing instruments, and more coffee mugs than any man could ever need. An ideal fit for the Sub community, Tristan is sure to have no problem spending months at a time with his crew under the sea, and will surely be the Queen of the bottom... of the ocean ;)

Hannah Hjelmstrom

Navy Pilot

Hannah Hjelmstrom, but known to most as H-jel-storm, puts the chill in California country. Although most forget she originates from California and not Margaritaville, the blonde always serves as a friendly reminder. Hannah decided to attend Navy,her second choice, when her letter from Hogwarts failed to show up in the mail and here she has earned the Call Sign "Cat Lady" while knitting and watching Star Wars for the billionth time. She takes intramural volleyball way too seriously and believes that any problem can be solved with a Disney quote. When she's not rapid firing memes, she can be found starting her collection of pineapple and flamingo items while shopping weekly at TJ Maxx or Marshall's. She spends most of her money on concerts and pampering her Jeep, Major Burns. Hannah is excited to start flight school but has to restrain herself from pretending the planes are the Millenium Falcon.

Hunter Jenkins

USMC Ground

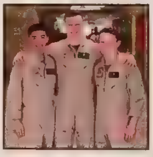
Starting off his Academy career as a stunt double for the Michelin Tire Man, Hunter Jenkins quickly attempted to rebrand himself as a "cool and tough" guy instead of the drama geek from high school. If he isn't in the gym, you can usually find him breaking hearts at Buddy's or ACME(though he keeps swearing he will never go back). Though Hunter has not deployed yet, he has done multiple tours to Smoke Hall(though he keeps swearing he will never go back). It was here he developed his "command voice". This two octave lower baritone inspires respect in his subordinates causing them to forget all those times they found him asleep on the wardroom couch. As a History major at the Academy, Hunter has developed the mental fortitude expected of a Marine. While we all wish him good luck in Quantico, we know he won't need it and will be there with a beer and a smile when life gets boring.

Lane Johnson

USMC Ground

Studying Lane has been a difficult task over the past four years. He is as elusive as he is tangible. Never quite here, never quite there, Lane is like a pet cat that gives you attention but always leaves you wanting more. I can't promise you many things, but I can promise you this - you have never met a man quite like Lane Johnson. "Don't let school get in the way of your education!" he laughs as he contemplates love, loss, and ultimate consequence. Lane flaunts a multitude of talents: dancing, sour cafe drinking, chicken fried steak enthusiastic, and black-top hoop starz, but these are always toppled by his uncontrollable desire to ruin any good meal with sriracha. Lone Star State through and through, his love of Texas is unsurpassed. Even having Davey Crockett in the family tree hasn't saved Lane from insatiable greed of the Tomahawk; a greed that has often left him with nothing but his pride. He is a true friend that shares everything except for when he uses his bed sheet as his curtain. Lance is the definition of loyal (he actually stood by the Cowboys through all these years), and his Texas-sized heart belongs to just one woman. The Tubesock truly is the Man in the Arena. Until our next Pizza Slice or until we share our Night in Lisbon, Godspeed. Your Blood Stripes run deeper than the cloth.

Brian Kennedy



Navy Pilot

Brian "I'm at a Capstone Meeting/Walter Reed" Kennedy is the incumbent to the title of "Memelord of Annapolis." You can find this rare species of Brian residing with the squat racks of 7th Wing, exclusively working out his non bionic right leg. Although he currently takes great care of his raised, blacked out, CB radio-connected, subwoofer-powered 2010 GMC Sierra, he once got so excited for a new truck, he flipped it on his first day owning it. As son of probably the saltiest sailor to ever grace the Seven Seas, Brian decided that he d save himself and take on the Naval Aviation community where he is sure to succeed. He was a committed sponsor brother to the dynasty of John VornDick, heralded by many as the Father of USNA Sponsor Parents. Tragically, John passed through the pearly gates in 2016 but is definitely watching over his sponsor sons as they continue on their journey through life. Should Brian's accent sound peculiar, that is entirely due to his vocabulary is limited to that of memes and dad jokes. His favorite things include country fried breakfast, crispy doggos, and poop selfies.

Kevin Kirchmer

SEALs

Kevin, Kirch, Virgmer, KEVGRU, Kurtis, Kavion can be summed up by a single question that he once asked his roommate: "On a scale of 1 to Greek God, how good do I look right now?" He kept his enthusiasm at the Academy until he chose Mech-E as a major and bought his PS4. Kevin is the captain of Navy Rugby but don't be fooled, he hates the entire team and none of them are worthy of hanging out with him. He has never backed down from a challenge during his time at the academy and after much success at USNA, Kevin was challenged to chug a Smirnoff ice at which point he finally met his match and was ultimately defeated. The humiliation continued as chants of "Coward" and "Beta" were heard from miles around. Kevin's hobbies include squatting 525 with a torn meniscus, leaving his entire team behind on conditioning workouts while they are stretching, posting yoga videos with his girlfriend, or drinking wine in DTA. His daily diet consists of nothing really, but his heart is full of love, loyalty, and discipline. Nevertheless, Kevin is an incredible leader and the team was lucky to have him as captain. Good luck out there and Enjoy A Fine Day, Kevin.

Alexander Kraus

USMC Pilot

As heir to the Mission BBQ throne, Alex's future is surely one filled with success... or at least a lot of jalapeno-cheddar sausage. He spends most of his time either playing the latest Xbox game or looking at memes with Brian Kennedy. As a wannabe lax-bro, his demeanor doesn't really scream devil dog, but perhaps that is what will make him such an invaluable asset to the Corps. Speaking of dogs, his two dogs are the only reasons people like hanging out with him. The Marine Corps Air Community will surely enjoy his humor and upbeat personality.

Mary Kraynak

USMC Ground

Mary Kraynak has come a long way from the Shirley Temple-esque plebe she once was. She was famous for having the loudest, most obnoxious chow calls and the entire company is grateful she doesn't have to do those anymore. Now, she spends her time "booping" people on the nose, taking embarrassing pictures of her roommates, getting annoyed at people who chew their food too loudly, and collecting Snoopy memorabilia. All of these activities must interfere with her Netflix watching, since she has been watching the same show for all of Firstie year. It is no doubt Mary will make an excellent Marine, as she has been practicing her "rah" for years and already wakes up far too early so she can put massive quantities of gel in her hair to make the tightest bun you've ever seen. She is someone you can always depend on; always there to help you when you need it most!

Courtney Lapahie

Surface Warfare

Jacob Letson

Navy Pilot

Jake "Limelight" Letson began the Naval Academy with humble origins, hailing from Bermidji, Minnesota. He experienced a rough plebe summer, earning the nickname Limelight for his attention from the detailers. Eventually he came to overcome these nicknames and be known through the company as the flying guy, often taking his own plane up on the weekends and sending crazy snapchats to friends He wasn't a fan of the academy but it was a necessary evil to become a future ace over the skies on North Korea. His lack of enthusiasm for parades was especially known through his rifle clicks. It is no doubt he will find success in the fleet as he finally gets to pursue his first true love: flying airplanes.

Yen-Ting Lin

Taiwan

Yen-Ting Lin, Dosh, Lindoshima, Dohbeans, YT is a true southern redneck who hails from the great state of Texas. He came to USNA barely speaking English and is leaving worse off but he picked up on much of the slang, and could be heard screaming Let me tell you something, boy. I'm gonna wear your ass out." He is the egg yolk sucking monster who was always telling his brothers how much he loved them and how he could prove it. Dosh's conquests reached an all time high when he was maintaining 4 separate investments in 3 different countries simultaneously. When he wasn't traveling in Europe with his 'sister' you could find him sleeping under concrete blankets or at McGarvey's eating butter with a side of Old Bay wings. He once saved his roommate from a panic attack and from throwing his laptop through the 6-3 window. Above all, Yen-Ting is a loyal brother who made our four years together by the bay unforgettable. We will miss his philosophical life lessons, his jokes and his love that he showed all. He will make Texas proud as a SWO in the Taiwanese Navy and we would not be surprised to see him become the Taiwanese CNO. Love you, Linard.

Joseph Loy

Surface Warfare

Weighing in at an impressive 265 pounds of pure steerage pizza, Griffie 'meatball' Loy is one of few people to have ever completely eliminated all cartilage in his knees and back before the age of 20. Only one word can describe Griffie: Tenacious. Whether he is eating 18 double doubles in one sitting or writing an award winning honorable mention poem, you can bet he poured his heart into it. Look out for him in the 2042 elections, where as a successful business man and plantation owner, Griffie was make a run for 'Senator of the South,' a title rightfully already has. Never one to skimp on "please" and "thank you," Griffie's manners were only preceded by his sweaty handshake, which included a death grip and friendly smile. Barely reaching 5'9", Griffie Loy was a mountain of a man whose character and loyalty reached far higher than his stout frame. We can all rest easy knowing that the future of the surface navy is in Griffie's hands, just as long as he doesn't overdose on sugar free Red Bull.

Megan Lyvers

Surface Warfare

Megan "Southern Belle" Lyvers hails from the quaint town of Louisville, Kentucky, which if you don't notice by her accent, she'll be sure to tell you within the first 5 minutes of meeting her. The biggest sweetheart of 24th Company, Megan is a friend of all. The only woman who can tame the rowdiest of the '17 men in 24th Company, she seems to always have her hands full listening to somebody's problems and offering wonderful advice. With the best hugs on this side of the Mississippi, Megan is a hot commodity—in more ways than one. Aside from offering her friendship, she spends much of her time dispelling quarrels between her loyal maidens of mischief on the swimming and diving team and her beloved hungry hounds within the company—a task which often leaves her stuck in the middle. Megan's wedding will likely be the first reunion after commissioning for many of her friends, for this dazzling daughter of the derby won't last a hot minute in sunny San Diego before being swept off her feet. A mint julep in mind and body, this belle can mingle with the high class, but isn't afraid to slam back the bourbon with her closest friends.

James McGrath

USMC Ground

In the year of our lord, 2013, James Patrick McGrath, dubbed 'Lord Cornwallis of Chicago, entered the hallowed grounds of the Naval Academy. Four years later, this punisher's campaign has come to an end...and was it glorious. Ever worried about his elephantiasis, due to 'the accident' in martial arts, he thankfully still remains commissionable. Emboldened by his grapefruit-sized marble sack, Lord McGrath laid waste to all obstacles in his path, doing things, as he would put it, "the Chicago Way". Jim won countless battles against the IRS, the Batt SMAJ, Women's Swim Team, inept Midshipmen, and himself all the while crying "sound the advance" to the tune of the British Grenadiers. This Fieldball fiend was always an man easy to spot in the hallway, not because of his walk but simply due to the shark fin between his eyes. On any Friday night, this ruthless ground-pounding 'Yogurt Slinger' can be found drinking Bud Lattes or Jack'n'Cokes at Fleet Reserve and Buddy's, or ground fighting in the Track Shed. This terrible dancer is always quick to laugh at his own jokes, and like the other famed Chicagoan and personal idol, Al Capone, will not be laughing during his long stint in prison when his IRS scamming becomes unmasked. As a loyal friend, determined warrior, go-getter, hard-charger, and capable and often merciless leader, Jim has a bright future ahead in the United States Marine Corps.

Brian Pagliai

Naval Flight Officer

When he's not dressing for brunch in Georgetown, you can find Brian back on the farm "running jugs" or Snapchatting his hunting expeditions. He frequents the bars of downtown Annapolis, wooing women with tales of drunken Missouri debauchery and his bad Ed Sheeran covers. He has become an expert in consuming disproportionate amounts of condiments, peeing discretely in Ubers, and telling the best stories (regardless of their factual content). For some time, he was on a direct path to becoming a Marin Crops Officer, but he finally decided that it was not worth the ugly haircut, leading him to choose the life of a Naval Flight Officer. His most prized possessions are his new, government purchased teeth and his Omega watch. Brian faced one of the toughest challenges imaginable while at the Academy: losing his mother to cancer. His willpower and dedication to success is astounding; he serves as an inspiration to many of his classmates for being able to cope with loss while still remaining on top of his game. His legacy he has left .s one that his mom would have been proud of.

Brian Pajarillo

Naval Flight Officer

This creature of the internet can be found in one of two places: in his rack, or at his desk...sleeping. Brian "Paja/The Super Saiyan" Pajarillo, a native Annapolitan, is accustomed to the woes of the sights and sounds of the yard. His off time was previously spent hanging around Chesapeake High, waiting to pick up his 15 year old girlfriend from school... luckily time is a thing: he's still dating the girl, but it's much less creepy now that she's in college. He is usually a happy, go-lucky guy, consistently greeting everyone with enthusiasm and positive attitude. Super Saiyan Paja only appears in public when his browser window malfunctions from an overload of tabs of YouTube videos and he cannot satisfy his fix for the day. He can only calm himself down with an hour-long shower or proper lathering from an industrial sized bucket of Vaseline. Though conscious of how he spends his time, he will never hesitate to lend a helping hand.

Taylor Peterson

SEALs

Pistol Pete a.k.a the hound of bancroft a.k.a 'Taylor' a.k.a. 'Gunther' Jake Peterson. The man runs and swim as if he has three legs, slugs down beers as if he were born from the keg. He is incredibly proud to be one of the co- members of the Wesley Brown weight room department of Fish and Game. Mother B has seen this young man grow from losing his first love, to becoming lost at UVA, to enlisting as a strong soldier the 17th California Artillery Battery in order to slay the entire 39th Carolina Regiment. He's had his moments such as guzzling the sweet nector of Jameson whilst screaming God Save the Queen to stuffing the teddy bear in his closet on high alert. The Silver Surfer will always be remembered for his stunning good looks and his disgusting vans, but more importantly there is no better man, friend, and teammate. The NSW Community will be calling home a fine son of California.

Naadia Puri

Navy Pilot

Naadia: Naadia "Whole-Foods" Puri, is a gluten-free, bread loving, calorie conscious, dessert devouring, protein obsessed Indian goddess. Long hair dont care (but seriously....a brush wouldn't hurt, or a comb, even a fork). She is best known for being so busy that you can find her asleep in her rack or maintaining a self-incriminating snapchat game. Her belief in strange food rituals is only paralleled by her belief in her friends. If ever caught in a sword fight, you know she'll not only have your back, but also be dueling with her saber skills in front of you. When in need of a website, a pep-talk, kale, a positive attitude or added cyber-security to your life, you've found your naval aviator. But if you need to contact her, DO NOT try texting her, she is the only person who can have 50 unread messages and swear up and down that you never contacted her. Above all, this super woman has the power of both super focus and commanding the attention of others. Once she starts, there is no stopping her until the job is done. Her kryptonite include chocolate, warm hugs, and the infamous gossip distraction. She cooks as well as she dances, which is why her friends hope that practice actually makes perfect. She loves to love, and the way to her heart is first and foremost, her stomach, then the gym, then finally her stomach again. Naadia is quite exceptional. She's always willing to open her home for those in need of a quick getaway. She is also very humble with her own beauty and openly compliments others to pick up their spirits and give encouragement. Truly a pleasure to be around and has a bright future ahead of her.

Kyle Robb

USMC Ground

While at the Naval Academy, Kyle "Jimmy Neutron" Robb spent most of his time with his brothers on the Sprint Football team. A proud member of the Hoggie Nation, he enjoys dishing out stiff-arms to the more academically successful students in his Mech E major and polishing pipes for the Formula SAE team. Kyle's love of the weight room is unfortunately often outmatched by his love of food as he was quick to retire from the sprint football weight limit. His Plebe year, he became a qualified "paratrooper." Though his most prominent feature is his sizable head, Kyle's humility, capability, and friendly nature will no doubt serve him well as a Marine Ground officer. He can be a bit of a space cadet at times, yet we still love him dearly as a friend. "He may be a goobus, but he is our goobus". - Navy Sprint

Wayne Saya

Surface Warfare

Wayne Saya is a man of many talents. As a proud New-Englander and the present day "pride of Lowell" you will not meet a more devoted fan of the New England Patriots on the East Coast or any coast for that matter. As a proud New Englander, Wayne Saya has continued the tradition of whaling each weekend in the streets of DTA. To see the man and myth in his rare form go no further than to his second home, Castle Bay, where he can be seen downing Coors Lights and Guinness like it's his day job, while simultaneously belting Zac Brown Band on Thursday Karaoke nights, before returning to Bancroft where he runs a not-so-secret fight club (hint-hint, he broke the first rule). He is notorious for consuming copious quantities of Copenhagen, but balances it out with a healthy portion of 3 Monster energy drinks a day. To quote Mr. Saya, "caffeine raises your heartbeat so you can get a good cardio workout in without having to run." There is currently a running bet on what kills him first – cancer or a heart attack (I've got $20 on the heart attack). But before he dies, make sure you get to know this dude. He's a great guy with a heart of gold

Roberto Swersky

USMC Pilot

Coming to us from the mean streets of Honduras by way of Parsippany, New Jersey, Roberto Swersky has been an asset the Academy will be sure to miss. With his unerring ability to sniff out all manner of funky riffs in the Marine Corps Band, the powers that be knew that the artist formerly known as Cpl. Swersky would be a surefire candidate to survive the trials and tribulations of USNA. Over his time here, Roberto has managed to spend an increasingly large amount of time singing loudly in the Track & Field locker room shower, posting revealing exposés of Acadmey life on Facebook, and catching up on podcasts no one has ever heard of. Without a doubt, Roberto "the Mack" Swersky has been a successful Midshipman here at USNA in all aspects(aside from academics) and the Marine Corps (and several exes who selected Navy) will be glad that he is commissioning and returning to his home service come this summer.

Liesl Sylvester

Surface Warfare

Can't find El Diablo? Have you checked the Catacombs? This red-headed stepchild of 28th Company is the unconquerable feminist we don't deserve (or want), but she is the one this world needs. As a pretend diplomat, she has traveled to some of the most exotic lands, including Turkey, Syria, India and Egypt, bringing good fortune and civility (in the form of appropriate language) to each. Acting more as a groupie than a Rockstar, the original founder and sole contributor to "The .... Hut," has finally found someone to dismantle her temper when it explodes. Liesl will leave a lasting impression on nearly every person she runs into, good or bad. Quick to call you out and even quicker to console you, there is no better friend, former company-mate, company mate or red-head out there.

John Trainor

USMC Ground

John Trainor came in as a direct but received the recognition of being an honorary NAPSter in no time. Frequently described as "The Mad Dog" amongst his friends and teammates he is more commonly referred to as "The Puppy Dog" by the multiple girls lucky enough to have dated him in his 4 years. When you first meet trainor you think his low voice and screw loose attitude is a front, then you'll realize he is actually a mad man. John had an early impact on and off the lacrosse field, becoming an icon very early on at ACME bar & grill. John has always been a man of core values. On the field he expects 100% effort and will call you out for anything less. Off the field he will not hesitate to verbally berate anyone seen "selling out" and leaving ACME for better drink deals elsewhere. Not afraid to sit on his barstool solo like a King on his Throne rather than follow his friends to greener grass elsewhere. Trainor will be heading down to Quantico this summer and will sadly have to trade in his coveted white Air Force 1's for his green combat boots. John's unnecessary grunting and random outbreaks of anger will be missed here at USNA but will bode him well in the future as a Marine

Emily Tucker

Navy Pilot

Emily "Em" "Tuck Tuck" Tucker is the most supportive, trustworthy, dedicated, and caring person you will ever meet. She is an aid to all in the classic "I'm a good Midshipmannnnnnnnn" style. From day one Emily has loved her naps, whether it was in the closet, at a football game, at a brief, or on her desk, she can sleep anywhere. If she's not sleeping, Emily can be found EATing copious amounts of junk food, binge watching entire seasons on Netflix, or burping (this gaseous oral eruption has been known to wake people in the late afternoon). As a triathlete, Emily actually enjoys what the normal person would hate -running, biking, and swimming... together. Some people describe her elite swimming as akin to a baby orca in a tub of honey mustard. She excels at overcoming "adversity" and actively searches for debilitating illnesses or injuries to race with. If there is one thing you can learn from Emily it is that her 20 seconds of insane courage can get her anywhere she wants to go!

Jalen Wade

USMC Ground

Jalen "J-Bird" Wade, is a loyal son of Tennessee. A Volunteer and martyr himself, often going above and beyond the Siren's call, shamelessly exposing himself, taking grenades for his teammates, friends, and brothers. Expeditionary at heart, Jalen often Waded through thick and thin (often thick), but always remained victorious at the end. Always welcoming of lighthearted conversation or tomfoolery, Jalen was never much of one for focusing on academics, although he kept his head above the water. It was evident whenever Jalen got a new assignment or read an unfavorable email, for his sighs were audible across the Yard. Unrealized initially, it became clear that Jalen's true calling was writing and directing movies, for this man could name a movie clip to describe any situation. As an attribute to his future screenwriting career, Jalen is a dreamer—always conjuring up outlandish fantasies about fellow classmates during their previous lives, during which the most unfortunate events usually occurred. An easygoing guy, Jalen never turned down an opportunity for excitement. This anatomical mastermind sported eyes like an AthleticHawk coupled with the poise of Mr. Nostrand. The mixmaster of the chum, this ol' boy often fell victim to the rum. A conquistador in town, he leaves no square inch of ACME or Dillos untouched, and no bulkhead of Bancroft unridden. From STEM, to the football field, to running around with 4-stripes, Jay Bird has always had our backs. Thanks for four years of friendship and a lifetime of memories. Best of luck in Quantico

Anastasia White

Surface Warfare EDO

Anastasia "Ana" "Anna" (which one is it we'll never know) White is one of the truest, most faithful friends you will ever have. Ana, originally from 1st Reg worst Reg, made the trek over to 24th Company to Netflix the rest of her days out at the Academy. Never have I ever seen one person watch so much Netflix that she actually ran out of new shows to watch.... All kidding aside, Ana is an active person enjoying what the normal person would deem crazy such as a 50K run- up numerous hills and quote on quote running for fun. She has successfully spread her addiction of Kate Spade to one roommate and has out-snacked the other. Ana handles tasks and challenges with grace, but if she gets one more late OPS email white guy blinking I think she may destroy someone. Sometimes, just sometimes, Ana can be a little forgetful – like forgetting her keys in the car—in the ignition. From making Build-A-Bears to "going" to the aquarium, it is never a dull moment with Ana. We are so lucky to have a best friend like you; you make the good times better and the hard times easier. We can't wait to see what great things the future has in store for you; we may be apart in distance, but never in heart!

Ben Allen

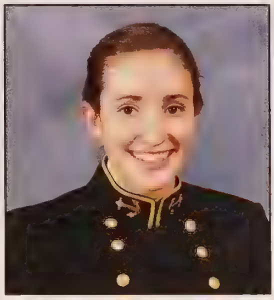
Navy Pilot

Ben "the fauxhawk" Allen. If he's not listening to Boner Jams '03 or hitting on your sister, you can find him either out on the course, in the gym, or stumbling through ACME and Buddy's for his next Mid girl love interest. "Most likely to appear in a Broadway production of 'Californication'." He's a power hitter both on and off the course. A true Cali bro with Dougie-fresh's credit card, he loves to crush pitchers and beer towers with the boys. The Florida parents better watch out for this young stallion as he makes his way to Pensacola to be the next best thing in the aviation community.

McKenzie Barnett

Intel

McKenzie Barnett, aka Boots, will always be remembered for her "fiery passion". In her most notable role as the Vampire of DTA, McKenzie acted in an Oscar-worthy performance. Upon earning her salty sea legs on the Varsity Offshore Sailing Team, she embarked on a journey of stringent physical training. Through which, she met a Tibit of what would later become the love of her life. As a colorblind Alaskan, McKenzie may be the most uninteresting person in these continental United States. But on a more serious note, Boots has dedicated her time to leaving the academy a better place than she found it. As a devout leader of MGSP and a project leader for MAG, McKenzie gave far more than she asked in return. She is a true friend, and anyone who is lucky enough to know her comes away a better person. The future looks bright for this young warrior.



Zachary Barthelmes

Navy Pilot

Zachary "XO-for-another-term" Barthelmes is one of a kind. After leaving the shire, Zach underwent a challenging journey that has led him to the man he is today. Along the way he's learned the importance of ships, and the most important one of all: relation-ships. The last four years he has gone through as many service selection choices as he has females. I don't know how he has time for so much when he is working on his 4th capstone project (#DoesMoreMatlabThanAGroup1). But can you really blame him, with that flow, his pristine bowling ball figure, and those meaty biceps, how can a girl resist? His extensive network of friendships is a great testament to how sociable he really is. In the end, he always knew he was gonna fly just like his dad, although everyone knows he really only signed up for the countless hours of beach time in his future. Zach is genuine, kind hearted, and caring; always opening his home for weekend adventures away from the yard. None of us would've made it through without him. Wherever his career takes him, Zach will make his friends, family, and fellow Bearsharks proud. And we all know in our hearts that Zach is always there to support the little guy.

Shannon Brown

Civil Engineer Corps

Which is rarer: seeing General Mattis smile, or seeing Shannon around Bancroft? I guarantee that if you go look for her, you wont find her. Youll have 10 years of good luck if you are successful at finding the Phantom Bearshark. Does she even go here? Im not sure where she is half the time, but my guess it that she's "studying". Which means she's either at her daily worship to the MechE gods or finding a good place to catch fishies and some rays After all this tiny human is from the southernmost part of the good ol' US of A. She's so American that when I first met her and told her I hated country music, she said "I'll fix that"...then woke me up to "Cruise" by Florida Georgia Line every day. At least that's better than Pocketful of Sunshine. I will never have a better roommate than Shannon. Living in the middle of nowhere Kerrville and taking daily trips to WallyWorld and Sonic kept us sane after having to sit in Moody Hall for 5 hours stu-dying. What are the odds that my first roommate also became my best friend! Ask Shannon who her best friend is and there's a 99.99% chance that she'll say its Scruff. I'm not bitter about it though. They both love treats and snoozin'. Treat of choice? Anything chocolate. If you see her at the gym, she'll let you know she's only there so she can eat whatever she wants later. No shame Shannon is headed to be a badass engineer in the CEC community. She turned down all other communities because they BEGGED her to join. Obviously they made the right choice. I'm excited to finally walk across that stage with you, and to visit you wherever this exciting journey leads you! Go get 'em Shanny!

Marci Browning

Surface Warfare Nuke

Marci Browning is the girl who you take home to your mom, who decorates the most intricate holiday sugar cookies, who will one day rule the PTA with an XO's iron fist. Raised in America's heartland -- Ohio -- Marci won't let you go on living without knowing what a Buckeye is or that Ohio is the most important swing state in the Presidential election. Political Science major and potential future congresswoman, Marci can certainly rock the pantsuit. As captain of the Navy Women's Golf team, she also frequently rocks the rain suit. She is often below par -- but only on the course. Despite her pro skill level at golf, vertical challenges, and size 4 feet, Marci is also an avid baller on the basketball court. Always ready to meet new people and make new friends (may we never forget the plebe mixer), Marci will bring great excitement and constant giggles to any wardroom.

Michael Buonocore

USMC Pilot

A man with the light coffee brown of a rich Peruvian roast and a nickname that made it incredibly awkward to call out to him in public. Mike "Boner" Buonocore represents all of the best aspects that a Peruvian born, New York raised, cat loving Jewish boy could have. While many had the privilege of being greeted with his classic meow, few had the honor and the shared trust to help with life decisions at the most respected establishments in DTA. A true Marine aviator at heart, Mike will assume his place soaring in the heavens with his brothers close behind. May humble success and an abundance of happiness (and cats) grace his wingtips as he embarks on his great journey. Fair winds and following seas. May we meet in the clouds.

Mikala Bussey

Surface Warfare EDO

Dearest darlingest readers of this bio. There's been some confusion over rooming here on 6-4. For you see, my roommate is unusually obsessed with sailing and all together quite impossibly a boat nerd. Mikala can be described as the Wicked Witch to my (spiritual) blonde. And I will say she has definitely changed me for the better, and changed me for good. She has all the qualifications of a Naval Officer. Clearly she is a capable mariner, having excelled on the sailing team (besides that one dismasting, but it totally wasn't her fault), and her education was liberal (I don't know many other engineers that wake up at 0550 to perform a play at sunrise). She can be courteous, but excels at being to-the-point and when necessary has the loudest voice in Bancroft. Mikala is capable of taking care of her people, and I fear for George R.R. Martin's life if Arya ever dies. She knows how to forgive, even after really unpleasant Sunday brunches. In short, Mikala Bussey is the kind of person that would learn to sing Farmer's Refute so you can rap, and anybody who has her as a friend or division officer is incredibly lucky.

Calvin Cass

Surface Warfare

The lingo God, Ricky Jarrett, King of the DH's, Lil Brother, Jeff AND Jeff's Step Father. These are all nicknames Calvin has earned (or been given), due to his uplifting presence in a group of men who need comedic relief from time to time. Born in Oklahoma, Calvin has become a Macdonough Warrior following his decorated career as a Navy Football Player and can be found in the gym shooting with Kobe most sports periods. As the English major extraordinaire of YBE, Calvin is ever active in debates and can often be seen flexing his poetic acumen in daily conversation. With a heart as rich as gold and a mind as sharp as a blade, Calvin will see high levels of success as long as he breaks out of his thot phase.

Sarah Claudy

Surface Warfare Nuke

Born and raised in the middle-of-nowhere, Indiana, you would never know Sarah Claudy is half Korean (or at least you wouldn't if you were her roommate). Her backroad childhood turned her into the free-spirited Hoosier we all know her to be. An Honors English major, Nuke SWO-select, grad school scholarship recipient, future resident of Rota, Arctic enthusiast, true mastermind behind the plebe mixer, and professional dark-sider with a fellow overachieving classmate, Sarah impresses everyone she meets. She is guaranteed to be the hardest working person in the room, which sets her up to be the most successful as well. There is no doubt in anyone's mind that the USS DONALD COOK, University of Chicago, and Arctic natives will be beyond lucky to have her on their team!

Andrea Coutoulakis

USMC Ground

After 21 years of saying "It's Coo-tah-lay-kiss" Andie suffered a minor identity crisis on Grecian sidewalks the summer before 1/C year. "Coo-tah-lah-kiss eh? Strong Greek name." More people noticed than just that one cab driver... who had us braced to be the topic of the next TAKEN film. Still can't believe he got us lost at the best damn restaurant the world has ever known. Andie ate like a Grecian goddess that night, 20 euro for ouzo, 3 main dishes, and a slew of travel stories. She wrote her story anew—"Coo-tah-lah-kiss." Painted it on the rainbow floats of Athens Pride 2016. Ingested it with vegan waffles and ice cream with 3 Greeks who picked up like old friends after having known each other for only a handful of hours. She blended in too well with those noble Greek eyebrows always on fleek! You will not find a greater friend or liberty buddy than Andrea Marine Coutoulakis. She bleeds green blood and hair gel. Her warrior heart knows three rules 1. There isn't much in this world that Beyonce can't fix 2. There isn't much in this world that a beer can't fix 3. There isn't much in this world that an honest conversation can't fix 4. (Numbers are hard. She's an English major with a minor in Gender Studies.) Yes, all women! Cout is the kind of woman who can handle the arena. She doesn't care about the critics, only dignity, respect, and justice. She's one hell of a lady—a firebrand through with a passion for coffee, good books, and quality time. Don't get in her way unless you want a fresh dose of perspective and a renewed faith in purity of heart

PARTRICK DANYLCHUK

SUBMARINES

Patrick Adam Danylchuk, secretly known as "Big Daddy Bearshark", hails from the same place as Jay-Z (it's Brooklyn, if he hasn't made that clear to you already). Very much like Jay-Z, this Honors English major also has an unparalleled way with words; one might hear him bitterly muttering about the latest shenanigans to occur during his watch or spitting some fiery rhymes as a once-aspiring-now-failed slam poet. This 'werewolf' of a submariner will be the saltiest sailor the Navy has seen since Admiral Rickover himself. In any case, this eloquent man of mystery has always had a lady in hand, even since the plebe mixer. But, I mean, seeing him return from sailing the seven seas, with stories in his heart and a thick beard on his face, is bound to attract. And with his rugged Bear-like physique and Shark-like tenacity it's easy to say he was always bound to crush Leatherneck underneath his boots (even if the nurse was always chasing him down asking her to always keep her company in the infirmary). Never was there a truer soul, nor a livelier poet, thinker, and friend. If you listen closely, you can still hear his cries out against the daily bullshit and also pick out that husky man-voice which whispers, "Carpe Diem."

ROBERT DUSZ

USMC GROUND

Rob was a member of many extracurricular activities at the Academy including Navy Football, Black N society, and the 2.0-and-go club. All of these accolades are what have qualified him so well for the position of Anchorman, which he unfortunately just barely lost out on. A generally good engineer, Rob Dusz is known by many names: Bobby, Tubs, Little Bill, and Pillsbury Doughboy. He self identifies as a cowboy from Arizona as well as a greasy Jersey boy. In the future, you will most likely see Rob driving a big truck full of cheap light beer on the way to his boat while on break from ground pounding with the Marines and shopping on amazon. While Rob is usually "tapped for cash," he is notoriously rich in life. A true brother, friend, and shyster, Rob's Marines will receive a leader worth having.

NATHAN GAINEY

NAVY PILOT

The man that can do everything at once while simultaneously doing nothing. When he isnt flying around track fields at break neck speeds he's usually learning about 3 languages, watching netflix, and planning a wedding. There has never been a better rested track runner and member of the Brigade. His hatred of lights past 9 pm was almost as legendary as his love for a warm bed. No matter where he goes in life we know this drive and his brain will take him places. Congratulations to you and Clare or should we say Mrs. Gainey!

GREGORY GORMAN

NAVY PILOT

If somebody asks me what is the most valuable lesson I've learned at the Academy, I would say that understanding of true friendship is the most valuable lesson that I've learned. I have made hundreds of friends over a decade, however, I never met a friend like Preston. If I have to choose between having a thousand friends or just Preston. I will pick Preston every time. He is a true friend and it is a blessing to have him in anyone's life.

JOSHUA GREEN

USMC PILOT

Joshua 'Too Tall" Green Bean claims to hail from the Great* state of Texas which we all know is just a cover up for being a North Korean spy. When he's not pretending to be a varsity athlete by "jumping for track," he can be found roaming the hallways in search of fellow Texans to punch in the chest in some sort of strange mating ritual or looking to roast some nasty plebe chopping down his hallway. He may always go down in history as the most unlucky man in the Hall with respects to getting a ring dance date, but somehow still managed to take the biggest smoke show on this side of the Mississippi.

Being a child of two Army Officers, it was very clear from a young age for Joshua that the Navy was certainly the superior choice Unfortunately, or fortunately, depending on who you ask, somewhere in the Quantico highlands the Marine Corps brainwashed him and stole his heart. Whether it's Balling with the best of them, mentoring the next generation, eating absurd amounts of breakfast, or being a servant leader for CRU (aka meat support group), you can rest assured that Josh Green will put his heart and soul into it. Thank you for the priceless and infinite memories

I wouldn't have wanted to argue through my four year at the academy with anyone else.

Jordan Harris

Surface Warfare

Hailing from the rain drenched shores of Puget Sound, Jordan was destined to serve on the sea. Even though he spent his four years at the Academy trying to convince himself and his classmates that he was not "SWO-tivated," Jordan finally accepted his fate and joined the Surface Warfare community. Jordan took full advantage of being a history major by rarely doing schoolwork and going to bed at a reasonable hour. When Jordan did study, he did so with his Stratocaster on his lap, channeling the grunge spirit of Seattle while reading historical texts. Although his focus is on the past, Jordan has much to be excited for in the future. Fair winds and following seas!

Young Hong

Navy Pilot

The only reason why I made it through the last four years at the Naval Academy is because of Young. Without him I might as well have not come to this institution. I haven't met anyone else in life that is as loyal and thoughtful as him, and my friendship with him has been the greatest thing I have taken from this place. He has made my experience at the Naval Academy worthwhile, because there is never a greater gift than that of a true friend. Young puts others before himself, he is reliable, and he is someone that truly deserves all the good things life has to offer.

Andrew Jevitt

Surface Warfare Nuke

Andrew Jevitt is the type of man that is hard to fit into a box. That's mainly because he stands at 5'10 and has the muscular build of an ox... In all seriousness though, ol' "Periscope" is a man of many colors. Many will recognize him by his sonorous vocals, but his friends know him by his competence, honesty, kindness, and love of the "standard." More importantly, Andrew is a man of the people. He values hard work, but also understands the value of fun. A true Bearshark, Andrew paid his dues plebe year. His mornings were spent cleaning yogurt off of ceilings, reciting "man in the arena" during power hour, and being rated by Napoleo- uhm I mean Jeff Sauers. Come youngster year, Andrew's inner bro came roaring out. He received a conduct offense for slamming shots some unsavory women, or it could have been for drinking a beer while reading some poetry, I can never remember. Despite his rare crimes of the heart, Andrew was selected to become a radioactive soldier of the sea (NUKE SWO). Andrew is an extremely compassionate and dedicated friend. Look out Big Navy, Periscope is coming through! Also Andrew, Kandy from youngster year wants to know why you never called back...

Emily Kilen

Medical Corps

Uffda! How do I describe Emily Kilen? Emily Kilen is a giant nerd and serious endurance athlete. Let's talk about the "giant nerd" part first. She's a physics major who studies biology and chemistry for fun, got into medical school in a single bound, casually wins hack-a-thons on the weekends and never throws away her shot to dazzle the world with her unprecedented knowledge of show tunes. As for the "serious endurance athlete" part, well, she just doesn't stop running. She snacks on marathons like candy in preparation for races that no sane human should run without being chased. But somehow in between running, dancing, researching, coding, learning musical instruments just because she can and committing Hamilton lyrics to memory, Emily Kilen manages to find time to be the kind of friend we're all lucky to have. It only seems fitting that someone who takes care of others as well as she does is going to another too many years of school to do just that.

Michael Landry

USMC Pilot

or being from Mississippi, Mike managed to do pretty well at the Naval Academy. Although he had a rough plebe year, he proved to be the savior of the entire Class of 2017 when he put the combo cover on top of Herndon. When not in class, one could find Mike either in his rack or the gym... nowhere else. If you're ever looking for someone to ground fight, Mike is your guy. If you're not looking for a ground fight, Mike will still attempt to arm bar you while you are trying to do your homework. Although Mike is a Naval Architecture major, anyone who knows him would think he majored in economics with the amount of time he spends working on his investment portfolio. Mike is a great guy with a lot of physical strength and an unmatchable charisma. He always wanted to be a Marine and he shows he is prepared to be an outstanding Marine pilot every day.

Jonathan Lin

Navy Pilot

Jonathan Lin, also known as Jeremy or J, hails from New York City. Actually, he is a Jersey boy, but the way he talks about his love for Jeremy Lin makes it seem that he is from the Big Apple. J has a distinguished career as a Midshipman at the Naval Academy. First off, he is an Olympic gold medalist in Furious Laundry Bag Throwing, received "master" status at Chinese oral exams, and is a world champion at volleyball (his career was cut short by a season ending back injury). If life and the military was as simple as a Battlefield match, then we would already have our next Admiral or General depending on how he is feeling that day. Jonathan can accomplish anything in life as long as he keeps those blockers on Youtube and Wikipedia. Known for his tact and punctuality, Jonathan is never shy to tell you how he feels. Being a Naval Aviator, Jonathan is the world's best wingman and will be a great and loyal friend to anyone he meets.

Richard Logazino

Submarines

If there was a superlative given out for the smartest midshipman, the obvious winner would be Richard Logazino. He has the ability to recall the plot of every single episode in every season of the reality television show Survivor. He understands the plot of Game of Thrones better than George R.R. Martin himself. Some believe that if he had become a doctor, modern medicine would have advanced fifty years if he had dedicated his brainpower for good. If he had become a musician, he would have created the soundtrack for Guardians of the Galaxy Vol. III. According to scientific estimation, the man has an IQ of 300. Speaking of 300, his Spartan-like warrior spirit motivated him to want to become a Marine Pilot while attending NAPS. Well, we all know how the story of the 300 Spartans ended- they all died and so did Richard's dreams of being a Marine. He was eventually given an upgrade to join the submarine community- an accomplishment he is very proud of. His warrior spirit could be most easily seen on the fieldball field where he won multiple intramural championships and earned the title of "captain" his firstie year. With the help of his friends, fieldball teammates, and - most importantly - his amazing wife, Caroline, Richard will succeed wherever his career takes him.

Mitchell Magarian

Navy Pilot

Mitch "Cuz I'm Mitch" Magarian is biggest rule breaker known to man. He keeps up with Kyle Quintana in the gym... JK he spits on Kyle Quintana in the gym. Except for Wednesday (Leg Day) as he is nowhere to be found. A huge spender, Mitch drives quite possibly the most desirable car money can buy. Dressed by Louis Vuitton himself, Mitch is tempted by no woman. Mitch is a simple man that likes to bargain, preaches protocol, and chews with his mouth open. Mitch is a true work horse and dedicated himself to getting through cyber and earning a pilot slot. Without a doubt Mitch will make a great officer. WELP SEE YA LATER.

Robert McLauchlan

Submarines

Connor took a winding road from the shire to the Naval Academy. He spent a few years following the titanic of texas football and then threw in his lot to follow his (younger) brother into the core. The reactor core. In his free time from running his Connorstitutional McLaucharchy, destroying the one ring, and dating, you can usually find Connor playing video games in his underwear or dropping into homes via skylight. (That's just not "how we roll in the shire") Though he's healed now from that fateful incident, things have never quite been the same straight and narrow they were before. All we know is nobody will ever forget the injuries sustained that night and he certainly wont!. We hope you find success in life and Charleston as you dive beneath the waves in years to come.

Jackson Meier

Submarines

A wise man once said, "Always, always, ALWAYS procrastinate." That wise man is yours truly, Jackson Ronald Meier. You may also know him as "Stonewall", a nickname awarded to him for his quiet, analytical personality. Don't let his silence fool you, for when he speaks, you will want to hear what he says. Jackson is well known for his discreet and witty sayings. He often keeps many things to himself, filtering things out; however, after a night out at Fleet, Jackson transforms into the notorious "No-Filter Jack." Jackson has deep layers of personality. He may not be green and big like an ogre, but he is definitely an onion. Even though he didn't receive his top 5 choices, Jackson will flourish in the Submarine Force because he was chosen to succeed. It will be hard to stay in touch with him when he moves to the most remote forest in a log cabin, but Jackson's amazing friendship will make anyone want to see him constantly. Jackson is a kind-hearted soul that will always respect his friends and strangers, and anyone is lucky to call him their friend. Jackson will succeed in anything whether it is being the world's best lumberjack or finding the cure for yellow fever. Jackson embodies his hero William Wallace in the saying, "Every man dies, not every man truly lives."

Shawn Park

Naval Flight Officer

If your hallway ever smelled like Korean food, chances were that Shawn Park lived on your deck. Upon entering his room, you'd think that you accidentally stumbled into the heart of K-town in New York City. Speaking of, did you know that Shawn is from New York? If you couldn't tell by his closet packed with name brand designer clothes, his cocky demeanor and swagger, or the countless number of times he talks about how he's from "The City", then you are either blind, deaf, or from New York yourself. When he isn't too busy vaping or planning trips to see his girlfriend (who is also from NYC), Shawn can usually be found wandering around the Commissary, scouting out ramen noodles and stocking up on steaks. He's trying to "bulk up" or something. Shawn is a nocturnal being and loves to spend time out during the night. Shawn has the terrible tendency to fall asleep on plane rides which is fascinating because this dude is going NFO and, like...it's kinda his job to stay awake. Right? Regardless, I have no doubt that Shawn will be an excellent asset to the United States Navy. He'll make a fantastic aviator.

Jared Paul

USMC Ground

You're walking in the woods. There's no one around, and your phone is dead
Out of the corner of your eye you spot him, Jared Paul. Yeah its 4 in the morning on a Tuesday, but JP's got a test next week so he's gotta study. When the kid can sneak in 45 minutes of uninterrupted sleep, he's actually just as angsty and aggressive as the worst of us. If you need a knife sharpened, someone to cover your main-o, or way too much information about politics, JP's your man.

Kiyomi Powell

Navy Pilot

Hailing from the Land of the Rising Sun and those little island specks some people call a state, Kiyomi Powell is only a lady by the biological definition. A vocabulary a salty sailor would be proud of and a temper shorter than plebe haircuts, Kiyomi is most certainly not the typical laid back Hawaiian girl. Kiyomi has spent her Academy time as a connoisseur of hot sauce, dedicated member of the illustrious Field Hockey Team and 25th Company's resident tomboy. While at the Academy, no snack was safe when her ravenous appetite kicked. Despite her boisterous laugh and obscene sense of humor, she has come a long long way: from that "Last Highly Motivated Midshipman" during plebe summer to a lazy pilot-select who sleeps through most afternoons. A true friend and great person, she will always be someone who can have a good laugh with. Naval Aviation is lucky to have such a colorful personality, who will surely soar in all her endeavours.

Dylan Prenda

Intel

Twenty years of schooling and they put you on the day shift." Bob Dylan PRRRRRENDA, WARDROOM! A true Renaissance man, lover of animals, fine cuisine, languages, cats, automobiles, English literature, vlogs, nuclear power, cats, vikings and Nietzsche, Dylan is a "Go-To Guy" for nearly everything. Yes, he can help with everything from taming Bengals to pouring the correct concrete to planning the perfect event. But listen carefully as he speaks too fast to understand sometimes....most of the time actually unless you haven't paid your wardroom dues or forgot to take out the trash, then it's guaranteed he'll repeat himself. Dylan is often found either behind the camera lens or behind his laptop watching Epic Rap Battles. Did you miss something important that happened? Don't worry, Dylan took a picture of it. He's spent the last four years at USNA living the dream (he's just not sure whose dream) and teaching his classmates where the Azores are. True to his mother-hen nature, in between nagging Dylan can always be counted on to take of.the people he cares about, and that is a long list.

Cole Preston

Submarines

Cole Sterling Preston, known by some as Pooh Bear is renowned for his charisma. When he is not sticking a spoon into some peanut butter, he can be found tidying up the Melwood closets. His favorite barber chair is Chair 9 because they know how to clean up the neck. Fuzzy is never on time. His morning ritual has developed into a chaotic reaction wherein he shoves his entire room into a closet just moments before sprinting to class. Calm as a cucumber, he doesn't sweat it a little bit, he sweats it a lot. He is an avid gamer and dedicated fan of the movie Free Willy. However, his true passion in life lies in taking naps, especially during sports period. A dedicated student and thirstee for knowledge, Cole will probably not crash the submarine. Sterling is an honest and hardworking man who is destined for nothing but success in his future endeavors. Cole is a true friend, and anyone who has been lucky enough to know him is better for it because, at the end of the day, we all need a fuzzy man with a heart of golden honey in our corner.

Steven Price

Navy Pilot

Who is this Steve Price guy? We aren't quite sure but we can tell you all about The Boosh. He originally had aspirations to grow the world's largest potato, but now you can catch him on the local chained up bike ridin' dirty on his way back from the Gryphon. Here he discovered his love for sweet Hershey's Kisses, but not the kind you'd imagine. His favorite quote is from Admiral McRaven, but if you ask him about it he can never seem to remember. One thing we do know is that the only reason he works out is so that he can ask everyone in the bar if they have seen the size of his biceps. To support these gains, his favorite meal is 100 pounds of protein, Hi Chews, 3,000 meat balls, and a sprinkle of soregano. Over the years he has grown (in girth, not height) in to a man that enjoys flying, shirtless selfies, shooting guns, Hawaiian shirts, long walks on the beach, and of course we can't forget about C.M. All in all we know that he is going to do much more in the sky than just crop dusting in the near future.

Kyle Quintana

Civil Engineer Corps

Kyle "As Black as it Gets" Quintana, the self-proclaimed King of Scheme, may know every lyric to every rap song ever. Connoisseur of furry animals, chocolate, Cheesecake Factory, any non-white rapper, and Latinas. The only thing between a good night and a great one is about 3 margaritas and a box of Franzia. Questionable Restricted Line choice, as he can lift a small apartment complex and still run a sub 9:30 PRT. Currently debating what's more top heavy: his lifted truck or himself. Quite possible he is the reincarnated 50 Cent. Friend to most, life coach to all; beware a night out with Kyle, you'll end up being the one left empty-handed.

James Reynolds

Submarines

James Edmundo Reynolds, known to some as the most interesting sailor in the brigade, known to all as the guy with a bear onesie and paw slippers. The man truly was born on the crest of a wave and rocked in the cradle of the deep (he may have robbed said cradle too...) If you need to sail around the world without a mast, he's your guy. If you need to blow up a wall outlet with pliers, he's your guy. If you need a great friend and one of the best people we've had the privilege of knowing, he's STILL your guy. We wish you the happiest of times and the best of luck as you and your wife to be start out your naval journey in submarines, and altholgh we part ways after graduation (well almost all of us) we look forward to the incredible career you will have beneath the waves.

Dennis Rusiewski

Supply Corps

When Dennis "Third Times the Charm" Rusiewski gets heated at bars he loves to take a shower. A swimmer by trade, but man could he whammy a tennis ball. Dennis will be supplying the Navy with not only their swedish fish, sparkling water, and Natural Lattes, but will also be providing some of his legendary 100% USDA prime beef. Although he is a true Forgotten Son, he will go down as a passionate committed brother that risked injury to part of the team. NMSD Proud

"Sagan Bistro Lounge"
Across Gate 7

Michael Sagan

USMC Pilot

Mike "the Wild Man" Sagan is a man of mystery and the suspected instigator of the Turkish Coup. He enjoys a cold beer just as much as a slice of pizza... in the shower. His innovative mind brought us the creation of the cereal trough, using your mouth as the cereal bowl, and ice cream... in the shower. He worked on creating his invulnerable six pack with countless pull-ups... in the shower. This probably makes him the most talented and envied Mid in the Brigade. Voted most likely to need adult diapers. Although we will be scattered far and wide, we wish you luck as you fly the friendly skies in Pensacola after TBS.

NICHOLAS SATTERLEE

NAVY PILOT

At 165 soaking wet Mustang Oklahoma's very own, Nick "Nice Guy" Satterlee is a very optimistic and respectful individual. If you can't find him in the aero lab or arguing with teachers, he's probably working on his Firebird. He is the type of guy to do a burn out in front of the police and laugh. However, his Firebird was like that hot cheating girlfriend that you could never break up with. Thanks to Nick, there was no Bancroft hall door left unkicked or lack of Bearshark chants.

SAMUEL STEINFELS

USMC GROUND

Sam Steinfels: Born on the crest of a wave in Lake Michigan and rocked in the cradle by his 11 older siblings until his brain chemistry was permanently altered to know no fear, pain or emotions. Violent execution is the definition of Sammy; whether it is Field Ball or simply giving you a "hug," you are likely to sustain some sort of minor injury hanging around this midsquishman. Never fear though, he is as qualified as the SEAL doctor at BMU, promptly forcing you to walk it off. Some of his favorite pastimes include watching Netflix in fast-forward, bear pitting anyone or anything, and making the ladies of 6-3 swoon over his strong jaw-line and flowing locks. In the Steinfels house hold there was no career choice for the children of Park Ridge. At an early age he was conscripted in the naval service aboard the U.S.S. Elizabeth City for early training to follow in his great grandfather's steps as becoming a SEAL, however nobody told him until he got to Annapolis that job would involve his two greatest fears: swimming and heights. After growing tired of serving the Navy for the past 22 years. Sam has decided to follow in his brothers' footsteps in joining the Marine Corps in hopes that it will be the quickest route to becoming a stay at home dad. Unfortunate for him and the Marine Corps, it is hard to run towards the sounds of chaos when he in fact is the chaos. If you ever wonder what it would be like to have the most loyal, humble, intelligent, athletic and the definition of a good dude for a friend, then you have obviously never met Sam Steinfels. Thanks for setting future me up for failure by setting the bar so high for the standard of friendship. You will be truly missed and I cannot wait to see all the amazing adventures life has in store for you.

ERYN STOCKDALE

SURFACE WARFARE

BQ alert!!! The self-proclaimed "wholesome" southern belle of the group, standing 4 foot nothing, "Roll Tide" screaming Bama girl! Baby is about to chuck the deuces. Queue the violins. You can usually hear her before you see her, but you will always feel her presence. Whether you've caught her being launched in the air on the sidelines in front of the brigade, mixing up the elements in the basement of Michelson, or stuntin on deez h....nevermind, y'all get the point. To know her is to love her, and if you don't she probably doesn't care anyway. That high pitched voice and southern accent have fooled many over her four years, but don't be mistaken. Her sass level is unmatched and she throws shade like nobody's business, so proceed with caution and tread lightly. You have incredible things in store for you, and always remember you are more than capable of conquering any adversary that awaits you. USNA will not be the same without you next year, but know your sisters are cheering you on. Love you bestfrennn, stay littttttttttttttttt! #BBQ4eva #LitLyfe

MIKI SZABO

SEALs

Tendy intimidator and connoisseur of animal apparel, Miki Szabo is a sculpted greek god, and he knows it. You'll find this chit surfer riding the waves of Coronado, because he's cool... and tough. Miki is quite remarkably the only blue collar industrial worker from Cleveland to frequent a tanning salon and plastic surgeon. If not for the call to service, young Miki would have pursued a career as a therapist for children of all ages. Miki continued these ideals of mentorship on the Navy Hockey team, where he could often be found sharing a stall and intellectual conversations with his younger teammates. An NHF legend in his own right, Miki truly lives the beast reality of a modern day goon. He's spent almost as much time in the Meat Locker as he has in various countries around the globe. Adrenaline junkie and future author, Miki's exploits at the Academy and around the globe will serve him well in his future endeavors. Miki's peers have very high expectations for him and hope to someday see him live out his dreams as a member of DEAFGRU.

BRETT VOSS

NAVY PILOT

Brett "The Boss" Voss is a native of Jefferson City, Missouri, and he will never pass up an opportunity to root for his home state. If he isn't making video games in his systems classes, you'll find Brett working tirelessly in his room to get better at playing them. Some say that due to his gaming prowess, Brett has the strongest fingers in the Brigade. A true athlete, he has managed to dominate in every sport he has ever played through this bizarre training regimen and a healthy diet of Ramen Noodles and Goldfish. Brett is a true friend who you can count on no matter what the situation is. His honesty and loyalty are only matched by his desire to fly jets off a carrier. This led Brett to service select Naval Aviation. Without a doubt, his hard work and determination will lead him to become one of the best pilots the Navy can produce. I think it's safe to say that we look forward to seeing Brett take to the skies.

Matthew Washington

Navy Pilot

Born with a Lego brick in each hand, one would expect Matt Washington to be a member of one of the fine engineering majors here at USNA. However, Matt decided to go after the big bucks as an economics major and chose a minor in conspiracy studies. What can I say though, he's gotten all of us wondering what's going on with all these globalists and frogs alike. Whether it's cars, canoeing or bartending, Matt is your guy. He's always looking to learn and will surely start each morning in the fleet with a shower orange or whatever the internet says is better for you that year. After his naval career he'll probably move to Canada and we can finally finish taking over his parent's house and maybe he'll even leave the Xbox, but until then, Cheers George.

26TH COMPANY

Joseph Barrett

Surface Warfare Nuke

The first thing you should know about Joe is that he is a devote Catholic. Like many Bostonians, he can often be found at Mass, lighting a candle to his patron saint Tom Brady. When Joe isn't re-watching the last five minutes of this year's Super Bowl, chances are he is thinking about cars. This year, he let the Formula One capstone team help him build a little racecar. Neat! It might even be as fast as his Porsche (POR-shuh). Sometimes, when the sunlight isn't too strong, you might see Joe venture out of his lab to cruise down Ego Ally in his sponsor's Hinckley, pretending that it is his. All joking aside, Joe Barrett is one of the hardest working and selfless midshipmen in the Brigade. Around 26th Company, you won't find a more dedicated or invested Firstie. If "The Real CD-Joe" spots you, he is sure to come over and brighten up your day.

Ian Best

Submarines

Ian "Mr. Worst" Best is quite possibly the most interesting man in the Brigade. He claims to hail from "Dayton, Ohio" but we all know he was actually birthed within the depths of the Gulag and raised by wolves in the Siberian wilderness. Somehow, Mr. Worst arrived on I-Day seeking Bravo squad, dazed and confused. Soon thereafter, Mr. Worst donated the skin of his palms to the patron saint of the O-Course to refute any claims that he was a Russian sleeper agent. In school, Mr. Worst has worked harder than anyone else, and he has the record to prove it. Each night, Mr. Worst can be found listening to frightening death metal and slurping juice while somehow never taking his eyes off of his work. As a testament to his physical prowess, Mr. Worst completed both screeners and did the second one just for fun. After 5 semesters at USNA, Mr. Worst decided to return as close to the motherland as possible to the mountains of Kazakhstan, where he spent his substantial free time throwing himself down the slopes and enjoying the fruits of his three gym memberships. After he graduates, Mr. Worst will likely be a revered member of the submarine community, where his dad jeans and awkward liberty attire will serve him well.

Christian Blanchard

USMC Ground

MIDN Blanchard was destined for the Marine Corps since his induction as a plebe. He joined a unique group of midshipmen who actually enjoyed plebe summer, so much that he would take part in it twice more as a detailer. Christian solidified his status as a moto trainer by asking the Commandant why he could no longer PT his plebes as a youngster training corporal. Nonetheless, Christian found his niche at the Naval Academy. He never was quite good enough for command, finishing his academy career with back-to-back stints as the XO of a unit. The Untied Status Marin Crops is lucky to have him - his dedication to high standards and continual professional education will undoubtedly serve him well as he rises to serve as the Commandant of the Marine Corps.

John Bryant

Naval Flight Officer

David Dedios

Navy Pilot

David Dedios: the Tebow of goats. David was known as the one guy who dedicated his time at the Naval Academy, not only to academics, but also to his wide variety of ECAs. He kicked butt on the judo mats, smashed the cymbals in D&B, engaged himself in the Fil-Am club, gave a magnificent acting performance with the Masqueraders, and danced his way on the football fields without anyone knowing about it. Some of his other secrets included staying a cheerful and enthusiastic midshipman who maintained his perfect 4.1 QPR, all the while playing League of Legends and learning how to become a legend himself. But anyone could catch David thrashing on his longboard through DTA. Being a nerd during the school day, a superhero making kids smile at STEM or being a GOAT and making girls blush, he always found time to help others with their academic failure or with their rhythm and dance. He a very loyal courageous friend that I am proud to call as a brother. If you see him ask him about his tattoo! If you didn't get the chance to meet him, fear not; he's going to be a great officer in the aviation community and will probably earn his call-sign well ahead of his classmates. Ladies and gentlemen, I give to you the incredible, the best, the one and only David Dedios!

David Espe

Naval Flight Officer

Hailing from the warm sunny beaches of San Diego, CA, David "Chubbs" Espe came to the Boating University both to continue his Navy family tradition, and more importantly to win the heart of a certain Rough Ridin' sister-in-arms. This former cross country runner brought with him the suave west coast style, mannerisms, and a skateboard. Perhaps one of the more stud ous Midshipmen in the Brigade, "Chubbs" was known by all to shun even the mildest indications of procrastination. Having no love of TV soap operas, "Chubbs" was known to meander about during study period looking for the bottom suckers wasting time on shows like "How I met your Mother" or "Friends" and teach them the true meaning of work ethic. "Chubbs" was voted in-company as the biggest flirt. They say you only find true love once, but David has somehow found it on many of his Spring Breaks as a Midshipman, and he didn't stop there. Just like he didn't stop after hearing the words "NOT DECENT." Twice. His greatest accomplishments include becoming a master Spikeball guru, being successfully bullied out of watching anime by his friends, and enjoying the finest-cooked bratwurst atop the Grand Canyon. "Chubbs" showed great aptitude as a future NFO by mastering his take-offs in PFP. Three years the roommates of "Rasta Man" and "Honey Nut," the Aviation Trio will miss him. If there is anything David has taught us, it's that we're all in this together. Just like the fridge.

Christopher Fennell

Navy Pilot

Hailing from our nation's capital, CJ "Rasta Man" Fennell, brought with him the maturity, disposition, and wisdom from an illustrious year of prep school. Around the hall "Rasta man" has gained a reputation as one of the 'goodest guys around,' and always pays his debts, especially in the case of small cooling appliances to his ethnic roommate. Never one to brag or boast, "Rasta man" has accomplished many feats. He has climbed some of the tallest mountains, rowed in the worst of storms, and hiked in the most beautiful woodlands. But little is it known that he harbors a vast forest of his own just above the Coccyx.

Perhaps his most defining attribute, "Rasta man" is known to live, sleep, work, and workout on island time. Wednesday night Reggae nights were his doing. He holds the record for longest shave-and-generally-slow-morning-mover-who-takes-up-the-whole-sink-area-with-product. Also from his island days, "Rasta man" is known for ripping the panties off of even the most adept drinkers of island rum. While at the Boating University, "Rasta man's" ambitions for achieving his lifelong dream of becoming a true Jamaican were derailed when he caught the flight bug... which is a wonder given his acute germaphobia. A man of many accomplishments including building the best dang 'coque this institution has ever seen, by far his greatest quality is his taste in roommates: the Aviation trio of "Honey nut," "Chubbs," and "Rasta man." Bottoms up, CJ. Let's get Irie.

Rose Gerszewski

Surface Warfare

Rose Gerszewski (Gerzouski? Gerckaeuiobnki?) is one hell of a woman. Armed with biting sarcasm and quick wit, she has never been one to avoid conflict and this has made her one of the most loyal friends anyone could ever ask for. A Chicago-area native and University of Pittsburgh defector, Rose found a true home at the Naval Academy—the German Naval Academy. As the MAG President, she is the face of USNA in the community. Rose also spends her time trumpeting for the Drum and Bugle Corps, where she also earned the title Mother Trucker (ret.) for her work on the trucking crew. Study abroad, MAG, D&B, truck driving— what doesnt she do? No one can pronounce her name, but everyone knows who she is. Rose's passion and charisma have left a mark on the Academy that will not soon be forgotten.

Thomas Giornelli

USMC Pilot

"Coming from the small town of Atlanta Georgia it took Thomas some time to adjust to the city life of Annapolis. All the hustle and bustle forced him back to the comfort of his Bionicle sets and Rick and Morty episodes. He did space things in space class that no one in the room quite understood, or cared to. His dedication to homework was one of his greatest qualities, staying up well past 2 a.m. most nights to finish it, well that was after hours upon hours of youtube and Pokemon. The greatest accomplishment Thomas had in his time at the academy was to catch every Pokemon in Omega Ruby. Throughout all his studying at the academy one topic he never quite mastered was how to talk to people...like anyone at all. Often times communicating exclusively through obscure movie quotes Thomas and I were able to break down this barrier of social ineptitude and become best friends. Throughout our time at the academy I have seen him grow to become a man capable of succeeding in life, well figuratively of course, he is still short. He has truly been a man in the arena here at the academy and possesses all the qualifications of a naval officer. For real though, I couldn't be happier to have had you as a roommate and a best friend. I wish you the best in everything you do and can't wait to see you on the other side (of graduation). Wubba-lubba-dub-dub, get schwifty.

Love, Jared PS: Can't wait to see you at my flag ceremony later in life."

Brian Greggs

Navy Pilot

Brian "Eeyore" Greggs will always be remembered for setting the all-time record for visits to BMU, Netflixing away his youngster year, and leading 26th Company to an intramural soccer Championship. Between watching Manchester United, napping, and finding dank memes, Brian somehow finds the time to fulfill his academic responsibilities as an Economics major. Don't let Brian's monotone voice fool you; he's very happy to be with you! The fact that Brian bought an orange truck to match his phone case tells you something about his colorful personality. Brian's laid back attitude and level head will suit him well in the aviation community. His dedication, wit, and humor are second to none, and he will be sorely missed after graduation.

Jacob Griffin

Submarines

Separated from home by several time zones, this North Cali boy quickly assumed his role as room instigator. He cherished conversations with his roommates – so much so that he hated to leave the circle at night. He also cherished cleanliness, not hesitating to use up all the hot water in 8th wing on Sunday mornings. Godliness came before cleanliness though, giving him the moniker of "Jake the Redeemer." Above all, Jake loves the company of his roommates. Their relationship was a constant give-and-take, with Jake always taking crap from them, especially JP. Despite this, Jake would be the first to say "Don't leave me." He once was so desperate for company that he woke Jared up abruptly in Treasure Key simply to share in the pure moment. Best of luck in the Submarine force Jake. Hopefully you watch the reactor levels better than you watched Spike.

Jared Grove

USMC Pilot

Everything's bigger in Texas, to include this Oregonian's personality and his dubious residency claim. Whether he's rocking his cowboy boots and striped shirt or wielding his famed red lightsaber, Jared is sure to convert any night from a sure loss into a possible victory. Don't get me wrong, RoughRider17 himself knows a thing or two about a sure loss, be it burpies, a stern talking to from old Mr. Whitlow, or first impressions with the Supe. However, no loss could ever put down this man's ability to escalate his situation. He's truly unstoppable. Not even loose mess dress pockets or a slippery electrical socket could keep Jared from enjoying his time here at the Academy with his friends. If there's one thing Jared is more loyal to than his country, it's his friends. Jared's time at the Academy was an overall success. Whether he was researching Bahamian gun laws for his Capstone or carrying a hefty ruck, Jared always managed to excel. Now, it's off to the Marine Corps with you. Semper Fi, bud. We always knew these walls couldn't keep you in (or out) forever. AAAAAOUUGHAAAAAGHH!

Jared Hachmeister

Naval Flight Officer

"Born a proud dirt farmer in the fields of Kansas (or Nebraska, who knows), Jared Hachmeister achieved success early in live. Whether it was graduating in the top five of his eight man high school class or playing starting center on the eight man football team, Jared excelled at everything he did. When it came time to go to college, he realized his excellence would be too much for the class of 16, and volunteered to spend a year at NAPS. Once he got to the Academy, no training sergeant could hold him back. He earned a a varsity letter in Sleeping in Closets and Video Games. He took combat sports by storm applying his trademark ""Your Fist on my Face"" style of boxing and successfully gaining seven new arm bones in wrestling. Though to this day, his proudest moment at the Academy is starting and finishing Dark Souls II during exam week...Plebe year. He also managed to get a wife while he was here, despite mainly communicating in half remembered song lyrics and movie quotes...so that's a thing. He has truly been a man in the arena here at the Academy, and possesses all the qualifications of a Naval Officer. Jared, you're a great friend and roommate, thank you for a great four years. You're gonna go far in life

Just hopefully not too far, you know, for my sake."

Jeremiah Harding

USMC Ground

Sherman apparently didn't finish the job, because this young Georgian managed to finagle his way into this fine institution just south of the Mason-Dixon line. Jeremiah managed to exact his revenge through skillful control of the weather – particularly hurricanes. He has occasionally had instances of OCD regarding cleanliness. Fortunately his roommates were always willing to assist with showers of basic hair-care products. Despite his insignificant stature, Jeremiah has always attracted the ladies, whether it be a roommate's sister or the girl next door. There's always room in his heart for his buddies – especially when their butts are on the line or their guts have been spilled. Whether he 5-and-dives or remains in for a full career, he has a ready job awaiting him with Amazon. Best of luck in the Marine Corps Jeremiah. May your ankles always withstand the E-course and may your MREs be filled with Krave.

Destiny Harrell

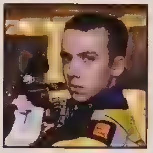
Surface Warfare

Destiny Harrell likes to tell people she's from Round Lake, Illinois, but don't let that fool you as she has family in Wisconsin, Florida, and Virginia. Destiny works hard academically, just like any model midshipman, but get a few amaretto sours in her and she'll steal any dance floor – even though she still won't admit she's a great dancer. Destiny is always available to talk, in fact she might be the most popular girl in company by the amount of people who visit her nightly. But what makes Destiny such a wonderful person is not just her ability to listen to problems, it is her willingness to drop what she's doing to help anyone and everyone. It's why Destiny is one of the good ones; she'll have your back even if she's too short to reach it.

Chatwin Jackson

Navy Pilot

Chatwin "honey nut" Maby Jackson IV is a sailor, through and through. Hazaah! He has studied relentlessly over his four years by the bay and, after mastering his aeronautics curriculum, he wrote a critically-acclaimed thesis titled "Pointy-Nosed Fighter Jets". He can often be seen compulsively recording his personal thoughts and conversations in a complex, 800-megabyte dossier, a habit he has tried in vain to impart on others. Always thrifty-minded, he has been known to rely on Naval Academy public transportation at great risk to himself and his mates. During his Firstie year, Craftmaster Jackson has begun training to become the first man to circumnavigate the globe in a virtual reality aircraft. He wrote the MATLAB code for it, too. His proudest accomplishments include becoming a mouse herder, gaining the ability to sleep anywhere, anytime, any way, and possessing the gift of flawless melodic reproductions of otherwise enjoyable tunes. Just admit it, you heard it wrong. It is without a doubt that he will one day enjoy his Sunday mimosas while looking back on an accomplished naval career. No matter where his service takes him, he will always be the one sought after to find a solution to any problem. Except the BAW. You can't fix that. This man will drop anything to help a friend in need, a quality that will define him as an officer. Think of your buds while you're taxiing off the flight line, and before you hit the throttle, listen to that voice in the back of your head saying, "send her up!"



Daniel Jonas

Surface Warfare

Daniel Jonas, formally known as "El Presidente" has had a long illustrious career as a midshipman, long for himself and maybe longer for those around him. The President while too modest to say it, is the best shot east of the Mississippi but being too modest for the act of boasting he humble excused himself for qualifying pistol or rifle while at the Academy. Danny is fond of the finer points of academic life: Pleasant academic discussion, long walks along the seawall, screaming at 2 AM, and reading inspirational literature. Danny will be a great future leader. Good luck Mr. President.

Joseph Kelly

USMC Ground

Joseph Jude Kelly, also known as the man with many faces, can be seen from miles away by his unmistakable feature of caterpillar eyebrows. Scripture has it that Joe was born long ago in a place called Galway, where he was given a gift of two stomachs: a main side. and a dessert side. Joe has a history of warriors in his background. From his relatives who fought at Cafe Normandie, Joe has a reputation of taking things too far. With an open palm, Joe has a deadly 1-2 combo, especially when climbing into your rack. Love fist bumps? Just be careful when giving them to Joe! You just might find yourself having been full body checked into a concrete wall. When it comes to music selection, Joe's got the tunes: Bob Marley, Shaggy...anything Rastafarian! It's no wonder he's twenty for twenty on every 0530 drug test. Hasn't missed yet! When Joe isn't found slaving away on the formula car or building his personal wardrobe of things that his roommates have, Joe can be found eating at one of his many favorite restaurants: Galway Bay and Galway Bay. It's no secret that Joe likes to be on time for things, especially when returning 8 hours early from a weekend with his beautiful second half. Joseph Jude Kelly: a beautifully eye lashed best friend. While you'll never get around to touching him, he'll touch your heart.

Mackenzie Margroum

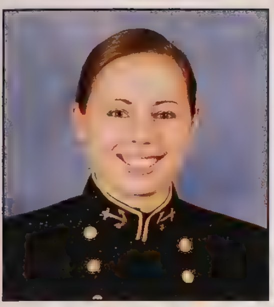
USMC Ground

"MacKenzie Margroum, the only thing taller than her, is her personality. She may not have done Leatherneck, but as the Captain of the hardest working team on the yard, Navy Women&#8217;s Swimming, this tall drink of water has been able to accomplish a lot in her time here. The only thing she knows better than the Third Law of the Navy is the words and dance moves to every Beyonce song ever written (not an exaggeration). &#8220;Kenzitucky&#8221; can be found in Lejuene breaking pool records, having dance parties in 8045, or online shopping. You may find this drama queen strutting her stuff in the Ms. Universe Pageant, one day on a reality TV showâ ¦ or maybe even in a foxhole, but no matter where you meet her, she will always have a joke or story to make you smile."

Jonathan McDougall

USMC Ground

Hailing from the far-off snowy land of the famed Mitten State, this grizzled outdoorsman has been a terror to fish, squirrels, and roommates alike since plebe year. Though he remained a NARP all four years, the baseball and boxing teams each tried to recruit him after hearing of feats involving an alarm clock and a Jimmy John's sandwich. JP simply claims his athletic prowess is due to the copious amounts of vitamin C he ingests. True ladies can't resist his Midwest charm, particularly when music is involved. He doesn't discriminate against Arkansans however, when Zac Brown is playing. His one true love will always remain Marge though. He would go to the ends of the earth for her... or to the depths of the hospital ward. He remains close to his friends, whether while sharing his love of Darius Rucker with a friendly nudge or while stargazing on a dock in Treasure Key. Best of luck in the Marine Corps JP. Take care to avoid NDs – both kinetic and electromagnetic. They're lucky to get another one from the always violent and rowdy McDougall clan.



Margaret McLaughlin

Surface Warfare

For your own good, don't mess with this girl. If you wanted to take a hit from her as hard as the hit that life gave her while here at USNA, I'd suggest you turn around and get to stepping kid because the difference between you and her is that she lived and you won't. She's tougher than you bottom line unless you happened to flirt with death and lived to tell the tale. That's right buster didn't think so. But don't worry she's about to enjoy a whole new life in San Diego where she'll probably spend more hours of the weekend nights at the Pacific Beach bars drinking bottomless Miller Lites and flaunting her new million dollar smile than she will in her own bed. Don't get it twisted though, she's the biggest sweetheart who's probably nicer than your best friend forever, froomie, girlfriend, partner in crime, all of the above. She's the GOAT. She'll never say it or believe it, but her crew will tell you otherwise.

Amanda Mock

Naval Flight Officer

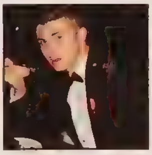
Amanda Mock is a giant among men in both size and personality. She is from Birmingham, Alabama and has the accent and the Lily Pulitzer dresses to prove it. Her inability to discern a friend from a stranger makes her a familiar face in the brigade. She likes everyone so much that she almost hangs out with them on the weekends. Her love of talking unfortunately spills over to singing, but if you're lucky you won't ever have to hear it. Her favorite song is Dixieland Delight because that's the only song she knows all the words to. Her sweet southern charm lightens a room; unfortunately, it has caught everyone's attention with the exception of Will Worth. Amanda is excited to return to the south as part of the Naval Aviation community and party it up with everyone in the club while they eat shrimp. Roll Tide! We love you, Manders, and will miss you so much!

Tee Nguyen

Oceanography

Tee Nguyen is a citizen of the west coast so he's about as chill and laid back as they get but what many don't know is that he's the ultimate schemer. None of us ever had to worry about plans if this dude was ever in charge and if you ever needed any extra information about anything, he was the grapevine and you had to hit this man up because of his network. His quick wits and impeccable ability to plan debauchery always lead to trouble, a legendary night or both. When not being kept down by "The Man" or planning his newest schemes, he can be found in his natural habitat at the local dive bars double-fisting Coronas, ripping fruity shots, and letting people know they aren't boozers. Originally a Navy Pilot but due to medical issues is now a "Fallen Angel" and has decided to take his talents to the restricted line community as an Oceanography/METOC officer. He will surely find success as a glorified weatherman (with a lot of job experience from predicting beer showers at ACME) and anywhere else he chooses to go in life after the Navy. Tee is the realest friend anyone could ask for; always there to pick you up whenever you're down but ain't afraid to call you a coward when it's deserved. He will always have your back through anything and that's why we got his back whenever he needs it. We love you and couldn't be more proud. Congratulations you boozehound, you made it.

Justin Reed



Surface Warfare Nuke

Never able to decide which state in the Union to call home, Justin alternates between his claims as an Arkansan or Hoosier based on what he feels in the moment. A die hard Cubs fan, his 21st annual reminder that "This is our year," finally came true (pretty sure they heard him celebrate from first wing). Justin's obsession with minute organization is rivaled only by his undying love for a Tom Collins made by none other than the one and only Castlebay Nikki. A member of the 2% club (assuming everything went well at their destination wedding in Annapolis), Justin's four years by the bay were soothed with nearly nightly video calls with his beautiful bride-to-be (though we hear what happens at Zac Brown stays at Zac Brown - see JP McDougall Bio). Those long hours staring at the screen must have fried his brain as he made the decision to early-select Nuke SWO. Hopefully the reactor will have mercy on his remaining brain cells. We expect nothing but the best from this Rough Rider. Fair winds and following seas.

Michaela Scrudato

Navy Pilot

From a town so small not even those from New Jersey know it, Michaela Scrudato has not allowed that to stop her from bringing her "Jersey charm" to everything she does. Whether she is socializing in DTA, walking around Rome, or at the library not doing work, she never has a dull moment. An avid Friends watcher, Michaela is caring, bold, and not afraid to cross international borders to have a good time. From late night dance parties to even later night life talks, this is one girl that will be missed by company mates, and especially her roommate, when she tosses her cover.

Brenna Shea

USMC Ground

"The roughest rough rider to lay waste to the halls of Mother B, Brenna Shea can be found slinging beers in DTA or applying gel to/ slicking down the tightest buns the Marine Corps will ever see. No stranger to relaxation, Brenna is sure to find many friends in the Quantico Highlands with her California chiller attitude. Aside from wanting to be a Marine, her true calling is terrorizing Corgi owners in the streets just for the simple pleasure of getting to pet it. The future will find Brenna jacked and stacked with ribbons high on her now empty chest. Aside from her healthy affinity for the different services, particularly West Point, Shea will find a familiar home in the welcoming arms of the Navy Marine Corps family. There is no doubt that Brenna will enjoy the peaceful solitude of FEXes and the harmonic calls of Staff NCOs at TBS. Wherever she goes, Brenna Shea will have some snacks and a knife hand close by."

Delaney Shields

USMC Pilot

Old cheeky Delanal will be long remembered by her company mates of 28 for her astute interpretation and implementation of Midshipmen Rules and Regulations. Her great love for the conduct system prompted her into lengthy research investigating the process of restriction. While she may not have found answers to her questions, she found love and hope in the form of Sid the Sloth. Adventures with Pooty "Downey" Pete and Drunk Old Joe kept her sane while she rang in 2016 at home in Mother B. Overlooking her rebellious tendencies, Delaney has been the best night time talker a roomie could ask for. She has been an amazing friend and Target shopping buddy ... and you can often find her counseling Bonner during his emotional breakdowns. This Rough Rider will head down to the Quantico highlands battle ready and tested for fight the CRF with a solid year of two beer blackouts under her belt.

Eric Spero

Surface Warfare

Legend says that Captain Jack Sper...I mean, Eric Spero was born in the comfort of tidy whitey underwear, holding both a Greek yogurt and a jar of skippy peanut butter in his hands, whilst basking in the beaming light of a snapchat beauty filter. An entrepreneur at heart, Eric single handedly found a way to obtain most of his roommates clothes by simply existing and talking in a German accent. He's frugal, using only a single utensil: the bacspoon. When not getting his tan on at hospital point, lying in his chambers at 8pm, or watching his favorite show "the Bachelor," Eric can be found hitting the town purchasing the cheapest beverages around. Now Eric wasn't always the large hunk of a man that he is today. Originally living the old high school wrestling days and practicing his moves, Eric eventually moved on to investing in "anchor arms" and fueling himself on all things dairy. Eric was then able to gain enough weight to break his roommate's scale by simply building up hot gas. As a man of mystery, there are still some questions that will go unanswered, like "why is it purple" and "why is it pointy?" Eric doesn't have an answer to what he was talking about, leaving us with the question of "what could it possibly be?" It is no doubt that Eric will be missed by his friends. And ladies, he's now single: Looks like meats back on the menu boys! From his forceful requests of picture taking until he was satisfied, leaving questionable things around the sink area, and his many noises, Eric has made an impact on those he cares about and has sincerely touched us.

Evan Staresinic

Surface Warfare

Do you remember that geeky kid back in high school that would read comics and wear Star Wars shirts? Yeah, Evan ate him...Well, not exactly...Evan is that kid. His love for reading comics however has turned into more of a role play, as he now looks like a young Clark Kent. When hes not busy frolicking around the pool deck in his tasteful man bikini, you can find him throwing back full bottles of cheap whiskey and rum at the local watering holes. Casual Saturday nights at ACME turn into dreaded Sunday mornings at his sponsors. Where he prances around the kitchen making under-cooked chicken and spam sandwiches. One thing that still keeps me up at night is, why is he bodybuilding? I mean really, Evan? Are you really going to need all those muscles when you're napping aboard the USS DETROIT? You may look like Clark Kent, but you are surely no Superman. I'm just kidding, the kid is someone you could always count on to help you when you were in trouble. Just ask him about PROTRAMID. Evan can commonly be mistaken for one of his favorite comic heroes the HULK. When not glued to his phone fighting for the alliance Evan can be found in Wes B pumping iron and consulting others on techniques. Truly the heartbreak kid Evan came in like a wrecking ball. A man who loves a great scotch he can certainly cut loose at the drop of a hat. If a cougar invades the luau Evan will be the first to eliminate the threat. His water polo career was cut short due to injury and although missed, we all wished it was us. The party will continue in San Dingus but cut short with his departure to Florida. Bitter sweet but gives us the opportunity to take our talents to South Beach. We love you you big nerd!

Tristan Tello

USMC Ground

Tristan Samuel Tello hails from Strong Island, and while you may not be familiar with his true name, you may recognize him by his call sign: Guns. Those cannons may not even be legal in the state of Maryland, and he's always having to see the vet because his Pythons are SICK. Other alternative names include: Trist, Thick Trist, Hans, Hansy Ponsy, Noble Steed, or Big Strong Man. Tristan has a heavy preference for older, and particularly bigger things in life. While he may appear to be a teddy bear on the outside, don't let that fool you. He's grizzly on the inside. Full grizzly. His tree trunk legs and anaconda arms are a testament to this. While Fabio is his well known icon, Tristan actually gets his good lucks from his father. With his radical flow and male model smile, he'll have that twenty-something look well into his eighties. His principles flow like a current while he rocks his style like Dwayne 'The Rock' Johnson. Next time you see Tristan "Guns" Tello around, make sure to get a good vice grip on him, he'll not only like it, but it will remind him of the good old days with his roommates and best friends. In closing, when Tristan tries to hit you with a little Asian persuasion, make sure you remember he's only half Asian, also half Ecuadorian, but FULL AMERICAN BABY. Ladies, never forget...he's single too (at the time this was written at least, items on the meat menu may changed based on availability and season).

ANNAKATRINA VARGAS

SURFACE WARFARE

Who do you know that randomly wants to fight in the Brigade Boxing Championship? Who, of all people, spontaneously feels like running a marathon, trains months for it, and then excels in it? Who can serenade you in song on an acoustic guitar for hours at a time? That woman is Anna Vargas. She loves competition because it gives her a chance to learn something new and grow. Originating from the West Coast of So Cal, Anna Vargas has involved herself in any and every activity at the Naval Academy that presented a challenge: Fearlessly setting the example as a FireTeam Leader, traveling to Spain right after learning Spanish, leading the Rough Riders' company, and writing about her experiences along the way. She never let complacency set in; there was always -- ALWAYS -- room for improvement. And the people that made it through the Academy because of her will proclaim how great of a friend and mentor she is. Anna is the dandelion that you always see in your front yard, but refuse to pluck because you want to see it grow more and more.

GRANT VERMEER

CRYPTOLOGIC WARFARE

From the Bay Area of the Golden State Grant arrived at the academy in a ray of sunshine that quickly disappeared on I-day. A master at networking you can count on him to blaze through the cyber lab or schmooze his way through a social gathering. Although a Basketball player by trade, he only played this sport for the sleeveless uniforms that let the light glint off his pre-oiled biceps. Always dressing stylishly you can always tell what his next outfit will be by paying close attention to the mannequins in storefronts. A natural gambling man, Grant can be found on many a weekend swindling others in poker. While he may be ice cold at the Roulette table he is red hot with the ladies. Grant's aptitude with las chicas is only rivaled by his prowess with 1s and 0s. As Grant goes on to live his dream of being a 'Crypie' we expect him to turn all 'shoulds' into 'musts' as America's Next Great Cyber Warrior.

DANIEL WEATHERS

SURFACE WARFARE NUKE

Despite his often slovenly appearance and incredible lack of respiratory stealth, few midshipmen rivaled Dan's ability to row a boat for hours on end, talk about it for even longer, and still swoon the ladies of Annapolis week in and week out. The two-time reigning awardee of The Smelliest Roommate Award, Dan's stench constantly defied the bounds of odor in both flavor and pungence. Similar to a caveman, his body did not properly convey his physical prowess, whether on the Severn, or around Ingram Track. Once in the fleet, his success as a Nuke SWO will surely be attributed to the many hours spent watching a wide variety of action scenes and Sportscenter Top 10 countdowns while playing the most newly released mindless gaming app on his phone. Above all, when he sets his mind to it, Dan demonstrates highly professional competence and has a long and illustrious career ahead of him where he will surely one day be named the smelliest Admiral in the Fleet.

LOUIS WOHLETZ

SURFACE WARFARE

I first met Louis back in that frozen wasteland called Minnesota. While here, he became a best friend and little slice of home. He's everything a Minnesotan needs to be. He's loyal (the kind of loyalty that sustains Vikings fans) to a fault. You can even ask his roommates, the sheer number of times he's almost killed them but refrained shows how truly loyal he is. He wrangles actors with the best of stage managers without losing his techie touch. He's well humored (you'd have to be after Blair Walsh's playoff kick) which has served him well dealing with the rigors of this institution. You'll never see him break down into hysterics of stress over Mechanical Engineering (at least, not anymore you won't). He's honest, even his hips don't lie (even though they used to), and he's always enthusiastic (awesome, wow). Louis Wohletz really is one of the best people I know, and anybody will be lucky to have him as a dance partner, division officer, or friend.

SAMUEL WOLF

SUBMARINES

Samuel Wolf, or Sam as he like to be called, has enjoyed a quiet time at the academy. The second of his family to come from the Academy Sam could frequently be found enjoying the company of his computer and strategy games, as well as yelling loudly about how deadline are fast approaching. Sam has done well, and has achieve high academic achievement, yet can could be frequently found procreating things and doing important assignment not only the period before, but during that class as well. Sam's easy going and upbeat personality has allowed him to leave an impression that will last, at least until he enter the silent service and can't talk about himself due to its top secrete nature.

Marshall Yaklin

Navy Pilot

A native of Texas, not that part of Texas, Marshall came to the Academy after spending a year in Jordan. Has he mentioned meeting the King of Jordan? Well he has now. Known as "Louisville Lips" because they are always running, Marshall has a boisterous personality and a desire to be at the center of every conversation. He always has an opinion and is willing to argue it incessantly after loosing a bout, drunk, or sober. Speaking of drinking, Marshall learned his limits on the hard streets of Philly. Thankfully for his liver, he has moved on to scotch. Unfortunately for his wallet, this habit combined with his class ring and girlfriend, leaves him betting for drinks with friends in rigged competitions. Marshall picked up fencing in Jordan and brought his bad habits with him. It would take three years for him to finally learn how to fence, and even then 'fence' was generous. He always 'almost does well' and 'would have won if not for ___'. His desire to achieve academically ended at getting a major in a language he was conversational in and remembering antiquated facts of dubious usefulness (History). Despite the vast investment of time in his second major (Arabic), he manged to score a 0 on the DLPT (naptime). His main redeeming academic quality was his choice in professors. Having received a 'D' in plebe year, Marshall saw it as an opportunity to apply himself, and turned his grades into something his mother could put on the Central Texas refrigerator. Marshall's dedication to the cult of speed (in 12 pax vans) will serve him well in his chosen profession. Marshall is destined to fly high because the sky is the only spot with enough room for Ruth and his ego. Despite his numerous and glaring faults, Marshall is a loyal friend, a fierce competator, and a great drinking buddy. Have fun flying the friendly skies -- S.A.

Steven Bakotic

Surface Warfare

Steve "Crazy B" Bakotic will never fail to amaze you. From the front-woods of Mississippi, he has come to Annapolis as a second generation midshipman. This fact combined with his history major form a never-ending tale of the great old days when hazing was allowed, and his arch-nemesis thermodynamics didn't exist. Even without the hazing Steve has chiseled himself down to 0% body fat. Some say his marble abs were only possible through a sacrifice from his hairline, which undergoes nightly motivational talks to grow. With extensive hobbies, Steve can be found playing the guitar, turning regular words into tongue-twisters, pumping iron, and only listening to music that comes from movie trailers. Captain Steve Bakotic will one day be on your ship's horizon, and you'll be glad that he is.

Zachary Bodner

USMC Ground

Zach showed up for plebe summer already a military expert, as demonstrated through his shaving and uniform excellence. Originally a miscreant out of Ridgefield, Connecticut, he was refined into prime midshipman material at New York Military Academy. Don't let his love for country music fool you, he is a proud New Englander down to his Tom Brady underwear. When he wasn't fervently working on that 2.8 or that 10:30, Zach was often found practicing his urban combat skills under the tutelage of Mr. Clancy. He also found time to celebrate his 21st birthday uninterrupted for 1.5 years straight. The only thing bigger than his truck is his personality, which was on display often both in DTA and on 8-1. He appreciates mature and established women, and isn't afraid to take to the road in search of love. For the next few years though, Zach's only lover will be the U.S. Marine Corps where his arousing personality will meet Marine Corps stoicism. Who will win? Check back in five years and see who's still in. His classmates will miss his ability to be both the life and death of the party as well as his exceptional personality and friendship.

Nicholas Bruno

Submarines

To the Academy we all arrived, not knowing who or what we'd find. Behind young Bruno left a farm and a sheep, now he was to obey MIDN Ensign Jose Ruiz. Rack races and rates and accountability reports, Nicholas did well, if only it werent for his backwards shorts. Academics he did well manage to get Straights B's, when he determined he wanted a computer science degree. Youngster year ended great, a romantic cruise to San Diego he did take. Two years of schooling for seven years of service, Nick ascribed his name on the scroll without duress. A fair share of great adventures and many more tales, but more impressive were the numbers of his pokemon sales. With a sharpened mind and countless hours of built up sleep, Bruno will make a fine officer driving a submarine in the deep.

Ross Cano

Navy Pilot

Ross Canoe, a sophisticated chap from Modest-ho, constantly explores means of improving his drumming abilities even while knowing he will never ascend to the talent of marching snare legend: Raymond Chow. Yearning Ángeles Azul tacticool status, Ross pinned his very own set of blue wings to his back. Rebecca is his pride and joy, but no matter how much lipstick he puts on his Sooby Jew double u-are-ex, she will still be a plastic pig with a grenade for an engine. Although he may enjoy acceleration, Mr. Can-do needs work on averting tunnel vision in the middle of activities like band rehearsal or else passing G-training will prove challenging. In the rare moments Ross isn't drumming, driving, or thinking about either, Bacardi 151 is his drink of choice...so much so that every time he has it, he tastes it twice.

You've made us proud, son.
Love, Mom and Dad

Sueyun Chung

USMC Ground

Do you know how old man Sue, did reach the Severn's shores? His application first fell through, And so he tried once more. He served a time at cold Norwich, But only became a Sophomore. Because He dreamed to dig a ditch, For the United States Marine Corps. Since a mid, old man Sue was, He toiled in tasks of various kind. He danced and drank and scribed because, Homework hurt Old man Sue's mind. And thus, we knew, From what we'd seen, He would make, A great Marine.

Jordan Davis

Navy Pilot

Jordan Davis is the man your father warned you about. When he wasn't becoming a national boxing champion or flying around the world to rob other men of their consciolsness, you could find him out in DTA shot gunning O'Douls just to prove a point. When DTA couldn't hold him down, he ventured to Philly, DC, or overseas to crack open a cold one and pretend he could dance. No one will ever say that Jordan Davis couldn't make an entrance. Beyond the fun and games, Jordan is a man of class, eloquence, and ferocity, and is well versed in both intellectual stimulation and physical encounters. He is a great friend and teammate who will tell it like it is, and fly it like he stole it.

Robert DeGabriele

Submarines

Alex's opinions are known far and wide, that cyber is important everywhere. And you may just find him curbside, snatching electronic signals from the air. Degobo enjoys nothing more than traveling abroad.Korea, Istanbul, and Monterrey just to name a few. Documenting his visits with his camera in hand, spewing the incense of beef stew. Alex prides himself in his bicycling skills, competing in Maryland's rural Century rides. But Alex champions most of all in racquetball. He is proud to call himself one of a kind.For if Alex is not with his soul-mate, he is biking far and wide. Dreaming of the deep Ocean estate, In hopes of joining a submarine dockside.

Robert Dolan

Naval Flight Officer

Robert Thomas Dolan is the product of everyone's favorite quaint, seaside town - Winthrop, Massachusetts. Whenever he isn't cracking witty jokes or pulling a Red Bull sponsored "totally planned" all-nighter, you can find him sleeping until two in the afternoon, drinking at a number of the quintessential DTA bars, or creating snapchat masterpieces. In fact, when he found out Naval Aviators drank beers and had a required eight hours of sleep every night, he jumped on board faster than a low budget flight back home to Boston. While only able to pronounce 25 out of the 26 letters of the alphabet, Rob has shown laudable skill at talking his way out of any dilemma, and if you need a gym buddy (half the time) then he's your man. Thankfully for those close to Rob, he has the unwavering charm to mitigate any situation, be it a textbook roommate mishap to a costumed bar fight. Amongst his peers, buddies, and brothers, there exists zero doubt that Rob will make a savvy officer and an excellent NFO.

Nicole Edmondson

Surface Warfare Nuke

Nicole Edmondson runs the halls of Rickover like no one else, mostly because she spends more time there than her own room. I don't know what Computer Engineering majors really do, but I know sleep is not one if those things. This Columbia, Maryland girl knows the road home well, but not because she drives it herself. One semester there was this guy that thought she was smart enough to study with; it's a good thing he has a license. She has a big heart, but it's even bigger for cats and people who don't knock on the door for her roommate, Steph. Nicole was summoned by the ghost of H.G. Rickover to join the Nuclear Navy after a successful tour capped by a SWO pin. She's definitely going to kill Power School after her academic career at USNA, and just because she likes school, this smarty SWO is going for an MBA prior to domination in the business world. Nicole will undoubtedly have success in the Navy and beyond due her hard work and general awesomeness in everything.

Joseph Guthmann

USMC Ground

Hailing from Waxhaw, North Carolina, Joseph Howard Guthmann is a man of many names. His friends and teammates know him as "Yosef," "Corporal Guthmann," or just "I love Biz." However, his opponents on the rugby pitch know him better as "That asshole who broke my nose." Part merman, part cyborg, and all Devil Dog, Joe is a friend you want in your corner. There will be some lucky platoon of Marines who will get a man of the highest caliber to lead them....oh...and a lot better at running....

Grant Guttschow

USMC Pilot

Grant Austin Guttschow hails from the quiet town of Bloomington Illinois. As a young man, Grant had a desire for business, excitement, Martinis "shaken not stirred", and explosions. Not feeling fulfilled working for State Farm, he retired his khaki pants and applied to United States Naval Academy to start an adventure of danger, dark tinted sunglasses, and [classified]. Above all else Grants favorite past time was organizing parties for the company both officially and unofficially. You could always expect to have a great time at an event, if it was planned by the Grant Guttschow. Grant, seeking excitement and a challenge selected Marine Corps Aviation out of the Naval Academy. Here is to you friend, Good luck and fair seas!

Nicole Hetzer

Surface Warfare

Nikki Hetz can turn any time into a good time. Nikki, born and raised on Long Island, New York, she is quick to yell at Annapolis cabbies and will be the first to tell you how it is. She is someone you can count on being there for you if you need someone to back you up, and will accomplish whatever she puts her mind to. While her New York accent is fierce, her love for her friends and seal pups is much fiercer. As an active member and participant of the "Bad Moms Club" of Navy Women's Swimming and Diving, Nikki has lead her teammates to victory time and time again both on the pool deck and during her evenings dining with friends in DTA. Her intense gaze and flashing smile would persuade any mid to fund her and her friend's cocktails for the evening and her experienced dancing skills would ensure her a crepe or slice of pizza on the way home. Nikki sets a good example of how a woman's body should actually look in working blues, but don't let her 4'9 stature fool you as she is an ox in the weight room. When you need a laugh, a shoulder to cry on or a little something to kill the pain and stresses of the Academy...Nikki Hetz is your girl! Nikki will be headed to Norfolk to be the best SWO Mama on the high seas. She will be missed by her loving teammates!

Patrick Hoffman

Navy Pilot

Patrick Joseph Hoffman Jr. The self proclaimed J.P. Whelihan's wing eating champion, is a retired football player with better taste in roommates than computer games. This is saying a lot, considering his WOW status is among the top in the nation. Patrick hails from Philadelphia PA, also known as the city of brotherly love, and the city with the most losing teams. Patrick never lets this ruffle his feathers, and is always determined to rise from his native city in a strong first place with the liberty bell and cheesesteaks coming in at close second and third places. When he is not crushing wings or adult beverages, one can find him spending time with his sweethearts: the brotherhood, his roommates, or his girlfriend. Fortunately for his close friends, Patrick switches between being an inciting advisor and an honorable influence. Patrick will undoubtedly exceed in flight school much better than his beloved home football team. Fly Patrick Fly.

Hunter Jasien

USMC Ground

Hunter Jasien (pronounced Ha-Seen) entered the United States Naval Academy in 2013 after a long hard year at the Prep School. He has said that NAPS was his favorite memory of the times prior to his commission and if you know him personally you'll be in awe at the motivation. Along with the excessive amounts of tuna and protein he has consumed in four years at USNA, Hunter always loved a good time at ACME with his boys on the LAX teams. Sleddogs 4 life. All things considered, this young Ma-rine was destined for the Corps (as predicted by Marshall Forney c. 2014) , but we all know he wanted to be on a ship more than anything. Whether he was working out, grinding at his desk, or getting an Ep of Workaholics in; He always won. Keep pushing brotha, don't ever stop. Keep winning! - El Chapo (fun-lover)

Daniel Kasberg

SEALs

Daniel Kasberg, or rather Dank Las Berg, is an enigma of a guy. One look at this berg and you will surely be the one melting. Despite the countless hours he devoted to technical studies in Ocean Engineering, he was never able to answer the single question that haunts him most: "Where is Kevin?" He has decided to retire from the sport of triathlon, favoring instead to take on the complex and challenging sport of eyebrow contortion. He will be remembered for overcoming "adversity" in the water, in which his swimming can be described no better than like a hot knife through a second, less hot, and much stronger knife. If not off drinking gatorade with every fish in the sea, his altar ego "Stitches" was often found sitting in Sampson, rock climbing, changing his oil, crossing the severn, or his most favorite past time, doing laundry. Despite the evidence of his short-lived romantic relationships, Dan is a great friend and great guy to be around. He'll be remembered for being able to lighten any situation while showing genuine care. As a member of the exclusive Superfrog group, Dan will go on to enjoy a Dan-good Danwich and do a little WOHOing minus the WO.

Colby Ko

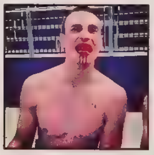
Submarines

Colby Ko, O, Colby Ko, Upon the Severn he did row, And in the classroom he did sleep, But a narrow focus he did keep. Colby Ko, O, Colby Ko, Boston's star with constant glow, Would shine in tests of bodily might And work late hours of the night. Colby Ko, O Colby Ko, Ego large and it did grow, When upon his chest was boldly placed, A diving bubble, a silver face. Colby Ko, O Colby Ko, With a voice of volume low, Spoke these words and spoke them mean, 'I want to drive a submarine!"

Maxwell Lee

USMC Pilot

Max goes by many names, King Baphomax, Cali-2-Step, and most notably Randall. He may have a snakey physique and self-diagnosed lopsided body, but this never stops him from slithering up to mid-girls and stealing their hearts before he takes them back to his Randall cave. What Max may lack in physique, he makes up for in creativity and intelligence. He is able to code just about anything in almost every programming language known to man, and has found new uses for the physical therapy office outside of working hours as well. He is a man who knows where his priorities lie, not wasting time to respond to texts right away or even on the same day. He is almost always late too because he is busy being distracted by something shiny (probably why he went Marines). Despite all this, he is well loved by his friends and never fails to make all of them laugh with his often offensive and dark humor. Max is a very determined individual who sometimes puts too much on his plate, but always puts 100% of his effort into what he's doing. He is one of the best guys you will ever meet and will be a great devil dog and pilot. Just remember Max, you are a pilot not a mechanic, no need to ruin your aircraft engine like you did to your boat.



Daniel Lemay

Navy Pilot

Daniel is a native of Atlanta, Georgia, the hip hop capital of the world, which becomes painfully evident after he steps on the dance floor. Daniel is a model midshipman and has contributed his fair share to the Academy as Train-O and Battalion Safety Officer. He starts his day by waking up both of his roommates with a shower, performing an uncomfortably musical morning routine in the mirror, and flaunting his undershirt tucked into whitie tighties. Daniel exemplifies southern hospitality as he is always willing to lend a helping hand. Those southerners will give you the shirt off their back, and even a super bowl if you ask nicely! You can usually find this dapper dude with his nose in a book or a twitter feed, and his determined mindset is responsible for the longest academic piece of literature since Homer's Iliad and Odyssey. Daniel was on track to be a Marine pilot until he found out the barracks woulon't house his three level shoe rack or brewski-stocked mini fridge. He diverted his efforts to Navy pilot where there is no doubt that his slick hair, charming smile, and expertise behind the wheel (or stick) of a vehicle will send him soarin' to success.

Conall Mackenzie

Surface Warfare

Conall "Wild Card" Mackenzie, is the original E-Cig youngster. Outside his day job of playing Playstation, Conall could often be found managing a crisis the he "definitely did not cause". While some would say Conall's lifestyle was reckless, no one could argue about his genuinely caring personality, and a confidence thick enough to put holes in drywall. If he becomes CNO, you can expect longboards to be standard issue, and all uniforms to include skinny jeans.

Christopher Marmolejo

Surface Warfare

Christopher Andre Marmolejo, as his ID knows him, always has a quip ready about El Paso. A member of the 5 year program (as the best mids are), he is knowledgeable in all things (except any class that you take in a building that isn't Sampson). Chief Starks will always remember him as "Marmojo" and so will everyone else who has never spoken Spanish. Chris is a loyal and dedicated friend who you can always count on to be Fishing on Hospital Point when you need him. Chris was the President of the MFCC and it only took him 3 years (if you don't know what it is, don't worry, he takes no offense). Chris will always be there to remind you that the Red Sox are the best team in the MLB. Chris pretends to not enjoy the company of others, but we all know deep down he loves us. Chris was destined for the SWO lyfe from the moment he stepped on the Yard. He cares about his people. Chris has plans for a big future...in the golf and fishing world. Masters by 33, we'll be watching ESPN for you. Dinner at 1820? I'll pick you up. "CHRIS!" – Gracias mi amigo, enjoy my hometown. G-$

John Martins

Civil Engineer Corps

Who?

Brenna McDannold

USMC Pilot

Brenna McDannold or Princess Leia? Thanks to MIDPERS that has been the question we've all been asking since the summer of 2013. Brenna has been a letter winning, Army ass kicking member of the NWXC herd of Katz for the entirety of her Naval Academy career. In fact, as a kitten she was the first member of the Class of 2017 to earn a star in an Army competition. Even more impressive is that upon her retirement this senior Kat sports the most starts on her sweater than any other woman of 2017. If she wasn't brunching at Grumps with the other Katz or enjoying a Guinness at Galway Bay, Brenna was probably cheering on her Kansas City Royals in their world series 2015 victory or Face-timing her Pomeranian, Simba. This prominent member of the web is destined for a high flying, distinguished career in the Marine Corps. To her friends, this is an anomaly because she loves to complain about the Corps as much as she loves the Corps...interesting. While it remains to be seen whether she will dive out asap or stay in for twenty, one this is for certain: she is going to lobby for the next generation of Ospreys to be painted tactical yellow. Semper Fi, Semper Fly Bren-dog.

Hali McFadgen

USMC Ground

Most commonly known as Hali Berraay or, Penelope by a select few, she is probably the only known representative of Woodbridge, VA at the academy (I don't think anybody else would talk about it even if they were). Never will you meet an African American female that knows equal amounts of country music and Hip-Hop and R&B. Her breadth of knowledge of different genres of music is baffling. She has the voice of an angel but her shy personality keeps it locked away from gracing the ears of others. Despite her being intelligent and well spoken, often times her forgetfulness gets the best of her, so sometimes she gets lost in the sauce with the quickness. Never have you seen someone turn in an assignment months late and still get a good grade on it. That's just a testament to the type of finesse she possesses (unless it comes to finessing hotel laundry or a car wash change machine, which in that case, she's out of luck). She is the queen of a variety of hairstyles, bantu knots, curls, straight, or whatever else, she makes it look good, but if her hair ever smells like beer...just tell her to stay out of DTA. As an all-star on the women's track and field team, her physique is a testament to her physical ability, but she makes it look easy seeing as her favorite things to do are eat, watch YouTube, and sleep. She is easily one of the sweetest and most compassionate girls you will ever meet but, don't talk bad about Woodbridge or Glee club because she's sure to come at your neck. As she prepares for TBS, the Marine Corps is definitely receiving one of the strongest, most determined, and most caring women that the Academy has to offer

Berl McLaurin

Submarines

To all Midshipmen with sisters fair, Berl is looking for an affair. But the mistresses that he's between, Are submarines and his M-14. We knew him from his claim to fame, A task which will forever, bears his name. In White-Works Echo, we all once wore, He affixed his name plate in seconds, four. Great promise shown in Rickover's Hall, Give that man a scholarship and some coveralls! Or perhaps he will stick to silent drill, Because that sure is an applicable skill
Then, when once again we meet, Later in the fleet, He'll be our senior officer, And we will call him, sir.

Cody Parker

Surface Warfare

Raised between the rows of corn in South Vienna, Ohio, Cody is always ready to provide a slick smile to either cheer you up or make you super uncomfortable. Although he has the physique and athleticism of a Greek Olympian, he could not run fast enough or jump high enough to escape the conduct system. When he wasn't in the gym "getting a pump" or watching the Browns lose again, he was spending his time testing the structural stability of red beach. Marine Crops motivated until he saw the Marine Crops, Cody decided to take his talents to Norfolk as a Surface Warfare Officer. As long as his division can look past the random outbreaks of noise and the occasional "spooky ghost," he will do a fine job wherever the Navy takes him.

Nicholas Priftis

Surface Warfare

Never before has there been a more fitting combination of John Paul Jones, Clint Eastwood, and Boba Fett. With Prifty, the party hasn't started until the Monster starts flowing and the bow line is taken in. He is one of the best friends and zipliners a mid could ask for. Let's hope his sailors are ready to raise the Jolly Roger and prepare to board!

Sic Semper Tyrannis!

Stephen Sabatini

Navy Pilot

Stephen Sabatini managed to transform from the pony of his native New Jersey JROTC program, to the stallion protector and unsung hero of the Navy Hockey team. When the once XO of 27th Company doesn't have his face in between the pages of an ocean engineering textbook, one can find him searching his way to the bottom of an adult beverage at Heroes pub. On his best weekends, Stephen exists in partial denial splitting time between vigorously studying and relaxing with his friends. On the more challenging weekends, he is bailing his close friends out of trouble. Thankfully, Stephen is both smart and loyal, a combination that can thwart even the most deadly of DTA drinks. Some might ask, "Does this man have all of the quintessential skills of the best future Navy Pilot?" Is a bear Catholic? Next question.

Brody Samaha

Navy Pilot

Brody hails from "New Orleans" Louisiana but his extensive southern education and Cajun preferences did not preclude him from a dazzling 5-year career at USNA and NAPS. Here at boat school, Brody could often be found adhering to his strict lifting plans in Mac D or sitting in his chair watching super cool shows, movies, and documentaries. He loves letting his friends borrow his truck so much that he tells them to not even worry about putting gas in it. His weekend behavior runs the gamut from docile relaxation to indiscriminate urination. One constant in Brody's life has been his love for his fiancee Jordan who he always found time to talk to on the phone, even if his roommates were trying to sleep youngster year. Despite his ceaseless refrain of "subs would be cool," Brody's aerodynamic passions shone through and he is going to make an excellent naval aviator. His classmates will most miss his southern hospitality and ability to chuckle at all the tomfoolery and hardship that transpired at this fine institution.

Mary Scully

Navy Pilot

Mary Cate Scully, daughter of the Most Patient Man on Television, literally ran here from home on I-day and has never stopped running since. She excelled in Plebe Summer; she practiced calling "ATTENTION" in her sleep and validated Plebe Boxing even though she lost in a match against her chair. The only MIDN who actually knows the whereabouts of their sewing kit she once used it on her pants during XC practice. Stay on the ground MC. She' s only allowed to jump the necessary height required for jumping rope, because how else do you stay fit on an LREC to Ethiopia. If you would like to ask Mary Cate a question, you best think of it before 2159, because any time after that MC is asleep in her rack with a t-shirt over her eyes. One must have the sleep schedule of a 5th grader if they are going to balance 17 workouts in a day and compressing horse hair to make it stronger than steel. We all knew she was destined for greatness and stripes. 1st Set Plebe Summer brought stripes. Officers stealing her shoe polish and multiple stamps to her Annapolis Ice Cream card. Mary Cathryn is a friend for the ages; supportive, gentle, loyal and always willing to go to Grumps after a great night out. "Someone get that girl a whiskey club soda". MC will do extremely well in Naval Aviation, so long as there is enough room in the cockpit to bring her Kitchen Aid, because we all expect cookies after every flight.

XOXO,

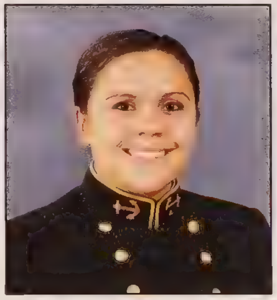
Stephanie Simon

USMC Ground



Stephanie Simon, the Midshipman of all trades. Some how Steph has managed to know everyone, sing and beat box in the Glee Club, out box the nation, and Captain the track team to Beating Army. This Vancouver, Washington native is just as recognized on the Miami streets with her Cuban energy as she is back home wresting with her friends. You'll never catch this devil pup without a speaker to share her music taste with the world, just ask the team. Random dancing is normal, from Stribling to Grafton Street. If you want to know what she's up to, just check her snap story, rumor is MTV wants the rights to that gem. At one point Steph managed to convince a team full of plebes to major in ops research, but now you can generally catch her in some science classes. If you happen to catch her at night, you might think you've found a bear. Don't cross this hunty, she'll fight back. The Marine Corps is gaining one hell of a motivated killer in Steph.

Do or die, see you in the Corps!
XOXO DC

Sydney Sisler

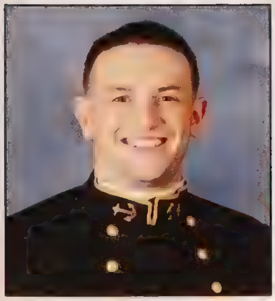
Surface Warfare

Sydney Ayn Sisler, a woman whose sneezes always come in 3's, is most likely still working on that chit to LT to get a company dog. She will always be the first to remind you that the Phillies are the best team in the MLB, Rays Steaks is the best place to get a cheesesteak, and Latin is pronounced La-Tin. Once Syd declared her major as Nuclear Engineering (she was always interested in what can makes things go "Boom"), she quietly added a Netflix minor to her degree. She is commonly found being outdoors-y in her Jeep or sipping a medium white mocha with whip. Syd-ster can always be found wearing a dress with cowboy boots even when it's snowing outside (she says her love for Country Music keeps her warm). A friend who is always willing to get you Starbucks and order Domino's with you, she is the best "bud" you could ever ask for (and by bud, I mean she would totally split a bud light with you). Having spent her entire academic career in Rick-under, she looks forward to life on the open seas as a SWO where she can get the proper amount of sun needed. We look forward to Syd's future and expect lots of Japanese candy in our care packages. Wuv ya roomie!

Trevor Stefanski

Submarines

Trevor came to us from the "other side" of Connecticut, whatever that means. He met the love of his life, Emily, during his much-needed warm up year at the University of Connecticut. While he can't discern a dumbbell from a squat rack, his endurance is as impressive as his constantly clean and orderly desk/rack/closet/room/life. Trevor could usually be found reading at his desk, running an outer, or (more likely) browsing dank memes. Around these obligations, he still found time on the weekend to enjoy a responsible drink or two, sometimes even from the comfort of home. After getting a B plebe year, Trevor decided not to do that again and has managed a 4.0 since. This enabled him to continue on the "six-year" academic track by attending Georgetown University. His civilian pursuits have resulted in widespread allegations that "he doesn't even go here." A consummate professional, "T-Rex" impressively ascended to the rank of MIDN ENS for eleven months straight, and he will likely continue to dazzle as he assumes the highest responsibilities of command, citizenship, and government. The submarine community and Emily are both lucky to have him and his classmates will miss his quick wit and dedication.



Piper Thaler

USMC Pilot

From the rugby pitch to the fields of Worden, Piper Roland Thaler (Pipe/Offset/Diego Hypolito) exudes confidence and manages chaos with a calm which can only be cultivated through hours of WODS, and, what must be days, spent with his ears between two pages of warrior scripture. His only vices are his Honda Element and overly-hopped IPAs. If you see this man, offer him a nice pail of hops and a kiss on the cheek.

Michael Usoz

USMC Pilot

HIIIIIYUUUUTTT. Coming in at 5'6" you are definitely the shortest regiment commander. Mike don't walk on wet floor with a knife open. Mike you are not taller than me. No, Mike you are not ICOR. Hey Mike, drive all the way out to the DMV just to turn right back around because they don't have your registration. Mike you're losing your hair. Mike you practically have no hair. Mike you are bald. Mike your head is shiny. Mike lets jump in an unmarked van at 0200 and drive to bail our teammate out of a CAPT's house. Staff, eye's, left. 1 st Reg Best Reg. Seriously though couldn't have asked for a better roommate in my last semester. You are a man of your word, called to a higher purpose, and I'd be proud to serve over (not under because I am taller than you) your command. Lola is going to miss you, her hips never lied. Miiiiiiiiiiiiiiiiike Mike Mike Miiiiiiiiiiiiiiiike Mike Mike Mike Mike Mike Miiiiiiiiiike (circle of life)! Sail fast, anticipate the shift, live the squirrel life, how copy?

William Walker

Navy Pilot

Will Walker: The Legend of Sleepy Hollow. This physical specimen was forged playing country club sports in the streets of West Chester, where he acquired both astute wit and smooth charisma. However, summer of youngster year probably made him wish that he had picked up a few more skills in Calculus. But with his verbose vocabulary and his ability to sweet talk his way into the heart of any King Hall worker, Will has made it through all that the Naval Academy has thrown at him. If there's one way to describe Will Walker, it's full tilt. He's the kid who gave you the forearm shiver while playing flag football in third-grade. There's really no halfway with Will- whether it's drinking, playing sports, or just being an all-around great friend. Naval Aviation is lucky to have this future President as a part of their community, if they can ever find out where he is.

Matthew Walsh

Submarines

Matthew "Mat-tew" "Matty Ice" "Matty Nice" Walsh can often be seen hobbling around the boathouse icing his L5-S1 vertebrae. After leading the Varsity to an unbelievable win over the Harvard Lightweights, Matthew was nominated as team captain of the lightweight crew team, following in his older brother Steve's footsteps. After spending four years as his boat's weight monkey, compensating for his more physically gifted teammates (except for his biceps-Matty definitely has the biggest biceps), Matt Walsh bulked to a stunning 147 pounds of pure Grade A USDA Choice Lean Beef. If he's not taking one of his 17 naps throughout the day you can probably find he complaining about how hard his Capstone was (wasn't) while perusing the depths of Instagram for an unsettling amount of time. When he isn't racing his little heart out (at 197BPM), his weekends are typically spent at Georgetown trying to convince everyone he's a student there. Upon graduation he will be taking his physical prowess and analytical skills to the submarine force where he will most definitely not be flying planes.

Mary Waters

Navy Pilot

Mary Glennon Waters hails from sunny San Diego where it's always a perfect day for golfing and the avocados are endless. Go Pads! After a brief stint co-starring with Will Farrell in Anchorman 2, Glennon decided to pack her bags and head to the least coast on her journey to the beautiful community that is Naval Aviation. She arrived after a year at Villanova, complete with a torn ACL from her time on the Quidditch team courtesy of Voldemort, and took her musical talents to D&B over Plebe Summer. G, the letter, has walked on as a member of the Varsity Napping team at USNA, with a temporary stint on 30th Co's stair climbing team, and complements this active lifestyle with bread and butter. This sour straw loving, onesie wearing frat star values nothing more than tradition here at USNA. Nothing could make her day better than humming along with the band while walking down Stribling or placing first in drill (yes, that actually happened). She can be found roaming 8-1 in Service Dress Ike, not because she's on duty but because she needs the extra layers. A kind, loving and committed friend, you can always go to her when you need a Hand. With a bright career in store, rest assured knowing she's got the sunglasses fit for a Supe. We look forward to attending your DGA ceremony and expect a Hand full of stars (all of which will be due to her time spent on the golf course) Thanks for putting up with all the times I left for lunch.

Michael Ahearne

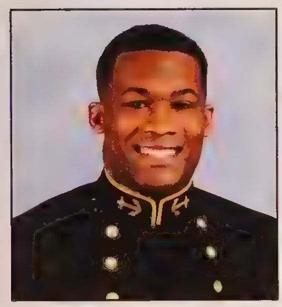
USMC Ground

In case you didn't know, Joe hails from Boston. This means he epitomizes all of the virtues of Boston natives: an undying love for Tom Brady, a drinking problem, a fighting problem, general hardheadedness/stubbornness, and a terrible taste in women. As the captain of the croquet team, Joe nearly managed to acquire all three sweaters in his time at the Naval Academy, but was stopped just short by his complete lack of athletic ability. In the hall, you can find him puking his way through a workout, watching useless Facebook videos, or complaining about the difficulty of being a Poli-Sci NARP. Out in town, you can find him drinking away any physical progress he made that week. A man who values loyalty and the Pats above all else, he's a guy you'd want in your foxhole or during a bar fight.

Andrew Bonner

Submarines

The only halfway decent thing to descend from Guilford, CT, Andrew "Sid" Bonner can be found navigating the worlds of style and flavor with his fashion forward flannel wardrobe and sophisticated palate. He is a world renowned food critic so long as that food consists strictly of unflavored white bread and chicken strips. His landmark study on condiments revealed that the only acceptable topping for food is ketchup, and even that only in small amounts or else it becomes "too spicy" and "chaos". Having never been told he can't, Andrew Bonner will tell you UCONN. Cultivating his masculinity and maturity among the other 100lb rock solid athletes of the University of Connecticut crew team, Andrew Bonner is all that is man. After conquering the Quantico highlands during LeatherNam, Bonner decided that the Marine life was too easy and sunny for him. So he opted to actually use his Nuclear Engineering degree and dive deep. Hopefully sonar can't pick up this loud mouth Giggles McGee. Undersea warfare beckons to Andrew; so he will wave a fond farewell to the sun and surface which were never that kind to him to begin with. All that aside, Bonner is the most dependable friend a guy could have and will go on to do great things in the Navy.



Brendon Clements

Submarines

Crushing hearts and minds on the football field is what Brendon is known for, however he is a man of diverse talents. From the NAPS physics award, to his stellar K/D ratios on COD and BF1, the upcoming star SUSHI BANK$ is talented beyond words. You can often find him keeping his roommate at bay, teaching his Neophytes how to hop, or setting owt massive marches. All being said, the hop master holds manhood as his eternal shrine and never forgets that friendship is essential to the soul. µ

Buster Dodge

Navy Pilot

Buster Beaumont Dodge hails from the small town of Refugio in the great state of Texas. Don't let his small frame deceive you, he is a lineman and power lifter at heart, as his name says it all. He validated SAPR training after watching his favorite movie...something about a princess. If you haven't met him, he is the legendary botanist of Dangelo, the largest plant in the brigade, and it's pronounced Dan-juh-low, get it right. Despite his permanent smile, you can always bet his day was worse than yours. The only thing more satisfying to him than sliced apples is a well-placed fake cockroach under your homework or an unexpected surprise when he explodes out of your closet. Watch out Naval Aviation, this guy soloed a plane before he even soloed a car.

Matthew Eastburg

Navy Pilot

Hailing from California, Maryland, Matt Eastburg worked hard his four years and stayed true to his priorities of faith, family, and friends along the way. He pursued self-improvement, most notably in the physical mission. Coming in at a feeble 150 pounds soaking wet, Matt worked hard in the gym to strengthen his body and fighting spirit. By 1/C year, Matt gained thirty pounds of muscle to accompany his washboard abs; Chicken Little no more. Matt consistently looked out for his friends by holding their lost gear in his closet. Matt has been a leader among his peers and a friend to all. He hopes to follow in his father's footsteps and serve his country with honor as a Naval Aviator.

Peter Ehrenberger

SEALs

Peter is a humble gold club member of the Westin Awards promotional group through hotels.com as he utilizes their services weekly after a solid night at Buddy's Crabs and Ribs in DTA. He may also be found in a drunken stupor engaged in heated theoretical leadership debates in a multitude of locations throughout the spirit realm. But don't let his 4.0 GPA mislead you about his intelligence level, as he has been found face-down in a plate of the Denny's #7 Special. Rotational deadlifts and inverted squats are his speciality, and the only thing that will keep him from a trashcan in DTA is another WOD lift. On a serious note, Pete is one of the most intelligent, loyal, and all around good dudes at the academy that you know has your back. He is a true brother.

Bernard Fajardo

Navy Pilot

Bernie Mac, Me mother, Best Prior, Fuh-Jar-Dough, you know who he is. He introduced himself to Oscar Company, 28th Platoon with his story of getting lit in Las Vegas and the show has never stopped since. You can always expect him to have a smile and a beer, and his jolly laugh has been lighting up The Club for the past four years. Bernard is that guy who probably made the infamous saying "just one drink. He is bent on improving the economy of Annapolis by bringing in business to the various fine drinking establishments. His sense of humor has been his secret to surviving here at the Academy, especially when he got put on restriction the day he won Midshipman of the Month. Yet, most people don't know that Bernie Fajardo has lived the American Dream – he immigrated here after high school from the Philippines with just a mouthful of English, joined the Navy, and worked his butt off to win award after award in command after command to come here from the Fleet. His work ethic, his attention to detail, his compassion will be missed around the Club, but the Fleet will be a better place for having him around. Party on, dudes.

Elizabeth Fenelon

Submarines

Elizabeth aka "Liz" aka "Fenny17" Fenelon can mostly be found avidly working or running far, far away from her problems. Sometimes, Liz would even pay money to run even further away from her problems for a t-shirt. As a leader, Liz demonstrated certain qualities such as playing drums in D and B, rollerblading, and petting cats, that somehow landed her the position of Brigade Sergeant Major. As SMAJ, her most memorable contribution to the Brigade was a weekly supply of goat facts. Since then, her charming wit has gone missing. Rumors have it she can be found deep in the woods of Quantico staring intently at a compass and waiting for SSgt Sensing to rescue her and her land Nav partner, or falling asleep in class in Rickover. After sneaking her way into the 26th Company graduation pictures, Liz will surely be an excellent officer within the submarine community.

Michael Fleming

USMC Pilot

There is a rather short list of things Mike loves: the Corps, corgis, lifting, and Taylor Swift. This means that at work, he will hold the standard and never let go, but at home, he'd rather play with puppies and marvel at his two roombas. As a midshipman he was not always the sharpest tool in the shed, but since when were sledgehammers judged by their sharpness? He can smoke just about anyone on the Yard and has an infallible character - just what the Corps ordered. His work ethic and staunch professionalism will set him apart from his peers and he will enjoy a fantastic career. Semper Deep and Semper Fi, Mike!

Samuel Giddings

Surface Warfare

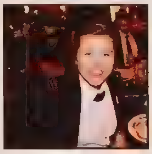
Samuel Giddings, an Annapolis native, spent his four years by the Severn as a proud member of 28th Company, the Club. His choice of major: Operations Research. After a week of crunching numbers, Sam's local knowledge of DTA eateries and drinkeries was invaluable to his classmates on weekend. In addition to academics Sam was an active member and president of the USNA Pipes and Drums. He could be regularly spotted in full bagpipe and kilt regalia as the skirl of his pipes motivated the Brigade during runs, parades, and concerts. Notably, he saved a bus filled with his fellow Midshipmen after the driver lost control. Due to Sam's bold actions he saved the life and limb of many. Following his time at the Naval Academy, he will join the Surface Warfare community.

Steven Harris

Navy Pilot

Man in the area. Steve's pinnacle achievement here at the Navy Academy is going a full four weeks without vomiting on some object in his room. You'll usually find him in his room trying fruitlessly to git gud on the Xbox or watching South Park. He's an aero major, which you can usually tell by the tales of his capstone project woes. He's a good man, and his integrity, intelligence, and stout constitution will take him far. Steve will make a good officer, and a great pilot. If I wanted anybody flying CAS for me, it'd be Steve.

Taylor Hart



Naval Flight Officer

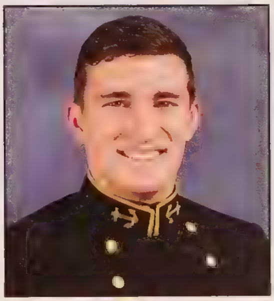
The bubbly Taylor Hart hails from the "great" state of Florida where the sun never stops shining, which is why she always has a smile on her face. Taylor has an uncanny ability to make people laugh, whether she means to or not. Sh!t-talking mushrooms anyone? Though she claims that playing (talking about) volleyball and flying are her passions, Taylor loves to try new things, which is probably why she loves everything about life. Taylor will finally move closer to home when she attends flight school in Pensacola, and unfortunately for the East Coast, Taylor's kind smile and generous heart (which melts the Annapolis snow in the winter) will return to the sunshine state with her. Did we mention that she's from Tampa?

Grant Kelley

Surface Warfare

After spending 4 years at the Academy, Grant stands out as being the only member of 28th Company who doesn't recognize some of the other members of his company. A firm believer in peer leadership, initiative, and always striving to give it his best, Grant sets the standard of exemplary non-achievement for his fellow Midshipmen.

Kevin Leyland



SEALs

Kevin Leyland is known for his aggressive yet lovable character. He is an amateur magician and regularly practices his disappearing act when out at Fleet or Armadillos. Up until this year his daily diet consisted of three almonds, licking an apple and staring at tasty videos while rubbing his stomach saying, "soon..." He is the last of an ancient race called the FBFL, known for packing fat hammers and running at super-sonic speeds. He enjoys window shopping at Annapolis Pottery and taking in the breathtaking views of Annapolis from the roofs of local homes. I know that as Kev goes out into the world to slay bodies and kick doors I will always have a great friend that I can rely on to encourage my poor decisions.

Sara Lopez

Navl Flight Officer

"Don't be fooled by her signature lily Pulitzer notebook, birks, or endless thirst for white mochas... Sara is no basic white girl. She is adamant about her Mexican heritage, a culture she and her roommate Taylor are both proud to call their own. This Latin lover can be spotted around DTA in the local Starbucks (undercover as Gerardo), frequenting castle bay for a therapy sesh and snake bite with bartender extraordinaire Brad, or tearing up buddies in large patriotic t shirts. Her hobbies include dancing like napoleon dynamite, ordering chocolate lave cakes at every bar in the area, and having disproportionately long arms while pretending shes taller than she is. Whether you need a buddy to grab a blackberry cheesecake ice cream with, a friend to argue about politics with or just someone to introduce you to J.Lo, look no further than this proud Kansan. This future NFO is spunky and loyal to her friends and will surely continue to be a reliable source of fun in Florida.'

Hannah Lowery

Surface Warfare

Known to her close friends as the creature of 8th wing, Hannah Lowery is an enigma wrapped in whatever thrift shop treasures she recently found...on the sale rack. She has filled her con locker with whatever trinkets from Good Will that fit her fancy. While her stinginess has grown over the years, so has her generosity. Only if the generosity pertains to something free she can give you, which often ends up being her time and constant support. As an aspiring AARP member and future poster child of life-alert, you can usually catch her sporting a pair of crocs/sketchers and binge-watching HGTV. As the queen of frat, Hannah Lowery found love in a hopeless place on June 27, 2013 standing in the shadows of her plebe summer squad leader. On Saturdays, hours before dislocating her jaw, you can find this wannabe Disney Princess shaking it...inverted...around "Buddy's at night!"

Irakli Marghania

The Georgian whose name is Marghania!

Kelson McCollum

USMC Ground

Kelson is a 55 year old man in a 21 year old package, to the contrary of his rommates' best efforts. He can't drink you under the table, but he's great at drinking himself under one (or into a closet). He can tell you everything you need to know about the stock market or finance, and has a strict 10:00 bed time every night of the week. He is currently undertaking a well-deserved break from being a part of the Midshipman chain of command after the administrative nightmare of being a Platoon Commander for his roommate. Kelson is a good man, and the Marines serving with him will surely benefit from the experience

Molly McGuckin

Navy Pilot

Cry me a river and Molly McGuckin will cry you an ocean. Don't be alarmed if you find this freckled-face red and blotchy with tears rolling down her cheeks, it's still a great day to be a goat. CDR Murnane's 2nd favorite Battalion Commander didn't start getting frisky until she acquired her stripes. "Ducky" spent her time at USNA cheering on the women's lacrosse team and "patrolling" nearly every deck in 8th Wing. Not even Dave Von Savage, the demigod (#neverforget), could resist this Irish firecracker, tap shoes and all. We lost a lot of good men out there on the streets of DTA, thanks to this wonder woman. And as the bouncers at ACME are quick to remind her, "He ain't worth it." But you know who is worth it: Molly McGuckin. The most loyal friend, dedicated student, and fearless leader: she checks off every box. Sky's the limit, just wait and see how high she can fly.

Tanner Morse

USMC Pilot

"Tanner "I can't dude I'm trying to save money" Morse hails from Sterling, IL. If he's not sleeping or pooping his pants, he can usually be found on the golf course, after purchasing a new set of clubs. Or buying a new snowboard. Or whatever his current interest is. But he still can't afford a $13 bar tab at fleet. Pudding cup is the biggest Blackhawks and Cubs fan in the Club, but don't let that fool you, he's not an athlete"

Christopher Panuski

Cryptologic Warfare

Chris is a native of Davidson, North Carolina, and is Bancroft Hall's resident expert on electrical engineering, physics, and photonics. As an ardent believer that sleep is for the weak, Chris has spent many restless nights writing papers and making absurdly long Trident Scholar PowerPoint presentations at the last minute. He's too blind to do anything useful for the Navy, so he was assigned to the Cryptologic Warfare community. Chris earned the prestigious Gates Scholarship, but that wasn't a good enough deal for him, so he will be using his Hertz fellowship to get his PhD free of charge at MIT before starting his career. Despite all of this classroom knowledge, Chris's music choice makes it clear that he is unable to distinguish the color of his own skin. And if midshipmen were graded on their ability to interact with the opposite gender, Chris would have failed out of this place years ago.

Thomas Pecor

Navy Pilot

"Tom "Ginger Jammer" Pecor One might ask how someone like Tom can manage being pulled in so many directions: tennis team captain, brigade honor advisor, systems engineering major... How does he do it? The answer lies in his strategic method of ignoring all forms of electronic communications (and perhaps also ignoring his toenails for the past decade as well). Tom has been slow to join the 21st century vis-à-vis modern technology and it's best to reach him in person, by mail, or via homing pigeon. However, if you do manage to reach him, you'll be swept in by his contagious laughter that he lets out at anything resembling humor in any way. It's this laugh that Thomas uses to lift the mood of any occasion without fail. When he finds the chance to escape his many jobs, Tom is also a great buddy to go out in town with. Whether it's singing karaoke, downing buckets of Tiger beer, or trying to wake him up so he can finish brushing his teeth, Tom will always leave behind a good story. And if you're ever in need of a favor, Tom's your man. He's the kind of guy that would wake up in the middle of the night and drive across town to help you out. For these reasons and many more, we're all very excited to see Tommy go out and do great things in the Fleet. "

Jorge Rivas

Surface Warefare Nuke

Jorge Rivas came to the academy as a prior enlisted sailor, and brought with him a wealth of knowledge about life in the fleet. Preferring to spend his time studying ones and zeros, he became a pioneer by studying a relatively new major: Cyber. He could be found debugging code late at night. His prowess with computers continued beyond the realm of academics, as he spent many hours raging and talking smack on his videogames of choice. Jorge is a man who deeply values his family, and 28th Company grew to be a part of that family over his four years on the Severn. During his tenure as a firstie he served as 28th company's Executive Officer and Operations Officer, filling the role of 'the man' with a fair and balanced style. The Navy directed Jorge into the Nuclear Surface Warfare community, but copious bonuses and the chance to live it up on a Hawaiian beach at his first command will surely make up for any sleep lost.

Joseph Roberts

Submarines

Joe "Two Beers and I Lose My Dignity" Roberts has cemented his reputation into the 28th company family. Known for his high standards, Joe's favorite place after a night in DTA is the 28th company wardroom or 7th wing parking lot. Lock your doors Tinderellas, chances are the Phantom Cuddler is on the prowl and he's down for practically any venue. Joe shocked everyone by early selecting Submarines, except for his true friends, who know that he doesn't put more than 10 minutes of thought into any decision. Unfortunately, the blood, sweat, and tears he put in as Semper Fi Gear Corporal will be without purpose. As Oklahoman who likes arguing for the sake of arguing, Joe will make a tremendous submariner who any ship would be lucky to have.

Michael Ross

Submarines

"Where was Mike Ross?" asked his "boys in blue." That's a question they probably don't want the answer to. Maybe he was talking his way out of jail time after backing into a police officer's car on the officer's first day. Or maybe he was being mistaken for Akon when he was caught doing 90-in-a-65 returning from a weekend romance in Virginia. Could he have been in the EE lab? Maybe teaching plebes chemistry for the tenth time? What about trolling his alma mater – South River High School – for dates to I-Ball? No, his Grandma already found him a date. Maybe calling his mother to switch his capstone slides for him on presentation day? Any way he was still working on his four year quest to win over his company-mate's heart? Now that one is a prime possibility, as he wouldn't date just any midshipman – he had standards. But no, he eventually claimed to move on, so he was probably having an engagement photo-shoot with his girlfriend without actually getting engaged. Perhaps he was recounting unnecessarily detailed first-hand accounts of his personal explorations? Wait, no, we found him: he was sucking up to – I mean "getting valuable submariner insight" from – LT the whole time.

DANIEL RUSSELL

NAVY PILOT

Dan Russell hails from the robust metropolis of Bismarck, North Dakota. This man is said to live by the motto "Speak Softly and Carry a Big Stick." But don't take my word for it. If you have met him, you too could see his quiet demeanor, hiding within many great ideas, and wisdom. As far as the stick, I'll leave that conversation between you and his girlfriend. The times that you do not see Dan daydreaming about the flatlands of his home or classic vehicles, he will likely not be playing, nor watching someone play a video game, but watching someone talk about a videogame being played. The metagamer is strong with this one. All in all, this is a man with a pure heart, and a great friend with incredible loyalty. When you shake hands, you will know that you are meeting a man's man (triggered).

MICHAEL SALINAS

USMC GROUND

MP Salinas, a short lived Swimmer, hails from Spring City, Pennsylvania. In a former life MP was cobra. His lat spread and wingspan scared his own detailers during plebe summer. Hard working and determined, MP left his native sport of swimming and boxed for a few semesters during his time. One day he hopes to lead Marines in battle. If you ever see MP sauntering wherever he might be, feel free to engage him on any topic... except for politics. If MP continues to stay true to his values and dedication to service, he will go far! P.S. Who makes the fog surrounding the Golden Gate simply disappear?

ALEXANDER SANDERS

NAVY PILOT

Alex was a straight shooter at the academy who NEVER RAN into trouble. He was always a strong academic performer, conducting a comprehensive capstone firstie year on how many people he could message on Facebook at the same time. Alex is affectionately called the "professional boyfriend," stacking up a list of girlfriends that have been memorable to say the least. Alex's main hobbies are golf and DJing. He was personally praised by the Dant for his prowess in both. Despite Alex's success at USNA, he remained humble, quiet, and reserved. Kidding aside, Alex will always be remembered as a fiercely loyal friend and will make a great Naval Aviator.

ANGELICA SEWELL

SURFACE WARFARE

Angelica "Angie" Sewell, A.K.A Wanda Sykes' daughter, hails from Augusta, Georgia and loves all things boats related. She is the greatest wumbologist you will ever meet. Voted most likely to start a dance party, Angie can often be the life of the party but also the calm friend you turn to in a time of need. On the Rugby pitch Angie is persistent and dedicated. She is a skilled back player who sometimes forgets she was never meant to be a forward. Angie is also very musically talented. A member of the Gospel Choir, she has starred in many music videos, such as the insanely popular, "4/C Mid". She has attempted to master the ukulele but has trouble finding the time to commit. She puts others above herself and is one of the most loyal and caring people you will ever meet.

KAREEM SMITH

SURFACE WARFARE

Kareem "The Jamaican Dream" Smith is the definition of Bro up until the Gators or Manchester United lose. You can often find Karvado out and about in DTA dressed to the nines in official Florida Gators gear because he wants you to know they are his favorite team. As a native Jamaican, he knows how to have a good time, maybe too good of a time. When he's not bobsledding with the backshaft boys, he's scheming his way out of any obligation, no matter how small. He's a loyal friend and a great guy to have on your side because he knows everyone, including a number of people in very high places. He'll be heading out to a port that fits his laid-back personality, where he is bound to lose every uniform item he owns and "borrow" what he's missing from his roommates. Aloha!

Patrick Snow

Explosive Ordance Disposal

Pat "Be Chill" Snow is a laidback guy, as long as laidback includes yelling at the top of his lungs at anyone who is not acting chill enough. Pat is a sailor at heart who spends all of his time in or around the ocean whether that be in his dinghy, kiteboard, surfboard, or just jumping off random bridges in Annapolis because he can't get enough. Pat is the little brother of the 8-1 backshaft because he the easiest one to beat up when you've had a rough day. He'll be successful as the punching bag of whatever EOD unit he joins. Born in 1969 in the town Eureka, South Dakota. He laughs at danger with his wide variety of hobbies which include; bridge jumping, flying kites, yachting, and amateur gator wrangling. With his many years of wisdom he has developed a grandfatherly role on the Navy Dingy Sailing Team. He always points the team in the right direction and gives advice for how to do adult things like paying taxes... Patrick is a truly honorable and righteous man. He never beats around the bush. He prefers to take a chainsaw and cut right through the middle of it. Patrick has loved every day at the Naval Academy. He wishes he could redo Plebe year one more time. Patrick Snow aka Dragon is a man among midshipmen, and the brigade wouldn't have been the same without him. Beat Em!

Trenton Tibbetts

Navy Pilot

Sunday Mimosas? Is an all to often question received from Trent. The national renowned sailor prides himself on maximizing the party to business ratio. He has skillfully mastered the art form of finding, meeting, and seducing beautiful women. Trent is a walking comic, he never skips an opportunity to make you laugh even if it means being the butt of the joke. All in all, Trent is a truly loyal friend who loves unconditionally.

Matthew Vohr

USMC Pilot

Matt is your typical Academy success story gone terribly awry. As a young Devil Pup in training, he wasted all his spare time competing in a sport that enslaved young men for thousands of years. When not fulfilling his servant duties, Matt spent the remainder of his time chasing Tinderellas to and fro. Rumor has it Matt singlehandedly funded the Bay Bridge through toll payments transiting between Annapolis and Kent Island on dates. He once spent an entire paycheck on tank tops and a night out at his local luxury getaway, Echostage. An expert manipulator, Matt mastered the art of throwing shade at others while deflecting any collateral damage that might result from the barrage of return fire. Most importantly, Matt is an all-around good guy and the best friend anyone Midshipman could ask for. The Marine Corps is lucky to have him among their ranks.

Noah Wachlin

Submarines

Noah ran all the way to Annapolis from his hometown of Camas, Washington. During plebe year, he ran a marathon with some fellow classmates and has been a masochist ever since. The old man of the Marine Corps convinced him to do an Ironman, which he would describe as a jolly romp through the Florida swamps, even worse he claims he'd happily serve a second semester as Adjutant. He is proudly the palest honor graduate of Dive School ever and has decided to escape the sun entirely by serving beneath the waves in Rickover's Navy. He is perhaps one of the most gentle, patient, and nice people the Club has ever seen - and that's why he's part of the 2% club. When he's not exercising or otherwise being productive, he is on the phone with Charis, writing a letter to her, or doing something else Charis-related. Through everything the Academy has thrown at Noah, his unparalleled loyalty and steadfastness really makes us understand why we're in the 98% club.

Elena Wirz

Surface Warfare

"Elena Wirz... some call her ditsy, others dazzling. If you weren't lucky enough in your time here to meet this blonde incarnate of Athena herself, you have probably at least seen her towering over Tecumseh on her walks down Stribling. Often mistaken as a Communist, this ethnically confused Lithuanian, Russian speaking, blue eyed blonde, pure bred American will fit right into the rich diversity of Japan. Elena not only has the fastest feet in the entire room, she also wins the prize for smelliest. Seriously, Elena is the best movie watching buddy a roomie could ever ask room; crying to RomComs and walking to TAPs some of the greater plebe year mems. Like any other self-respecting femid, Laney-Lanes spends her weekends getting white girl wasted at Fleet and then proceeding to 'Buddy's at NIGHT!' to having a rumpshaking good time."

Andrew Zhao

Surface Warfare Intel

Zay-Ho is a person you can call a true friend. Monsieur Ghao hails from the far away land of San Ramon, CA. He's a zealot of all temples of learning, a musical wind instrument, and a lactose-intolerant lover of all things diary. Despite being the baby of the class, Andrew fills large shoes in company camaraderie. You can find him mentoring his company mates in his Jesus sandals or passing out Hi-Chews any night. Andrew's faith in God and his servant heart set him apart and spread joy wherever he goes. Word on the street is subs wouldn't take him because his turbulent bowels would create an acoustic signal that could be heard from China...plus being trapped in a sealed metal tube with a guy who can flatulate on demand is not ideal, so he went intel instead.

Heidi Zisselman

Surface Warfare

Heidi Zisselman is best known for her constant smile and positive attitude. When she isn't rowing on the Severn, studying in the library, or having a dance party, Heidi is probably giggling with her teammates or telling people she is a "city girl" from Philadelphia. Unfortunately for her, there are no JPMP positions as a Writing Center Peer Tutor, Heidi's professed "true calling." Therefore, she will begin her next adventure in Yokosuka as a Surface Warfare Officer. "Heidi-girl sails the world!"

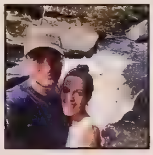
FLYING SQUIRRELS

Terry Belin

Naval Flight Officer

Known well to friends, company-mates, and professors for his brutal honesty, steely resolve, and salty old man status, Terry Isaiah Belin is somehow loved by everyone. Ironically, the man, who hates everyone, has a never-ending list of friends. If you every make the mistake of wronging Terry or the few people he likes, be wary of entering his home city of Baltimore for you might just end up bloodied and unconscious in the back of some alley. He is the most loyal friend you could ask for, but also possibly one of the most difficult. After only taking half of his PRTs, missing as many mandatory events as possible, and never standing watch, it's obvious that no one knows how to play the system better than he does. Be careful of trying to force Terry to do anything. After 4 years of the Academy trying to make him leave, he's still here. A History major, Terry can often be found playing videogames, jacking steel in Mac-D, or scrolling through the news, but rarely anything to do with Academics. Terry is a jack-of-all-trades, and any sailor will be lucky to be under his care in his future career as a NFO, but God forbid anyone ever makes the mistake of giving him any real power, else he'll end up running the world one day.

David Burnsgoldstein



USMC Pilot

Hailing from a small town in Pennsylvania few have ever heard of, David Burns has truly embraced what it means to be an Officer in the U.S. Marine Corps. As a roommate, David is adored most for his late night phone calls to his girlfriend and his 2 AM study sessions. He frequently regales his friends with the collection of ridiculous stories that is his life. Thus, his roommates are always entertained and never asleep. As great as a roommate that David is, it is as a midshipman where David truly thrived. Whether it be as a Plebe Summer Detailer, as a Squad Leader, or as a Platoon Commander, David has demonstrated that he is willing to whatever it takes for his people to succeed. He consistently goes out of his way to thanklessly care for and mentor others. In a way, he truly exudes selflessness. David owes a great deal of his success during long Academy days and nights to the small cylindrical tin that never leaves his side. With it, he has never met a challenge unable to be overcame. If you're seeking David outside the Academy, look to McGarvey's or Castlebay where he's probably receiving a number free drinks from the both men and women he is always able to charm. After four years by the Severn, David has exemplified what it means to be a servant leader and will no doubt change the lives of many as a member of his beloved United States Marine Corps.

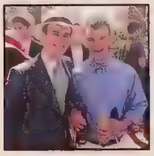
Michael Butts

Navy Pilot

Phillip Campbell

USMC Ground

This mild-mannered, calm, cool, and collected Kentucky Gentleman is one the best guys that we are all fortunate to know. He's a fan of the outdoors, hiking mountains in his leather-bound Birkenstocks. He's not typically a fan of clothes, even if he is a guest in your house, but in the case of brisk weather, he can typically be spotted sporting a beige cardigan, a swell pea coat, or a parka with a fur-lined hood. Phil is someone who can speak intelligently about world politics with you, can drink some good beers with you, will be your wingman, and he will have your back no matter what. A wild night could range from shooting a gun off at an Omani wedding that he crashed, rapping every lyric of an obscure rap song around a fire, or enjoying a couple of cocktails at a higher end establishment then calling it a night before sunset to ensure he is well rested for tomorrow's activities. Much wiser and more mature than any of us, he's been ready to settle down and start a family for as long as we've known him. Once he can finally get away from the constant attempts by the Academy to bombard him with pettiness and incompetence, he will finally be able to. We wish you and Molly the best with everything and we all know you will be successful in your career in the Marine Corps.



Michael Clark

Naval Flight Officer

Our scholar and a gentleman from across the pond, yet somehow still kind of American. Who is only here because he got lost on the way to Royal Naval College Dartmouth. The man with the audacity to recite the 23rd Law of the Navy from memory and then still import the gear necessary to become "The Briefcase Youngster". Michael's time at the Naval Academy was momentous as early as Plebe Summer. That was when he fell off the rope at the O-Course, harder than he's fallen for every Mid girl that's crossed his path. When he's not drinking tea before his 2000 bed time, he somehow manages to sing to the Honor Court, or plead a case to the Glee Club, the members of which affectionately refer to this Baritone as His Nibs. That's ok though, because his taste in music dates from the same bygone century as his clothing style... which explains him being a History Major. Either way though, no better roommate, and the NFO community will be very glad they poached him from the SWOs.

Sophia Costes

Surface Warfare

29's little bundle of sarcastic wit-until someone distracts her with a cute animal video. Sophia will be your firmest and most loyal friend, right up to giving you all the advice you needed but everyone else was far too nice to say. Whether she's more excited to be a SWO or to finally get a cat is an open question. She will never shy away from a responsibility or helping someone out, and when not ruthlessly dispatching ping-pong opponents or panicking about getting a B she will be a tireless mentor and steadfast friend. Never argue with her; she always wins. The SWOs are lucky to have her, as is her future menagerie!

Alexander Couch

Navy Pilot

My name is Alex Couch. I was born in Cumberland VA. I have 3 siblings, all girls. When I was 5 I beat my mom in chess. She knew I was the golden boy. There was no official valedictorian in my high school but it was understood among my class mates that I was number 1. I service selected pilot, and will be going to MIT in Cambridge Massachusetts due to the fact that I was top 20 in my class. All bow down. I never had many stripes to my name, but my influence to the brigade is unfathomable. I cannot wait to donate my entire paycheck to the alumni association. Did I mention that I studied abroad in Singapore, Singapore?

Jose DeJesus

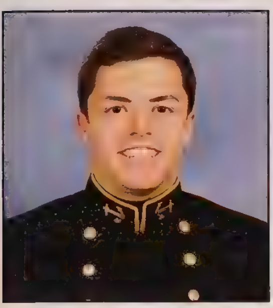
Naval Flight Officer

Hailing from El Paso, TX, Jose De Jesus was the first person in his family to ever graduate from the United States Naval Academy. For four years, he was part of the Naval Academy Men's Glee Club, and to him, family always comes first. This concept of family is the way that he will approach the Fleet: everybody is important to the mission, and no one gets left behind. He looks forward to his future as a Naval Flight Officer, and to his future beyond the Navy.

Kelly Frantz

Navy Pilot

If you're lucky enough to cross paths with Kelly Frantz, chances are she's running by you with a smile on her face. From an IronMan in Florida to a half marathon in Aruba, her athletics have taken her all around the world! When Kelly isn't running a mile a minute her mouth sure is! She loves talking about her dog Colby, and if you ask she'll be more than happy to show you one of the 10 photos of him her mom has sent her in the past week. Whether it's walking to class without backpack straps or waking up at 0500 for a company hike, nothing can dampen Kelly's spirits! Captain Green and the Marine Corps almost stole Kelly away, but her late nights studying Aero pushed her towards her goal to become a Navy Pilot. Happily engaged to her favorite study buddy, Brian, Kelly's only requirement for marriage is that they must own a goat- a true Navy fan! Kelly's pure joy and love for life can only be attributed to her love and faith in God.



Joseph Halpin

Navy Pilot

Joseph Haplin, affectionately known across the Brigade as "Burrito Joe," has left his mark on the Naval Academy. Joseph is one of those guys that is a hard worker and prides himself on the ability to get tasks done (he garnered these skills through his previous work as an enlisted sailor). In addition, Joseph is known for his innate aptitude to care for domestic animals. This is best seen during his nightly ritual in which he calls his girlfriend, or during his support for national puppy day. Finally, Joseph is a fantastic soccer player. He will tell you about this all the time, and the only advice I have for you is that you should trust him. Despite his abilities, Joseph has failed to do one of the simplest tasks of all, chew with his mouth closed. Joe...yeah...

Luisa Holland

Surface Warfare

The brigade's record holder for "most stuff to fit under a desk," Luisa Holland hails from the country roads of Harpers Ferry, West Virginia. Having officially acquired a full set of teeth last year, she is a full-blown city slicker now. Luisa is also known to be the only woman in the greater Annapolis area to fit her whole fist in her mouth. She is easy on the eyes in those parade pants and her lack of proper civilian attire (watch out, boys). If there's a healthy food or exercise trend in existence, Luisa has found it! Little known fact, she moonlights as an actual cyborg when clearing her skin. Luisa has the kindest heart on the East Coast and genuinely makes an impact on everyone that she meets. This Italian hottie will quickly be swept off her feet once she enters the big, bad world. Her laugh and smile are contagious! If you know Luisa, you will miss her dearly and think of her often. If you need her, call her... she'll drop anything to be there for you. Good luck out there, Mountain Mama!

Tanner Huskey

USMC Ground

Tanner Huskey is not a person you can describe, he is someone you experience. But if one were to put words to paper, they might say that he is an eccentric, energetic Husky puppy who loves good company, good food, and good liquor... and a good belly rub every now and then. He can be off putting at first, with his dry sarcasm, tendency for bluntness, and a slight disregard for social norms, but if you hang around you'll learn that all his traits stem from a sincere passion for experiencing life to the full. Plus if you stick around you get to meet Momma Dog and Dickerson, an amazing cook and a..... well, were not really sure what Dickerson does except give good advice on pickles. But like I said, Tanner must be experienced because words do not describe him, especially his eclectic wardrobe. It has been a pleasure being his roommate and growing to love him as a brother. Good luck in the Corps, Tanner!

Ryan Joyner

USMC Ground

Ryan "Stonewall" Joyner – the fastest man in the world. If you can't find him eating crayons, dehydrating himself, or pretending to be an engineer, he can be found taking a quick break in the alley. He can also be found by following the loud blaring of Wheeler Walker Jr. and trail of Razorback gear. Known for his politically incorrect satire and colorful vocabulary, Ryan has truly embraced the Esprit de Corps. That, and I'm pretty sure he's the only one to wear camo Crocs and keep a stuffed unicorn on his bed. Underneath all of his bravado is a gentle soul, I'm pretty sure I heard him crying in the shower once. Despite Ryan's short...comings, he will make a fine Marine. I know this because his ideal combat-load is 2 pistols, a tomahawk, and a Mameluke. I'd write something nice, but I'm pretty sure he can't read.

James Ketola

Submarines

James brought much culture to the room by sharing some of his Spanish heritage with his roommates. One such cultural item was the tradition of Salsa Slapping. Apparently, his family has been doing this for generations as they have always been producers of large quantities of salsa, laying the foundations for future salsa companies. You are welcome America. The list of highly desirable qualities for James doesn't stop there. Any man or woman would be lucky to have this man as a roommate as he has the innate ability to wake up to literally any sound that is made. If the wind blows through the trees on Hospital Point, this guy will know about it. Not only will he know about it, He will make sure you know as well. Basically he is the best watchdog that money cannot buy. You will never feel safer knowing that James will wake up if literally anything happens.

Matthew Lamberjack

USMC Pilot

If you know Matt, or if you've ever met him before, chances are you've had a much-too-long conversation with him that ended awkwardly and with you being late to wherever you were going. Matt is a most involved Midshipman, never missing a voluntary brief and spreading his time between long conversations about his weekend. Whether he caught you on Stribling, in the head, while you're taking the PRT, or while you and your roommates are trying to sleep - you probably remember him for his infamous "Lamberjokes" (if you listened). Maybe you remember him for his interests abroad. A well traveled, fine looking young man... he thrives in a foreign setting - whether it be along the Firenze river, in the laundry rooms of Germany, or the Brazilian corners of Annapolis. Most know, because like everything else, he probably told you once or a hundred times, but he loves his one true hobby - drinking beer. When he's not 'traveling abroad', he's probably busy roaming the Hall, recruiting friends to join him on his next trip to Name-that-State College, or scrounging up any takers for the cheapest deals in town. Who was more surprised? The Germans on D-Day, or Matt's friends when they realized his GPA was higher than all of theirs? All jokes aside, Matt is one of the most genuine dudes out there. He's a loyal friend, a hard worker, a steady looker, and by God, we hope he can fly planes better than he judges a social situation. We love you brother.

John Lemmon

SEALs

John Dane Lemmon is a complicated man with very peculiar habits. Sporting a tucked navy wrestling shirt, khaki shorts, flops, and a visor, The Dane Train can often be found in Nimitz gawking at aircraft carriers or showing off his state quarter collection--still looking for South Dakota. But don't challenge his manhood, because what El Tigre lacks in height, he makes up for in heart and he's not afraid to let you know it. Girls find him cute and after his big summer of 2016, his audacity skyrocketed, dramatically improving his game. But unfortunately, like all good things, the dark horse's streak came to an explosive end. What we will miss most about Dane is not his witty humor or his guaranteed entertainment from drunken escapades that so often resulted in him aggressively gyrating on the floors of Acme, Dillo's, or Buddies, but it will be his genuine friendship and selflessness that we always remember. Keep poundin out in San Diego and try not to defecate on any more Panera floors along the way (RIP WVU's Panera circa 2016).

Brandon Malaspino

USMC Ground

Brandon Malaspino. Otherwise known as Brandon Malaspinio. Otherwise known as the Man-With-The-Beautiful-Lashes. Don't let his pretty eyes fool you though. His stare has destroyed the confidence of many a victim and it is by no accident. Just ask his roommates. He is a man of little words—except when he's trying to rap to Nicki Minaj and Eminem and thinks he's the next Rap God. But do not fret. Brandon is going to make an excellent Marine. How do I know? Well you only need to spend about ten minutes with him to realize that he is a total f—I mean, a great guy. Brandon perfectly embodies the USMC trait of being a "no better friend and no worse enemy" because most of the time, he's out making enemies. He's really good at that. He is especially good at downing Peach Vodka Sprites. Don't believe me? Ask the bartenders at Fleet. They basically know him by name now. If you can't find Brandon shining shoes in the room, chances are he's out looking for the infamous black squirrel that lives on Captain's Row. Because of these qualifications, I can think of no better person than Brandon to serve as a Marine Corps Officer. Go out there and kill, brother.

Shay Martin

USMC Pilot

Shay is a man of many titles (both given and purchased): Chè. Craigs/Shays-list Addict, the King of the FBz.. Blessed without a company (that he knows of), his campaign as a TAD ensign the past four years has served him and his friends well, taking the "Mi casa es su casa" mantra to heart. With whipped cream as the glue strengthening the bond between a growing number of Shay's friends and himself, his loyalties can be broken down into three easy categories: 1. His vehicles, 2. His tequila, and 3. His friends. A 20th century Jesse James, Shay single-(sticky) handedly kept Goodwill Annapolis in business during his time at the Academy. Endeared to his beloved crew for his prowess with a wrench, alternative stadium parking, habit of picking up roadside objects (and women), and innate sense of navigation even on the most chaotic nights, it's no wonder the Marine Corps and Uber drivers alike selected him for their services, with a future MOS as Marine Corps Kegerator Technician. We hate to see him go, but we love to watch him leave.

David Nam

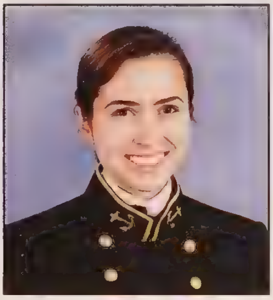
Navy Pilot

David Nam. Dude loves food! Like would give up his first born for a hot bowl of Ramen. If he isn't eating food he is watching videos on YouTube about making food. People are constantly amazed about how much this man can put down in one sitting. Dave is also a generous man because if you don't finish everything on your plate he will gladly help you. On the rare occasion you don't catch him falling face first into some chow, you will find him falling madly in love. After he falls, he gets right back up and....runs. Runs very fast in the other direction. Dave will be a great asset to the aviation community because he has mastered the helicopters on Battlefield 2 (super practical).

Clara Navarro

Naval Flight Officer

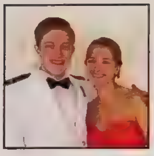
Some call her Slim Breezy, others know her as The Founder of Ham Day, The Collector of Tiny Utensils, The Fire Hydrant Instagrammer, or The Driver of Art Cars. She may be a self-proclaimed "superhuman," but the way to her heart is pickles and ice cream! As an avid member of just about every artsy group on the yard, Clara is a rare presence on deck, but an omnipresence on stage. After years of pinching her pennies in order to travel the globe, she has only recently learned to accept dinner invitations. Oh, and Clara has a lizard on her corkboard. WTF. She's definitely the weirdest person we know, but she's also a dreamer, a doer, and a really good gift giver. Cheers, Clara!



Charles Palmiotto

Navy Pilot

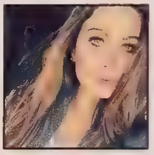
CPP is a native suburbia. His hobbies include: drinking, blacking out, and passing out... or a combination of the three. He turned down a division I Goalkeeper position to be the hero goalkeeper of the 29th Company Intramural team. Known across the nation for his unparalleled knowledge of statutory state laws. Chad prides himself on his ability to shotgun 25 ounce Fosters. He was disappointed to not be selected for the elite submarine corps for being too cool in high school. Look no farther than the guy in the Dad shoes if you want to have a good time. There's no bout adoubt it that Pasquale's uncanny ability to generate thoughts will make him a great pilot.



Elizabeth Pecsok

Surface Warfare

Elizabeth Pecsok prefers to go by Elizabeth, not Liz. Which is fitting, because a person like her deserves much more than 'Liz.' She is poised and confident and strong, like you would expect from an Elizabeth. Her time at the Academy was mostly spent on extra-curriculars and forming meaningful relationships, with maybe a couple hours of academics squeezed in. Elizabeth is known as a "grandma" due to her sometimes-frustrating but always well-meaning sense of responsibility, her compassionate heart, and her modest clothing, but soon she will be known as a SWO-mama. To Jason Jablonski, her boyfriend of two and a half years, she was a best friend and a loyal partner when life threw cancer his way. To her closest friends, Elizabeth is dependable and self-sacrificing and a great advice-giver. On top of that, you can count on her to show you the craziest dance moves which can be seen if there is upbeat music playing anywhere close enough to hear. She will be a great addition to her first ship and a blessing to her future friends.



Mikaela Sakach

Naval Flight Officer

Mikaela doesn't read books, like nerds do. Let's just get that straight right now. The Mik half of the Mikuisa (MIK-WEE-SAH). Some say she's 5'10. When she says guess what, don't say what or she's got you. She worships Tom Brady in her free time. As you may have inferred, she's comes from the best city in the country, Boston, MA. But you'd never guess it because she doesn't have an accent...and don't ask her why either. While she is clueless, she is kind, supportive, resilient and can find any piece of clothing for a bargain.

Theodore Schopf

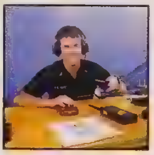
Naval Flight Officer

Whether Ted Schopf has always had his heart of gold, or whether he traded for it on the stock market in one of his schemes, he is the most kind-hearted, steadfast, and compassionate friends you could hope to have. Taking equally after Teddy Roosevelt, Ted Carter, and a teddy bear, Ted is owed an incomparable debt—literally—by the Class of 2017 for his service as Treasurer. Always one to shine under pressure, he managed to pull off nearly as many class events at the last second as he did PRT runs. So if you enjoyed Ring Dance, or the Luau, or Commitment Dinner... etc, give the man who made ideas happen a hug, or may be show him a picture of a cat. His roommates will be sad to part from him, and will miss the man almost as much as they won't miss his awful puns.

Mark Serbent

Submarines

Mark Sebent, the Benjamin Button of the naval academy needs not wonder what he will look like in 20 years because he is already there. Mark's balding is not due to his continual worry about xenon poisoning or maintaining a negative coefficient of reactivity, but his high radiation exposure due to the excessive amount of time he spends in the Nuke Lab. Despite growing up in a small town in the middle of nowhere, Mark will still tell you that a barn is both a probability and an area. A firm believer that the only real core is the reactor core, he has spent his time at the academy designing CANDUs for peace, characterizing materials, along with several other projects. Mark's desire to go submarines is only matched by his love of nuclear physics. Mark is uniquely qualified to lead in the Nuclear Navy, an excellent engineer, and a great friend. -- SP



Daniel Smart

Surface Warfare

Neer has a man been so apt to play the bagpipes and to look like a dad! More than anything, however, Dan "The Doctor" Smart is the best friend a guy could ask for. Take it easy, old friend.

James Talisse

Submarines

Known colloquially as jimtom1314, jimby, jimbardo, jibeany, jimbo, and jimmyjazz, James Patrick spends most of his time at the academy in the Chauvenet Math Room. In his free time he enjoys participating in intramural soccer and spending long weekends in the Baltimore shock trauma center. He's notorious for his ability to woo women with his caterpillar-like eyebrows and pure perseverance. He's adept at various forms of social media including (but not limited to): Instagram, Facebook Messenger, LinkedIn, Tinder, Kik, Bumble, Grindr, Farmer's only, Christian mingle, match.com, and eHarmony. But if there's one thing about Jimmy you can always be sure of, when he's not lurkin, he's definitely be creepin –an essential characteristic of a successful submarine ocifer.

Jonathan Tang

Surface Warfare

Jonny Tang. JT. Jonah. Jonnnnn. Decorated gymnast, SWO-IP select, Mac. Check yourself before you get in a car with him, because gymnastics is his life and he will attempt to tumble in the car. Anytime you see cheese in the hall, you know Mac isn't far behind, in fact he's probably a couple paces ahead. Whether it be a piano or a new set of golf clubs, you can always count on Jonny coming home with a new gadget or two... Minus a couple thousand dollars. He's always down to do some flips for tips. Whether it be on the ship selection stage or in a San Diego "club." Speaking of which, SD has always been Jonny's calling, and alcohol his temptress. At least one lucky lady is getting her college degree as a direct result of a healthy dose of both. An upstanding gentleman and kind-hearted fool, Jonny is always ready to give you his time. You'll have a hard time finding a better guy to hit the town with. The cyber community is lucky to be getting him... eventually.

Carl Trampenau

USMC Pilot

"THAR SHE BLOWS!" Carl "Carlito" Trampenau shouts in gallant fashion, his hand wrapped round on the mainstay of the Defiance during a summer squall a hundred miles off Bermuda as his boat's mighty integrity holds its own. A seasoned four-year veteran of the Varsity Offshore Sailing Team and three time finisher of Sea Trials, Carl spends his free time shouting history at economists, playing Frisbee with his huck buddies, or pretending to be a member of 21st Company. His transition from that nerdy SWO Plebe to a future Flying Marine is a testament to his overwhelming motivation levels. He was a feared Training Sergeant, a respected NAFAC Academic, and a fantastic friend. If needed, Carl can be found at Café Cairo, but only after he gets 3 more in him.

David Turner

Navy Pilot

Have you ever raised a golden retriever puppy? It's cute and fluffy and full of energy, and then randomly falls asleep. That's kinda how Tate is. When he's not asleep, Tate is always down to go out for a beer, hang out, play a game... watch some Disney films... eat your food... the usual. But also like a puppy, you gotta take care of him and make sure he doesn't poop everywhere. It's been a blast being his roommate (owner).

Dean Williams

Surface Warfare

DWill, Vitamin Dean, Deanzel Washington. He has many names. Hardship and late nights became his life. He's pretty much nocturnal now. He ran with varsity track for about 3 years; and Lord help you if you snatched his sports bag, 'cause he will send an email to EVERYONE to get that back. He's always injuring himself, and falling out of his rack. But he managed to hold himself together for about year of boxing. Lots of people hit his hands with their faces. He's poli sci. So ask him about the news instead of reading. He's always working on that paper that's due in the morning; 'cause poli sci. Music is one of his drugs; he takes his drugs seriously. Geek stuff is also his drug. He changes hairstyles nearly every week; you might not recognize him. He's a goofball and makes people laugh a lot; unless he doesn't know you well enough; then he's just a clam. He will listen to a single song on repeat for days. Don't let him do that if you want to stay sane. Don't rap battle him without SPF100

Nicholas Arias

USMC Pilot

"Oh Nicholas". Never has a mother been more proud and disappointed in a young man than in Nick Arias. Some interesting facts about him. He's from the great state of Panama City... He's not Mexican (contrary to popular belief), and he's a passionate English major. Despite some challenges he's faced (including a NAPS Christmas), Nick managed to grab a spot as a Marine Corps Pilot. Now he and his TBS brothers can share Crayons and make airplane noises together. Just don't keep comparing him to a gardening tool, he's officially retired from that line of work. Joking aside, Nick has proven to be an exemplary leader and a great friend. His compassion of others and humility in himself are the traits that will make him a great Marine Aviator. Last on the team, first in our hearts. The Other Guys

John Arion

Navy Pilot

They say that grey hair indicates one's level of wisdom, and John-Charles is no exception. With more grey on his head than the back a silverback gorilla, JC is the epitome of wise. You'll often find him amassing his wealth of wisdom in his rack, where he peacefully naps 16 hours a day. If not in his beloved bed watching Netflix, catch him burning rubber at your nearest local sidewalk or street. His several bouts with the grim reaper have left marks on him that not even scarface can outdo. Need to buy a house? At age 21, John is known to be the youngest midshipman to ever reach a $1 million credit limit. All smiles all day, Chan keeps it real with his (slightly) optimistic pessimism. Cheese = Mac. He may be the most mysterious and unique person you will ever meet.

Jordan Brooks

Surface Warfare

"Inside or outside the loop?" If you are confused by this question you probably aren't worthy of being in Jordan Brooks presence or not from Houston Either way, Jbrooks doesn't have time to entertain your nonsense. Care to have a pointless argument that leads to personal attacks? Have a conversation with Jordan about how the brick house that he hooked up with last night was apparently a 'total smoke'. Toilets are not his preferred method of using the bathroom because DTA bathrooms have long lines or are too dirty. Both lines and dirt are for peasants which he does not associate with. Be wary if he invites you out because there is more than likely someone he likes more at the bar. But if you need him, just follow the faint sound of Chance The Rapper, the sailing team, or the back half of the lineup in a bachelorette party. 'Eternally BH.' Also known as 'Cappuccino,' a beautiful man. A man highly invested in his physical development, the young Jbrooks engages in the FIFA battlefield and has been coined as 'The King' of B-4 FIFA antics. King of the realm. He continually engages in his political campaign, #StopDenise2017 of which he has met great success. As much as he probably doesn't have time to entertain your stupidity, if you are lucky enough to become friends with this guy the world will envy you. This is someone you can go to for anything and always has your back, even if all of your actions are questionable at best. Love you man. Japan is lucky to have you and for those of us that make your list we will hear from you soon

William Cavin

Cryptologic Warfare

A self proclaimed "Good Dude" and will do nearly anything to retain that title. "Hey Broski need some food from out in town?"; "Hey Brother, let me take care of your laundry"; "Dont worry guys, I'll get the next beer!"; or most famously " OF COURSE I should spend $350 to fly out a former member of our class that no one talks to or wants to see" 'The Nice Guy' can be heard from any distance due to his obnoxious laugh or most recently, his tattered blue & golds. Lord help you if you find yourself standing next to Will at the end of a football game - the lovely tune of "Navy Blue and Gold" will forever be ruined for you by his horrendous voice. Will has come a long way since Plebe year - he still enjoys show tunes and Disney sing-a-longs but it is safe to say he has given up rock climbing for good. Doesn't believe in listening to the radio in the car for some odd reason. Enjoys asking extremely deep questions to unlikely strangers. One request comes to mind - think, croquet 2/C year. We love you brother - we cherish you for your intrusive questions, your fruity humor, your loyal friendship, but we'll mostly miss the tales of the time you used to lift and the days of you buying all the rounds!

James Chmiola

USMC Ground

Where do I begin... Jim "Jimmy Deans Sausage" Chmiola has graced 30th Company with his presence from the 4th dimension. Jim's story begins with our class in the front-leaning-rest as he told us the great tale of Ernest Shackleton's "Artic Expedition." Speaking in mostly guttural sounds and the occasional "myah," it was tough to get a read on the infamous Jim Chmiola. Jim's stern demeanor can throw off the most stoic of those around him. In fact, he is so stern, he redefined the term YOLO; You Only Laugh Once. But be warned, Jim is known to short circuit from time-to-time, so be sure to speak slowly and don't make any sudden movements. Aside from his impeccable bearing and inability to blink, Jim has a softer, kinder side. In his free time he enjoys hanging out with the cross country team and pretending to be a varsity athlete. It is also rumored that Jim likes to whisper sweet nothings into the ears of his roommates before they drift off to sleep. Also, Jim's ability to skate out of most anything is an obvious indicator of success as a Marine Corps Officer. All joking aside, Jim is one of the most authentic guys you'll ever meet. There's never been a time we couldn't turn to Jim for a favor or life advice. His sincerity and empathy towards those around him make Jim the guy we all know and love. I'm certain that he will make a fine Marine Corps Officer in the years to come. Last on the team, first in our hearts. The Other Guys

The man couldn't hurt a fly but he sure did like to get in fights. Between breaking his elbow, being repeatedly punched in the kidneys and having some bad experiences with a sunny town called Edison, he had the hardest four years at the academy. Congrats on making it to the end of your fourth plebe year, despite valiant nighttime attempts by strangers to piggyback off your success at USNA. NMSD proud."

International Man of Intrigue, he is indeed! Man of Great Understanding and Emotional Support, he's definitely not! Dilly has an unprecedented gift for wisdom beyond his years and a frankness that will put you to shame, though is always ready to help a shipmate out however he can. He can often be found at his desk playing video games, eating chips, and chugging soda from a two liter bottle; or he'll be halfway across the globe exploring a new culture. In addition to being the most rational man I've yet to meet, he's also a traveler extraordinaire and roommate I'll miss. Fair winds and Following seas, you jerk!

Jordan DiPaola

Navy Pilot

Meet Jordan DiPaola (it's okay, he can't pronounce his last name either), a modern renaissance man and good ol' boy. He's from some place in Virginia, which he pretends to be proud of. Jordan has wanted to be a pilot since he first developed his crush on Tom Cruise in Mission Impossible. He is best known for his dirty jokes, failed attempts at getting girls, and ability to get himself out of trouble. He likes to obsess over a new hobby every other week while completely forgetting about last week's, unless it has something to do with God, girls, or guns. However, you'll never find anyone with a better heart. When it comes to having your six, this is the guy you want. Goodbye, Masterbuilder, here's hoping everything is awesome!

Brett Flaherty

Medical Corps

Brett, like Brett Favre, Flaherty can be found sipping on her Dunkin Donuts iced coffee grinding in Nimitz, her natural habitat, until closing time. When she isn't playing with those chemistry beakers and test tubes that the rest of us left behind plebe year, this spunky Irish girl can be found throwing one (okay, maybe more than one) back in DTA or cruising around in her Jeep with the top down. Her legendary dance moves and fantastic sense of humor are some of this Massachusetts girl's trademarks. Known for her generosity, Brett constantly touches hearts by volunteering with war veterans, at local hospitals, or with underprivileged children. Brett makes it look so easy to be extremely smart, a physical stud, and overall wonderful human but it can be all attributed to her impressive work ethic. We're all so lucky that we have this future doctor and dog owner to patch us up and let us cuddle up with her furry friends.

Francis Gossett

USMC Pilot

The young Mattison Gossett, also known as "The President", is a guru of all things but a master of none. A lover of Guinness, Bruce Springsteen, Manchester United, trinkets from foreign lands, and the good ole' state of South Carolina. Curious as to where he's from? If his southern accent, palmetto tree adorned apparel, jalapeno pimento cheese dip or the other various South Carolina Flags covering every piece of property he owns doesn't give it away, he'll be quick to tell you. This man can certainly slam back a pint, a certain necessity with the yearly performance of his beloved Panthers and Bulldogs. The type of man who will always get back on the moped - trust that Mattison can effectively navigate about a treacherous hill, find one-too-many dates to Ring Dance, mix a damn good cocktail, and perform any physical feat with hardly any training whatsoever. Recent reports have shown that he has only marked his territory in four different geographical locations of concern. Whether a pantry or a drawer, he is a huge advocate of appendage hydration. While his looks have certainly attracted a myriad of members from the opposite (and same) sex, we must provide a disclaimer to his future attractiveness as he has been recruited by Rogaine to be featured in their 2018 advertisement campaign, "Losing my hair did not make me lose my life". His relationship with Ryan Shows has probably left many questioning just how close two roommates can truly be, there have been some weird rumors about their trip to the Yukon together. In all seriousness, Mattison is an extremely loyal and passionate friend, an incredible older brother who has an extreme dedication to his family and makes everyone around him a better person. The Marine Corps is extremely lucky to have you bro, and we would all be lucky to have you over our heads laying down some lead one day.

Michael Greer

Submarines

Michael Greer has epitomized every quality that the naval academy wishes to see in young officers, well except for the young part. Plebe Mike was so efficient that the only way he could use all of his time effectively was by taking extended head calls five times a day. Ranked number 1 in hearts and minds no one was surprised by Mike's strict adherence to accountability and professionalism. Old Gregg can only be summed up as the most avid extrovert to hide for an entire year squirreling away pizza and moes.

Foster Gross

Intel

Chinese speaking, snowboarder, wild man with the nice flow. Enjoys trips to Whole Foods and blasting dubstep with his roommate on Saturday nights. Catch him driving around with the JJ's List blasting the soundtrack to Eurotrip. 15 years from now he'll be all around the world like Diplo or Tintin. Don't call him when his mixtape drops!

Joseph Hunter

USMC Ground

Somewhere in a small Missouri town lives a well-groomed, polite, tactful and put-together young man named Joe who is always on time and never plays video games. But that man is not Joseph Hunter. The Joe we know and love is a testament to the fact that with enough loose-leaf tobacco and positive mental outlook, anything is possible. Joe has somehow earned the impressive accomplishment of surviving four years of the Naval Academy without showering, studying, or eating in King Hall. His diet of Copenhagen Long Cut, Greek Yogurt, and Gin & Tonics is all the sustenance he needs. With four surgeries he's more machine than man now, but that hasn't kept down his winning personality or improved his time management. Joe, we love you. Never change, brother.

Michael Kelly

Navy Pilot

Kelly - The best smile in the brigade? Michael Kelly. The best DTA dancer? Not Michael Kelly, but he thinks he is, and it's funny so it's ok. Michael Kai "Cutie Pie" is quite the chameleon, pessimists would call him a poser. He's got that rare ability to adapt to any type of social situation/style, and absolutely kill it. Whether he's the downtown Chicago hipster, the Southern Frat Boy, or the western cowboy, the young "Schmike" can do it all. His wardrobe and collection of hiking boots reflects his abusive relationship with mechanical engineering. "Shit man I think I just failed an exam." Mike has often been known to reward a long day's work and hardships with a bit of online shopping. His passion for aesthetics and chillin with some 'good dudes' is rivaled only by that of his love for Youtube. In between his crazy, insane, heavy lifts and his chronic struggle with MechE, you'll find him quietly chuckling to himself watching "silly" videos online or checking himself out in the Halsey mirrors. Michael tends to make quite a "stink" about things, and usually leaves the mess for somebody else to clean. Need a recommendation for a nice IPA? Come find Mike, he thinks he knows a few. We love you brother.

Amy Krick

Surface Warfare

So what do you get when you make a human out of coffee beans and raw emotion... Amy Krick. If you're ever wandering the heights of 8-4, you may catch a glimpse of Amy's radiant smile. On a Friday evening, you'll find this pocketful of sunshine slaving away at her beer card at Ram's Head with the boys. This impressive dedication is seen in other areas though her Chemistry major grades don't reflect it—but she makes up for it with other special talents. Amy is a skilled baker and she'll trek from corner to corner of Bancroft Hall to make sure her closest friends get their weekly dose of delicious cupcakes, cookies, and chocolate-covered strawberries...that's why we work out, right? Speaking of sweet, you won't find a nicer person than Amy. She is always so positive and full of energy...but this could also be due to her caffeine addiction. Originally a Rugby Girl, Amy tackled the physical mission here at the Academy, we're not sure if this helped with her clumsiness problem, though. Let's hope she can walk across that stage at graduation without tripping...that would be a classic Amy move. She's tackled many obstacles during her time here. Despite her troubles and struggles (like losing Rich), she is the most considerate and kind person you will meet and as a SWO mamma she will take care of all her junior sailors like no other. We wish Amy the best out in sunny San Diego as she qualifies to get that SWO pin...she's already got the coffee drinking qual down! Last on the team, first in our hearts. The Other Guys.

Keegan Kush

USMC Ground

Keegan Kush ran all the way from Nebraska to Alaska in preparation for the Naval Academy. Upon arrival he quickly solidified friendships and respect by letting those around him know that he "doesn't imbibe alcohol or associate himself with those that do" Structure -as he refers to himself- Kush was forced to leave USNA in order to find like-minded people and travel around the world finally finding his home in the Middle East. This made his decision to study Arabic make sense, except for the fact that he still can't speak it. Keegan would like to thank all of 30 for his loving title of Not My CC.

Jordan Lee

Submarines

Senor Teriyaki's journey to the Academy began back in the 1st grade when he read "Hunt for Red October" for the first time, and since then he has dreamed of nothing but submarines, Russian men, and his Plebe Training Officer. Throughout his time at the Academy, Senor was famous for burning the midnight oil, often pulling repeated all-nighters to achieve academic fame and fortune, and it is reported that no one has ever seen the man nap. Furthermore, he is insistent on not wasting time on frivolous activities such as online jig-saw puzzles, Pokemon, Dragon Ball Z, marathons of "The Office", or anything of the like. A deeply spiritual man, Teriyaki attributes his success and tireless work ethic to his ability to channel his inner Zen, making substances like alcohol, caffeine, and tobacco not only unneeded, but in fact undesirable. Despite being a hard-core pacifist, the future certainly looks bright down where it's wetter, down where it's better, for Mr. Lee.

Joshua Mayberry

Navy Pilot

Josh has the heart of a child and the common sense of one too. A man of many talents, Josh can be found entertaining others with his self-proclaimed saxophone "skills," dazzling the ladies with his circuit boards or telling dad jokes ad nauseam to anyone willing to listen. A Tinder connoisseur and playboy at heart, Josh spent many a wild night in hotel rooms rating media and watching Netflix alone his Plebe year. Though none of his dates ever showed up, Josh used the time wisely to get ahead on his studies and enjoyed "getting away from it all." Retiring from Tinder, Josh found his soul mate, LEESUH! Like Gloria and Melvin, Lisa and Josh were a match made in heaven. Despite being slightly (...extremely...) emasculated, Josh was the happiest I've ever seen him. An aspiring Naval Aviator, Josh originally wanted to be a submariner! Had he spent more time studying than swiping right on Tinder, Josh may have accomplished his goal. Though you were the butt of most of our jokes, you were (almost) always a good sport. In all seriousness, the Navy is fortunate to have a guy like you. Your loyalty and ability to stay true to yourself is what makes you a great person and one of my best friends. Though we're going our separate ways, I'm certain our friendship will stay strong in the years to come. Last on the team, first in our hearts. The Other Guys.

Aaron McAvey

Supply Corps

Aaron, AKA "Sally" breezed through the Academy. Sally made his own rules, had his own standards, and maybe that is why everything came easy for this man. The academics, the physical mission, and most notably the uniform standards of USNA conformed to his will. Sally couldn't have been so successful without the help of many others for whom he would like to thank. The list goes on and on but at the top are his three laptops, six cell phones, fourteen calculators, and countless chairs that he just "wanted to see if they could fly" while he punished them for making life at the Academy easier than it already was. If you're reading this, that means that he made it. After his classmates nominated him as "Most Likely to Become CNO" Aaron joined the Supply Corps - where he will surely supply the Navy with all the dip and energy drinks needed - he won't have to search far, just check his endless supply of leftovers in his con-locker. A native of the Jersey Shore, he is known for his overwhelming tolerance and his need for speed. These passions never got him in trouble though, he always managed his way out of it... except for that one time. You can typically find him either hitting the tanning beds or "clubbing with the hot girls I met on Grindr". He is also a great sleep cycle mentor and foreign relations expert - protocol is his calling. Sally is so tame, vulnerable, and cute that he will be featured in the March 2017 cover of Playgirl! In all seriousness, everybody that knows Aaron knows that they can count on him for anything, he'll have your back. He's a good guy to have on your team and we're all better for knowing you. We love you brother

Meghan Moloney

Navy Pilot

Meghan Moloney is the loneliest girl to ever enter the halls of Bancroft. In order to make friends and fill this void, Meghan pestered everyone to come over to her house in NOVA. This behavior led to the great hate chit of 2017 where the company chose Dan Tapia - see 30th company- over her. Even with all of this, Meghan fulfills herself with loyalty and devotion to her friends and teammates going so far as to check pulses and drive to Cleveland for less than 24 hours. This hockey playing Irish girl is a true adventurer and friend to all.

Dionnah Moore

Surface Warfare

Dionnah has always been one of those people that I receive so much positive energy from. As an awesome dancer and even amazing friend, she has definitely made my time at the Academy worth while.

Elliot Nell

USMC Ground

Elliot Nell has never gotten the credit he deserves for being the most counseled midshipman to ever walk Bancroft Hall. By his adherence to a strict schedule of 10:30 meetings and his sacrifice of many naps he laid the groundwork for success. Elliot has crushed numerous physical milestones: Airborne, PFT, CFT, O-Course, Leatherneck and obviously the PRT ... nevermind. Never has his durability or dedication been called into question. Elliot's tireless effort to quit his two energy drink a day routine tends to end with a replacement by three coffees or an order to Golden Dragon in order to keep morale high. With a girlfriend that is by far out of his league and a car that is only fit for an operator. Elliot's persona far outreaches his capabilities. Elliot's time at the Academy has proven that "if not you, why me" mindset is applicable to USNA and would like to thank his numerous roommates throughout the years for always sticking by him and never leaving for someone better. Elliot thanks for an awesome four years, take care of your Marines like you've looked out for us.

Cole Peyton

Surface Warfare

Cole Peyton is the man who Jimmy Dean was considering when composing his most famous song Big Bad John." A gentle giant who looks like he should drink like a big man but often drinks less than his fiance. Cole makes sure that no matter how many card games he has planned for the day he will have time for a short phone call from 6 PM to 6 AM nightly with his true love. Cole never wanted to be a 2% so he took a break before coming to USNA in order to not be attributed to that weak group

Karen Quiles

Surface Warfare

Tori Sharpe

USMC Ground

In case you're feeling blue, this Scuba Steve will make your day with her endless energy and peppiness. She is always down to let you cry on her shoulder, rage with you in DTA, or go hiking through the mountains; whatever you need, she's there. In her free time, Tori has managed to pick up hobbies that vary from learning how to design tiny houses, snowboarding, to becoming SCUBA dive master... the list goes on forever. If you catch her in the gym she will be only doing legs... is this how she picks up the boys, or is it her hair that looks perfect 24/7? This Wisconsin Princess has managed to kick a and take names just using a simple diet that consists of candy, sushi, and wings. Tori is the most amazing friend that anyone could wish for and the Marine Corps is truly lucky to get this fireball on their team.

Ryan Shows

SEALs

The Man, the Myth, the Ryan Shows; Yes, the guy with the hair gel. Yes, the man who once taught himself Chinese over his block of leave. Yes, the 30th Company Commander and Club Soccer phenom. Ryan hails from New Hampshire, but after a couple of beverages at Acme, "his" Southern twang is sure to come out. "I was born in Georgia" he'll claim but in reality he just wants to have more and more in common with his lover, I mean roommate, Mattison Gossett. Really just a great guy. If you know Ryan, he's probably asked you to go get a "good" salad, or get some "good" beers with him. Best asset would probably be his hair, maybe his abs, yeah definitely his abs. Ryan maintains his physique with a strict diet and countless workouts. He loves to talk about his workouts, about the only things that will keep him from "going to lift" are some "good" beers with the boys, or a game of FIFA. If your beautiful walk down stribling has ever been interrupted by a medley of dying water buffalo noises, screams, and moaning, it was likely Ryan producing his mating call. He likes to make his presence known by making obscene noises on stribling, in the bathroom, or pretty much any other public venue. While most of the time he's embarrassing to bring in public, and his stories are always a tad exaggerated, his good dude factor is off the charts. He is a humble man, a role model, and great friend. Ryan has chosen one of the toughest paths, but if the first 22 years of his life are any indicator, we know he will be one of the best to do it. We love you brother and Ni Hoy Minyoy

Lucas Stalnaker

USMC Pilot

From the hilltops of Munds Park, Nederland, and the swamps of Tega Cay to mackin' on XC girls down in DTA. We can always count on seeing you dancing at Buddy's or fixing up a golf cart with a couple of your "buddies". Fate forever sealed on a warm Flagstaff night, when you held fate in your hands as you took that great bite. And remind us again about D? Either way I hope you enjoy your last sip of sweet tea. It's a crazy one you have, a level of which there is no cure. Run as far and as fast as you can, of that we are sure. "Vegan, what's that mean?" you hear again and again before heading downtown, "Coach it means you don't eat meat" as you head for brunch with a frown. From SC, a Southern Boy born and raised; 99% panther, 1% swordfish leaves you feeling crazed. 29:11 in a 10k at UVA, how does that make you feel? Proof yet again, that the bump... yeah it's real. You're an economist after all, the most finest one in the hall. Too bad that couldn't help you make a fortune selling used golf balls. Never ran before you came here, you made the most of your four years. Running at the front of the pack every race, never afraid to push the pace. Helped the team make it to nationals in Indiana, only to get slapped in the face hard with a banana. The man up in the office, no longer a pain. Good luck down South, as you fly your airplane!

Lauren Stiff

Surface Warfare

Lauren "Georgia Davros-a" Stiff is your midshipman Sour Patch Kid. Sour. Sweet. Gone. She decided to attend plebe summer instead of becoming Miss Pennsylvania. That potential beauty queen status made her pretty popular with the boys here. But it didn't matter if you looked like a Salami or George Clooney, you had equal chances with Lauren; zero. "Stiffy" opted for the field hockey team where her defensive skills shined and she was able to show the world just how good she is with a stick in her hands. But her athleticism didn't stop there, for under the influence of just a single beer, Lauren would quickly assume her prior gymnast talent. Those who have had the pleasure of knowing Lauren will remember her for her kindness that is as radiant as her pearly whites and her diligence that is only outmatched by her profound love for her family and friends. She's proven this through her tough work ethic as a Chemistry major and her moral code as one of the top leaders in our class. She will make an excellent SWO mamma and do well in everything she puts her mind to. Much love and happiness to you, Lauren, the world is, and will continue to be, a better place with you in it! Last on the team, first in our hearts. The Other Guys.

Daniel Tapia

Naval Flight Officer

Upon arrival on I-day, Daniel knew in his mind that he wanted to squeeze every last ounce out of the vigorous academic program that the Academy had to offer. Not wanting to settle for the easiest major at the Academy, Daniel chose Economics from day one, saying "Anything worth doing is worth overdoing". Since then, Daniel has taken the maximum amount of courses allowed each semester, averaging a mind-boggling 22.3 credits. Unfortunately, this has meant a lot of time spent in libraries and academic buildings over the years, leaving the man little time for computer games to practice his medieval-era wartime tactics, naps on a futon, or maintaining any human relationships with those around him. Though Mr. Tapia had minimal time for extra-curriculars while at the Academy, he still managed to start an in-company program to educate and train his fellow midshipmen on an issue near and dear to his heart fraternization. When asked for a quote about fraternization and why he held the issue so dear, Daniel replied "As a true professional, It's just a shame to see these kids compromise productive working relationships with cohorts in pursuits of romantic interests. As the training sergeant, it's my duty to set high standards." Cheers, Daniel

Austin Van dellen

USMC Ground

AJ, aka the withering frog, is the embodiment of the Naval Academy Mission. Known for his unbreakable back and his chiseled chest, withering frog has an unusual gift for carrying a lot of sand on his back. No one really knows why, but his favorite hobby is paying extravagant amounts of money to test this skill of carrying heavy things for 24 hours while his fiancee is made to wait on him. With an aptitude for operating, he can often be seen researching his operations out in the field. The countless hours he has spent in his studies will culminate to a degree, a degree that no one really knows what it is Withering frog's role model is actually a man who finished his Naval Academy career in just 2 years! Not a day goes by that he doesn't think about his old comrade. Withering frog hopes that one day he will be able to navigate the beaches of San Diego like his role model used to. As a devoted righteous man, withering frog was adamantly against the use of alcohol and dip and other vices of such. He was always consistent with his habits, never afraid to show his fiancee his true feelings about how much he hated substances and the people low enough to use them. Although he has always dreamed of going submarines, withering frog was unfortunately SARBed to go Marine Corps. As a devoted patriot, withering frog has accepted his fate and is willing to do his duty to the nation. Those marines will be lucky to be serving with AJ, and I know those from his class will miss seeing his bright face everyday

James Villanueva

USMC Pilot

James Lee's biggest struggle has been finding a place to park his horse. Having never been to a farm before USNA, he somehow became the most "cowboy," redneck, white trash, lady killer that has ever walked the Earth. James has a unique ability to turn off his brain and say the stupidest stuff when talking to women. Being towards the top of the graduating class has never stopped James from asking questions that he is supposed to know the answer to. James will crush everything the Marine Corps can throw at him if he ever picks an outfit fast enough to be there.

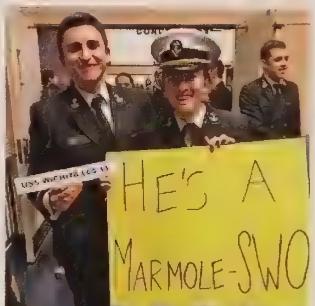
CHRISTOPHER ANDREW MARMOLEJO

Congratulations On Your Graduation!

On this day that you graduate, we want you to know, dear son, how very proud we are of you. We are proud of the person you've become especially for your faith in God and what He's done in your life. We thank the Lord every day for who you have become and for all that he will do in you, in the future years to come. We pray that the Lord will continue to guide and direct your steps. We give all the glory to the Lord for bringing you to this place. He will take you further still, into a future full of promise. Focus on His will as you go forth from this place into a future of expectation. May you always know God's hand and grace is upon you.

IN THE FUTURE:

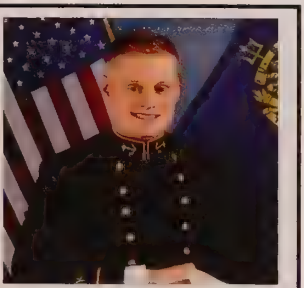
Titus 1:7-9 For an overseer, as God's steward, must be above reproach. He must not be arrogant or quick-tempered or a drunkard or violent or greedy for gain, but hospitable, a lover of good, self-controlled, upright, holy, and disciplined. He must hold firm to the trustworthy word as taught, so that he may be able to give instruction in sound doctrine and also to rebuke those who contradict it.



REMEMBER ALWAYS:

Matthew 5:37 Simply let your 'Yes' be 'Yes,' and your 'No,' 'No'; anything beyond this comes from the evil one.
Psalms 28:7 The LORD is your strength and your shield; in him your heart trusts, and you are helped; your heart exults, and with your song you give thanks to him.
Colossians 3:23 Whatever you do, work heartily, as for the Lord and not for men.

PHILIPPIANS 4:13 I CAN DO ALL THINGS THROUGH CHRIST, WHO STRENGHTHENS ME!



Ethan Michael King

A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favor rather than silver and gold. Proverbs 22:1

Ethan,

We are so proud of you. Accomplishments and success are shaped by adversity.Your hard work and perserverance have always helped you achieve your goals. We love you more than words can ever express. You are always in our hearts and on our minds. Thank you for your commitment to our country and may the Lord bless you and keep you in all your endevours.

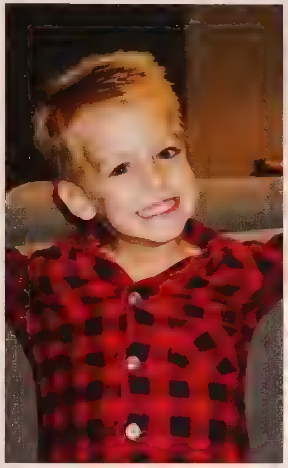
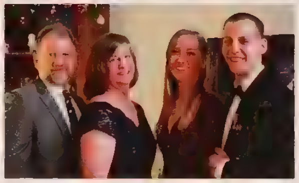
EVAN WRAY

Evan - We are so proud of you! It has been a joy watching you grow from that crazy kid into a mature young man. We love laughing with you in the simple times and the utterly hilarious ones too. You have a God-given ability to keep a level mind and get along well with others.

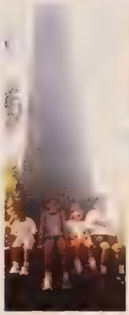




We look forward to your exciting future as you marry Amanda and become a Marine Corps Officer.

May you have grace for today and bright hope for tomorrow...

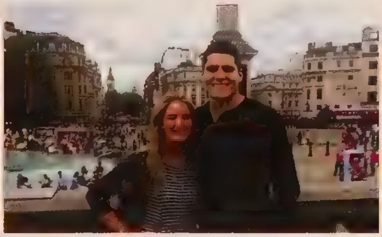
With much love, Mom & Dad



Patrick J. Hoffman, Jr.

Congratulations Patrick!

Words cannot begin to describe how proud we are of you! The sky is the limit for your future!
You are such a wonderful young man and we all love you so much!
Love, Dad, Mom, Meghan, Colin & Kelly



PAIGE STATELER

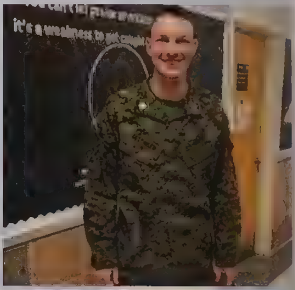
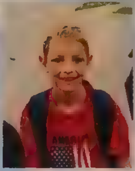
We are so very proud of you Paige!!
Now on to your next journey, to become Dr. Stateler!
Keep being the strong and beautiful women you are, and you will continue to make a difference in this world.
We love you, Mom and Dad

RYAN DANIEL GETTINGER

When you were young, we never imagined for you the path you have chosen. We couldn't be prouder of what you've accomplished and how hard you've worked to get there. We can't wait to see what lies ahead! We love you! Mom & Dad





Congratulations
21st Company and
USNA Class of 2017!

OUR PAIGE. WE COULDN'T BE HAPPIER FOR YOU.

What a journey this has been for you, Paigie. You have remained, through it all, an optimistic soul, full of life and yearning for adventure. We have been so lucky to have so much of you these last four years. We have shared the good and the ugly-from swim meets, to studying for those plebe year knowledge tests, to Bethesda and tonsils, to your Army Days across the river and tailgates and new friends. We can only imagine all the good to come! I give you all my energy. Your family, all tens of us, love you and rejoice in your accomplishments. Get after it!

Congratulations

From Annapolis to Singapore
You mastered all the rules
You're leaving as a sailor now
From the world's top naval school

No more march-ons, games, or classes
Done with study nights and tests
You must gather all your classmates
Include the relatives and guests

Raise your glasses and your hats
And assemble all the mates
Find the 2nds and the Ensigns
As it's time to celebrate!

Love,
Dad, Mom, JJ, Monica

GLENNON WATERS · CLASS OF 2017

In the 9th grade we asked you,

"Why the Naval Academy?"

Without hesitation you replied,

"Tradition, Honor, Country"

You are our hero, our joy,

our 'Angel on the Wing'.

Blessings and prayers as you continue your incredible and courageous journey.

Tina Alberts

"I have promises to keep and miles to go before I sleep"
-Robert Frost

Tina you have worked so very hard to turn your dreams into reality and the word "proud" doesn't even begin to express how we feel. Your courage and confidence are an inspiration to all who know you. You have never compromised your beliefs or doubted your faith in God and through it all your kind heart and soul have always shined through. It has been a joy and an honor having you as our daughter and no matter where you go we will always be there for you. As Company 11 Commander you have shown you are a true leader and will be an admirable Surface Warfare Officer.
May God always watch over you and all the men and women selflessly serving to make this world a safer place for us all.

We love you to the moon and back!

Mom, Dad, Joey, Peter and Jimmie

Congratulations Aislinn!

We are so incredibly proud of all you have accomplished. It has been a joy to be on the sideline watching your journey to becoming a Naval Officer. Your future is bright and as always, we will be here to love, support and cheer you on.

Mensaje para mi hijo Erick

Querido hijo, en este momento que has culminado tus estudios, miro al tiempo hacia atras y digo que no han sido en vano los sacrificios que hemos hecho tu y yo. Fueron momentos muy dificiles pero con un enorme aprendizaje. Gracias por ser mi primer hijo, por enseñarme a luchar hasta alcanzar. Hoy tengo una satisfacion muy completa llena de dicha y orgullo. Hoy puedo decir que tus amigos mas fieles han sido un lapiz, un papel, y una mochila, cosas tan simples que hace una diferencia a una persona. Hoy te felicito mi Marinero enormemente por alcanzar las metas que tu madre tanto soñó. Gracias una vez mas, eres el mejor.

Te adoro con todo mi corazon.

Ahora ahi tienes el mundo entero para explorar.

Recuerda: "Siempre lleva tu humildad y sencillez por delante. Y nunca olvidez de Dios."

Tu Mami que te adora,

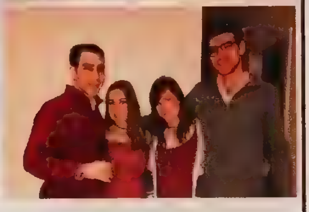
CONGRATULATIONS, ENSIGN ALEXIS ELISE CLANCY OPFERMAN!

Distinguished Midshipman Graduate, Ocean Engineering

From day one, you've been moving fast, and ever rising to new and bigger challenges.
Our country is fortunate to have you and your United States Naval Academy classmates at the helm!
Fair Winds and Following Seas as you head to Cambridge and then to the fleet. With love from your big family.

WELL DONE JIMMY!
CONGRATULATIONS AND HOORAY!



We are SO proud of you! It's been an adventurous four years. You got knocked down but you got up again, hot like the prodigal son, talkin' about the clothes you wear but they don't realize they're the ones who's square, you say hey hey hey hey, up to lexington one two five, no sleep till Brooklyn doing the blitzkrieg bop, we know you don't like to be rudely awaken by the dustman, crazy days but they make you shine, go forward move ahead, ramble on, there's lots and lots for you to see. You are ELECTRIC! We love and admire you! Dad, Mom, Charlie, Hannah & Daisy.

Zachary Coleman

From Plebe to Marine, we can't thank you enough for sharing this amazing journey with us! May your future be blessed with much more continued success. We are bursting with pride at your many terrific accomplishments following your dream. We love you forever!

Congratulations!

USNA CLASS OF 2017

Congratulations on the completion of your steadfast journey from Plebe Summer to Graduation and for fulfilling your dream to become a Naval pilot! Your dedication, perseverance, discernment, service to others and commitment to excellence in your life are inspirational to us.
We are so proud of the man you have become.
We love you always,
MOM, YOUR FAMILY AND FRIENDS

Parker Abell

From the time you were six, you have wanted to serve your country. We are proud of you Parker, for your incredible achievements throughout your life, and especially over the past four years. Though the road we travel on will never be a straight path, there is no doubt that you will achieve your dreams of service to your country, that you will do so in a role that will challenge your great intellect, and you will continue to live life guided by your strong moral compass. We thank you Parker for who you are, what you want to achieve, and the gifts we know you will bring to this country and our world.

- We love you -

COLOPHON

The 2017 Lucky Bag consists of 704 full color pages with a press run of 4700 copies. The Lucky Bag is a 9"x12" smyth-sewn, rounded back book printed on 100# matte paper with selective UV gloss on opening pages and all dividers. The cover is a custom embossed, shadow material with gold foil on the stars, white silk screen on the text and arrows, and burnishing on the map, title, date, and seal. The endsheets are printed in blue, with white text corresponding with the cover. The vellum has gold foil applied, showcasing the Naval Academy on page 1. The page edges are also gilded in gold. All pages were created using Jostens Yeartech Online at Yearbookavenue.com.

We regret the omission of materials. All Firsties/groups/sports/clubs were contacted in the first and/or second semester and invited to contribute material.

The Lucky Bag is a Midshipmen run publication, and, although every effort has been made to ensure the accuracy and reliability of these pages, all transcripts are subject to human error.

The opinions expressed in the Lucky Bag are those of the yearbook staff and are not intended to represent the official policies of the Brigade of Midshipmen or the United States Naval Academy. Nothing in this book may be reproduced in any way without the expressed written permission of the Lucky Bag Yearbook Staff at the USNA.

The 122nd volume of the Lucky Bag was published for the United States Naval Academy by Jostens Printing and Publishing, 451 International Boulevard, Clarksville, Tennessee 37040.

Steve Sweet served as the local Jostens Representatives, and Dee Skelton, the in-plant printing consultant.

The cover and page artwork were created by Jeremy Bratton, Jostens State College Creative Resource Department.

Lieutenant Kayron Parrish served as the Lucky Bag adviser and Ellen Sherman served as manager of the Midshipmen Welfare Fund.

MIDN 1/C Nelson Gorrick served as Lucky Bag President.

MIDN 2/C Malia Meditiz served as Editor-in Chief.

MIDN 2/C Marcelo Norcini served as Director of Photography.

Portraits provided by Legacy Studios.

Other contributing photographers: Phil Hoffman, Debbie Latta, Jason Roman, Curtis Khol, Jeffrey Martino, Chris Lewis, Rylan Tuohy, Katrina Herrera, Matthew Wyckoff, Anton Ekman, Supawit Wongissares, Amber Lowman
